The International Critical Commentary

on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and

EDITORS' PREFACE.

THERE are now before the public many Commentaries, written by British and American divines, of a popular or homiletical character. The Cambridge Bible for Schools, the Handbooks for Bible Classes and Private Students, The Speaker's Commentary, The Popular Commentary (Schaff), The Expositor's Bible, and other similar series, have their special place and importance. But they do not enter into the field of Critical Biblical scholarship occupied by such series of Commentaries as the Kurzgefasstes exegetisches Handbuch zum A. T.; De Wette's Kurzgefasstes exegetisches Handbuch zum N. T.; Meyer's Kritisch-exegetischer Kommentar; Keil and Delitzsch's Biblischer Commentar über das A. T.; Lange's Theologisch-homiletisches Bibelwerk; Nowack's Handkommentar zum A. T.; Holtzmann's Handkommentar zum N. T. Several of these have been translated, edited, and in some cases enlarged and adapted, for the English-speaking public; others are in process of translation. But no corresponding series by British or American divines has hitherto been produced. The way has been prepared by special Commentaries by Cheyne, Ellicott, Kalisch, Lightfoot, Perowne, Westcott, and others; and the time has come, in the judgment of the projectors of this enterprise, when it is practicable to combine British and American scholars in the production of a critical, comprehensive

EDITORS' PREFACE

Commentary that will be abreast of modern biblical scholarship, and in a measure lead its van.

Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons of New York, and Messrs. T. & T. Clark of Edinburgh, propose to publish such a series of Commentaries on the Old and New Testaments, under the editorship of Prof. C. A. BRIGGS, D.D., in America, and of Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., for the Old Testament, and the Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D., for the New Testament, in Great Britain.

The Commentaries will be international and inter-confessional, and will be free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias. They will be based upon a thorough critical study of the original texts of the Bible, and upon critical methods of interpretation. They are designed chiefly for students and clergymen, and will be written in a compact style. Each book will be preceded by an Introduction, stating the results of criticism upon it, and discussing impartially the questions still remaining open. The details of criticism will appear in their proper place in the body of the Commentary. Each section of the Text will be introduced with a paraphrase, or summary of contents. Technical details of textual and philological criticism will, as a rule, be kept distinct from matter of a more general character; and in the Old Testament the exegetical notes will be arranged, as far as possible, so as to be serviceable to students not acquainted with Hebrew. The History of Interpretation of the Books will be dealt with, when necessary, in the Introductions, with critical notices of the most important literature of the subject. Historical and Archæological questions, as well as questions of Biblical Theology, are included in the plan of the Commentaries, but not Practical or Homiletical Exegesis. The Volumes will constitute a uniform series.

PREFACE

THIS Commentary is the fruit of forty years of labour. In 1867, when making special studies in Berlin with Dr. Emil Rödiger, I began a critical Commentary on the Psalms, the Ms. of which is still in my possession. In 1872 the translation of Moll's "Commentary on the Psalms" in Lange's Bibelwerk was published in the series edited by Philip Schaff. I translated and enlarged the Commentary on Pss. 1-41 51-72 with twenty-five per cent additional matter, and edited the Introduction with additional notes. In 1874 I began teaching as professor of Hebrew and cognate languages in Union Theological Seminary, and lectured on the Psalms every year until 1890 when I became Edward Robinson Professor of Biblical Theology, in which position I continued to lecture on the Criticism and Theology of the Psalter until 1904, when I was transferred to my present chair. In the plan of the International Critical Commentary I undertook the volumes on the Psalms, and have been at work upon them ever since. In addition to my work on the theological terms of the new edition of Robinson's Gesenius' Hebrew Lexicon, BDB., I have made a complete lexicon to the Psalter, based on a revised Hebrew text, which I hope ere long to publish. I have spared no pains upon the text of the Psalter, not only in the study of the Versions, but also in the detection and elimination of the glosses in the search for the original texts as they came from their authors. The Theology of the Psalter has been carefully investigated; only the limits of space prevent me from giving it in this volume.

I have made a careful study of the chief commentaries and have referred to them so far as practicable in the notes, but the most that could be done was to distribute credit to my predecessors in fair proportions. The amount of literature is so vast that no other course was possible. The Commentary will show that Roman Catholic Commentators have rendered valuable service which has been too often neglected by modern Protestants; and that the older British interpreters are the real fathers of much of the material for which modern Germans usually receive the credit. For more than thirty years I have given much attention to Hebrew poetry. For a long time I had to battle for it alone against unreasoning prejudice. I have lived to see a large proportion of American scholars adopt essentially the views which I represent. All of the Psalms have been arranged in this Commentary in measured lines, and the great majority of them in equal strophes. Their literary character has thereby been greatly improved and their historical propriety become more evident. The translations are based on the English official Versions, but whenever important I have not hesitated to forsake them in order to conform to that original which I have determined by the principles of textual criticism. I have not attempted to give a Version for public or private use, but simply one to set forth the original text as I have determined it. A public Version, in my opinion, should be less pedantic and literal than the Revised Version, and not so slavish in its adherence to the Massoretic text. In this respect the older Versions, especially the Version of the Book of Common Prayer, is to be preferred; for while it is less accurate than the later Versions, it preserves many readings of the Greek and Vulgate Versions which later English Versions unwisely rejected, and it is concerned to give the sense of the original in rhythmical devotional language well suited to the character of a book of prayer and praise.

The results which have been reached in Textual Criticism, Higher Criticism, Hebrew Poetry, Historical Criticism, Biblical Theology, and Interpretation of the Psalter have not been stated without long and careful consideration. If I could spend more years in preparation, doubtless I would do much better work. But there is a limit to all things, and I cannot longer withhold my Commentary from the press. Whatever is true and sound in this work will endure, whatever is mistaken and unsound will soon be detected and will perish. I would not have it otherwise.

The Psalms are among the most wonderful products of human genius. No other writings but the Gospels can compare with them in grandeur and importance. The Gospels are greater because they set forth the life and character of our Lord and Saviour. The Psalter expresses the religious experience of a devout people through centuries of communion with God. I cannot explain either Gospels or Psalms except as Books of God, as products of human religious experience, inspired and guided by the Divine Spirit.

I could not have completed these volumes without the help of my daughter, Emilie Grace Briggs, B.D., who has laboured with me on the Hebrew Lexicon and in the preparation of this Commentary. It is simple justice to add her name to mine on the title-page. I have dedicated these volumes to John Crosby Brown, Esq., and D. Willis James, Esq., who have for more than the thirty-three years of my professorship served Union Seminary on its Board of Directors. Their services to Theological Education and especially to the liberty of theological scholarship cannot be too highly estimated.

C. A. BRIGGS.

VI. REMARKS.

Biblical passages are cited according to the verses of the Hebrew text.

Numerals raised above the line (1) after numerals designating chapters indicate verses (Gn. 6<sup>3</sup>); (2) after numerals designating lines of strophe indicate measures (2 Str. 6<sup>4</sup>); (3) after proper names refer to sections of grammars or pages of books (Ges.<sup>§ 42</sup>).

Proper names usually refer to works upon the Psalter given in the History of Interpretation.

In notes numbers in italics (Ps. 1<sup>2</sup>) indicate passages in which the word has been fully discussed.

INTRODUCTION.

§ 1. The Psalter belongs to the third division of the Hebrew Canon, entitled Hymns or Prayers, from its chief contents. The Greek Version named it Psalms from the most frequent sub-title, and in this has been followed by other Versions.

The Hebrew OT. consists of three divisions, the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings, representing three layers of successive canonical recognition. The Writings were of indefinite extent until their limits were defined by the Synod of Jamnia: Prior to that time there were disputes as to several of the Writings, such as Chronicles, Song of Songs, and Ecclesiastes; but, so far as we are able to discover, there never was any dispute as to the canonicity of the Psalter as a whole, or as to any one of the Psalms. In the Greek Septuagint (Σ) these divisions of the Canon were broken up and the books were rearranged on topical principles. The Apocrypha were mingled with the books of the Hebrew Canon, doubtless from a wider and looser view of its character and extent (Br.<sup>SHS.</sup> 124-130). EV<sup>s</sup>. follow the order of the books of the Latin Vulgate (V) of the sixteenth century, which was based on Σ, but with several important differences. This order for the three great poetical books is Job, Psalter, Proverbs.

The most ancient order of the Writings, preserved in Literature, is that of the Baba Bathra of the Talmud (f. 14<sup>b</sup>), which placed Ruth first, because of the theory that it gave the genealogy of David, and therefore should precede the Psalms of David (v. Br.<sup>SHS.</sup> 252). The modern Hebrew Bibles follow the order of the German codd., which, though of comparatively late date, doubtless preserve the original order in putting the Psalter (ψ) first. The breaking up of the triple division of the Canon in Σ, followed by other Vrss. ancient and modern, occasioned various other rearrangements of the books in accordance with different theories about them. The books which were supposed to be historical, Ch., Ezr., Ne., and Est., were arranged with the prophetic histories. Ruth was attached to Judges. These all therefore preceded  $\psi$ . The three great poetical books, which in the German codd. are in the natural order,  $\psi$ , Pr., Jb., were given in  $\mathfrak{H}$  in the order Jb.,  $\psi$ , Pr., in accordance with a mistaken theory as to their historical order of composition. La. was attached to Je., in accordance with a theory as to date, authorship, or character of the composition. Thus, of the five rolls which in the Hebrew Canon belonged together, only Ec. and Ct. were left to follow Pr. The most serious change, however, was the placing of the three greater poetical books and these two rolls in the middle, between the Historical and the Prophetical Books.

In the Hebrew Canon the Psalter bears the title Praises, or Book of Praises, because of the conception that it was essentially a collection of songs of praise, or hymn book, to be used in the worship of God; or else Prayers, because it was a collection of prayers, a prayer book. In  $\mathfrak{S}$  it is entitled Psalms, doubtless because the word "psalm" was in the titles of such a large proportion of the poems. In early Greek writers it received the name Psalter, which seems a more appropriate name for a collection of Pss. for use in public worship.

(A) The Hebrew title was either  $\text{סֵפֶר תְּהִלִּים}$  or  $\text{תְּהִלִּים}$  N.H. or  $\text{תְּהִלִּין}$  Aramaic for the proper Hebrew  $\text{תְּהִלָּה}$ , pl. of  $\text{תְּהִלָּה}$  n.f. a song of praise, formed by  $\text{ח}$  from  $\text{הלל}$  vb. praise in sacred song. The nucleus of the Pss. 90–150 is composed of Hallel, with the title  $\text{הַלְלוּיָהּ}$ , originally a collection of songs of praise or hymns (v. § 35). Only Ps. 145 has the title  $\text{תְּהִלָּה}$ . This title of  $\psi$  appears in a writing ascribed to Hippolytus (ed. Lagarde, p. 188) as  $\Sigma\epsilon\phi\phi\alpha\ \theta\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\iota\mu$  (cf. the gloss  $\sigma\epsilon\phi\phi\ \acute{\alpha}\theta\epsilon\lambda\lambda\iota\mu$  in Mercati's Un Palimpsesto Ambrosiano dei Salmi Esapli, Turin, 1898); in Origen (Euseb. Hist. Eccl. VI. 25, ed. McGiffert)  $\Sigma\phi\alpha\rho\theta\epsilon\lambda\lambda\epsilon\iota\mu$ ; and Jerome (Psalterium iuxta Hebraeos, ed. Lagarde, p. 2) sephar tallim, quod interpretatur volumen hymnorum. So also Philo always uses the term  $\psi\mu\text{νο}\iota$  or one of its compounds in his citation of Pss. (Hatch, Essays in Biblical Greek, p. 174), and in the De vita contempl. (II. 475), an early writing attributed to Philo (v. Br.<sup>8HS</sup>. 126), the same usage appears. Josephus (Antiq. VII. 12) refers to the psalms as songs and hymns (v. § 12).

(B)  $[\text{הלל}]$  vb. Qal only in mng. be boastful, which also appears in Pi. and Hiph. make one's boast (v. 5<sup>6</sup> 56<sup>5, 11</sup>). Pi. † praise: (1) obj. (C) The term תְּפִלָּה is used in Ps. 72<sup>20</sup> as a sub-title of the Davidic Psalter (v. § 27). † תְּפִלָּה n.f. prayer, is used in the titles of Pss. 17, 86, 90, 102, 142, and also Hb. 3<sup>1</sup>. In all these cases it was original before the Pss. were taken up into any of the Psalters. תְּפִלָּה is used elsw. in ψ for prayer 35<sup>18</sup> 66<sup>20</sup> 80<sup>6</sup> 88<sup>14</sup> 102<sup>18</sup> 109<sup>4</sup>. 7 141<sup>5</sup>, c. ל 42<sup>9</sup> 69<sup>14</sup>, לפני 88<sup>3</sup> 141<sup>2</sup>. Phrs. for hearing prayer: c. שָׁמַע 4<sup>2</sup> 39<sup>13</sup> 54<sup>4</sup> 65<sup>3</sup> 84<sup>9</sup> 102<sup>2</sup> 143<sup>1</sup>; בְּקוֹל הַקֶּשֶׁב 61<sup>2</sup> 66<sup>19</sup>; הַאֲזִינוּ 17<sup>1</sup> 55<sup>2</sup> 86<sup>6</sup>; לִקְחָהּ 61<sup>10</sup>, פָּנָה אֵל 102<sup>18</sup>. The vb. † [פָּלַח] is not used in Qal. It prob. had the fundamental mng. intervene, interpose, and accordingly the derivatives, arbitrate, judge, not used in ψ; and intercede, pray, Pi. 106<sup>30</sup>, Hithp. c. אֵל 5<sup>3</sup> 32<sup>6</sup>, כַּעַר 72<sup>16</sup>. The term תְּפִלָּה was indeed the most appropriate title for P, as the great majority of its psalms are prayers. But the term תְּהִלָּה ultimately prevailed among the Hebrews as among Christians; for prayers when sung in worship naturally are regarded as hymns. Thus, in place of תְּפִלָּה 72<sup>20</sup> of Hebrew text 6 has ὕμνοι, so F laudes, showing that at the date of the origin of 6 the conception of the Psalms as hymns had already, among Hellenistic Jews, displaced the older conception. Gr. does not hesitate to regard 6 as giving the original text. S omits the passage as an editorial note. But Aq., Σ, Θ, Ξ, agree with 6, which certainly gives the true reading.

(D) In 6, ψ bore the title ψαλμοί, pl. ψαλμός, so Lk. 24<sup>44</sup>, or Book of Psalms Lk. 20<sup>42</sup> Acts 1<sup>20</sup>; ψαλμός is the translation of מְזִמֵּר used in the titles of fifty-seven Pss. in 6, a n. formed by מ from [זמר] vb. denom. [מְזִמֵּר] n.m. song or poem, with trimmed, measured words and ornate style, from † זָמַר vb. trim, prune. Qal Lv. 25<sup>34</sup>. Niph. Is. 5<sup>6</sup>. † מְזִמֵּר sg. cstr. It seems probable that all these מְזִמֵּר were gathered in an early collection for this purpose (v. § 31). The title of this early Psalter subsequently became the title of the whole Psalter. The term of  $\Psi$  has been followed by most Vrss. In  $\Psi^A$  the title  $\psiαλτῆριον$  appears; also in Hippolytus, Athanasius, Epiphanius, and other Fathers. On the whole, this seems to be the most appropriate title. Hb. 4<sup>7</sup>  $\epsilonν Δαυιδ$  seems to be a title of the Psalter, reflecting the popular usage as reflected elsw. in NT. and in ancient and modern usage as a popular personification of the book that bears his name. Here, again, the early Psalter of David gave the name to the entire collection of the Psalter.

A. THE TEXT OF THE PSALTER.

§ 2. The original text of the Psalter was written in the Hebrew language, and in letters which were subsequently abandoned for the Aramaic script. This latter text has been preserved in Mss., none of which are older than the tenth century; but they rest upon two important revisions of that century, those of Ben Asher and Ben Naftali, which differ chiefly in Massoretic material.

The text of the Psalter, as that of all the OT., was written in the ancient Hebrew language. The Pss. were written by many different authors at different periods of time, and also passed through the hands of many different editors. They therefore show traces of several stages in the development of the Hebrew language. The most if not all of the Pss. were written in letters resembling those of the Samaritan language, preserved elsewhere only in inscriptions and on coins. They were subsequently transliterated into the square Aramaic letters through an intermediate form of current Aramaic script (Br.<sup>SHS. 170-173</sup>). In all these processes of copying, editing, and transliteration, changes occurred, some of which were intentional, others unintentional, due to mistakes of various kinds. The Hebrew text has been preserved in a large number of Mss. The earliest text of the entire OT. is the St. Petersburg Codex, 1009 A.D. There are a number of codd. of the Psalter, but none of an early date. All these rest upon a revision of the text made by the Rabbi Ben Asher in the early part of the tenth century, who undoubtedly used material no longer accessible, and made such excellent use of it that his text has remained the standard authority for the Massoretic text until the present day; although the variations in pointing of his contemporary, Ben Naftali, representing another tradition, have been preserved in the Massoretic apparatus which is usually given in Hebrew Bibles.

The earliest text of the OT. preserved is the St. Petersburg Codex of the Prophets, 916 A.D., but this does not contain the Psalter. Ginsburg (Text of the Heb. Bible, p. 469 sq.) thinks that a Ms. of the British Museum was written in 820–850 A.D., but, so far as we know, he has found no one to agree with him. Most Hebrew codd., that have been preserved, rest upon a text revised by Rabbi Ben Asher in the early part of the tenth century, and this is the text that has been taken as a standard in all printed editions. The recently discovered codd. of St. Petersburg gives an earlier and simpler system of vowel points and accents, but only slight variations in the unpointed text. The variations in the most important codd. are given by Baer in his text of  $\psi$  from two codd. Curtisianus, three codd. Erfurtensis, one cod. each Francofurtensis, Heidenheimianus, Petropolitanus, and Sappiri Parisiensis. The Massora also contains 13 traditional variations between the Palestinian and Babylonian tradition, and 299 variations between Ben Asher and Ben Naftali, none of which are of any serious importance for the interpretation of the  $\psi$ .

§ 3. The Massora also gives evidences of variations of text, going back to primitive times, in marginal notes and signs, where the text remains unchanged. Citations in the Talmud and other early Jewish writings give little evidence of other variations of text.

The Massorites devoted themselves to the study of the traditional text of the OT. When the knowledge of ancient Hebrew was confined to scholars, they endeavoured to perpetuate and stereotype the traditional pronunciation, the method of recitation of the OT. in the synagogue, and the connection of words and clauses in the sentence, by the use of vowel points, accents, and other signs. This was necessary because the Hebrew, like other Semitic languages, was in ancient times written only so far as the consonants were concerned.

These Massorites were so called as masters of Massora, or tradition. Their work was based upon the methods of the Syrian schools with reference to Syriac Literature. The differences between the so-called Babylonian and Palestinian systems of vocalisation and accentuation show various stages in their work, which continued for several centuries. The earliest stages have left no record, but they may be inferred from the simpler forms of Syriac and Arabic Literature (Br.<sup>SHS.</sup> 180–183). It is important to notice that all these vowel points and accents are comparatively late in origin, and, although they rest on tradition going back to primitive times, they were still matters of opinion, and by no means have the venerable authority of the consonantal text. The view that they were equally inspired with the consonantal text, held commonly in the sixteenth century, has been universally abandoned. There are several Massoretic notes and signs which are of great importance, for they indicate variations of text in ancient tradition which the Massorites felt obliged to record, although they did not venture to change the traditional text. These are: (1) The variation between the קרי, that which should be read, and the כתוב, that which is written. There are seventy of these in  $\psi$ . (2) The inverted ׀, parentheses, 107<sup>23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 40</sup> (v. Ochla vechochla<sup>179</sup>; Dikduke hateamini<sup>8</sup> 60; Gemara, Rosch hashana<sup>170</sup>). (3) The Paseq, which calls attention to a peculiarity of text that sometimes needs correction. There are forty-seven of these in  $\psi$  (v. Grimme, Psalmenprobleme, s. 166 sq.; Kennedy, Note Line in Biblical Hebrew, commonly called Paseq or Pesiq). This sign was neglected by the older critics, but has been carefully considered by many moderns, and is often found to be a sign of a corrupt text. (4) The change of the form of letters also probably indicates variations of text, the letters ו זעירא 24<sup>4</sup> ו זעירא 80<sup>16</sup> קי רבחה 84<sup>4</sup> קי רבחה 80<sup>14</sup>. (5) The superfluous letters: נעלם 99<sup>6</sup> 104<sup>12</sup> 116<sup>6</sup> ו יתיר 51<sup>4</sup> ו יתיר 26<sup>2</sup> 38<sup>21</sup> 89<sup>29</sup> 101<sup>6</sup> 144<sup>13</sup> 145<sup>8</sup>, ו יתיר 16<sup>10</sup> 21<sup>2</sup> 77<sup>20</sup> 119<sup>147, 161</sup>. These all need attention as suggesting variations in the text. (6) The extraordinary points mark letters as doubtful 27<sup>18</sup>. There are large numbers of citations of  $\psi$  in the Talmud and other early Jewish writings, but so far as they have been examined and collated they give no evidence of any important variations besides those indicated in the Mas., which doubtless took the most, if not all of them, into consideration.

§ 4. The earliest printed edition of the Hebrew Psalter was published at Bologna in 1477. Independent texts based on Mss. were published at Soncino, in the Complutensian Polyglot, and the second Rabbinical Bible. All subsequent editions were mixed texts, until those of Baer and Ginsburg, which give accurate forms of the Massoretic text of Ben Asher.

(1) The earliest edition of the Hebrew text of  $\psi$  was printed at Bologna, 1477. The whole Bible was first printed at Soncino, Lombardy, in 1488; then at Naples, 1491-1493. Another edition was printed at Brescia in 1494. This was used by Luther in making his version. The same text is used in Bomberg's first Rabbinical Bible, 1516-1517, edited by Felix Pratensis, and in his manual editions 1517 sq.; and also by Stephens, 1539 sq., and Sebastian Munster. (2) The second independent text was issued in the Complutensian Polyglot, 1514-1517, of Cardinal Ximenes. (3) The third independent text was edited by Jacob ben Chayim in the second Rabbinical Bible of Bomberg, 1524-1525. This was carefully revised after the Massora. All the printed texts from that time until recent times are mixtures of these three texts. (4) Baer and Delitzsch undertook a fourth independent text by the use of the entire Massoretic apparatus accessible. The Liber Psalmorum was published in 1880. (5) A fifth independent text was published by Ginsburg, 1894. It is essentially "based upon the first edition of Jacob ben Chayim's Massoretic recension." (6) A sixth independent text is in process of publication by R. Kittel (1905), with critical notes, using ancient Vrss. and conjectural emendations. The vol. containing  $\psi$  has not yet appeared.

§ 5. The earliest Version of the Psalter was that of the Greek Septuagint, translated from the Hebrew in the second century B.C. at Alexandria, and preserved in many ancient codices, the earliest of the fourth century A.D., giving evidence as to an original Hebrew text, many centuries prior to any Hebrew authorities. The ancient Latin, Coptic, Gothic, Armenian, and Ethiopic Versions are based upon the Greek Version.

The OT. was translated for the use of Egyptian and Greek Jews. The earliest writings translated were the five books of the Law in the third century. The Psalter was probably translated in the early second century, for use in public prayer and praise in the Egyptian synagogues. It was made from the best Mss. accessible at the time, and gives evidence as to the original Hebrew text of early second century B.C., three centuries earlier than the text fixed by the school of Jamnia, and twelve centuries earlier than the Mass. text as fixed by Ben Asher and preserved in the earliest Hebrew codd. It is usually called the Septuagint because of the legend that it was prepared by seventy chosen Hebrew scholars (Br.<sup>SHS. 188 sq.</sup>). The Septuagint Version of the Psalter, referred to in the abbr.  $\mathfrak{S}$ , is one of the best translations of the OT. It shows an excellent knowledge of the original Hebrew, and a good knowledge of Alexandrine Greek. The translator appreciated the poetic character of the Psalter, and also the fact that it was for public use in the worship of the synagogue. He was concerned, therefore, to preserve as far as practicable the metrical form, and to give the sense of the original in intelligible Greek. Where a literal rendering interferes with these objects he departs from the letter and gives the spirit of his original, and so tends toward the method of the later Targums. He shares in the religious and theological prejudices of his times. He has an undue awe of God, and conceives of Him as essentially transcendent. He shrinks from the anthropomorphisms and anthropopathisms of the earlier writers.

The text of  $\mathfrak{G}$  has been preserved in several types enabling us to go back, on the genealogical principle of textual criticism, to an original earlier than any of the codices (v. Br.<sup>SHS. 231 sq.</sup>). (1) The earliest codex is one preserved in the Vatican Library, usually indicated by B. Pss. 105<sup>27</sup>–137<sup>6</sup> are missing. This cod. was written in the fourth century A.D. It was the basis of the Sixtine edition of the Septuagint of 1586(7). It was used in the London Polyglot, with critical notes making use of the other known codd.; and so in many manual editions, especially Van Ess, 1823, 1854, and Tischendorf, 1850, 1856. B was published by Mai in 1857, and a facsimile edition by Vercellone and Cozza in 1866 sq., a photographic lithographic edition, 1890. The hands of several later editors may be traced in the text, indicated by B<sup>a. b. c.</sup> (2) About the same time, and under essentially the same influence, the Sinaitic codex was written. It was discovered by Tischendorf in 1844–1859, in the convent of S. Catharine, on Mt. Sinai, and was deposited in the Imperial Library at St. Petersburg. It gives  $\psi$  complete. It is known usually as  $\aleph$ , but by many Germans as S (v. Gregory, Prolegomena, pp. 345 sq.). Tischendorf issued a facsimile edition in 1862 (Bibbiorium Codex Sinaiticus Petropolitanus, Tom I.–IV.). He also used  $\aleph$  in his manual editions of 1860, 1869, continued after his death by Nestle, 1875, 1880, 1887. The best text of B has been issued by Swete (3 vols. 1887–1894, 1895–1899), who uses  $\aleph$  to supply the missing Pss. The references to B will be given simply as  $\mathfrak{G}^B$ , those to  $\aleph$  will appear as  $\mathfrak{G}^N$  (v. Intr. Swete's edition). These two codices give what Westcott and Hort term the Neutral Text, based on a text written on separate rolls in the early part of the second century A.D. (v. Br.<sup>SHS. 197</sup>). (3) The Alexandrian codex ( $\mathfrak{G}^A$ ), now in the British Museum, was written in the fifth century. Pss. 49<sup>19</sup>–79<sup>10</sup> are missing from its text. This codex represents an Alexandrian official text, but later than the revisions of Hesychius and Origen. This text was published by Grabe and his associates in 1707–1720). HP. also cite the Psalterium purpureum Turicense ( $\mathfrak{G}^T$ ) as Ms. 262. It has been preserved in the Municipal Library of Zurich. It was published by Tischendorf in his Monumenta Sacra inedita, IV. It was evidently written in the seventh century. According to Swete its readings are in frequent agreement with A. The following Pss. are missing: 1–25 30<sup>2</sup>–36<sup>20</sup> 41<sup>6</sup>–43<sup>3</sup> 58<sup>14</sup>–59<sup>5</sup> 59<sup>9-10</sup> 59<sup>18</sup>–60<sup>1</sup> 64<sup>12</sup>–71<sup>4</sup> 92<sup>8</sup>–93<sup>7</sup> 96<sup>12</sup>–97<sup>8</sup>. (4) The text of Origen is represented in the fragments of his Hexapla which have been preserved. A Syriac translation of the text of the Hexapla (Syr. Hex.) was made by Paul of Tella in 616 A.D. A Ms. of this text of the eighth century was discovered by Ceriani in the Ambrosian Library of Milan, and issued in 1874. (5) Lucian the martyr (311 +) made an independent revision of the entire Greek Bible at Antioch. Lagarde issued this text for the Historical books of the OT. in 1883, but died before he was able to publish the rest of the OT. This text rests upon a parent text which is the basis of the old Latin version, is near the Syriac version, and resembles that used in the citations in Josephus (v. Br.<sup>SHS. 203–204</sup>). The Codex Vaticanus 330 (HP. 108) was recognised by Field and Lagarde as giving essentially this text. It was the chief authority for the text of the Complutensian Polyglot; but this cod. does not contain  $\psi$ . Swete regards 144, 147, 185 HP. as Lucian in their characteristics. (6) The Revision of Hesychius is not so easy to determine. Cornill (Ezekiel, 79) and Swete (Introduction to Old Test. in Greek, 486) think that the Aldine text gives essentially the text of Hesychius. Four other codices have come into importance in recent times. (7) The Psalterium Graeco-Latinum Veronense,  $\mathfrak{G}^R$ , generally attributed to the sixth century, is preserved in Verona. It was published by Bianchini in his Vinaiiae canoniarum scripturarum, I., Rome, 1740; but was not used in HP. It is highly valued by Tisch., Swete, and others. Swete says: "A few portions of the Psalms (1<sup>1</sup>-2<sup>7</sup> 65<sup>20</sup>-68<sup>3</sup> 68<sup>26-33</sup> 105<sup>43</sup>-106<sup>2</sup>) have been replaced or supplied by a hand of the tenth century, to which the corrections throughout the Ms. are generally due." (8) The Fragmenta papyracea Londinensia ( $\mathfrak{G}^U$ ). These are in the British Museum. Only two portions of  $\psi$  have been preserved: 102-18<sup>8</sup> 201<sup>4</sup>-34<sup>6</sup>. It was published by Tisch. in his Monumenta sacra inedita, Nov. Coll., 1855. Tisch. ascribes it to the sixth or seventh century. "Its readings are often unique, or agree with the Hebrew or the Vrss. or patristic citations, against all other known Mss." (Swete, p. xiii). (9) The Leipzig papyrus fragments of the Psalter contain Pss. 30<sup>6-14</sup>. 18-25 31<sup>1</sup> 32<sup>186</sup>-33<sup>9a</sup> 33<sup>13</sup>-34<sup>2</sup> 34<sup>24</sup>-35<sup>3</sup> 36<sup>4</sup>-55<sup>14</sup>. They have been published by Heinrich, in Beiträge zur Geschichte und Erklärung des N.T., IV., Leipzig, 1903. According to this scholar, these fragments resemble those of  $\mathfrak{G}^U$ , and both represent the common text, used by Christians and cited by the early Fathers, as described by Jerome and Origen, before the latter undertook to purify it and establish a correct text (pp. 9, 13, 25).

Many ancient Vrss. were translated from  $\mathfrak{G}$ . The oldest of these was the ancient Latin. Many Latin Psalters have been preserved, but so far as known, none of them give early texts. We are for the most part dependent on citations in the early Fathers. Jerome made a revision of the Latin Psalter under the auspices of Pope Damasus I. in 383. This is the Roman Psalter still used in St. Peter's at Rome. About 392 Jerome made a second revision on the basis of the Hexapla. This is known as the Gallican Psalter, and is still in use in the Vulgate and the Roman Catholic Breviaries. The Coptic Vrss. were made from  $\mathfrak{G}$ . The Bohairic Vrs. of the Psalter is of the sixth century (edited by Lagarde, 1875). The Sahidic Vrs. is older, but of uncertain date. The Psalter has been edited by Bridge, 1898. It seems to represent a text of  $\mathfrak{G}$  corresponding closely to  $\mathfrak{G}^U$  (v. Brightman, Journal of Theol. Studies, II., 275). The old Gothic Vrs. of the sixth and the Slavonic of the ninth century were made from  $\mathfrak{G}$  of Lucian. The Armenian and Ethiopic Vrss. in their present form are based on mixed texts, in which Syriac and Hebraic elements are mingled with the Greek.

The texts of the Psalter in the several codd. of  $\mathfrak{G}$  are not always homogeneous with the texts of other parts of OT., especially in the early codd. This was due to the fact that the Psalter was usually on a separate roll, and that the most of these rolls were prepared for ecclesiastical use. Swete remarks quite truly that Pss. of  $\mathfrak{G}^A$  "are evidently copied from a Psalter written for ecclesiastical use, and it is interesting to notice how constantly A here appears in company with the later liturgical Psalters, R and T, and with the seventh century corrections of  $\mathfrak{N}$  known as  $\mathfrak{N}^{c.a.}$ ." He also says: "The first hand of  $\mathfrak{N}$  often agrees with A against B, and the combinations  $\mathfrak{N}$ , A, R, T in the Psalms are not uncommon" (Intr. to OT. in Greek, p. 490). To this may be added that in fact it is just these liturgical Psalters which seem to have preserved the most accurate text of  $\mathfrak{G}$ , whether that was due to the well-known conservatism of liturgical texts, or to a more conservative revision of the ancient faulty texts by Origen and Lucian than has generally been supposed, limited chiefly to the correction of errors. The text of  $\mathfrak{G}$  where there is a consensus of readings has a value which has not been estimated by critics as highly as it ought to be, so far as the Psalter is concerned. In a very large number of cases this common text is to be preferred to  $\mathfrak{H}$ . Where the ancient codd.  $\mathfrak{G}^{B.N}$  differ from the other codd. they are almost invariably at fault. It is altogether misleading to take them as the norms of a correct text of the Psalter.

I have carefully examined all the most important variations, and the result is the following. I. Where  $\mathfrak{G}^u$  stands alone: (1) there are nine corruptions of Greek words, 17<sup>14</sup> 27<sup>8</sup> 35<sup>20</sup> 37<sup>28</sup> 71<sup>16</sup> 74<sup>8</sup> 76<sup>8</sup> 84<sup>11</sup> 105<sup>36</sup>. (2) There are fourteen omissions of words or clauses of  $\mathfrak{H}$  required by measure or else earlier Heb. glosses, 16<sup>2</sup> 64<sup>8</sup> 65<sup>2.6</sup> 71<sup>12</sup> 73<sup>18</sup> 74<sup>4</sup> 75<sup>7</sup> 88<sup>19</sup> 90<sup>16</sup> 102<sup>16</sup> 139<sup>12</sup> 143<sup>3</sup> 145<sup>2</sup>. (3) There is one insertion injuring the measure, 76<sup>4</sup>. (4) There is only a single instance in which the text is correct. That is the omission of a clause of  $\mathfrak{H}$ , 41<sup>2</sup>, which injures the measure. But this may be merely an accidental coincidence in which a careless scribe happened to omit a passage which was a real gloss. II. Where  $\mathfrak{G}^N$  stands alone there are many cases of error, e.g. 110<sup>3.6.6</sup> 115<sup>3</sup> 116<sup>1.2.5</sup> 122<sup>2.6.9</sup> 129<sup>4</sup> 130<sup>6</sup> 138<sup>3</sup>.

The earliest printed editions of the Psalter of  $\Theta$  rested upon codd. which have not, so far as I know, been determined: Milan, 1481; Venice, 1486, 1489; Basel, 1516. Justinianus issued in 1516 at Genoa his Octaplum Psalterium. The text of the Complutensian Polyglot, 1514-1517, was followed by four other polyglots: Antwerp, 1569-1572; Heidelberg, 1586-1587; Hamburg, 1596; Paris, 1645 +. The Aldine text of 1518, the text of the Complutensian Polyglot and of the Octaplum, all agree for the most part with 144, 185, 264, of HP; and although based on late codd., in fact are much nearer the original  $\Theta$  than the earliest codd.  $\Theta^B$   $\kappa$ . In a few instances the Octaplum differs from the Complutensian text, but in these, so far as the most important readings are concerned, it agrees with 144 HP, which is regarded as Lucian's. A valuable discussion of texts and versions of  $\Theta$  is given by Swete, Introduction to the Study of the OT. in Greek, and by Nestle, Urtext und Uebersetzungen, pp. 64-65. A cautious but valuable study of the reading of  $\Theta$  of Swete's edition is given by F. W. Mozley, The Psalter of the Church, 1905. There remains much work to be done in the study of these codd.

§ 6. Several other Greek Versions were made in the second, third, and fourth centuries A.D., that of Aquila from the official Hebrew text of the school of Jamnia, that of Theodotion to improve  $\Theta$  in the direction of that text; and that of Symmachus to give a better Greek style. Other minor Versions, indicated as Quinta and Sexta, were also composed. None of these have been preserved, except in fragments.

$\Theta$  was used in a large proportion of the citations in the NT. and Christian writings of the second and third centuries. The Jews of the school of Rabbi Akiba, owing to a literalistic tendency, threw discredit upon  $\Theta$  among the Jews, and so gradually undermined the confidence even of Christians in its accuracy. Accordingly, many attempts were made to make a better Version. The first of these came from Aquila, a pupil of Akiba, who made a new translation from the official text established by the school of Jamnia. This is exceedingly literal and pedantic, and frequently transliterates rather than translates. This Version, indicated by Aq., is chiefly valuable for its evidence as to the official text which it translates. Theodotion ( $\Theta$ ) undertook a revision of  $\Theta$  to make it more conformable to the Hebrew text of Jamnia. Its variations from  $\Theta$  also help to the official Hebrew text of the second century rather than to an earlier text. Symmachus ( $\Sigma$ ) had a later and a different purpose; namely, to improve the style and character of  $\Theta$ .

It is therefore of value in helping to a text of  $\mathfrak{G}$ . It is difficult to determine the purpose of Quinta and Sexta, but so far as appears they do not give evidence of any knowledge of early Hebrew codd. These efforts did not succeed in producing a text suitable for universal adoption; they in fact increased the confusion and corruption among the Greek codd. by mixed texts. This evil was the chief reason for the masterly work of Origen in his Hexapla. Origen's Hexapla was the most important Biblical work in ancient times. It gave in six parallel columns the original Hebrew text, the same transliterated, a purified text of  $\mathfrak{G}$ , the Versions of Aq.,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\Theta$ , and also, as a sort of appendix, Quinta, Sexta.

The Hexapla has been preserved only in parts. The Syriac translation was discovered by Ceriani in the Ambrosian Library of Milan, and published in 1874. Mercati, in the same library, discovered the original Hexapla of Ps. 45 and parts of 17, 27-31, 34, 35, 48, 88, of which he gives an account in Un Palimpsesto Ambrosiano dei Salmi Esapli, 1898. He has recently discovered additional material in the Vatican. The publication of all this material is announced for one of the forthcoming parts of Studi e Testi, Roma, under the title Psalmorum Hexaplorum reliquiae e codice rescripto Ambrosiano, etc. The parts of the several Greek Vrss., so far as they were known to exist at the time, were published by Field, Origenis Hexaplorum quae supersunt, 2 vols., Oxford, 1875. Dr. Schechter discovered some fragments of Aq., portions of Pss. 22, 90, 91, in the Genizah at Cairo.

§ 7. The Syriac Peshitto Version was made from a comparison of the Hebrew text with  $\mathfrak{G}$ , and shows the influence of an early Aramaic Targum. It has maintained its integrity since the fourth century.

At an early date, probably in the second or third century, a translation of the Psalter was made for the use of Syrian Christians ( $\mathfrak{S}$ ). It was based upon a Hebrew text, but kept  $\mathfrak{G}$  constantly in view. It also shows traces of the influence of an oral Aramaic Targum earlier than the existing Targum (v. § 13). The author was a good Hebrew scholar, but his purpose was to give a Vrs. for practical use, rather than an exact verbal rendering. He therefore takes liberties with the original from a dogmatic as well as a practical point of view.  $\mathfrak{S}$  passed through a number of revisions, but has kept its integrity since the fourth century, as Aphraates in his Homilies uses it essentially in the same form that we now have.

The first edition of the Psalter of  $\mathfrak{S}$  was published by Erpenius, Leyden, 1625, from two late codd. Gabriel Sionita in the same year issued a Syriac text based on three other codd., with a Latin translation. This edition was used in the Paris Polyglot, 1629–1645, and the London Polyglot, 1654–1657. In the latter, Herbert Thorndyke in his critical apparatus used two codd. of late date. Dathe in 1768 reissued the text of Erpenius, with variations from the London Polyglot. The text of the London Polyglot was reissued by Lee in 1823, and was translated into English with critical notes by Andrew Oliver, Boston, 1861. The American missionaries, in 1852, published at Urumia, Persia, a Nestorian text of much value. This has been the basis of other texts for use in the East. The Codex Ambrosianus was published by Ceriani, Milan, 1876–1883. F. Bähgen, in 1878, made a collation of this codex and three later codd. in his Untersuchungen. In 1879, in his Psalterium Tetraglottom, Nestle reissued the Codex Ambrosianus; and this edition has been reprinted by W. E. Barnes, in his Peshitta Psalter according to the West Syrian Text, 1904. Barnes, however, corrects it occasionally from early West Syrian codd., and gives a rich critical apparatus derived from a collation of a large number of codd. The best estimate of the text of  $\mathfrak{S}$  is given by Bā. in the Jahrbücher für Protestantische Theologie, 1882. The influence of  $\mathfrak{G}$  upon  $\mathfrak{S}$  was so great that when these agree it is doubtful whether the testimony of  $\mathfrak{S}$  as to the original text of  $\mathfrak{H}$  is independent. Especially was  $\mathfrak{S}$  influenced by  $\mathfrak{G}^L$ ; but, on the other hand, it belongs to the same family of texts. Agreement with  $\mathfrak{H}$  is of greater importance, and disagreement with  $\mathfrak{H}$  and  $\mathfrak{G}^L$  more important still. It should also be remembered, as Barnes justly says, "We have to deal in the Psalter with a text which was specially transcribed for ecclesiastical use, and accordingly we must not be surprised, if we find it coloured by ecclesiastical phraseology" (p. xxxv). On the one side, it may be said that because of its ecclesiastical use it is more difficult to revise the Psalter than any other book of the Bible; on the other side, that the Vrss. often preserve early readings. My study of the text of the Psalter shows that while  $\mathfrak{S}$  tends to an agreement with  $\mathfrak{G}^L$ , it nevertheless often agrees with  $\mathfrak{H}$  against  $\mathfrak{G}$ , and sometimes with  $\mathfrak{I}$  against  $\mathfrak{G}$  and MT. It not infrequently has independent readings, a fair proportion of which are to be preferred as nearer the original text than those of any other Vrss., even of  $\mathfrak{H}$ ; cf. 2<sup>7</sup>. 12 16<sup>2</sup> 17<sup>13</sup> 27<sup>8</sup> 32<sup>4</sup> 46<sup>5</sup> 74<sup>3</sup>, but especially 4<sup>8</sup> 17<sup>3</sup>. 4 59<sup>10</sup> 69<sup>5</sup> 80<sup>13</sup> 112<sup>4</sup> 139<sup>16</sup>.

§ 8. Jerome in the early fifth century issued his Latin translation, made from the Hebrew text of his times, but with all the other ancient Versions and Origen's Hexapla in view.

Jerome, after the completion of the two revisions of the old Latin Psalter already mentioned (§ 5), undertook c. 389 a translation of the entire OT. from the original Hebrew, which he completed in 390–405 at Bethlehem. This Vrs. took the place of the old Latin Vrss. in all the books except the Psalter, and is known as the Vulgate (V). This new Vrs. of the Psalter could not overcome the use of the Gallican Psalter in the usage of the Church. Accordingly, V of the Psalter is the Gallican Version, and the Version of Jerome is distinguished from it in reference by the abbreviation J. This Vrs. is exceedingly valuable, especially in the study of the Psalter; for Jerome was not only an able Hebrew scholar, using the best Hebrew texts accessible to him in Palestine, at the time when the Rabbinical School at Tiberius was in its bloom; but he was also familiar with Origen's Hexapla, and the full text of all the ancient Vrss. in earlier Mss. than those now existing. J in the main gives evidence as to the Hebrew text of the fourth Christian century. Where it differs from H and G its evidence is especially valuable as giving the opinion of the best Biblical scholar of ancient times as to the original text, based on the use of a wealth of critical material vastly greater than that in the possession of any other critic, earlier or later.

The text of J is best given in Lagarde's Psalterium juxta Hebraeos Hieronymi, 1874, and also in Nestle's Psalterium Tetraglottum, 1879.

§ 9. The Aramaic Targum of the Psalter in its present form dates from the ninth century, but it rests upon an oral Targum used in the synagogue from the most ancient times.

The Targum on the Psalter (T) represents a traditional oral translation, used in the services of the synagogue from the first century A.D. The original Hebrew text was constantly kept in view, for it was the custom to read the original before the Targum was read. Therefore the Targum gives evidence as to the traditional Hebrew text, with all the development that that tradition had from the first till the ninth century, ever restrained, however, by the original text. The Targum, however, was not simply a translation, but at the same time an explanation of the original, enlarging upon it to give the sense by way of paraphrase. It avoids anthropomorphism, and entirely disregards the poetic form and style.

T of  $\psi$  was first published by Bomberg, 1517, with Jb., Pr., and the Rolls. Lagarde's edition Hagiographa Chaldaice, 1873, is based on that of Bomberg. It was republished by Nestle, in his Psalterium Tetraglottum, 1879. Bacher (Das Targum zu den Psalmen, Grätz, Monatsschrift, 1872) states that the  $\text{U}$  of  $\psi$  and Jb. came from the same hand.

§ 10. The critical use of Hebrew texts and versions leads back in several stages from the official text of Ben Asher of the tenth century, through the text used by Jerome of the fourth century, the official text of the School of Jamnia of the second century, to the unofficial codices of the second century B.C., which gave the Canonical Psalter in its final edition. But it had already passed through centuries of transmission by the hands of copyists and editors. We have to distinguish, therefore, between the original text of the Psalter of the Canon and the original text of the psalms themselves as they came from their authors.

The existing Hebrew codd. lead us to the official MT. of the tenth century as edited by Ben Asher, with Massoretic notes indicating traditional variations in the text coming down from ancient times.  $\mathfrak{A}$  takes us back to a Hebrew text of the fourth century prior to the work of the Massorites, and therefore to a text composed of consonants only. The Hebrew text of Origen's Hexapla, and  $\mathfrak{S}$ , also tend in the same direction, although they are to be used with more reserve, because of modifying influences traceable in these Vrss. The Greek translations of Aq.,  $\Theta$ , are all important helps to determine the official Hebrew text of the Synod of Jamnia of the second Christian century. The text of  $\mathfrak{G}$  carries us still farther back, to a Hebrew text of the second century B.C., very soon after the Psalter had received its final editing. In this way, by the use of the genealogical principle of Textual Criticism the original Hebrew text of the Psalter may be determined, at the time when it was finally edited for use in the synagogue and temple, and took its place in the Canon of the Writings. But it is evident that even then we are a long distance from the original text of the Pss. as composed by their authors. The Pss. had passed through the hands of a multitude of copyists, and of many editors, who had made changes of various kinds, partly intentional and partly unintentional. The Pss. were changed and adapted for public worship, just as has ever been the case with hymns, prayers, and other liturgical forms. The personal, local, and historical features were gradually effaced, and additions of various kinds were made to make them more appropriate for congregational use. The text of the Psalter is one thing, the text of the original Pss. is another thing. After we have determined the former as far as possible, we still have to determine the latter by the use of additional internal evidence in the Psalter itself, and of external evidence from other books of OT.

§ 11. There are several Psalms which appear in different texts in the Psalter itself, or in the Psalter and other Books of the Old Testament. These give evidence of originals differing in some respects from the varying texts that have been preserved.

(1) Pss. 14 and 53 are evidently the same Ps. in different texts. The latter betrays more clearly its historical origin, although the original divine name יהוה has been changed to אלהים, as in other Pss. of  $\mathfrak{E}$  (v. § 32). The former has been generalised and made smoother and more didactic. They both show editorial changes as well as errors of copyists. (2) Ps. 18 is the same song as that given in 2 S. 22. The text of the latter is more archaic, although it has many of the same late glosses as the Ps. The Ps., however, received still later revision, making it more suitable for public use. (These variations are given in the Massora of Baer's text, pp. 130-135.) (3) Ps. 70 is the same essentially as 40<sup>13-17</sup>. It was appended to Ps. 40 for liturgical purposes, and adapted to its context. (4) An early Ps. has been used both by 57<sup>8-12</sup> and 108<sup>1-6</sup>, another by 60<sup>7-14</sup> and 108<sup>7-14</sup>, these three Pss. being all composite (v. § 14). (5) 1 Ch. 16<sup>8-36</sup> gives a Song of thanksgiving, which is composed of Pss. 105<sup>1-15</sup> and 96. The former is part of a tetralogy, 104-107; the latter is a part of the royal Ps. broken up into 93, 96-100. The Song of Ch. is therefore a mosaic of parts of two Pss., to which a doxology was added by a late editor of Ch., who inserted it as a specimen of the temple Pss. of his time.

§ 12. The Psalms were composed in the parallelisms, measures, and strophical organisations of lyric poetry. When these have been determined with reference to any particular Psalm it is not difficult to see the changes that have been made in the original text.

(A) Hebrew poetry is dominated by the principle of parallelism of members. The simplest form is seen in the couplet; but it is extended to a considerable number of lines. There are three primary forms of parallelism: (1) the synonymous, (2) the synthetic, and (3) the antithetic; the synonymous having a more ornate variety which may be called (4) emblematic; the synthetic a more vigorous variety which is (5) stairlike in character. An important variation appears in what is called (6) introverted parallelism. But within these six varieties there are still a great number of combinations in accordance with the nature of the parallelism, whether it extends to entire lines or to the more emphatic words in them.

Bishop Lowth (De sacra Poesi Heb. 1753; cf. Preliminary Dissertation to Isaiah, 1778) was the first to establish the principle of parallelism in Hebrew poetry, although he based his conclusions on older writers, Rabbi Asarias and especially Schöttgen (Horae Heb. Diss. VI. De Exergasia Sacra). Lowth's views were at once accepted and have maintained themselves. Lowth distinguished three kinds of parallelism, — the synonymous, the antithetical, and the synthetic. Bishop Jebb (Sacred Literature, § IV. 1820) called attention to a fourth kind, which he properly named "introverted." Lowth had already recognised it (Prelim. Diss. Isaiah xiv), but did not name it or emphasize it. Other scholars have noted the stairlike and the emblematic (v. Br.<sup>SHS.</sup> 333-414).

Attention may be called to the following specimens: —

- 14<sup>2</sup>     YAHWEH looked forth from 'heaven upon the sons of mankind,
           To see whether there was any acting intelligently in seeking after God.
- 17<sup>11-12</sup> THEY advance, now they march about, they fix their eyes;
           They purpose to camp in the land, they maltreat as a lion;
           They are greedy for prey, they are like a young lion lurking in secret places.

- 23<sup>5-6</sup> THOU spreadest before me a table in the presence of mine adversaries.
 Hast thou anointed my head with oil; my cup is exhilarating.
 Surely goodness and kindness pursue me all the days of my life,
 And I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh for length of days.
- 40<sup>2-4</sup> I WAITED steadfastly on Yahweh, and He inclined unto me;
 And brought me up from the pit of desolation, from the clay of the mire;
 And set my feet upon a rock; He established my steps;
 And gave a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to my God.
 Many see and they fear, and they trust in Yahweh.

(3) Antithetical.

- 37<sup>12-18</sup> THE wicked deviseth against the righteous and gnasheth his teeth at him.
 The Lord laugheth at him; for He seeth that his day cometh.
- 17<sup>14b-15</sup> LET their portion be during life; their belly fill Thou with Thy stored up penalty.
 May their sons be sated, may they leave their residue to their children.
 But as for me, let me behold Thy face; let me be satisfied with Thy favour.
- 126<sup>4-6</sup> O RESTORE, Yahweh, our prosperity, as streams do in the south country.
 They that sow seed in tears, may they reap with jubilation.
 He may go forth weeping, bearing the load of seed;
 Let him come home with jubilation, bearing the load of sheaves.
- 37<sup>9-11</sup> FOR evil-doers will be cut off; but those that wait on Yahweh will inherit the land.
 And yet a little while, and the wicked will be no more, and thou wilt attentively consider his place, and he will be no more;
 But the afflicted will inherit the land, and take delight in abundance of peace.
- 38<sup>18-15</sup> THEY also that seek my life lay snares;
 Of my distress they speak, of ruin;
 And utter deceits all the day.
 But I am like a deaf man that heareth not,
 And as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth,
 And in whose mouth are no arguments.

(4) Emblematic.

- 37<sup>1-2</sup> FRET not thyself because of evil-doers, and be not envious against them that do wrong;
 As grass they will speedily wither, and like the fresh grass fade.
- 124<sup>6-8</sup> BLESSED be Yahweh! who hath not given us over as a prey to their teeth.
 Lo, we are like a bird, that has escaped out of the trap of the fowler.
 Lo, the trap was broken, and we escaped from it.
 Our help is in the name of Yahweh, maker of heaven and earth.
- 129<sup>5-8a</sup> LET them be put to shame, and let them be turned backward, all the haters of Zion,
 Let them become as grass of the housetops, which, before one can draw the scythe, withereth.

Wherewith the reaper does not fill his hand, or he that bindeth sheaves his bosom.

And they who pass by say not, "The blessing of Yahweh unto you."

(5) Stairlike.

24<sup>8b. c</sup> YAHWEH, strong and mighty,
Yahweh, mighty in battle.

3<sup>2-3</sup> YAHWEH, how many are mine adversaries!
Many are rising up against me;
Many are saying of me:
"There is no salvation for him."

25<sup>1-7</sup> UNTO Thee, Yahweh, I lift up my soul; O my God, let me not be ashamed.

In Thee I trust, therefore let not mine enemies exult, even mine, Yea, let none that wait on Thee be ashamed; let them be ashamed that deal treacherously without effect.

Thy ways make me know, Yahweh, and Thy thoughts teach me; Lead me in Thy faithfulness, and teach me; for Thou art the God of my salvation.

Remember Thy compassion, Yahweh, and Thy kindness, for they are of old.

The sins of my youth remember not; according to Thy kindness remember me.

In the other two Strs. of this Ps. the stairlike parall. is carried out on the scheme: 2 + 2 + 3, Str. II.; 3 + 2 + 2, Str. III., as Str. I. In every tristich the middle line does not have the catchword.

12<sup>4-5</sup> MAY Yahweh cut off every flattering lip,
And every tongue speaking great words;
Those who say, "To our tongues we give might,
Our lip is our own; who is lord over us."

"What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the Pit?

Will the dust praise Thee, declare Thy faithfulness?

Hear and be gracious, become helper to me."

69<sup>9-11</sup> DEPART, ye workers of trouble, from me;
For He hath heard the voice of my weeping,
Yahweh hath heard my supplication,
Yahweh accepteth my prayer.

They will turn back, they will be put to shame in a moment.

34<sup>16-22</sup> THE face of Yahweh is against them that do evil, to cut off their memory from the land.

The eyes of Yahweh are unto the righteous, and His ears unto their cry for help;

They cry and Yahweh heareth, and delivereth them out of all their distresses.

Yahweh is nigh unto the brokenhearted, and the crushed in spirit saveth.

Many are the misfortunes of the righteous, but out of them all Yahweh delivereth him ;

He keepeth all his bones ; not one of them is broken.

Misfortune shall slay the wicked, and they that hate the righteous shall suffer punishment.

(B) The Pss., as Philo, Josephus, Origen, Eusebius, and Jerome tell us, were composed in several kinds of meter. The measures, however, were not of feet, as in classic Latin and Greek, or of syllables as in Syriac poetry ; but of words or word accents, as in Assyrian, Babylonian, Egyptian, and the most ancient poetry of other nations. The simplest measure is : (1) the trimeter, measured by three tonic beats ; (2) the tetrameter, which has four tones, usually with a caesura in the middle ; (3) the pentameter, which has five tones, the caesura usually coming after the third tone, but sometimes for variety of effect after the second ; (4) the hexameter, which has six tones, with the caesura usually in the middle, but sometimes for variety after the second or the fourth tones, and occasionally with two caesuras dividing the line into three parts. In the estimation of tones we have to consider that on the one side monosyllabic words are usually not counted, but are attached to the following word and not accented ; and on the other side that words of four or more syllables have a secondary accent which is counted in the measures. This is true occasionally of words of three syllables.

The statements of Josephus (Ant. II. 16 (4) ; IV. 8 (44) ; VII. 12 (30)) that Hebrew poetry was composed of trimeters and pentameters and hexameters are so distinct that they cannot justly be questioned. He is sustained by Philo (de Vita Mosis, I. 5). Although it may be said that Origen (on Ps. 118, Pitra, Analecta Sacra, II. 341), Eusebius (De praep. Evang. XI. 5 Migne, XXI. 852), and Jerome (in librum Job, praef.) depended upon Josephus, yet they were near enough to the original Hebrew text to have an independent judgment in this matter ; and their judgment has been confirmed by modern investigation in the teeth of a stubborn traditional opposition. As Ley shows (ZATW. XII. 212), Origen distinguishes between the Hebrew pentameter and hexameter written in one line and the Greek method of dividing them into two. I. Many efforts have been made to measure syllables after classic models : (1) Franc. Gomarus (Davidis lyra, 1637), followed by Heinsius, De Dieu, Hottinger, and the younger Buxtorf. (2) Marc. Maibon (Davidis Psalmi X. item VI. 1690). (3) Francis Hare (Psalmorum libri in versiculos metricè divisus, 1736), followed especially by Weisse. The treatises of Gomarus, Maibon, and Hare were republished in Ugolino, Thesaurus (XXXI.). Lowth severely criticised Hare's measures. He had no doubt that Hebrew poetry had measured lines, and he distinguished between long and short measures, in the former recognizing the "small rest or interval"; but he thought that it would be impracticable to find more definite measures because the original pronunciation of the Hebrew language could not be known (v. Prelim. Diss. to Isaiah, xxv.). (4) William Jones (Poeseos Asiaticae commentariorum, 1776) applied the rules of Arabic meter to Hebrew poetry, involving the doing away with the Massoretic system of vowels. So, essentially, E. J. Greve. (5) J. J. Bellermann (Versuch über die Metrik der Hebräer, 1813), applied the system of morae to Hebrew poetry. (6) J. L. Saalschütz (Von der Form der Hebräischen Poesie, 1853) rejected the Massoretic system and built on the pronunciation of the Polish and German Jews, after the Aramaic method. II. G. Bickell (Metrices Biblicae, 1879; Carmina Veteris Metrici, 1882; Dichtungen der Hebräer, 1882-1884), followed by G. Gietmann (de re metrica Hebraeorum, 1880), finds a Hebrew meter in the number of syllables after the method of Syriac poetry. There is a constant alternation of rise and fall, so that only iambic and trochaic feet are possible. The Massoretic system is rejected and the Aramaic virtually put in its place. The accent is generally, as in Syriac, on the penult. An elaborate criticism of Bickell's theory is given by Ecker (Porta Sion, 1903, pp. 147 sq.). Doubtless the original Hebrew pronunciation was different from that of the Massoretic system, but Hebrew was not a mere dialect of the Aramaic, still less of so late a form of it as the Syriac. It has recently been shewn that the earliest Syriac poetry did not measure by number of syllables. III. The measurement of Hebrew verse by the beat of the accent has been maintained by a great number of scholars with increasing conviction. This is independent of the doctrine of syllables, whether more like the Arabic, Aramaic, or the Massoretic system. Moreover, it is independent of the theory on what syllable of the word the accent should fall. In any case, we have just so many accents in the verse. The earliest writer to make the accent the determining principle of measurement, so far as I have been able to discover, was C. G. Anton (conjectura de metro Hebraeorum, 1770, Specimen editionis Psalmorum, 1780). In this he was followed by Leutwein (Versuch einer richtigen Theorie von der Biblischen Verskunst, 1775), Ernst Meier (Die Form der Hebr. Poesie, 1853), but especially Julius Ley (Die metrischen Formen der Hebr. Poesie, 1866; Grundzüge des Rhythmus des Vers- und Strophenbaues in der Hebr. Poesie, 1875; Leitfaden der Metrik der Hebr. Poesie, 1887, and other minor writings). To Ley, more than to any other scholar, is due the credit of leading to a correct conception of the measures of Hebrew poetry. I accepted the principle of measurement of Hebrew poetry by accents soon after I began to teach as Professor of Hebrew and cognate languages in Union Theological Seminary, in 1874; and from that time I have given much attention to the subject. My views were published in 1881 (Homiletic Quarterly, pp. 398 sq., 555 sq.; Biblical Study, first edition, 1883, pp. 262 sq.). The principles were applied in the study of the Poem of the Fall of Mankind (Reformed Quarterly Review, 1866), Poem of the Creation (Old Testament Student, 1884), and of all the poetic Messianic passages (Messianic Prophecy, 1886). My views were more fully stated in five articles (Hebraica, 1886-1888), and in the tenth edition of Biblical Study, enlarged under the title General Introduction to the Study of Holy Scripture, 1899. In 1883 I criticised Ley's octameters and decameters as simply double tetrameters and pentameters, and objected to his theory of substitution and compensation, which he has since abandoned. This principle of tonic measures was adopted by Francis Brown (Measures of Heb. Poetry as an Aid to Literary Analysis, JBL. IX. pp. 91-106) and many other Americans. C. H. Toy (Commentary on Proverbs, 1899) uses the tonic principle, but objects to the terms trimeter and tetrameter, and uses ternary, quaternary, etc. W. R. Harper used the method on the basis of my article in Hebraica, in the preparation of his Commentary on Amos and Hosea, 1905 (v. Preface, ix.). Cheyne employs the tonic principle (in his commentaries on the Psalms<sup>2, 3</sup>, Book of the Prophet Isaiah, SBOT. 1899). Most Biblical scholars since Jebb have been reactionary in their views of Hebrew poetry. Budde (Das Hebraische Klagelied, ZATW. 1882) deserves great credit for his investigation of the pentameter in the Old Testament; but the name, Kina verse, that he gave to it, though adopted by many scholars, has little to justify it, for the earliest Kina uses the tetrameter measure (2 S. i<sup>17-27</sup>), and the pentameter measure is used for all kinds of poems, especially for those in praise of the Law, 19<sup>9-15</sup> 119, which are the reverse of Kina's. Budde's long hesitation to accept other measures is difficult to understand. He says, however (article Hebrew Poetry, DB.), "The vastly preponderating probability appears to belong to the theory of Ley, who counts the 'rises' without taking account of the 'falls.'" Duhm, in his Commentaries on Isaiah, 1892, and the Psalter, 1899, also uses the tonic principle, but without any explanation of his principles or his relation to others. It is astonishing how exactly his views, as to many passages, correspond with those given previously in my Messianic Prophecy, 1886. In the meanwhile the principle of tonic measure was greatly strengthened by the discovery that the same principle determined the structure of the more ancient Egyptian, Babylonian, and Assyrian poetry. F. Brown (Religious Poetry of Babylonia, Presbyterian Review, 1888), among other examples, shewed that the epic of the descent of Istar to Sheol is pentameter. The Hymn to the Nile was recognised as measured by the tonic accent, by Guieysse (Records of the Past, new ed., III. 47-48). Erman also (Life in Ancient Egypt, p. 395) stated that Egyptian poetry was measured by the tonic accent. Two recent scholars have endeavoured to fortify the tonic principle by a closer study of the syllable. H. Grimme (Abriss der Bib. Hebr. Metrik, ZDMG. 1895; Grundzüge der Hebr. Akzent und Vokallehre, 1896; Psalmen Probleme, 1902) revives the use of morae, but builds essentially on the accents for measurement of lines. His last book has only come into my hands since I completed my Ms. for this Commentary. Our independent work agrees as to the measures of Pss. 1-50, except in 7, 9-10, 11, 17, 19<sup>a</sup> 23, 25, 31, 32, 34, 37, 38. Pss. 25, 34, 37, hexameters, he interprets as trimeters, dividing the lines at the caesuras. The other Pss. are full of difficulty, due chiefly to glosses where there is room for difference in reconstruction. E. Sievers in 1901 published his Metrische Studien. While building on the tonic principle, he fortifies it by giving it a foundation in the laws of speech, song, and music, and by a careful study of the uncanted syllables. His principles have been adopted for the most part in Bähgen's Psalmen<sup>3</sup>, 1904. Sievers, in his double fours and sevens, falls into an error similar to that of Ley. His double fours of Ex. 15, 2 S. 1, Ju. 5 are nothing but tetrameters, and his sevens limited, so far as  $\psi$  is concerned, to 4, 9-10, are due to mistaken interpretation of the measures, which in both cases in the original Pss. were trimeters, disturbed, however, by many glosses. Those who have used the principle of tonic measure since Anton, have not failed to recognise that the stress of the accent alternates with a falling of the voice in one, two, or three syllables, in varied relation to the tonic syllable; but they have not thought it needful to count these syllables as Sievers does. Indeed, Sievers (p. 77) recognises that Anton instinctively came nearest the truth, that his theory needs few modifications, and that he only failed in working it out in detail. But it is just this detail in Sievers' method which is of doubtful value. It is based on the essential accuracy of the Massoretic system, which, as is evident from the transliterations in Origen's Hexapla, was artificial; and, as many Hebrew scholars since Lowth have recognised, is of doubtful originality. And in fact Sievers' measures, as those of Grimme, really depend upon the tonic accents, which alone are of any great importance even in his system. In the use of the natural laws of speech and music as the basis of the measures of poetry, Sievers was anticipated by the eminent American poet, Sydney Lanier (Science of English Verse, 1880), whom I used at an early date. A most thoroughgoing and invariably hostile criticism of metrical theories of Hebrew poetry is given by Ecker (Porta Sion, 22-181; 1903). A more recent, less complete, more sympathetic, yet uncertain criticism is given by W. H. Cobb (Criticism of Systems of Hebrew Metre, 1905).

The following is the result of my study of the measures of the Psalms:—

I. There are eighty-nine trimeter Pss. in the Psalter. This is a favourite measure for lyrics. These Pss. are 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9-10, 11, 15, 18, 19<sup>2-7</sup> 20, 21, 22, 24<sup>1-6</sup> 24<sup>7-10</sup> 26, 27<sup>7-12</sup> 33, 36<sup>6-10</sup> 38, 44, 47, 49, 51, 54, 55<sup>2-3. 5-8</sup> 56, 57<sup>2-5</sup> 57<sup>6. 8-12</sup> (= 108<sup>2-6</sup>) 59, 60<sup>3-7. 12b-14</sup> 60<sup>8-12a</sup> (= 108<sup>8-14</sup>) 63, 66<sup>1-9</sup> 66<sup>12-19</sup> 67, 69<sup>8-14. 20-29</sup> 71, 73, 75, 76, 77<sup>2-16</sup> 77<sup>17-20</sup> 78, 79, 80, 81<sup>2-6b</sup> 81<sup>6c-15</sup> 82, 83, 85, 88, 89<sup>4-5. 18-46</sup> 90, 91, 92, 93+96-100, 94, 95<sup>1-6</sup> 95<sup>7-11</sup> 102<sup>2-12</sup> 103, 104, 105-106, 107, 109<sup>1-5. 16-18. 21-27</sup> 109<sup>6-15</sup> 111, 112, 113, 114, 115<sup>1-8</sup> 115<sup>9-16</sup> 116, 117, 118, 135, 136, 138, 139<sup>1-6. 13-16. 23-24</sup> 139<sup>7-12</sup> 139<sup>17-22</sup> 142, 144<sup>1-2. 7-11</sup> 146 147<sup>1-6. 7-11. 12-21</sup> 148, 149, 150. We may give as a specimen 24<sup>1-6</sup>:—

II. There are twenty tetrameters in the Psalter: 1, 4, 12, 13, 16, 29, 30, 41, 46, 58, 61, 64, 68, 74, 86, 89<sup>2-3</sup>, 6-15 89<sup>47-52</sup> 140, 141, 144<sup>12-15</sup>. Ps. 13 may be given as a specimen. The caesura is always in the middle when it occurs.

עֲר־אנא יהוה — נצח חשכחני
 עֲר־אנא חסד־ךָ אֲח־פִּנִּיךָ מִמֶּנִּי
 עֲר־אנא אִשִּׁית עֲצוֹת בִּנְפִשִּׁי
 עֲר־אנא יְרוֹם עָלַי אִיבִי
 יהוה אֱלֹהֵי — הִבִּישָׁה עֲנִנִי

 פִּק־אִמֶּר אִיבִי — לוֹ יִכְלִחִי
 פִּק־יִגַּל כִּי אֲמוֹט צָרִי

III. There are twenty-five pentameters in the Psalter: 5, 14 (= 53), 17, 19<sup>8-15</sup> 27<sup>1-6</sup> 28, 32, 35, 36<sup>2-5</sup> 39 40<sup>2-12</sup> 42-43, 48, 52, 55<sup>10-16</sup>, 21-22, 24 65, 69<sup>2-7</sup>, 15-19, 80-82 40<sup>14-18</sup> (= 70), 84, 87, 101, 110, 119, 137, 143. Ps. 14 may be given as a specimen. The caesura usually comes after the third beat, but occasionally for variety after the second.

אִמֶּר נָבַל בָּלְבוֹ — אֵין אֱלֹהִים
 הִשְׁחִיתוּ הַתַּעֲיִבוּ עֲלֵיהָ — אִין־עֲשֶׂה־טוֹב
 יהוה מִשְׁמִים הִשְׁקוֹף — עַל־בְּנֵי־אָדָם
 לִרְאוֹת הִישׁ מִשְׁכִּיל — דִּרְשׁ אֱלֹהִים
 הַכֹּל סֵר סָג — יִחַדּוּ נֶאֱלָחוּ
 אִין־עֲשֶׂה־טוֹב — אֵין גַּם אֶחָד
 הֲלֹא יִדְעוּ פַעֲלֵי־אֹן — אֲכָלוּ עֵמִי
 אֲכָלוּ לֶחֶם — יִהְיֶה לֹא קִרְאוֹ
 שֵׁם פָּחַדּוּ פָּחַד — כִּי־אֵל פּוֹרֵם
 עֲצָתָם הִבִּישׁ — כִּי יִהְיֶה מֵאֶסֶם

IV. There are twenty-five hexameters: the alphabetical 25, 34, 37, 145; the pilgrim Pss. 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127<sup>1-2</sup> 127<sup>3-5</sup> 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134; and 31, 50, 62, 72, 102<sup>18-28, 29</sup>. Pss. 124, 125 illustrate the varied use of the caesura.

לולי יהוה שהיה לנו — ואמרנא ישראל
לולי יהוה שהיה לנו — בקום עלינו
אזי חיים בלענו — בחרות אפס בנו
אזי חיים שטמוני — נחלה עבר נפשנו

כרוך יהוה — שלא נחננו טרף לשניהם
(הנה) נפשנו כצפר — נמלטה מפח ויזקשים
(הנה) הפח נשבר — ואנחנו נמלטנו (ממנה)
עורנו בשם יהוה — עשה שמים וארץ

הבטחים ביהוה — כהר ציון — לא־ימוט לעולם
ישב ירוֹשָׁלַיִם — הרים סביב לה
ויהוה סביב לעמו — מעתה ועד עולם
כי־לא ינוח שבט הרשע — על־גורל הצדיקים

V. There are long Pss. of varying measures. Ps. 23 has three Strs. of three, four, and five tones, increasing with each Str. Ps. 45 is essentially a tetrameter, but it uses occasional trimeters with striking effect for a more rapid movement of the thought. In this it resembles the Song of Deborah, Ju. 5. Some scholars, as Toy and Duhm, recognise dimeters of two tones, but these are parts of tetrameters or hexameters. The division made by these scholars are at the caesuras. There are no dimeters except in broken lines used at times for a metrical pause (e.g. Pss. 1<sup>1, 4</sup> 8<sup>2, 10</sup>). Many of Grimme's trimeters are really hexameters. Sievers' double threes and double fours are trimeters and tetrameters.

VI. The Hebrew poets seldom accent a monosyllable. It usually loses its tone by being attached to the previous or the subsequent word. Two successive tonic syllables make very bad euphony, especially at the end of l. There were various devices for overcoming this difficulty. At the end of l., the accent of the word before the monosyllable was retracted; e.g. שָׁפְטִי אֶרֶץ 2<sup>10</sup>, חוֹסִי בוֹ 2<sup>12</sup>, יִהְיֶה לִּי שֹׁקֵר, יִהְיֶה לִּי אֱוִן 7<sup>15</sup>, וְלִי שֹׁקֵר 18<sup>20</sup>, תִּפְעַץ בִּי 24<sup>1</sup>, וַיִּשְׁבִּי בָהּ 5<sup>11</sup>, כִּי־תִרְיֶנָּה 5<sup>12</sup>, בְּל־חֹסִי־נָךְ 49<sup>2</sup>. The insertion of the conj. ׁ before a monosyllable makes a sufficient vocalic utterance to justify giving the word a tone. It is sometimes used to make it easier to give a long word two tones; e.g. וְלֹא 37<sup>31</sup> 41<sup>9</sup>, וַיֹּאֲלֵה 25<sup>2</sup> 37<sup>1</sup>, וְעַל 3<sup>9</sup>, in all cases given by 𐤀 but omitted by 𐤁.

(C) The Hebrew poets, as poets of other nations, used archaic words and forms for metrical purposes: (a) The archaic case endings softened the transition from word to word and made the language more melodious. (b) The archaic suffixes and modal forms were used partly for the same purpose and partly to give the tone a more melodious position. (c) The archaic prepositions were employed in order to get independent words or variation in the tonic syllable (Ley. Grundzüge, S. 100 sq.; Br. <sup>SHS.</sup> 371).

(D) The Hebrew poets ornamented their lines by various devices at the beginning, in the middle, before caesuras, and at the end. At the beginning the order of the alphabet was followed and acrostics were made of various kinds. Certain important words were repeated in several successive lines. At the ends of lines a kind of assonance or rhyme was made, especially by the use of identical suffixes. The same device was also used at times before caesuras.

(a) The Alphabetic Pss. are 9-10, 25, 34, 37, 111, 112, 119, 145. Usually the letter of the alphabet begins a l., a couplet, or a Str.; but in 9<sup>2-3</sup> it is repeated at the beginning of each of the four ll. of the Str., and in 119 throughout the twenty-two alphabetical Strs. it is repeated eight times (cf. La. 3). (b) Ps. 13<sup>2-3</sup> has עֲרֵאנָה at the beginning of each of the four lines of the Str.; and v. 4<sup>-5</sup> has מִן at the beginning of three of the four ll. Ps. 29 repeats קוֹל יְהוָה eight times and הִנּוּ thrice. Ps. 62 repeats אֶחָד eight times. Ps. 148 repeats הַלְלוּהוּ six times, and Ps. 150 the same nine times. (c) Rhyming with identical suffixes is used as an ornament, rather than as in modern poetry to mark the ends of all ll. of the poem. The following examples may suffice. — מִן 2<sup>8ab</sup>. 4<sup>ab</sup>. 5<sup>ab</sup>. — י 13 throughout, 27<sup>B</sup>. 7-8. 9. 11-12 22<sup>20b-22</sup> 30<sup>2</sup>. 4 54, 55<sup>A</sup> 142. — ה 9<sup>2-3</sup> 15<sup>1</sup> 20<sup>2-6</sup> 45<sup>4</sup>. — ה 45<sup>11</sup>. — י 15<sup>2-3</sup>. — ה 24<sup>1-2</sup> 45<sup>13-16</sup> (6 l.). — The Pss. that use this method usually vary in their use of it. — Ps. 6 has י for the most part 6<sup>2ab</sup>. 3<sup>ab</sup>. 4<sup>ab</sup>. 5<sup>a</sup>. 7<sup>abc</sup>. 8<sup>ac</sup>. 9<sup>ab</sup>. 10<sup>ab</sup>, but ו v. 5<sup>b</sup>. 6<sup>ab</sup>, י v. 8<sup>b</sup>. 11<sup>a</sup>. — Ps. 31 has י v. 2-17, but ה v. 20-21. 28. — Ps. 35 has י v. 1-4. 11-14, but מ v. 5-6. — Ps. 119 has a variation, some Strs. ending in ה, others in י. — (d) Ps. 110 has י after caesura and at end of l. 1, but ה in ll. 2, 3, 4, 5; מ 1. 6; י 1. 7; ים ll. 8, 10; חֲ 1. 9. At the beginning of six ll. of 45<sup>13-16</sup> the words end in חֲ. — Ps. 143 has in ten ll. the first and last words in חֲ, before caesuras חֲ. — 144<sup>B</sup> has assonance in every word of the tetrameter hexastich; all the words of ll. 1, 3, 5 end in חֲ; those of 2, 4, 6 in חֲ. The later scribes and editors did not care for this ornament of style, and so obscured it and even effaced it partly by changing the order of words in the sentence, or by glosses of various kinds.

(E) The Pss. were also arranged in regular strophical organization, as was indeed almost necessary for musical rendering in early lyric forms of song. The reason why this has not been evident is that the liturgical glosses of later times have obscured or destroyed them. These strophes are of great variety as coming from so many different authors and so many different periods of time. Strophes may be simple or complex, just as in the case of parallelism of lines. The simple strophes are of few lines of one kind of parallelism. The complex strophes have more lines and two or more kinds of parallelism. In this case the connection of thought is usually clear. The strophical divisions may be determined by a more decided separation in the thought of the poem. Sometimes it is not easy to distinguish between the lesser and greater separations because of a lack of familiarity of modern scholars with the delicate shades of parallelism, which constituted the most characteristic feature of Hebrew thought; and because of the prejudices due to other rhetorical and logical uses of Western races and modern times. The simple strophes of one kind of parall. only are not common. They tend to a monotonous style. The usual method in the strophe is to combine the several kinds. This puts at the disposal of the poet a very great variety of combinations. These will appear in the commentary on the particular Pss. As Lowth well says: "A happy mixture of the several sorts gives an agreeable variety, and they serve mutually to recommend and set off one another." (Prelim. Diss. to Isaiah, p. xxvi.) I may, however, sum up the results of my investigation of the strophical structure of the Pss. as follows: —

The Strs. are arranged on the same principles of parallelism as the ll., in all its varieties. Poems of single Strs. are uncommon. The most frequent structure is the pair of Strs. frequently doubled in two pairs, rarely as eight and sixteen Strs. The triplet of Strs. is also common, less frequent its multiples of six, nine, and twenty-four Strs. There are also poems of five, and its multiples, ten, fifteen, and twenty Strs. Poems of seven Strs. are uncommon. Poems of eleven and twenty-two Strs. are limited to alphabetical poems. I do not attempt to separate the glosses in the verses given below. Duplicates are not counted. (1) Poems of single Strs. are the Pilgrim Pss., 123, 125, 127<sup>1-2</sup> 127<sup>8-5</sup> 128, 131, 133, 134. There are only four others: 15, 36<sup>2-5</sup> 117, 144<sup>12-15</sup>, which have special reasons. (2) Poems with a pair of Strs. are fifty in number: 1, 7, 8, 11, 13, 19<sup>2-7</sup> 19<sup>8-15</sup> 20, 21, 24<sup>1-6</sup> 24<sup>7-10</sup> 27<sup>1-6</sup> 32, 36<sup>6-10</sup> 39, 40<sup>14-18</sup> (= 70), 49, 52, 54, 57<sup>6, 8-12</sup> (= 108<sup>2-5</sup>), 58, 59, 62, 65, 66<sup>13-20</sup> 72, 79, 81<sup>2-6b</sup> 89<sup>47-52</sup> 95<sup>1-5</sup> 95<sup>7-11</sup> 101, 102<sup>18-29</sup> 110, 114, 120, 121, 122, 124, 126, 129, 130, 136, 139<sup>17-22</sup> 142, 143, 144<sup>1-2, 7-11</sup> 147<sup>1-6</sup> 147<sup>7-11</sup> 150. Poems with four Strs. are thirty-one in number: 2, 3, 4, 6, 12, 26, 30, 33, 40<sup>2-12</sup> 41, 44, 48, 51, 56, 60<sup>3-7, 12b-14</sup> 60<sup>8-12a</sup> (= 108<sup>8-14</sup>) 71, 77<sup>17-20</sup> 81<sup>6c-15</sup> 83, 85, 91, 92, 102<sup>2-12</sup> 107, 113, 115<sup>1-8</sup> 118<sup>2-7, 10-12</sup> 132, 141, 148. Poems of eight Strs. are: 17, 68, 116; of sixteen Strs. 89<sup>4-5, 18-46</sup>. (3) Poems of three Strs. are thirty-six in number: 16, 23, 25, 27<sup>7-12</sup> 28, 34, 35, 42-43, 45, 46, 50, 55<sup>2-3, 5-9a</sup> 55<sup>9b-16, 21-24</sup> 57<sup>2-5</sup> 61, 63, 64, 66<sup>1-9</sup> 67, 69<sup>2-7, 14-19, 30-32</sup> 76, 82, 84, 87, 88, 115<sup>9-16</sup> 118<sup>19-26</sup> 135, 137, 138, 139<sup>7-12</sup> 140, 145, 146, 147<sup>12-21</sup> 149. Poems of six Strs. are: 18, 75, 89<sup>2-3, 6-15</sup> 90, 94, 109<sup>1-5, 16-18, 21-27</sup> 139<sup>1-6, 13-16, 23-24</sup>. Poems of nine Strs.: 74; of twenty-four Strs.: 105-106. (4) There are twelve poems of five Strs.: 5, 14 (= 53), 22, 29, 31, 38, 47, 69<sup>8-13, 20-29</sup> 77<sup>2-16</sup> 80, 86, 109<sup>6-15</sup>. There is also one of ten Strs.: 73; one of fifteen Strs.: 93 + 96-100; and one of twenty: 78. (5) There are three poems of seven Strs.: 37, 103, 104. (6) Alphabetical poems are two of eleven Strs.: 111, 112; and two of twenty-two: 9-10, 119.

These Strs. vary in number of ll. and in combinations of parall. The Refrains are not counted in the Strs. (1) The only apparent monostichs are in alphabetical Pss.: 25, 34, 111, 112, 145. But these are not really monostichs, but ll. grouped in several kinds of stichs: 25, 34, 145 heptastichs; 111, 112, distichs. (2) Distichs are not common in the Psalter. They are more appropriate to sentences of Wisdom. There are, however, five: 14 (= 53), 62, 66<sup>1-9</sup> 111, 112. (3) Tristichs are not common: 17, 74, 75, 77<sup>17-20</sup> 87, 116. (4) The tetrastich is the most frequent lyric form. There are sixty-two of them: 3, 4, 5, 9-10, 12, 13, 23, 26, 27<sup>7-12</sup> 28, 29, 30, 40<sup>14-18</sup> (= 70), 47, 48, 55<sup>2-3, 5-9a</sup> 57<sup>2-5</sup> 57<sup>6, 8-12</sup> (= 108<sup>2-5</sup>), 60<sup>3-7, 12b-14</sup> 60<sup>8-12a</sup> (= 108<sup>8-14</sup>), 61, 63, 65, 73, 78, 81<sup>6c-15</sup> 82, 86, 89<sup>2-3, 6-15</sup> 89<sup>4-5, 18-46</sup> 94, 101, 103, 105-106, 109<sup>6-15</sup> 109<sup>1-5, 16-18, 21-27</sup> 113, 115<sup>1-8</sup> 117, 118<sup>19-26</sup> 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127<sup>1-2</sup> 127<sup>8-5</sup> 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 137, 139<sup>1-6, 13-16, 23-24</sup> 139<sup>7-12</sup> 139<sup>17-22</sup> 141, 144<sup>1-2, 7-11</sup>. (5) There are thirteen pentastichs: 6, 31, 32, 36<sup>6-10</sup> 40<sup>2-12</sup> 41, 55<sup>9b-16, 21-24</sup> 64, 67, 81<sup>2-6b</sup> 90, 110, 143. (6) There are forty-three hexastichs: 1, 19<sup>2-7</sup> 19<sup>8-15</sup> 27<sup>1-6</sup> 36<sup>2-5</sup> 37, 38, 46, 50, 52, 54, 56, 68, 69<sup>2-7, 14-19, 30-32</sup> 69<sup>8-13, 20-29</sup> 76, 77<sup>2-16</sup> 79, 80, 84, 85, 89<sup>47-52</sup> 92, 93 + 96-100, 95<sup>1-8</sup> 95<sup>7-11</sup> 102<sup>2-12</sup> 102<sup>18-29</sup> 114, 115<sup>9-16</sup> 118<sup>2-7, 10-12</sup> 135, 136, 138, 140, 144<sup>12-15</sup> 146, 147<sup>1-6</sup> 147<sup>7-11</sup> 147<sup>12-21</sup> 148, 149, 150. (7) There are nine heptastichs: 2, 25, 34, 39, 66<sup>13-20</sup> 71, 72, 91, 145. (8) There are nine octastichs: 8, 11, 16, 20, 44, 58, 83, 104, 119. (9) There is one nonastich: 42-43. (10) There are seven decastichs: 7, 15, 22, 33, 35, 51, 142. (11) There are four duodecastichs: 21, 59, 88, 107. (12) There are two fourteen-lined Strs.: 18, 49. (13) There are several Pss. with varying Strs., 24<sup>1-6</sup> 24<sup>7-10</sup>, with responsive choirs. Ps. 45 has Strs. of increasing length with Rfs. and measures varying as the Song of Deborah, Ju. 5.

The credit of calling the attention of scholars to the strophical organisation of Hebrew poetry is usually given to Köster (Das Buch Hiob und der Prediger Solomos nach ihrer strophischen Anordnung, 1813; Die Psalmen nach ihrer strophischen Anordnung, 1837; and especially Die Strophen oder Parallelismus der Verse der Heb. Poesie, S. K. 1831). But in fact many older scholars had recognised the strophe and antistrophe in Hebrew poetry; so especially Anton. Even Lowth pointed out that there were stanzas of different numbers of lines (Prelim. Diss. to Isaiah). Köster builds on Lowth's system of parallelism and maintains that groups of verses are arranged on the same principles of parallelism as the verses themselves, and thus he gets various kinds of strophic parallelism corresponding with the various kinds of parallels of lines. He distinguishes (1) word strophes, (2) thought strophes, (a) synonymous, (b) antithetical, (c) synthetic, and (d) identical. In this he is essentially correct. De Wette, in the fourth edition of his Commentary, 1836, recognises that about all the Psalms are divided into strophes; so Ewald, Olshausen, Delitzsch, and others in their Commentaries. There were, however, great differences of opinion as to the principles for determining the strophical organisation, as these scholars, one and all, made the strophical divisions dependent upon their opinions of the most important breaks in the thought of the poems. If they had built on Köster they would have been more successful. D. H. Müller (Die Propheten in ihrer ursprünglichen Form, 1895, Strophenbau und Responsion, 1898) classified the strophes under the terms, responsion, concatenation, and inclusion. As I said in 1899 (SHS. 399): "There is nothing new in his theory but the terminology and some of the illustrations. Responsion is simply the antithetical parallelism of strophes, concatenation is the stairlike parallelism of lines used in strophical relations, and inclusion is the introverted parallelism of strophes. I have taught all this for thirty years and given the doctrine of the strophe in the writings above referred to." Müller was hardly justified in objecting to Zenner (Chorgesänge im Buche der Psalmen, 1896) as appropriating his ideas, for they were common property, the inevitable result of the application, since Köster, of the principles of parallelism to strophes. Rather Müller himself was to blame for not properly recognising the work of his predecessors, which would have shown him that his views were not as original as he supposed.

(F) There are also Refrains which some poets use in connection with the various strophes of their poems. These are of several kinds: (a) they are often identical in thought and expression; (b) the thought is the same but its expression varies; (c) the thought and expression both vary; (d) a number of Pss. were composed and arranged for singing by responsive choirs; and (e) some for solo voices and choruses.

(a) Ps. 39 has 2 Str. 7<sup>5</sup> with identical Rf. 1<sup>5</sup>; Ps. 42-43 has 3 Str. 9<sup>5</sup> with identical Rf. 3<sup>5</sup>. The following also have identical Rfs.: 46, 49, 56, 59, 62, 80, 85, 116, 144<sup>A</sup>. (b) Ps. 8 has an identical couplet of Rf.; but it is before the first Str. and after the second Str., on the principle of inclusion or introverted parallelism, so 57<sup>B</sup> (= 108<sup>A</sup>), cf. 58. Ps. 107 has double Rfs. (c) Ps. 45 has 3 Str. of increasing length, 2, 6, 18, with a Rf. of one line at the close of each beginning with an identical term, but varying in thought and expression in other respects. Ps. 66<sup>A</sup> has two Str. couplets, each introduced by a Rf. varying only in expression. The following Pss. are uniform in structure, with varying Rfs., 50, 84. (d) Pss. 20, 21 were sung by responsive choirs. The Rfs. vary in expression. They are trimeter couplets following 2 Str. 8<sup>3</sup> in Ps. 20, and 2 Str. 12<sup>3</sup> in Ps. 21. Ps. 24<sup>7-10</sup> was also arranged for responsive choirs with Rfs. in which there is identical expression in part, and in part variation. Pss. 118<sup>A</sup> 118<sup>B</sup> were also arranged for responsive choirs. (e) Ps. 15 has a couplet of inquiry, followed by a decalogue of moral requirement and a monostich of conclusion. Ps. 24<sup>1-6</sup> has a similar variety of inquiry, response, and statement. The recognition of Refrains and responsive choirs in the Psalter has been quite general. But there has been a great difference of opinion as to particular Pss. Zenner (Chorgesänge im Buche der Psalmen, 1896) pushes responsion to extraordinary lengths, and includes in his scheme a large number of Pss. that give no other suggestion of responsive choirs than the principle of responsion, which is, as we have seen, rather a characteristic of one kind of parallelism of Strophes as well as lines of Hebrew poetry. At the same time it is quite possible that the choirs of temple and synagogues made a more extended use of responsive singing than has ordinarily been supposed. This feature of responsion of Strophes certainly made such responsive singing easier; cf. Condamin, Le Livre d'Isaïe, 1905. The attempt of Baumann (ZDMG. 1905, S. 129 sq.) to discredit the Rf. is based on false conceptions of the nature of a Rf., and is made in such a way as to discredit rather the author.

§ 13. Several Pss. give evidence that they were parts of longer Pss.

(1) Pss. 9 and 10 were originally one alphabetical Ps., as indeed they are given in  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ , and in the uses of the Roman Catholic, Greek, and Syriac Churches, making a difference of numbering of one less Ps. from Pss. 10-113. Ps. 9 in the order of the alphabet reaches the Str. with  $\beth$ , Ps. 10 begins with  $\beth$  and continues the alphabetical structure to the end. However, there are several Strs. in which the letter has been lost, partly through mistake, partly from the intentional substitution of other words and sentences by editors.

(2) Pss. 42 and 43 were originally one. This is evident from the Rf., which comes twice in 42 and once in 43, and from the fact that the measures, strophical organisation, and entire character of the Pss. are the same. (3) Pss. 93, 96-100 were originally parts of a great royal advent Ps. of fifteen trimeter hexastichs. It was broken into six Pss., and these were edited with many changes for liturgical purposes. Even in H in twelve codd. 93 is part of 92, in nine codd. 95 of 94, in four codd. 96 of 95, in fourteen codd. 97 of 96, in eight codd. 99 of 98. (4) Pss. 105 and 106 were originally one, each having twelve trimeter tetrastichs. (5) G also divides 116 and 147 into two Pss. each, followed by F, so that 117-147 H, EV<sup>a</sup>., are numbered differently from G, F. 148-150 have the same number in all.

§ 14. Many Pss. are composite of two or more original Pss. or parts of Pss. combined for liturgical purposes. Usually the original Pss. were of different poetic structure, and they are combined in various ways by editorial seams.

(1) Ps. 19 is composed of an early trimeter morning hymn in praise of the sun, v.<sup>2-7</sup>, and a late pentameter in praise of the divine Law, v.<sup>8-16</sup>. (2) Ps. 24 is composed of an original choral, v.<sup>7-10</sup>, and a later ethical Ps., v.<sup>1-6</sup>. (3) Ps. 40 is composed of an original Ps., v.<sup>2-12</sup>, of four pentameter pentastichs, to which was appended v.<sup>13</sup> sq. = Ps. 70 with editorial modifications. (4) Ps. 60 is composed of v.<sup>8-12a</sup>, an ancient piece, and v.<sup>3-7</sup>. 12b-14, a more modern one. Ps. 108 is composed of v.<sup>1-6</sup> = 57<sup>8-12</sup> and v.<sup>7-14</sup> = 60<sup>7-14</sup>, not that this Ps. actually used parts of 57 and 60, but that it used one of the originals of each of these Pss. (5) Ps. 89 is composed of a paraphrase of the Davidic covenant in four parts, each of four trimeter tetrastichs, v.<sup>4-6</sup>. 18-46; a much later tetrameter poem of six tetrastichs in praise of the fidelity of Yahweh in the creation and government of the world, v.<sup>2-3</sup>. 6-16. These were combined at a still later date, and given a conclusion of two tetrameter hexastichs expressing an intense longing for divine interposition, v.<sup>47-52</sup>. (6) G, S, and even Ki. combine 114 with 115 in their 113; but in fact 115 is composed of four trimeter tetrastichs, v.<sup>1-8</sup>, and three trimeter hexastichs, v.<sup>9-16</sup>. (7) The following Pss. are also composite of two or three earlier Pss.: 27, 36, 55, 57, 66, 69, 77, 81, 95, 102, 109, 118, 127, 139, 144, 147.

§ 15. Many early Pss. have been adapted by editors of the several minor and major Psalters for later use by glosses of various kinds. These are usually in different measures from those of the Pss.; and frequently the persons and numbers of nouns and verbs differ from those of the original poems, as if the editors would carefully distinguish their additions from the originals.

These glosses are of several kinds. The simplest and most natural are liturgical in character, petitions, intercessions, calls to worship, expressions of praise and the like. Pss. expressive of piety and protestations of integrity are modified by the insertions of confessions of sin and pleas for forgiveness. Protestations of innocence are inserted in Pss. which lament the sufferings of the people of God from vindictive and cruel enemies. Personal, local, and earlier national relations are generalised so that earlier Pss. might with propriety be used in the public worship of late times. Early Pss. were adapted to the time of the supremacy of Law by legal glosses, to the times of Hebrew Wisdom by legal glosses, to the Maccabean times by lamentations for defeat, imprecations upon enemies, and other warlike expressions appropriate to a period of persecution and conflict. Early Pss. were enriched by illustrations from earlier literature, or by fuller and expansive statements. Several Pss. were given a Messianic reference in this way. Thus the editors of the various Psalters did exactly what the editors of prayer-books, liturgies, and hymn-books have always done. They had greater interest in editing the Pss. for public worship than in preserving their original literary form and meaning. Accordingly, many of the Pss. have lost their original literary form. They express varied states of mind, differences of experience, inconsistent situations; there are sudden and unexpected changes in tense of verbs, and in person and number of pronouns and suffixes. All this makes the Pss. richer in the expression of religious experience, and in this respect more suited to the varied needs of the congregation, but greatly injures their literary and historical value.

It will be sufficient to call attention to several Pss. in which editorial work of various kinds appears.

(1) The alphabetic Pss. show signs of changes of the text. Ps. 9 has the alphabetical structure preserved with Strs. א, ב, ג, ד, ה. But the Strs. ו, ז, ח, ט, י, כ have been modified. Ps. 10 has the alphabetic structure in ל, מ, נ, ס, ע, פ, צ, ק, ר, ש, ת. But the Strs. ו, ז, ח, ט, י, כ are confused. Ps. 25 has an additional line with ק for an original ק. Ps. 34 adds two tetrameters. Ps. 37 has the Str. ו confused. Ps. 119 shows evidence of a great number of changes in the uses of terms for divine Law and in their order in the Strs. Ps. 145 lacks the Str. י. The alphabetic form of La. has been well preserved, but that of Na. 1 has been confused still more than that of Pss. 9-10. (2) Ps. 1<sup>8</sup> is a mosaic from Je. 17<sup>5-8</sup> Ez. 47<sup>12</sup> Jos. 1<sup>8</sup> interposed between two antithetical Strs., making a metrical arrangement of the present Ps. impracticable. (3) Ps. 18 was a graphic ode of the time of David, preserved in another edition 1 S. 22. An editor prefixed a protestation of love, v.<sup>2</sup>. Another inserted an assertion of fidelity to the Deuteronomic Law, v.<sup>21-24</sup>; still another of fidelity to the morals of Hebrew Wisdom, v.<sup>25-28</sup>, and there are other expressions indicating a later attitude of Israel to the nations than that represented in the original ode, v.<sup>36. 45b. 46. 50</sup>. (4) Ps. 22 was a graphic plea of suffering Israel. A later editor appended a liturgical gloss, v.<sup>24-25. 27</sup>, another v.<sup>28-32</sup>, to give the sufferings a world-wide and Messianic significance. (5) Ps. 32, a simple penitential Ps., was enlarged by an ethical gloss, v.<sup>2</sup>, a gloss of intensification, v.<sup>7</sup>, a gloss of warning, v.<sup>8-9</sup>, and a concluding liturgical gloss. (6) Ps. 44, an original Ps. of  $\mathfrak{I}$  was edited in  $\mathfrak{I}$  with a gloss of adaptation, v.<sup>5. 7</sup>. Maccabean glosses appear in v.<sup>6. 8-9</sup>, the exultation of victory, and in v.<sup>10. 12</sup>, by another hand, the humiliation of defeat. (7) Ps. 65 is an ancient song of praise in the temple, v.<sup>2. 3a. 5. 6a. 7. 8a. 9b</sup>. A gloss makes the worship universal, v.<sup>9b. 10</sup>; another makes the divine wonders in nature an object of fear, v.<sup>9a</sup>; another thinks of the covering over of transgression, v.<sup>4</sup>. Later editors add fragments of two harvest songs, the one, v.<sup>10-11</sup>, of the grain harvest; the other of the richness of flocks, v.<sup>12-14</sup>. (8) Ps. 72<sup>8-12</sup> is a mosaic of citations from Zec. 9<sup>10</sup> Is.<sup>2</sup> Jb. 29<sup>12</sup>. A large proportion of the Pss. have such glosses as these, adapting early Pss. to later uses, in the several successive editings of the Psalter.

§ 16. The text of the Psalter shows a large number of errors, just such as one would expect from its transmission through the hands of many different editors and copyists. There are essentially the same kinds of errors and subject to the same rules and principles of classification as those that are found in all Literature.

The most of the Pss. were composed in the ancient Hebrew script, resembling the Samaritan letters. They were transliterated into the Egyptian Aramaic script, and finally into the later square Aramaic letters. In each of these scripts errors arose from mistakes as to similar letters both in form and in sound; the transposition of letters in a word or of words in a sentence; the wrong attachment of letters to words, or of words to sentences; the transposition of clauses; and conjectures in the case of defective or illegible Mss.

(1) There is a large number of mistakes of letters. A list of these is given in Gr. (Com. on Pss., Vol. I. 128 sq.); cf. Baumgartner (Étude Critique sur l'état du texte du livre des Proverbes, 277 sq.). The following specimens of a very large number may suffice: 12<sup>6</sup> יפח  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{Z}$ , אפע. 14<sup>6</sup> מוהם = 53<sup>6</sup> מאם. 16<sup>4</sup> נסכיהם;  $\mathfrak{I}$  נספים. 18<sup>11</sup> ירא = 2 S. 22<sup>11</sup> ירא. 28<sup>7</sup> משירי;  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ , and ℥ differ so frequently that it is improbable that they used different texts. It seems evident that they appended different suffixes to an original text, which was without them. The article in Hebrew, as in Greek, often expresses the possessive, and in poetry the article is frequently omitted. (2) The variations of number in nouns and verbs is due to the failure to distinguish numbers in the originals and the various interpretations of the scribes. It is probable that in the most ancient Hebrew texts, as in Syriac, the number of nouns and verbs was not always distinguished. (3) The same form is sometimes interpreted as a noun, sometimes as a verb, which was quite possible when only the consonants of the form were written. It is precisely the same in unpointed Syriac texts. (4) In ℥ and Vrss. forms are interpreted differently, as pf., impf., or ptc., all often for an original inf. abs. (5) Prepositions were often inserted in order to make the relation of nouns and verbs more definite, especially after the older case distinctions had been lost. (6) Particles were inserted to make the connection of clauses more distinct, especially the relative אשר and the conjunctions כי and ו. (7) The divine names were inserted very often in order to make it evident that God was the subject or object of the verb. (8) Personal and emphatic pronouns are frequent additions to the text. (9) Other subjects and objects were also inserted in order to make the meaning of the sentences more clear. In all these cases even ℥ has been changed from a simpler original. In a very large number of instances the ancient Vrss., especially Ⲅ and Ⲑ, are more correct than ℥. Modern scholars have greatly erred in a too exalted estimate of the correctness of the unpointed Hebrew text in this regard. The measures make it evident that even ℥, by its numerous additions and changes of the original, is as truly an interpretation of an older text as Ⲅ and other ancient Vrss.

(B) The glossators are responsible for many changes in the text. The earliest and simplest glosses are those originally put on the margins of Mss., which subsequently crept into the text. (1) These were often explanations of rare and obsolete words by more familiar ones. In this way doublets arose which are easily detected, especially when they make the line overfull. These sometimes extend to phrases, sentences, and even lines. (2) There are many ejaculations of prayer, or praise, or pious exclamation on the part of devout scribes, which were proper on the margin, but make confusion with measure and sense in the text itself. Many imprecations may be thus explained. (3) There are many minor glosses due to the desire of the scribes to make the expressions stronger or clearer, and so they enlarge upon the original, intensify it, and elaborate it. (4) There are many Qrs. of the divine name in accordance with the uses of Elohim and Adonay in different periods for an original Yahweh; and not infrequently both readings appear as a conflation of the original text. (5) Citations of older Scriptures were made to illustrate and strengthen the force of the original. Sometimes these were originally in the margin and afterward crept into the text. (6) Some of these glosses were absent from Ⲅ and other Vrss., and sometimes Ⲅ and other Vrss. have similar glosses which are not in  $\mathfrak{H}$ . The measures and strophical organisation give great help in the detection of all such glosses.

(C) By far the larger proportion of variations between  $\mathfrak{H}$  and the Vrss. consists in differences of interpretation of the same forms in the unpointed text. With these should be associated the variations in the use of the vowel letters and difference of interpretation as to their place in the form. It is altogether probable that vowel letters were much more sparingly used in the codd. of the first century B.C. than in  $\mathfrak{H}$ .  $2^9$  נִסְכָּהִי, but  $\mathfrak{S}$  נִסְכָּהִי;  $7^7$  אֵלִי, but  $\mathfrak{S}$  אֵלִי;  $9^{14}$  רָאָה, but Aq.,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , רָאָה;  $9^{17}$  נִקַּחְשׁ, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ , Aq.,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{T}$ , נִקַּחְשׁ;  $9^{21}$  מִקְרָה, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ , מִקְרָה;  $10^5$  יַחֲוִלֹה, but  $\mathfrak{I}$ , Aq., יַחֲוִלֹה,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ , יַחֲוִלֹה;  $12^2$  אֲמֹנִים, but  $\mathfrak{S}$  אֲמֹנִים;  $14^7$  יִשְׁנֹעַת, but  $53^6$  יִשְׁנֹעִית;  $18^{26}$  גִּבֹּר, but 2 S.  $22^{26}$  גִּבֹּר;  $22^4$  קָרוֹשׁ, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , קָרוֹשׁ;  $22^{10}$  מִבְּשָׁחִי, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ , מִבְּשָׁחִי, as  $71^5$ ;  $27^6$  יָרוֹם, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , יָרוֹם;  $29^9$  אֵלִיֹּה, but אֵלִיֹּה;  $31^{11}$  עֲנִי, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ , עֲנִי,  $\mathfrak{S}$  עֲנִי;  $32^4$  לִשְׂרִי, but  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , לִ prep. and שֶׁר,  $\mathfrak{S}$  שֶׁר;  $32^4$  תִּזְנֶה, but  $\mathfrak{S}$  תִּזְנֶה;  $32^5$  עֲלִי,  $\mathfrak{S}$  עֲלִי;  $36^2$  פִּשְׁעֵי,  $\mathfrak{S}$  פִּשְׁעֵי. These are a few specimens only of a very great number throughout the Psalter.

B. HIGHER CRITICISM OF THE PSALTER.

§ 18. Ancient Jewish opinion regarded David as the editor of the Psalter and the author of a great portion of the Psalms, so that David and the Psalter were essentially synonymous terms.

In a Beraitha of the tract Baba Bathra of the Talmud, the Psalter is placed second in the roll of Writings; and it is said, "David wrote the Book of Psalms with the aid of the ten ancients, with the aid of Adam the first, Melchizedek, Abraham, Moses, Heman, Jeduthun, Asaph, and the three sons of Korah." The writing of David here is evidently editorship, and the Psalter is represented as containing Psalms from these ten worthies as well as from David. This statement comes from the second century A.D., and is stereotyped in Jewish tradition. But it will not sustain the test of criticism. Moses' name is in the title of Ps. 90; Heman's in 88; those of Asaph and the sons of Korah in groups of Pss.; Jeduthun's in Pss. 39, 62, 77; but in none of these cases can we think of authorship (v. §§ 28, 29, 34). The names of Adam and Melchizedek do not appear in the titles, but Melchizedek's name is in  $\mathfrak{I}10^4$ . Adam's name was possibly thought of in connection with the Ps. of creation, 104. But it is impossible to think of either of them as authors of Pss. Moreover, as will soon appear, no Ps. can be regarded as earlier than David, and few belong to his time.

The apocalypse of Ezra represents that the ancient Psalter was destroyed with the other Writings and restored by Ezra, but that does not affect the question of original authorship. Josephus says that, "David, being freed from wars and dangers and enjoying a profound peace, composed songs and hymns to God of various sorts of meter. Some of those which he made were trimeters and some pentameters." David here stands essentially for the Psalter. This statement is not inconsistent with the Jewish tradition already given that David was aided by others in the composition of Pss., for it is a general and comprehensive statement.

§ 19. In the New Testament David is used as the equivalent of the Psalter, and as such personified in the references to particular Psalms. Questions were not raised as to authorship or editorship.

The Psalter is referred to as the Psalms, Lk. 24<sup>44</sup>, the Book of Psalms, Lk. 20<sup>42</sup>, Acts 1<sup>20</sup>, and David, Heb. 4<sup>7</sup>. The latter passage cites from Ps. 95, which has no title. There are in the NT. many citations, direct or indirect, from the Psalter. Six are cited under the name of David, 2, 16, 32, 69, 109, 110, and these simply use the name as a common designation which amounts to nothing more than "the Psalter" itself. Only one of these Pss. could by any possibility have come from the time of David, and that is altogether improbable.

Ps. 2<sup>1-2</sup> is cited in Acts 4<sup>25-26</sup> as by "the mouth of our father David"; but 2<sup>7</sup> is cited, Acts 13<sup>33</sup> as "in the second Ps.," and in Heb. 1<sup>5</sup> 5<sup>6</sup> as a word of God. Ps. 16<sup>8-11</sup> is cited in Acts 2<sup>25-28</sup> as "David saith"; but 16<sup>10b</sup> in Acts 13<sup>36</sup> as "in another (Ps.)." Ps. 32<sup>1-2</sup> is cited in Rom. 4<sup>7-8</sup> as David's blessing. Ps. 69<sup>23-24</sup> is cited in Rom. 11<sup>9-10</sup> as "David saith"; but 69<sup>5</sup> in Jn. 15<sup>25</sup> as "written in their Law"; 69<sup>10a</sup> in Jn. 2<sup>17</sup> as "it was written"; 69<sup>10b</sup> in Rom. 15<sup>3</sup> as "it is written"; 69<sup>22</sup> in Jn. 19<sup>28-29</sup> as "that the scripture might be accomplished"; 69<sup>26</sup> in Acts 1<sup>20</sup> as "written in the Book of Psalms," though doubtless included under the general statement Acts 1<sup>16</sup> "by the mouth of David." The same is true of 109<sup>8</sup> cited in the same passage. Ps. 110<sup>1</sup> is cited by our Lord as "David himself said in the Holy Spirit," Mk. 12<sup>36</sup>. Cf. Mt. 22<sup>43-44</sup>; but Lk. 20<sup>42-43</sup> as "David himself saith in the Book of Psalms"; and so Acts 2<sup>34-35</sup> "(David) saith himself"; and in Heb. 1<sup>13</sup> as God's words. Jesus and Peter were arguing with the Pharisees in the Halacha method on the basis of received opinion. There were no good reasons why Jesus and his apostles should depart from these opinions, even if they did not share them. There was no reason why Jesus as a teacher should have come to any other opinion on this subject than his contemporaries held. This was not a matter in which his divine knowledge would have influenced his human training. He was doubtless not informed as to matters of criticism which did not confront him in his day. We cannot, therefore, regard this single statement of Jesus as decisive of the authorship of Ps. 110 (v. Br. <sup>Hex. 28</sup>; Gore, Lux Mundi, 360). The other citations (a table of which is given by Kirk, vol. III. 838 sq.) will be considered in connection with the History of the Interpretation of the Psalter; v. § 47.

§ 20. There was no consensus of the Fathers, and there was no decision of the Church, as to questions of the Higher Criticism of the Psalter, although the common traditional opinion, in the ancient and medieval Church, was that David was its author.

Jerome (Ep. 140 ad Cyprianum) held that Moses wrote besides Ps. 90 also 91–100, on the theory that anonymous Pss. are to be attributed to the author last named. In this he follows Jewish opinion that the Psalter was edited as well as written by David. Augustine (De Civitate Dei 17<sup>14</sup>) held that the more credible opinion was that David was the author of the Psalter. Theodore of Mopsuestia explains seventeen Pss. as referring to the Maccabean age, but he seems to suppose that they were written by David in the spirit of prophecy.

§ 21. Calvin among the Reformers regarded Ezra as the editor of the Psalter, and in this was followed by Du Pin and others; but the prevailing opinion until the eighteenth century was that David wrote the entire Psalter.

Calvin held that Ezra or some one else edited the Psalter, and made the first Ps. an introduction to the collection. Andrew Rivetus says: "This only is to be held as certain, whether Moses or David or any other composed the Psalms, they themselves were as pens, but the Holy Spirit wrote through them" (prolog. to his Com. on the Psalms). Casaubon says, "The truth is they are not all David's Psalms, some having been made before and some long after him, as shall be shown in due place" (preface to Com. on Psalms). Du Pin said, "Though the Psalms are commonly called the Psalms of David, or rather the Book of the Psalms of David, yet 'tis certain, as St. Jerome has observed in many places, that they are not all of 'em his, and that there are some written long after his death. 'Tis therefore a collection of songs that was made by Ezra" (Dissert. Prelim. Bib. des Auteurs eccl. 1696, pp. 1–5). These represent Protestant and Roman Catholic opinions, freely expressed without censure, against the still prevailing traditional opinion that David was the author of all the Psalms (v. Br.<sup>8HS. 262</sup>).

§ 22. With the rise of the Higher Criticism, the traditional opinion as to the Davidic authorship of the Psalter was questioned, and soon abandoned by all critics. At first editorship by Ezra and the Davidic authorship of only those Psalms which have David in their titles was proposed; but subsequently internal evidence showed this to be impossible, so that critical opinion gradually came to the result that the final editorship of the Psalter could not have been earlier than the Maccabean period, and that David wrote few, if any, of the Psalms, the most of them being postexilic.

After the Davidic authorship of the entire Psalter had been generally abandoned, an effort was made to rally about the Davidic authorship of those Pss. which have דוד in their title, on the theory that the ל is ל of ascription to an author. But this position could not be maintained; for a constantly increasing number of scholars, such as Eichhorn, Ros., Bauer, Jahn, De W., al., recognised many of these Pss. as later than David. Horsley says, "The misapplication of the Psalms to the literal David has done more mischief than the misapplication of any other part of the Scriptures, among those who profess the Christian religion" (Book of Psalms, Vol. I., Pref. 14). Ewald recognised 11 Pss. of David, besides a few fragments taken up into later Pss.; Hi. found 14, Schultz 36, De. 44. After De. had abandoned the Davidic authorship of 30 of the 74, and Schultz 38 of them, it was no longer possible to urge Davidic authorship from the titles, and scholars had to depend on internal evidence alone. Many recent critics refuse to recognise a single Psalm as written by David; so Gr., Ku., Reu., Stade, Che., Du.; and the most of them no preëxilic Pss. But other critics, such as Bâ., Dr., Kirk., rightly refuse this extreme position, and still think of preëxilic and even Davidic Psalms.

§ 23. The Higher Criticism of the Psalter depends chiefly upon the internal evidence of the Psalms themselves. The titles are valuable for traces of the history of their use; but their contents, their interrelation, and their relation to other writings of the OT., give the only reliable evidence as to their origin and transmission.

The Higher Criticism of the Psalter has made it evident that there is no dependence to be placed upon any of the traditional theories; for it is manifest that they were all conjectural, and rested upon insufficient evidence. We are thrown back first upon the titles. These came from the hands of editors, and with the exception of a few words, were not attached to the original Pss. They therefore give evidence of the different stages in the editing and use of the Pss.; and not of the authorship, date, or character of the originals. For these questions we must depend on a few external evidences of citation and silence, but for the most part on internal evidence alone: the poetic form and spirit, the subject matter in its relation to the development of religion, faith, and morals, the slight traces of historic circumstances and conditions, citations from earlier writings, the use of words and phrases in their relation to the development of the Hebrew language and literature, and other like evidences used in the Higher Criticism of all literature (v. Br.<sup>SHS. 92 sq.</sup>).

The Pss. are divided into two great classes, those with titles and those without. The latter are usually designated as "orphans." The titles certainly came from the hands of editors. There are a few instances in which parts of the titles may have been attached to the original Pss., but these are comparatively unimportant. The titles represent several stages of editing. This process still continued in G and S after the Hebrew text became stereotyped. These Vrss. do not hesitate to make conjectural additions to the titles, and even, in some cases, to make substitutions. The neglect into which the titles fell, soon after their traditional interpretation was abandoned, was really discreditable to Criticism; for they give the opinion and show the methods of a number of different editors. They are, as it were, the prints of their fingers, which give important evidence as to the condition and use of the Pss., at several different periods. Much work has been given to the subject in more recent times. The views which I shall present are based chiefly on my own private study during the past forty years. I cannot agree with my friend Cheyne in his opinion that the titles are chiefly corruptions of original local and personal references which he restores by purely speculative criticism. Undoubtedly we must resort to speculative criticism when all other means fail us, but there is no such necessity as regards the titles of the Pss. All the evidences used in the Higher Criticism come into play in the investigation of the Pss. There are many citations in the NT. and other later literature, but there are few citations in the OT. books themselves, or in the Apocrypha or Pseudepigrapha. So far as those in the Apocrypha or Pseudepigrapha are concerned, they give no help back of the Maccabean period. The argument from silence has little part in the study of the Psalter, because of the special lyric character and the limited extent of the Pss. Very great importance must be attached to the study of words and phrases. These give evidence of relative position in the development of the Hebrew language and literature. We have to take account of the archaic character of poetic composition; but with due allowance for this feature, great help has been found in this study. I have made a lexicon of the Psalter, giving every word and every use of every word, and comparing these with the uses of other OT. literature. This has cost me an immense labour for some years, but has amply repaid me by the fresh light cast upon the Pss. The study of Biblical Theology in its historical development, to which I have given many years of labour and teaching, has also aided in the Higher Criticism of the Psalter. There are comparatively few historical traces, but these, though often obscure, have sometimes been found illuminating.

§ 24. The earliest term to appear in the titles was doubtless "Song," which, in some cases at least, was attached to the originals. It indicated a lyric poem used for singing, especially on joyous occasions; in later times especially in religious worship of praise, and by the Levitical choirs.

Ps. 18<sup>1</sup> (= 2 S. 22<sup>1</sup>) has in the title, שִׁירָה n.f., a song, especially an ode, as that of the crossing of the Red Sea, Ex. 15<sup>1</sup>; the Song of the Fountain, Nu. 21<sup>17</sup>; the Song of Moses, Dt. 31<sup>19, 19, 21, 22, 30</sup> 32<sup>44</sup>; the Song of the Vineyard, Is. 5<sup>1</sup>; love songs accompanied by a lyre, Is. 23<sup>15</sup>. This ancient term, not used after the time of Hezekiah, was in all probability attached to this earliest of the Pss.

Ps. 30<sup>1</sup> has שִׁיר חֲנֻכַּת הַבַּיִת song for the dedication of the house or temple; Ps. 92<sup>1</sup> שִׁיר לַיּוֹם הַשַּׁבָּת song for the Sabbath day. These indicate liturgical uses, and must have come from editors and not from authors. Ps. 108 is a late composite Ps., and שִׁיר in the title may have come from the title of the original, v. 8-14 = 60<sup>8-14</sup>, which is an early song of triumph. The character of 83, 88 does not seem to suit the term, for the former is essentially an imprecation upon enemies of the time of Nehemiah, the latter a lament of the early exile. At the same time these terms seem to be original to the Pss. and probably imply a more comprehensive meaning for שיר, such as is certainly found in the שיר המעלות, Pss. 120-134, a collection of Pss. of great variety, hymns, prayers, and didactic Pss.; a little social song book for pilgrims to the great feasts (v. § 36). ע also uses שִׁיר for שיר in Pss. 91, 93, 95, 96, for reasons difficult to discover, for, while it is appropriate enough in 93, 95, 96, it seems not appropriate to 39, 91.

§ 25. Miktam in the titles of seven Psalms indicates that they were taken from an early collection of choice pieces, made in the middle Persian period.

Pss. 56-60 have Miktam in their titles, so also Ps. 16. To these must be added Is. 38<sup>9-20</sup>. There were probably other pieces which have been lost because they were not used by the editors of the early Psalters. These all bear on their faces evidences of antiquity. None of them were composed later than the early Persian period.

The most of the Rabbis rightly interpret מִכְתָּם, as formed by prefix מ from the noun מִכְתָּם gold, and thus think of golden piece, in accordance with the ancient custom to name select poems, gems, jewels, choice pieces, and the like. This indeed indicates their character, for they are artistic in form and choice in their contents. Pss. 56, 57, 59, 60, are trimeters; 16, 58, are tetrameters. Is. 38<sup>9-20</sup> is a pentameter. 56, 57, 58, 59, have refrains, catch words, and other ornaments of style. They all have rare words, strange combinations, and a vigorous roughness of style, and express strong emotions. They resemble in this respect the preëxilic prophets, and are among the most ancient of the Pss. Ps. 60<sup>a</sup> belongs to the early monarchy; 58, Is. 38<sup>9-20</sup>, to the middle monarchy; 56 to the late monarchy; 16, 57<sup>a</sup>, 59, to the early Persian period. Five have editorial assignments: 56, 57, 59, 60, to circumstances of David's career; Is. 38<sup>9-20</sup> of Hezekiah's. The מִכְתָּם of Is. 38<sup>9</sup> is probably an error for מִכְתָּם. Pss. 16, 56-60, were taken up into B, the earliest Psalter (v. § 27); Pss. 56-60 were also used in E and BK (v. §§ 36, 37), but 16 was not included in these Psalters. This doubtless explains the separation of 16 from the group. ע interprets מִכְתָּם as στήλογραφα, inscription on a tablet, tituli inscriptio, H; so T as if it were מִכְתָּב. De. suggests on this basis, a memorial or catchword poem. Ps. 60 has also לִלְמַד after לִירֹד. This was evidently ancient, and, standing by itself, is meaningless. It probably has the same meaning as in the title of the Lament of David over Jonathan, 2 S. 1<sup>18</sup>, and probably was originally with it and others of the same kind in the Book of Yashar.

§ 26. Maskil, in the titles of thirteen Psalms, indicates a collection of meditations made in the late Persian period.

Pss. 32, 42-45, 52-55, 74, 78, 88, 89, 142, have Maskil in their titles. These were separated because of the selections made by the editors of the several minor and major Psalters. None of them, in their original forms, were composed later than the Persian period, and therefore they were probably collected not later than the late Persian period.

מִשְׁכִּיל was formed by the prefix מ from שָׁכַל in the Hiph. consider, contemplate, and is, therefore, probably a meditation, meditative poem, so De. "pious meditation," cf. Ps. 47<sup>8</sup> מִשְׁכִּיל זֶמֶר. So essentially Ἐ σὺνέσις or εἰς σύνεσιν; Ἰ intellectus, or ad intellectum; Ἱ eruditio. This suits the character of these Pss. essentially; so Ges., De W., Hi., regard them as poems to enforce piety and wisdom. מִשְׁכִּיל is defined by Ew. as a song with cheerful music to be accompanied with clear-sounding cymbals, and in this is followed by many moderns; so Kirk. "a cunning Psalm"; but this does not suit the internal character of many of these Pss. These Pss. were all comparatively early in their original forms: 45 middle monarchy; 52, 54, 55, late monarchy; 42-43, 74, 88, 89<sup>a</sup>, 142, exile; 32, 53, 78, early Persian period; 44 late Persian. Pss. 32, 52-55, 142, were taken up into D; 42-45 into K; 74, 78, into A. Of these, 42-45, 52-55, were also in BK, and these with 74-78 in E. Moreover, these two pseudonyms are Maskilim; 88 of Heman, which was also in BK, and 89<sup>a</sup> of Ethan, which was not in any of the minor Psalters. None of these Pss. are orphans. It is quite probable that there were other Pss. in the original collection, which have been lost.

§ 27. David in the titles of seventy-four Psalms indicates, not authorship, but, with few exceptions, the first of the minor Psalters, gathered under the name of David in the late Persian period, from which these Psalms were taken by later editors of the major Psalters.

1. It is evident from the internal character of these Pss., with a few possible exceptions, that David could not have written them. It is improbable that the word David was designed by the early editors to indicate their opinion that these Psalms were Davidic in authorship. The ל is not the ל of authorship, as has generally been supposed. The earliest collection of Pss. for use in the synagogue was made under the name of David, the traditional father of religious poetry and of the temple worship. The later editors left this name in the titles, with the preposition ל attached, to indicate that these Psalms belonged to that collection. This explains all the facts of the case and the position of these Pss. in the Psalter. This view is confirmed by Ps. 72<sup>20</sup>, which states that this Ps. was the conclusion of the prayers of David, and implies that the collection was a prayer-book. This statement is in accordance with the contents of these Psalms, for they are for the most part prayers. Some of the Pss. with David in the titles could not, however, have been in the Davidic Prayer-book. Pss. 86, 103, 108, 122, 124, 131, 133, 145, all belong to the Greek period. David was for various reasons inserted in the titles by later editors. Still later editors continued to attach David's name to other Pss. in G, S, and T. All the other Pss. which bear the name of David were composed, in their original form, with a single exception, not later than the middle Persian period. Ps. 68 seems to belong to the late Persian period, to which, therefore, we may assign the final collection of the Davidic Psalter (D). Thirteen of these Pss. have in their titles references to incidents in the life of David. It seems probable that they were an original collection by themselves, which the editor of D used as his nucleus.

The Pss. with לוד are the following : 3-9, 11-32, 34-41, 51-65, 68-70, 86, 101, 103, 108-110, 122, 124, 131, 133, 138-145. To these we must add 10, whose title does not appear because it was really, as in G, the conclusion of 9. G also gives David in the titles of 33, 43, 67, 71, 91, 93-99, 104, 137, fourteen others ; but 43 is a part of 42 of 3K ; 93, 96-99 are parts of the royal Advent Ps. ; 104 is part of the group 104-107 ; 137 is a Ps. of the captivity not suited to a prayer-book, as D ; 71 is dependent on earlier Pss. of D ; 33 was given the title as in the midst of Pss. of D. It is improbable that this would have been omitted in H if genuine. 67, 91, 94, 95, have no claim to have been in D. These insertions of G are all conjectures of later editors. But such conjectures appear also in H. The four pilgrim Ps. 122, 124, 131, 133, could not have been in D. David came into the title of 145 from its connection with the group 138-144. Ps. 108 is composite of earlier Pss. of D ; 86, 103, received David into the titles because of resemblance and use of Pss. of D. None of these Pss. is earlier than the Greek period. All the other Pss. with David in the titles in H were probably in D ; and it may be that other Pss. were therein which have been lost, or placed ultimately elsewhere in the OT. Ps. 72, in its original form, was at the conclusion of the Davidic prayer-book, as sufficiently indicated by the subscription v.<sup>20</sup>. It is also probable that Ps. 2 was its introduction, as is most suitable on account of its reference to the Davidic covenant. If now we remove the duplicate 53 (= 14), there are 68 Pss. which we may regard as in D. These Pss. have been disturbed from their original order by the selections from them made by later editors. Among the Mizmorim appear : 3-6, 8-10, 12-13, 15, 19-24, 29-31, 38-41, 51, 62-65, 68, 101, 109-110, 139-141, 143. For D3K were selected : 4-6, 8-14, 18-22, 31, 36, 39-41, 51-52, 54-62, 64-65, 68-70, 109, 139-140. In ℔ were selected 51-65, 68-70, 72.

(2) Thirteen Pss. of ℔ have in their titles references to certain incidents in the life of David. These statements all depend upon the narratives of Samuel, and were subsequent to the Deuteronomic redaction of the prophetic histories: Ps. 3, "when he fled from Absalom his son," cf. 2 S. 15. Ps. 7, "which he sang to Yahweh concerning the words of Cush a Benjamite," cf. 2 S. 16. Ps. 18, "in the day that Yahweh delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul," cf. 2 S. 22<sup>1</sup>. Ps. 34, "when he changed his behaviour before Abimelech who drove him away and he departed," cf. 1 S. 21<sup>10</sup> sq. Ps. 51, "when Nathan the prophet came unto him after he had gone in to Bathsheba," cf. 2 S. 12. Ps. 52, "when Doeg the Edomite came and told Saul, and said unto him, David is come to the house of Abimelech," cf. 1 S. 22<sup>9</sup> sq. Ps. 54, "when the Ziphites came and said to Saul, Doth not David hide himself with us?" cf. 1 S. 23<sup>19</sup> sq. || 26<sup>1</sup> sq. Ps. 56, "when the Philistines took him in Gath," cf. 1 S. 27. Ps. 57, "when he fled from Saul, in the cave," cf. 1 S. 22. Ps. 59, "when Saul sent, and they watched the house to kill him," cf. 1 S. 19<sup>8-17</sup>. Ps. 60, "when he strove with Aram Naharaim and with Aram-zobah, and Joab returned and smote of Edom (error for Aram) in the Valley of Salt twelve thousand," cf. 2 S. 8<sup>13</sup> 10. Ps. 63, "when he was in the wilderness of Judah," 1 S. 22<sup>5</sup> sq. Ps. 142, "when he was in the cave," cf. 1 S. 24. These thirteen Pss. were all in ℔, but only 52, 54, 142, are Maskilim; 56, 57, 59, 60, Miktamim; 3, 51, 63, Mizmorim. Therefore the statements can have nothing to do with these collections. Furthermore ℔ uses eight: 51, 52, 54, 56, 57, 59, 60, 63, omitting five; ℔℔ also uses eight: 18, 51, 52, 54, 56, 57, 59, 60, omitting five; 3, 7, 34, 142, were used by neither. Therefore these notices could not have come from these editors. ℔ is thus the only collection in which all are found, and therefore either the editor of ℔ must have been responsible for them, or these statements must have been in his sources. It is improbable that he would assign historical occasions to only thirteen out of his collection of sixty-eight. We must therefore seek them in his sources. But it is evident that they do not belong to the original Pss., for the only one that comes from the time of David is the original of Ps. 18, which gets its title from 2 S. 22<sup>1</sup>. 2 S. 23<sup>1</sup> gives another poem which is attributed to David in the same way. These titles of the Pss. came from an editor of the same type as the one who inserted these poems in the book of Samuel. It is probable, therefore, that these thirteen Pss. constituted a little collection of Davidic Psalms. The editor of ℔ used them just as he found them, with these titles as the nucleus of his collection. They are not, however, in their original order, if designed to illustrate the life and experience of David. Their order, according to the narratives of Samuel, would be rather: 59, 57, 63, 52, 54, 142, 56, 34, 60<sup>a</sup>, 51, 3, 7, 18. It is quite possible that 2 S. 23<sup>1</sup> sq. was originally at the end, and the lament of David over Jonathan, 2 S. 19<sup>27</sup>, in the middle before 60, making fifteen in all. One of these, Ps. 60<sup>a</sup>, was probably in the book of Yashar as well as 2 S. 1<sup>19-27</sup>. These Pss. originated in different periods and in different circumstances, such as accord only in some respects with these titles. Ps. 18 in its original form was probably Davidic, and possibly Pss. 7, 60<sup>a</sup>. Ps. 3 was from the middle monarchy; 52, 54, 56, the late monarchy; 63, 142, from the exile; 34, 57<sup>a</sup>, 59, the early Persian; and 51 probably from the time of Nehemiah. It is altogether improbable, therefore, that an editor of the middle Persian period could have thought that his references to experiences of David were historical. He made them to illustrate the Pss., as the editor of 2 S. 22-23 used the Pss. to illustrate the close of David's career (cf. the use of Pss. in 1 Ch. 16). It is noteworthy that not long before the Pseudonyms, Ps. 72, 88, 89, appeared (v. § 34).

(3) We may determine the original order of the Pss. in III only by the most careful review of all these facts. Ps. 72 was originally the concluding Ps. of III (v.<sup>20</sup>). We shall have to suppose, therefore, that 101, 109-110, 138-144, were removed from their original positions before 72. It is altogether probable that 16 was, in III, still connected with the group 56-60. The groups 51-65, 68-70, 72, selected by E from III, are not in their original places. The Pss. with historical references 3, 7, 18, 34, 51, 52, 54, 56, 57, 59, 60, 63, 142, were, as we have seen, originally in the same group. The key to their order is doubtless in 18, originally the last of the series. It is probable that III followed the original order for the most part, so far as 4-6, 8-14, 19-22, 31, 36, 39-41, are concerned, but the order of E in 51-62, 64-65, 68-70. That 109, 139-140, appear so late must be due to a still later editor. The order of III is also substantially original: 3-6, 8-10, 12-13, 15, 19-24, 29-31, 38-41, 51, 62-65, 68, 101, 109-110, 139-141, 143, except as disturbed by later editors. The Pss. with לָרֹר alone, 17, 25-28, 34-35, 37, 138, 144, which, therefore, did not appear in the intermediate Psalters, and those used by III only, 11, 14, 36, and by III and E only, 61, 69-70, are probably out of their original order. Inasmuch as 70 was attached to the end of 40, it is probable that the original order of III was 69, 40, 70. The following may therefore be given as a provisional theory of the original order, 2, 4-6, 8-13, 14 (= 53), 16, 17, 59, 63, 52, 57, 54, 142, 56, 34, 60, 51, 3, 7, 18 (30, 55, 58, 61-62, 64-65), 19-24 (15, 101), 25-28 (35, 37, 138-141, 143, 144), 29, 31-32, 36, 38, 39 (68, 109, 110, 69, 40, 70), 41, 72.

The Pss. of III, in their original, may be dated as follows: (1) The early monarchy, 7, 13, 18, 23, 24<sup>b</sup> 60<sup>a</sup> 110. (2) The middle monarchy, beginning with Jehoshaphat, 3, 20, 21, 27<sup>a</sup> 58, 61. (3) The late monarchy, beginning with Josiah, 19<sup>a</sup> 28, 36<sup>a</sup> 52, 54, 55, 56, 60<sup>b</sup> 62, 72. (4) The exile, 63, 142. (5) The early Persian period, before Nehemiah's reforms, 4, 6, 9-10, 11, 12, 14 (= 53), 16, 17, 22, 25, 31, 32, 34, 35, 37, 38, 39, 40<sup>b</sup> (= 70), 41, 57<sup>a</sup> 59, 64, 69<sup>a</sup> 101, 109<sup>a</sup> 140<sup>a</sup> 143, 144<sup>a</sup>. (6) Middle Persian period of internal and external peace after Nehemiah's reforms, 5, 8, 15, 26, 29, 30, 40<sup>b</sup> 51, 57<sup>b</sup> 65, 69<sup>b</sup> 138, 139<sup>b</sup> 141. (7) Late Persian period of strife and confusion, 68. It is probable, therefore, that III was edited toward the close of the Persian period, in Palestine, for use in the synagogues. To these Pss. other Pss.

§ 28. The term "sons of Korah" in the titles of eleven Psalms indicates a collection of religious poems, made in the early Greek period, from which these were taken.

Two groups of Pss., 42-49, and 84, 85, 87, 88, have in their titles "belonging to the Sons of Korah." The separation of the two groups was due to a selection of the former group by an editor, who united them with 50-83. The other group was appended from the original collection by the final editor of the Psalter. These Pss. have common features which are not sufficient to imply the same author or authors, but yet imply careful selection. These are (1) a desire to engage in the worship of the sacred places; (2) confidence in Yahweh, the king enthroned in Jerusalem, who watches over the people from thence and saves them; (3) a highly artistic finish and symmetrical poetic forms. These Pss. were selected from a collection of Pss. gathered under the name of the Sons of Korah, in Palestine, in the early Greek period.

בני קרח is doubtless the same as בני הקרחים, 2 Ch. 20<sup>19</sup>, a guild of temple singers distinguished from בני הקהתים, another guild. According to 1 Ch. 6<sup>18</sup> sq. (33 sq.), Heman, a Kohathite, Asaph, a descendant of Gershom, and Ethan, of the sons of Merari, represented the three sons of Levi. According to 1 Ch. 26<sup>19</sup> the doorkeepers of the temple were Sons of Korah and Merari. Ezr. 2<sup>41</sup> Ne. 7<sup>44</sup> mention only sons of Asaph as singers. According to 1 Ch. 6<sup>7</sup>. 18 sq. Heman was בן קרח, a grandson of Kohath, and so both Kohathite and Korahite. The term "Korahite" seems to have been substituted for "Kohathite," and Heman was the representative of the line, as Asaph was of the line of Gershom. Both were guilds of temple singers in the temple of the Restoration. All of these Pss. except 48 and 87 were taken up into MR. These have the title לַמְנוּחָה at the beginning, but 88 has two titles, and לַמְנוּחָה is at the beginning of the second. This singularity makes it probable that the first title was a later addition, due to the conjecture that, inasmuch as Heman mentioned in the second title was the chief of the Korahites, his Ps. should have that title also. Ps. 88 was simply a Maskil of Heman, as 89 was a Maskil of Ethan. Ps. 49 differs so much in character from the other Korahite Pss. that it seems probable that it was not originally with that collection, and that the name came into the title by txt. err. or editorial conjecture, because the Ps. was attached to the group 42-48, immediately before 50 of Asaph. It represents an early type of WL. Ps. 43 was originally the third Str. of 42, as is evident from the common Rf. and from internal characteristics which are common. The remaining nine Pss. have been preserved from ℔. We are unable to say whether ℔ had more of them, or not. The group 42-49 differs from the group 84-85, 87-88, by the use of the divine name Elohim in the former and Yahweh in the latter. This difference was not in ℔, but was due to ℒ, who changed Yahweh into Elohim. ℔ originally used Yahweh throughout. These Pss. represent different periods of history: 45 from the time of Jehu; 46, 87, time of Josiah; 42-43, 84, time of Jehoiachin; 47, middle Persian period after Nehemiah; 44, 48, 85, late Persian period; 42-43, 44, 45 were taken from the collection of מִשְׁכִּילִים. As none of these Pss. are later than the Persian period, and so many are late in that period, it is probable that the collection was made early in the Greek period. These Pss. are highly artistic in form. Five of them have Refrains: 42-43, 45, 46, 84, 85; three are trimeters, 44, 47, 85; one tetrameter, 46; four pentameters, 42-43, 48, 84, 87, and one varies between tetrameter and trimeter, 45. They are all highly poetic in content, and on the whole the choicest collection in the Psalter from a literary point of view.

§ 29. The term "Asaph" in the titles of twelve Psalms indicates a collection of religious poems made in Babylonia in the early Greek period, from which these Psalms were derived.

The group of Pss. 73-83 and the detached 50 have Asaph in their titles. The separation of 50 from the group was due to a later editor, probably in order to make an appropriate concluding Ps. to the first division of 50. These Pss. have common features: (1) vivid descriptions of nature; (2) emphasis of divine providence in the life of the individual; (3) use of history with a didactic purpose; (4) exalted spiritual conceptions of God; (5) sublimity of style. These features are not sufficient to show a common author or guild of authors, but imply careful selection by an editor with a plan and purpose to set forth those features. The Pss. were originally in a collection by themselves, made in the early Greek period, probably in Babylonia.

from glosses, were composed probably as follows: 74, 77<sup>a</sup> 79, 81<sup>b</sup> 82, during the Exile; 75, 76, 78, 80, 83, in the early Persian period; 50 in the late Persian; and 73 in the early Greek period. We may therefore assign the collection to the early Greek period. There are additions, 77<sup>b</sup> and 81<sup>a</sup>, besides glosses from the later Greek and Maccabean periods. There is nothing in the originals that is opposed to the dates given above. All of the Pss. of Α were taken up into Ε, and were probably used as the basis of that collection. The divine name אלהים seems to have been original to Α, and is not to be ascribed to the editor of Ε. This was probably due to the fact that the collection was made in Babylonia, where the use of that divine name prevailed. In this Α agrees with P of the Hexateuch, which came from the same region. Two of the Pss. of Α, 74, 78, in their original form were taken from the collection of משכילים. These Pss. received many glosses, and in these cases אלהים seems not to have been original.

§ 30. The other proper names in the Psalter, Solomon, Ps. 72; Moses, Ps. 90; Heman, Ps. 88; Ethan, Ps. 89; 'Ani, Ps. 102, are pseudonyms.

The name of Solomon is in the title of Ps. 72, the closing Ps. of the original Δ; doubtless placed there as a pseudonym by the author, composing from the point of view of Solomon, for it could not have been written by Solomon himself, even in its original form. Three pseudonyms are together in the midst of the Psalter, doubtless by editorial design: 88 ascribed to Heman, 89 to Ethan, 90 to Moses; all alike with the same purpose, to compose Pss. in the name and from the point of view of these ancient worthies. In no case is the name of an author attached to a Ps. 'Ani, Ps. 102, is probably a pseudonym for the suffering pious of Israel. The Pss. are all, with the exception of these pseudonyms, anonymous.

(a) Solomon's name is attached to 72, but it really belongs only to the original v. 1-7. 13-17<sup>a</sup>, two hexameter heptastichs constituting a prayer for a king on his accession, probably from the time of Josiah, and therefore appropriately put into the mouth of Solomon, who might be supposed to have just such aspirations for his son. It was originally a Yahwistic Ps. Solomon is also in the title of 127 in Η, but not in Θ. This is a pilgrim Ps., and we must ascribe the insertion to the conjecture of a late scribe. (b) Heman, the Ezrahite, is in the title of 88, originally in the collection of משכילים. It is a Ps. of national lamentation during the extreme distress of the Exile, and could not have been written either by the sage of Solomon, 1 K. 5<sup>11</sup> (4<sup>31</sup>), or the singer of David, 1 Ch. 15<sup>17, 19</sup> 25<sup>5</sup>. It was put into his mouth by the author as a pseudonym. (c) Ethan, the Ezrahite, is in the title of Ps. 89. He was one of the sages of Solomon, 1 K. 5<sup>11</sup> (4<sup>31</sup>). The Ps. in its original form (v.<sup>18-46</sup>) is a paraphrase of the Davidic covenant and a lament as to its failure. It came from one of the companions of Jehoiachin in his exile. It could not have been written by Ethan. It was put into his mouth as a pseudonym. (d) Moses, the man of God, is in the title of the prayer Ps. 90, which imitates purposely Dt. 32, 33, songs ascribed to Moses, with the view of putting the Ps. in his mouth. It could not have been written by Moses. It is not an early Ps., but dates probably from the later years of the Exile. (e) Ps. 102 has in the title, הפליה לעני כי יעטף ולפני יהוה ישפך שירי = Prayer of the afflicted one when he was fainting and before Yahweh pouring out his complaint. עני is probably a pseudonym. The author writes in the name of afflicted Israel. The Ps. is composite: v.<sup>2-12</sup> seems to come from the closing years of the Persian period, but v.<sup>13-23</sup>. 29 is a Maccabean Ps. (f) Some codd. ס of 65, 137, so פ, have Jeremiah in the titles; conjectures of late scribes, based on the similarity of the circumstances of the Ps. with those of Je. and La. (g) ס inserts Haggai and Zechariah in the titles of 146, 147, 148, 149, ס<sup>A</sup> also Zechariah in the titles of 138, 139, doubtless for similar reasons. Authorship is not to be thought of in these cases, and not even pseudonyms.

§ 31. Mizmor, in the titles of fifty-seven Psalms, indicates a collection made for singing in public worship in the early Greek period, from which these Psalms were taken.

The term Mizmor, like the terms Miktam and Maskil, implies a selection or collection of Pss. of this class. They were made, as the name implies, for public worship in song in the synagogue. As all those whose מזמור is genuine were derived from the earlier Psalters of ב, כ, א, with the exception of the exilic pseudonym 88 and two orphan Pss., 66-67, of the early Greek period, it is probable that the collection was made about that time.

(a) There are 57 Pss. in ב, with מזמור (v. § 1); of these there were derived from ב, 35 (36) Pss.: 3-6; 8-9 (+ 10), 12-13, 15, 19-24, 29-31, 38-41, 51, 62-65, 68, 101, 109, 110, 139-141, 143; from כ 5 Pss.: 47-48, 84-85, 87; from א 9: 50, 73, 75-77, 79-80, 82-83. To these were added 5 orphan Pss.: 66, 67, 92, 98, 100, the pseudonym 88, the gnomic 49, and the composite 108. But the term in 92, 98, 100, was doubtless from later scribes, 98, 100, being parts of the royal advent Ps., which could not have been written, still less broken up, in time to be included in the collection; 92 doubtless received this title in connection with its liturgical assignment. 66 is a composite Ps., but in its earliest form v.<sup>10-12</sup>, like 67, was probably composed early in the Greek period, possibly for use in this Psalter by its editor. There is no ground, therefore, on which to go later than this period for this collection of Pss.

(b) Ⓢ also attaches ψαλμός to ten other Pss.: 7, 11, 14, 25 of ⓓ; 43, 44, 46 of ⓗ; 81 of ⓐ, and 94, 99, orphans, but omits it from 4, 39 of ⓓ, using Ⓢ instead. Of these it may be rejected from 99 for the same reasons as from 98, 100, of ⓗ. 43 was originally a part of 42, and doubtless was not separated in ⓗ. In 46 Ⓢ is a later substitution for Ⓢ. No good reason can be assigned for the omission from 11, 14, 25, 94 of ⓗ or 44 of ⓗ or 81 of ⓐ. Ⓢ was more likely to have been inserted by assimilation to the groups in which they occur.

(c) In Ps. 7 the use is peculiar, for Ⓢ represents the enigmatical Ⓢ of ⓗ. This term is used elsw. only Hb. 3<sup>1</sup>, in pl. Ⓢ, where it is doubtless an error for Ⓢ, cf. Ⓢ μετὰ φῶς. It is derived by Aq., Σ, Ⓢ, Ⓢ, from Ⓢ and rendered error, confusion. Most moderns, as Ew., De., Kirk., al., derive from Ⓢ go astray, reel, and think of the wild, passionate dithyrambs, with rapid change of rhythm, cf. Lag.<sup>B.V. 201 f.</sup> But this Ps. does not really have these characteristics. It is indeed confused by many glosses from different periods, but the original Ps. was less passionate and rambling than many other Pss. The word is doubtless a txt. err., which may have stood for an original Ⓢ, as in Hb. 3; but in this case it could not have belonged to this Ps., which was not in ⓓⓗ, and must have come in by mistake from the previous Ps. 6.

(d) The original Mizmorim were probably, therefore, 54(5). Of these ⓓⓗ used 34. The original order of these Pss. in that collection was doubtless different in many instances from their order in the present Psalter.

§ 32. The group of Pss. 42-83, characterised by the use of the divine name Elohim instead of Yahweh, was originally in a major Psalter, edited probably in Babylonia in the middle Greek period, and made up chiefly of selections from the previous minor Psalters.

This group of 42 Pss. in the midst of the Psalter differs from the preceding group, Pss. 1-41, and from the following, 84-150, by the use of the divine name Elohim, which is seldom used in the other Pss., and by an avoidance of Yahweh, which is used ordinarily by them. This use was evidently designed, and in the case of the selections from ⓓ and ⓗ, was not original, but editorial. These Pss. therefore constituted a selection of Pss. made by an editor from the earlier collections. Inasmuch as ⓐ is given complete so far as known, Pss. 50, 73-83, ⓐ was probably the basis of the collection. Selections from ⓗ, 42-48, 49 (?), and from ⓓ, 51-65, 68-70, 72, were prefixed to ⓐ, and three orphan Pss., 66, 67, 71, were added. The changed order of these last and of 50 is due to later editors. This collection was probably made in Babylonia, as that of ⓐ before it, and for similar reasons.

It is convenient to give in this connection the use of the divine names in  $\psi$ .

I. יהוה is used c. 6823 t. in OT. יהוה Qr. = אֱדֹנָי =  $\delta$  kúrios in  $\mathfrak{S}$ , for an original יהוה = Yahweh (v. BDB.). It is the proper name of the God of Israel, first revealed to Moses according to  $\mathfrak{E}$  as "the One ever with His people" Ex. 3<sup>12-15</sup>. It is not used by P until Ex. 6<sup>3</sup>. But J uses it from the beginning of his narrative, and possibly explains it as meaning "the everlasting God," Gn. 21<sup>83</sup>. It is used cautiously by E (c. 163 t.), but constantly by J (c. 449 t.) and by P after Ex. 6<sup>3</sup> (c. 781 t.). D uses it apart from his phrases c. 211 t. In the prophetic histories it is used sparingly by E, but constantly by J, D, R. The Chr. uses it in his sources, but avoids it in his own composition. It is used throughout the prophetic literature, but in various proportions, and in some writers chiefly in combination with other divine names. The book of Jb. uses it only in the Prologue and Epilogue (27 t.), the seams (4 t.), and in a proverbial expression 12<sup>9</sup>; but in Pr. it is the characteristic divine name. In Dn. it is used only in ch. 9 (7 t.) (source), and in Ec. not at all. It is constantly used in  $\psi$ , except in the group 42-83 (E), where it is used 44 t. (chiefly glosses).

(5) The God of Israel, pl. intensive, originally with article, the All Strong, retaining this mng. when the article was omitted in usage, but subsequently losing its mng. and standing as a common name for the Divine Being, like theos, deus, God (v. BDB.). It is used with article in ψ only in phrs.: אלהי ישראל title of 90, עיר האלהים 87<sup>3</sup>, where the article really defines the previous n. It is used in the cstr. in phr. אלהי אברהם 47<sup>10</sup>, phr. of J, אלהי ישראל 41<sup>14</sup> 72<sup>18</sup> 106<sup>48</sup> (benedictions) 59<sup>6</sup> 68<sup>9</sup> 69<sup>7</sup>, phr. of E, Je., Chr.; אלהי יעקב a poetic phr. 20<sup>2</sup> 46<sup>8.12</sup> 75<sup>10</sup> 76<sup>7</sup> 81<sup>2.5</sup> 84<sup>9</sup> 94<sup>7</sup>; אלהי ישע with various sfs. 18<sup>47</sup> 24<sup>5</sup> 25<sup>5</sup> 27<sup>9</sup> 65<sup>6</sup> 79<sup>9</sup> 85<sup>5</sup>; אלהי השועתי 51<sup>16</sup>; אלהי יושועי 88<sup>2</sup>; אלהי צדקי 4<sup>2</sup>; אלהי חסדי 59<sup>11.18</sup>; אלהי מעויו 43<sup>2</sup> (?); אלהי צבאות 89<sup>9</sup>; אלהי ההלתי 109<sup>1</sup>; אלהים 136<sup>2</sup>. אלהים is used with sfs. frequently in ψ, because of the emphasis upon personal relations with God in lyric poetry. אלהי 3<sup>8</sup> 5<sup>3</sup> 187<sup>22.30</sup> 25<sup>2</sup> 31<sup>15</sup> 35<sup>23</sup> 40<sup>9.18</sup> 42<sup>7.12</sup> 43<sup>5</sup> 59<sup>2</sup> 69<sup>4</sup> 71<sup>4.12.22</sup> 83<sup>14</sup> 84<sup>4.11</sup> 86<sup>2</sup> 91<sup>2</sup> 94<sup>22</sup> 104<sup>33</sup> 118<sup>28</sup> 119<sup>15</sup> 143<sup>10</sup> 145<sup>1</sup> 146<sup>2</sup>; אלהיך 42<sup>4.11</sup> 68<sup>29</sup>; אלהיך 146<sup>10</sup> 147<sup>12</sup>; אלהיך 37<sup>31</sup> 144<sup>15</sup>; אלהיך 183<sup>2</sup> 20<sup>6</sup> 40<sup>4</sup> 44<sup>21</sup> 48<sup>29</sup> 50<sup>3</sup> 66<sup>8</sup> 92<sup>14</sup> 95<sup>7</sup> 98<sup>3</sup> 115<sup>3</sup> 116<sup>5</sup> 135<sup>2</sup> 147<sup>1.7</sup>; אלהיך 79<sup>10</sup> 115<sup>2</sup>. For other uses of אלהים with יהוה and ארני, v. I. IV. אלהים is used alone for God in Dt. c. 180 t., elsw. ψ c. 22 t.; v. VII. אלהים is a poetic sg. of אלהים, used Dt. 32<sup>15.17</sup>, and on this basis as an archaism in late poetry Pss. 18<sup>32</sup> (for אל 2 S. 22<sup>22</sup>) 50<sup>22</sup> (gl.) 114<sup>7</sup> (err.) 139<sup>19</sup> (gl.). It is characteristic of Jb. (41 t.).

IV. † ארני divine name, originating in Judah; syn. of Baal, used in North Israel (v. BDB.); always ὁ κύριος in G. AV., Lord, to be distinguished from LORD for יהוה; also ὁ κύριος in G. The pointing ארני was to distinguish the divine name from ארני as applied to men. It is intensive pl. sovereign lord. In the oldest usage it was: my sovereign Lord, so 2<sup>4</sup> 16<sup>2</sup> 37<sup>13</sup> 59<sup>12</sup> 86<sup>3.4.5.12.16</sup> 140<sup>8</sup>; later a proper name Adonay 55<sup>10</sup> 57<sup>10</sup> (= יהוה 108<sup>4</sup>) 71<sup>5.16</sup> 89<sup>50.51</sup> 130<sup>2.3.6</sup>. Its use in ψ elsw. is questionable. It is not certain whether ארני 51<sup>17</sup> was original in either sense or a substitute for יהוה. יהוה is certainly a substitute for an original ארני יהוה 40<sup>18</sup> 54<sup>6</sup> 68<sup>23</sup> 90<sup>1</sup>. Seventeen codd. Kenn. rd. יהוה 110<sup>5</sup>. ארני either precedes or follows יהוה in conflation of text for earlier Qr. 68<sup>21</sup> 69<sup>7</sup> 73<sup>28</sup> 109<sup>21</sup> 141<sup>8</sup>. It is a real gl., not in G 38<sup>10</sup>; and though in G a gl. in 22<sup>31</sup> 35<sup>17.22.23</sup> 38<sup>16</sup> 39<sup>8</sup> 44<sup>24</sup> 68<sup>12.18.33</sup> 77<sup>3</sup> (אלהים) 77<sup>8</sup> 86<sup>8</sup>. It is part of a larger gl. in 38<sup>23</sup> 62<sup>13</sup> 66<sup>18</sup> 68<sup>20.27</sup> 73<sup>20</sup> 78<sup>65</sup> 79<sup>12</sup> 86<sup>9</sup> 90<sup>17</sup>. The tendency to use it as Qr. for יהוה in later times, and also its general use for other divine names is illustrated by these editorial changes.

VI. † עליון n. m. Highest (1) name of God, Nu. 24<sup>16</sup> Dt. 32<sup>8</sup> Ps. 18<sup>14</sup> (= 2 S. 22<sup>14</sup>), used as an archaism 9<sup>3</sup> 21<sup>8</sup> 50<sup>14</sup> 73<sup>11</sup> 77<sup>11</sup> 78<sup>17</sup> 83<sup>19</sup> 91<sup>1.9</sup> 92<sup>2</sup> 107<sup>11</sup> Is. 14<sup>14</sup> La. 3<sup>35.38</sup>; with other divine names עליון Gn. 14<sup>18.19.20.22</sup> Pss. 78<sup>35</sup> 87<sup>5</sup> (?) אלהי יהוה עליון 7<sup>18</sup> (?) 46<sup>5</sup> (?) 47<sup>3</sup> 97<sup>9</sup>; אלהים עליון 57<sup>3</sup> 78<sup>56</sup>; (2) of rulers, either monarchs or angel princes: עליון 82<sup>9</sup>.

VII. The group of Elohistic Pss. is composed of selections: —

(a) From  $\mathfrak{K}$  42-48, 49 (?). These use אלהים 36 t.; some doubtless glosses, a few possibly original in  $\mathfrak{K}$ , but the great majority editorial substitutions for an original יהוה. יהוה צבאות was retained in the Rf. 46<sup>8. 12</sup>, but in 48<sup>9</sup> it is a gl. יהוה in 42<sup>9</sup> 46<sup>9</sup> 47<sup>3. 6</sup> 48<sup>2</sup> is either a gl. or a substitution of later editors for the אלהים of  $\mathfrak{K}$ . In the Pss. of  $\mathfrak{K}$  not in  $\mathfrak{E}$ , אלהים is used: 84<sup>8. 10</sup> (all glosses or txt. err.), but יהוה v. 8. 12. 12 יהוה צבאות v. 2. 4. 18. צי אלהים v. 9 is txt. err. for יהוה צבאות. יהוה צבאות is used 87<sup>3</sup>, but יהוה v. 2. 6. אלהים is not used in 85 (but יהוה v. 2. 8. 9. 13, האל v. 9), or in 88 (?), but יהוה v. 2. 10. 14. 15. There can be no doubt, therefore, that יהוה was the divine name of  $\mathfrak{K}$ , and that אלהים was substituted for it by the editor of  $\mathfrak{E}$ .

(d) The orphan Pss. 66, 67, 71, use אלהים 18 t., יהוה only 71<sup>1</sup>; a later substitution for יהוה אלהים used v. 11. 12. 17. 18. 19. 19. ארני and יהוה in v. 5. 18 belong to different ll. ארני is used 66<sup>18</sup>. These Pss. in  $\mathfrak{E}$  doubtless followed 72. It is improbable that an editor who kept the Pss. of  $\mathfrak{K}$  and  $\mathfrak{A}$  together would not have done the same with the Pss. of  $\mathfrak{D}$ . These were the only Pss. not in  $\mathfrak{D}$ ,  $\mathfrak{K}$ ,  $\mathfrak{A}$ . Pss. 66 and 67 were in  $\mathfrak{M}$  of the early Greek period; Ps. 71 in its original form, v. 4-9. 14-19, from the Greek period. The Psalter of  $\mathfrak{E}$  could not therefore have been earlier, or indeed much later.

§ 33. Fifty-five (57) Psalms have in their titles a reference to the director or choir master, which indicates that they were taken from a major Psalter which bore this title. They were collected in the middle Greek period in Palestine, as a prayer book for the synagogues, selected from the previous minor Psalters.

The Pss. with למנצח are scattered through the Psalter. The term means, "Belonging to the Director." These Pss. were taken from a Psalter bearing the Director's name. Thirty-five of the fifty-four Mizmorim were probably taken as a basis. To these were added sixteen Pss. from D, four (5) from IK, and one from A. As no Ps. later than the previous minor Psalters was used, it is probable that the collection was made in the middle Greek period, not long after SH. As the divine name Yahweh was retained, this Psalter was doubtless collected in Palestine. The term Director also suggests the period of the Chronicler, who alone elsewhere uses the term. The great majority of these Pss. are prayers. The collection was, therefore, like D, designed as a prayer-book for use in the synagogues. Hb. 3 also attaches למנצח as part of the title of the song therein contained. This was originally a part of the Psalter of the Director (DK) and was subsequently removed to Hb. The Psalter of DK must therefore have been earlier than the final editing of Hb. and the close of the Canon of the Prophets. This also points to the middle Greek period, prior to Simon II. 219-198 B.C.

למנצח is Pi. ptc. with prep. ל from נצח vb. denom. of נצח, v. 9<sup>6</sup>. The vb. is not used in Qal, but only in Pi., with the exception of a single Niph. ptc. נצח, Je. 8<sup>5</sup>, enduring (of apostasy), and in Pi. only in Chr. and titles of Pss., in the mngs. act as overseer, superintendent, director: (1) in building or repairing the temple, c. על 2 Ch. 2<sup>1</sup> Ezr. 3<sup>8-9</sup>, c. ל 2 Ch. 34<sup>13</sup>, c. ל inf. 2 Ch. 2<sup>17</sup>, abs. 2 Ch. 34<sup>12</sup>; (2) in the ministry of the temple, c. על 1 Ch. 23<sup>4</sup>; (3) in the organised liturgical service, 1 Ch. 15<sup>21</sup>, six of them overseeing the basses, על השמינית, leading them with כנרות, and eight over the sopranos, על עלמות, leading them with harps (v. § 34). Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were over them all, leading with cymbals. This doubtless represents the temple service of the middle Greek period, and it is altogether probable that למנצח in the titles of the Pss. has the same meaning, especially as these and other musical terms are associated with it in the titles. We may therefore take it as meaning director, or choir master. The preposition ל has the same meaning here as in other uses in the titles, and indicates that these Pss. were taken from a Psalter collected under the name of the Director or choir master. The modern view that ל indicates assignment to the care of the choir master is improbable, because, as Ols. says, this was a matter of course, and would not be specified in titles. And this would not explain its use in some Pss. rather than in others. SH interprets למנצח as late form for לנצח = els τὸ τέλος. This is explained by Eusebius and Theodoret in an eschatological sense: unto the end (of the world). T renders לשבח to sing in liturgy, taking it as Aram. inf. with the mng. use constantly, perpetually, thinking of perpetual use in the liturgy. The explanation of De., "for the accomplishment, fulfilment, rendering fully," is improbable. It seems most probable that SH and T agree in thinking of these Pss. as selected for perpetual use unto the end, in the liturgy. Another tradition is given in Aq. τῷ νικητοῦ, Σ ἐπινικλος, Θ εἰς τὸ νικος, Ξ victore. These follow a conceit of the school of Rabbi Akiba (due probably to the Messianic hopes of that period) that they were the triumphal songs of Israel. But this does not suit the character of these Pss., which are prayers rather than hymns. The  $\mathfrak{C}$  preserves the older tradition of  $\mathfrak{B}$ , which is essentially correct so far as the use of the collection is concerned, though it misses the exact sense of the term which is given by the Chronicler.

Fifty-five Pss. have לְמַנְצֵחַ in the titles. To these we may add 10 and 43, which belong to the previous Pss., 9 and 42. Of these thirty-five were Mizmorim: 4-6, 8-10, 12-13, 19-22, 31, 39-41 of  $\mathfrak{D}$ ; 47, 49 (?) of  $\mathfrak{K}$ ; 51, 62, 64, 65 of  $\mathfrak{D}$ ; 66-67 orphans; 68 of  $\mathfrak{D}$  (?) (v. § 27); 75-77, 80 of  $\mathfrak{A}$ ; 84-85, 88 (?) (v. § 28) of  $\mathfrak{K}$ ; 109, 139-140 of  $\mathfrak{D}$ . To these were added sixteen Pss. from  $\mathfrak{D}$  (four Maskilim, 52-55, five Miktamim, 56-60; one Shir, 18, and six others, 11, 14, 36, 61, 69-70); moreover five (six) Pss. were added from  $\mathfrak{K}$ ; (four (five) Maskilim, 42-45, 88, and the Shir, 46); one also from  $\mathfrak{A}$ , 81. All of these Pss. were used in previous Psalters, though they were adapted by this editor for use in his time. These Pss. are chiefly prayers, the great majority of them, thirty-three, being of this kind, as compared with eleven hymns and thirteen religious poems. This Psalter was therefore essentially a prayer book, on the basis of the earlier  $\mathfrak{D}$  and  $\mathfrak{A}$ , for use in the synagogues of the Greek period. This is confirmed by the fact that לְמַנְצֵחַ, in the sense of director or choir master, is characteristic of the service of the temple as described by Chr. I Ch. 15, and belongs to his period. It is used elsewhere only in Hb. 3<sup>19</sup>, as part of the title of that ode which, doubtless also originally was in  $\mathfrak{BK}$ , but was separated from it and inserted in Hb. The collection of the Twelve Minor Prophets was closed and fixed in the Canon in the time of Ben Sira (BS. 49<sup>10</sup>) because he mentions the Twelve by that technical name. Daniel 9<sup>2</sup> seems to imply that the Canon of the Prophets was closed. The Psalter of the Director must therefore have been made in the middle Greek period.

§ 34. The Director attached to his prayer book instructions to the choir with reference to the tones, the voices, and the musical instruments to be used in the rendering of certain psalms in public worship.

Twenty-nine of the Pss. of  $\mathfrak{BK}$  have musical directions attached. Several tones are mentioned to which special Pss. were to be sung, indicated usually by the initial words of some familiar song. There are several special references to the kind of voice that was most appropriate. There are also several kinds of musical instruments mentioned as suitable for accompanying the singing. These are, in all cases, special directions. Where such do not appear, it is a reasonable inference that the choirs were left free in their choice in these respects. This collection of DB was doubtless made for the use of some great synagogue in Jerusalem, where it was possible to fulfil these directions. There is no reference to those instruments of music that were especially characteristic of the feasts and of the more ornate worship in the temple.

Inasmuch as all the musical directions are attached to Pss. of DB, it is reasonable to suppose that they were first attached to this Psalter. They are of three kinds: (1) designation of tone or melody, (2) of voice, (3) of musical instrument.

(1) The tones are usually referred to by the use of initial words of some well-known song, in accordance with an ancient usage which continues until the present time. The preposition לְ precedes these words, with the mng. in accordance with, after (the tone of). In some cases לִּ is used instead of it, in accordance with a not infrequent misuse of this prep. for לְ (v. BDB.).

(a) לֹא הִשָּׁחֵת is used in the titles of Pss. 57-59, Miktam of D, and 75 of A. The לֹא is pointed as negative in MT., and so the two words seem to mean Destroy not; but the omission of לְ is striking and improbable. It should be לִּ for לְ as usual, and the original piece probably began with Destroy, referring to enemies of the nation. RV. does not translate, but transliterates. These Pss. have a variety of measures. It is hardly possible that the reference could have been to a melody. It was doubtless to a tone for cantilation, as the tones of the early synagogue and early Church, which are capable of use in pieces of different measure and different strophical length.

(b) עַל יְנוּנָה אֲלֵם רַחֵם is in the title of the Miktam, Ps. 56. The first line of the piece referred to was probably, The silent dove of them that are afar off, as in RV.<sup>m</sup>. RV. transliterates, but does not translate. Ἐπὲρ τοῦ λαοῦ τοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἁγίων μακρυσμένου = for the people removed far from the sanctuary, is doubtless a paraphrase.

(c) עַל שִׁשְׁן עֲדוּת is in the title of Ps. 60, a trimeter Miktam of D. עַל שִׁשְׁן עֲדוּת is in the title of Ps. 45, Maskil of A, and of 69 of D; לֹא שִׁשְׁן עֲדוּת is in the title of 80 of A. These all undoubtedly refer to the same piece, a Ps. in praise of the Law, whose first line was, my testimony is a beautiful anemone. The view that it referred to an instrument of music shaped like a lily has nothing in its favour, not even the mng. "lily," which cannot be proved in the usage of this word. The pl. is the pl. of intensity, "beautiful anemone." It is not translated in the text of RV., but RV.<sup>m</sup> has it essentially as I have given it. Ἐπὲρ τῶν ἀλλοιωθησομένων or τοῖς ἀλλοιωθησομένοις = for those who shall be changed, is a misinterpretation.

(d) עַל מִחֶלֶת in the title of 53, a Maskil of D, and לְעֻנָּה מִחֶלֶת in the title of 88, Maskil of Heman, both in DB, are doubtless the same. Ἐπὲρ Μαελεθ τοῦ ἀποκριθῆναι takes the first word as a proper name and the second as inf. cstr. עֲנֵי answer, respond. אָ, Θ, Ἰ, "for the dance," is inappropriate to the sadness of these Pss. MT.  $\text{נִחַלֶּה}$  n. cstr. before inf. is improbable.  $\text{G}$  rd.  $\text{נִחַלֶּה}$ , Aq.  $\epsilon\pi\iota \chi\omicron\rho\epsilon\lambda\epsilon$ , so essentially  $\Theta$ ,  $\Sigma$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , from  $\text{חלל}$ . It is most probable that we should rd.  $\text{נִחַלֶּה}$  n.f. wounding, trouble, from  $\text{חלל}$ ; and  $\text{לַעֲנֹה}$  inf. cstr.  $\text{עֲנֵה}$  suffer affliction. Two words only of the original are preserved, For wounding, suffering affliction. It is transliterated in RV.

(e) Ps. 22 has in the title  $\text{עַל אֵילַת הַשָּׁחַר}$  hind of the dawn. The third word is missing. We might supply the vb. leaps, thinking of the fresh vigour of the hind in the early morning; but that does not suit the character of the Ps. It is more appropriate to think of the hind hunted to death in the early morning.  $\text{T}$  and Midrash regard it as referring to the lamb of the morning sacrifice. But it is improbable that the hind would represent the lamb. The hind was not used for sacrifice in the OT. This Ps. was in  $\text{B}$ ,  $\text{M}$ ,  $\text{BK}$ .

(f)  $\text{G}$  adds to Ps. 70 the title  $\epsilon\iota\varsigma \tau\omicron \delta \Sigma\omega\sigma\alpha\iota \mu\epsilon \text{K}\acute{\upsilon}\rho\iota\omicron\nu$ , save me, O Lord, showing that another tone was added at so late a date. For it is improbable that it was original and was omitted from the text in  $\text{H}$ .

(g)  $\text{עַל הַגִּתִּית}$  is in the title of Ps. 8 of  $\text{B}$ ,  $\text{M}$ , 81 of  $\text{A}$ , and 84 of  $\text{K}$ ,  $\text{M}$ .  $\text{G}$  and  $\Sigma$   $\text{ὑπὲρ τῶν ληνῶν}$ ; so  $\text{V}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , pro torcularibus, for the wine presses, reading  $\text{גִּתִּית}$ , refers therefore to a harvest song at the vintage or treading of grapes. This suits the triumphant, joyous character of these Pss., and is probably correct. They were to be sung to the tone of some well-known vintage song. Aq.,  $\Theta$ , have in Ps.  $\text{ὑπὲρ τῆς γεθλιτιδος}$ , but the Syr.-Hex. of Aq. in 81 and 84  $\epsilon\pi\iota \tau\omicron\upsilon \lambda\eta\nu\omicron\upsilon$  or  $\epsilon\pi\iota \tau\omicron\upsilon \lambda\eta\nu\omega\nu$ . This is more probable than a Gittite musical instrument.  $\text{T}$  "the harp which David brought from Gath," or a tone of Gath, the march of the Gittite guard (2 S. 15<sup>18</sup>), explanation of  $\text{גִּתִּית}$  MT., both equally improbable.

(h)  $\text{עַל יְדֻתָּן}$  in 62 of  $\text{B}$ ,  $\text{M}$ ,  $\text{עַל יְדֻתָּן}$  in 77 of  $\text{A}$ ,  $\text{M}$ ,  $\text{עַל יְדֻתָּן}$  in 39 of  $\text{B}$ ,  $\text{M}$ , all doubtless refer to the same thing.  $\text{ל}$  in 39 is doubtless err. for  $\text{עַל}$ , and the variation of  $\text{י}$  and  $\text{י}$  in the penult is a variation of MT., not of the original of  $\text{H}$ . It is probable that Jeduthun, the choir master, is referred to, v. 1 Ch. 16<sup>41</sup> 25<sup>3</sup> 2 Ch. 5<sup>12</sup>, or his choir, 1 Ch. 25<sup>1-3</sup> 2 Ch. 29<sup>14</sup> Ne. 11<sup>17</sup>; but it is improbable that this name is in apposition with  $\text{לְמִנְצָה}$  as De., in which case  $\text{עַל}$  would be err. for  $\text{ל}$ ; rather it refers to a tone of this choir. The reference to a lily-shaped musical instrument of some Rabbis, though followed by Ges., is without justification.

(2) There are two voices referred to, the falsetto and the bass.

(a)  $\text{עַל עֲלִמֹת}$  is in the title of Ps. 46, tetrameter of  $\text{K}$ .  $\text{G}$  interprets it as  $\text{ὑπὲρ τῶν κρυφίων}$  =  $\text{V}$  pro arcanis, deriving from  $\text{עֲלִמָּה}$  n.f. in the sense of secret, hidden. This was interpreted as in a gentle, quiet style.  $\Sigma$   $\text{ὑπὲρ τῶν αἰωνίων}$  derives as pl. of  $\text{עֲלִיָּה}$ , ever, in the late sense of ages. Aq.  $\epsilon\pi\iota \nu\epsilon\alpha\nu\iota\omicron\tau\eta\tau\omega\nu$  and  $\mathfrak{I}$  pro juventutibus follow MT. and derive from  $\text{עֲלִמָּה}$  n.f. abst., youth. These last are nearer the correct view, for the explanation is found in 1 Ch. 15<sup>20</sup>, where it refers to the maidenlike style. Some think of maidens, as Ps. 68<sup>26</sup>, where they play upon timbrels in the march of Yahweh; but maidens took no part in the service of song. Bō. thinks of the tenor voice; but more probably it was the falsetto male voice. At the end of Ps. 48<sup>15</sup>  $\text{עֲלִמֹת}$  seems out of place. It probably belongs to 49, from the title of which it has been detached by error, the  $\aleph$  being omitted as supposed dittog., or for the opposite reason. It is also probable that  $\aleph$  מִתְּלַבֵּן in the title of Ps. 9 belongs here. It is usually interpreted on the basis of MT. as a reference to a tone in accordance with (1); this tone being designated by two words of the first line, "Death to the son," or, "Death for the son"; but this is in itself improbable and has no support in Vrss., which all rd.  $\aleph$  מִתְּלַבֵּן.  $\Theta$  ὑπὲρ τῶν κρυφίων τοῦ υἱοῦ, Aq. νεανίστητος τοῦ υἱοῦ,  $\Theta$  ὑπὲρ ἀκμῆς τοῦ υἱοῦ. These are doubtless correct as to the form. But then we must follow them in interpreting it in the same way as in 46, and refer it to the falsetto voice.  $\aleph$  is then the fuller designation, showing that it was the maidenlike voice of a son, thinking of a boy or a youth.

(b)  $\aleph$  השמיניה is in the titles of Pss. 6, 12, both prayers of  $\mathfrak{M}$  and  $\mathfrak{D}$ .  $\Theta$  interprets it as ὑπὲρ τῆς ὀγδόης, on the octave, so  $\mathfrak{H}$  pro octava. This is doubtless correct, as it is in accord with 1 Ch. 15<sup>21</sup>, which refers to the lower octave or the bass voice. The opinion of some that it refers to an instrument of eight strings is a mere conceit, without support in the OT.

(3) There are references to two kinds of musical instruments — stringed instruments and wind instruments.

(a) נגִינָה is in the titles of Pss. 4, 6, 54, 55, 67, 76, with  $\aleph$  of accompaniment, and in 61 (sg.) with  $\aleph$ . Of these, 54, 55, were Maskilim; 4, 6, 67, 76, in  $\mathfrak{M}$ ; 4, 6, 54, 55, in  $\mathfrak{D}$ ; 76 in  $\mathfrak{A}$ ; 4, 6, 54, 55, 61, are prayers; 67, a hymn; 76, a poem. They are of different measures.  $\Theta$  has ἐν ὕμνοις in 6, 54, 55, 61, 67, 76, and ἐν ψαλμοῖς in 4. The form is pl. f. of נגִינָה n.f. stringed instrument. נגן vb. denom. Pi. to play on stringed instruments, נגנים players on stringed instruments, Ps. 68<sup>26</sup>. Hb. 3<sup>1-19</sup> have in  $\Theta$  the same word, doubtless in both cases נגִינָה, correct for  $\mathfrak{H}$  שגִּינָה. These seven Pss. and Hb. 3 were to be accompanied by stringed instruments, such as the lyre and harp.

(b)  $\aleph$  הנחילֹת is in the title of Ps. 5, a morning prayer of  $\mathfrak{M}$  and  $\mathfrak{D}$ . It is interpreted by  $\Theta$  and  $\Theta$  as ὑπὲρ τῆς κληρονομώσεως,  $\mathfrak{H}$  pro ea quae hereditatem consequitur, Aq.,  $\Sigma$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , pro hereditatibus, all deriving the form as pl. n.f. from נחל inherit. The  $\aleph$  is doubtless variation for  $\aleph$  as often. No reasonable explanation of this term has yet been given. It is probable that it is a n. formed by נ from נחל, a variation of חליל the reed pipe, as Hu., or abstr., as De., Moll., for flute playing, cf. 1 S. 10<sup>6</sup> 1 K. 1<sup>40</sup> Is. 30<sup>29</sup>. It is probable that instruments of the class of the pipe or simple flute are referred to.

(c) It is noteworthy that these references are not only few, but in general terms, and that no particular musical instrument is referred to. The music especially characteristic of festivals in the temple worship does not appear. The music was probably that of a simple orchestra of two or four pieces of the lighter string and wind instruments, and not the louder music used in the temple courts. And it is also probable that musical instruments were seldom used in the synagogues, or we would have had more assignments of this kind.

(d) There is little reference to musical instruments in the earlier minor Psalters. There is no reference in  $\mathfrak{D}$ , for 57<sup>9</sup> = 108<sup>3</sup> = 144<sup>9</sup> were not originally in ד (v. § 27). In א the only reference is in 81<sup>3-4</sup> to a new moon celebration, doubtless in the temple courts, with the use of the נבל and כנור the harp and lyre, the two chief kinds of stringed instruments usually associated; the שופר the horn, and the תוף timbrel. In א 43<sup>4</sup> the כנור is used in temple worship; so in the orphan 33<sup>2</sup> 92<sup>4</sup> both כנור and נבל. This probably represents the ordinary worship of the Greek period. On great occasions, such as feasts or celebrations of victories, more instruments of music were used; so in the royal advent Ps. 47<sup>6</sup> (א) the שופר, and in 98<sup>5-6</sup> the כנור, the שופר, and the הצנצרה the straight trumpet. In the Maccabean Hallel the greater number and variety of instruments appear; due to the reorganisation of the temple worship with greater pomp than ever before. 147<sup>7</sup> mentions only the כנור, 149<sup>8</sup> the כנור and תוף, but 150<sup>3-5</sup> the כנור and נבל, the שופר and תוף, and also the instruments not mentioned earlier: עוגב the small organ, מנים stringed instruments, and צלצלים cymbals. The Pss. also mention the use of musical instruments by minstrels apart from public worship; so the כנור in 49<sup>6</sup> of א (?) and in the orphan 137<sup>2</sup>; and both the כנור and נבל in the orphan 71<sup>22</sup> 57<sup>9</sup> (= 108<sup>8</sup> = 144<sup>9</sup> all glosses).

§ 35. A collection of Hallel, or songs of praise, was made for the temple service in the Greek period. It was subsequently enlarged in the Maccabean period. These Psalms have in their titles the term Hallelujah.

The term הללית = Praise ye Yah is found at the close of Pss. 104, 105, 115, 116, 117, and the beginning of Pss. 111, 112, and at both beginning and end of Pss. 106, 113, 135, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150. א gives it also at the beginning of 105, 107, 114, 116, 117, 118, 119, 136. In the case of 105, 107, 114, 116, 117, 136, it seems to have been detached by error from the beginning of these Pss. and attached to the close of the previous Pss. in א. All of these Pss. are Hallel except 118 and 119, which are only so given in א, the former being a triumphal Maccabean song, the latter the great alphabetical praise of the Law. Both of these were regarded as Hallel in later usage. These Hallel are in the present Psalter in four groups: 104-107, 111-117, 135-136, 146-150. This separation was due to the final editor of the Psalter. 104-107 constitute a tetralogy, 104 being a Ps. of creation, 105 telling the early history of Israel, 106 of the Exodus, 107 of the Restoration. The second group begins with 111-112, a pair complementary in subject and alphabetic in structure; 113 begins the special Hallel of the great feasts, according to later liturgical assignment. At the Passover the order was 113-114 before supper, 115-118 after supper. In the third group 136 is the ordinary Great Hallel, with its Rf. repeated twenty-six times in the present Ps., though the earliest text was much simpler. In later times Pss. 119-136 were likewise called the Great Hallel in distinction from the ordinary Hallel 113-118. The last group of Hallel consisted of the doxologies 146-150. All of these Hallel except 147,

149, belong to the Greek period and were doubtless in their original form in the collection of that period, composed for public use by the choirs especially on the great feasts. The collection consisted of sixteen Pss. A Maccabean editor added 147, 149. The final editor of  $\psi$  distributed these Hallels in the present four groups. In later liturgical use 118 and 119 were regarded as Hallels and still later 120–134. The technical terms of the Hallels are הלליות, ברכו, and הוירו. For הלל and ההלל  $\psi$ . § 1; for  $\psi$ . § 32 (I.); for ברכו  $\psi$ . Pss. 5<sup>13</sup> 1847. הוירו Hiph. inv. 2 pl. † [וירי]. Qal is not in  $\psi$ , but only Hiph. † (1) confess, a late usage Ps. 32<sup>5</sup>, cf. Pr. 28<sup>18</sup> 1 K. 8<sup>38</sup>. 35 = 2 Ch. 6<sup>24</sup>. 26. § 36. A collection of songs for the use of pilgrims on their way to the three great feasts was made in the middle Greek period. These Psalms have in their titles, "Songs of Pilgrimage."

Pss. 120–134 have in their titles שִׁיר הַמַּעֲלִיָּה. This is rendered in  $\Theta$   $\psi\acute{\omega}\mu\acute{\alpha}\tau\omega\upsilon$  ἀναβαθμῶν, ode of ascents,  $\Upsilon$  and  $\Im$  canticum graduum, gradual psalms, Aq.,  $\Sigma$  eis τὰς ἀναβάσεις,  $\Theta$   $\xi\sigma\mu\alpha$  τῶν ἀναβάσεων. These variations have given rise to three different theories: (1) The phrase refers to the fifteen steps in the temple leading up from the court of the women to the court of the men of Israel upon which these Pss. were chanted; so Lyra, Luther, Horsley, Gr. The Talmud indeed mentions these Pss. in that connection (Middoth, II. 5, Sukka, 51 b), but simply to compare them with those steps on which the music resounded on the first day of the feast of Tabernacles; it does not explain the Pss. as used thereon (v. De., p. 780). Furthermore, the contents of these Pss. were not suited to that purpose. They are not temple Pss. (2) The term has metrical significance indicating the stairlike parallelism, advancing by steps or degrees; so Ges., Köster, De., Moll., De W. This is a modern theory based on the fact that this method of parallelism is frequently used in these Pss. But it is not used in them all, and not in a thoroughgoing manner in any; and certainly not to such an extent as to give titles to the group. There are other Pss. which use this method of parallelism in a more thoroughgoing manner, v. § 12. (3) The term refers to the ascents of pilgrimage (a)  $\Im$  and the ancient Fathers thought of the ascent from the Babylonian exile. Ew., in 1839, called them "the songs of the homeward marches." (b) Agellius, Herder, Eichhorn, Ew. in 1866, and most modern scholars, think of the ascents to the feasts of the Law. Street thought that they were simply processionals. Is. 30<sup>29</sup> Ps. 42<sup>6</sup> shew that it was the custom to make pilgrimages to the temple with song and music, and even sacred dances and shoutings. We would expect, therefore, that a collection of songs suitable for this purpose would be made. These songs have a common social and patriotic character. They are all hexameters composed of one or more hexastichs. They could all have been sung to the same tone. They were all composed in the Greek period, except 129, which is Maccabean. It is probable that this last Ps. was added to the collection, which originally consisted of fourteen Pss. made in the middle Greek period.

§ 37. A considerable number of Psalms, especially those of the Greek period, did not find their way into any of the minor or major Psalters, but were used at last by the editor of the present Psalter.

(a) Ps. 1, composed in the middle Greek period, is didactic in character. It was probably used for the first time by the editor of the Psalter as its introduction.

(b) Ps. 33 was probably from the Maccabean period. It was given its present position by the final editor of the Psalter.

(c) The pseudonyms, Pss. 88, 89, 90, 102 (v. § 30), were given their present position by the final editor.

(d) Ps. 91 was probably from the early Greek period. It was given its present position because it was conceived as a counterpart to 90.

(e) Ps. 92 was probably from the later Greek period. It was originally a song composed for liturgical use. Its contents justify its present position.

(f) Pss. 94, 95, were probably from the Greek period. They were given their present position for liturgical reasons.

(g) Pss. 93, 96-100, were originally one great advent hymn from the early Greek period. It was broken up into little Pss. for liturgical purposes (v. § 13).

(h) Pss. 86, 103, 145, from the late Greek period, were given their present position because of resemblances to Pss. of III, and, for that reason, III subsequently crept into the titles.

(i) Ps. 137 from the early exile was not taken up into any of the earlier Psalters because of its inappropriateness for worship. It was used by the final editor of the Psalter as an ancient piece which he thought should be preserved. It was inserted after 136 as an appropriate place, on account of the historical references in both Pss.

§ 38. The editor of the present Psalter used the two major Psalters as the nucleus of his work. The Babylonian Elohistic Psalter, 42-83, was placed in the middle, and appropriate Pss. 84-89 were added thereto. The first part was based on the Palestinian Director's Psalter, in which were inserted chiefly Psalms from the Davidic Psalter. The third part was arranged about the temple Hallel's and the Pilgrim Psalter, to which were added the remaining Psalms of the Director's Psalter and other appropriate Psalms, chiefly of late date. This work was accomplished in the Maccabean period, after the reorganisation of the worship.

There can be little doubt that the editor of the present Psalter used DK, the prayer-book of the Greek period in Palestine, as the basis of his work. He was compelled to do so if he would produce a collection which would take its place in public use. He also used E, because that was the Psalter in familiar use in Babylonia and among the Jews of the Dispersion all through the East. It was necessary to combine that collection with the other if he would secure his book a public use in the Orient. He must indeed enlarge both collections by the introduction of Pss. old and new, in order to justify his task. The editor was probably called to his work by public authority and by an understanding between the Jews of the East and the West. It was also in the plan to combine the Pss. used in synagogue worship with those used in the worship of the temple. And so the Hallel's and the Pilgrim Psalter were made the nucleus of a much larger collection, suited for this purpose. The editor also added a number of older Pss. of a national character, even though they had not previously been used in public worship. It was just because he thus satisfied all interests in a most comprehensive way, that his book supplanted all others and at once attained universal recognition.

A careful examination of the arrangement of the present Psalter on the basis of what has already been determined as to the several minor and major Psalters and the Pss. not included in them, enables us to trace, to a great extent, the methods of the editor of  $\psi$ .

The first part of  $\psi$  is 1-41 based on DK. (a) Ps. 1 was made the general introduction to  $\psi$ , followed by 2, the original introduction to D, followed by 3, the first prayer of D, PL. Then came 4-6 of DK. The enigmatic 7 of D was then inserted. (b) Pss. 8-14 of DK are followed by 15 of D, PL, describing the true citizen of Zion (in antithesis with the wicked fool of 14), and 16, a Miktam of D, and 17, a prayer of D. (c) Ps. 18, the ode of David, introduces the next group of DK, 19-22. To these were added the following: the shepherd Ps. 23 of D, PL, the choral 24 of D, PL, and the group of prayers 25-28 from D only, and of hymns 29-30 from D, PL. (d) To 31, the prayer of DK, was appended 32, the penitential Maskil of D; and 33, an anon. hymn; 34, an alphabetical hymn of D; and 35, a prayer of D. Then follows 36 of DK; 37, a poem of D; and 38, a penitential Ps. of D, M, concluding with 39-41 of DK. Thus the editor of  $\psi$  used 20 Pss. from DK, to which he added in appropriate places, 19 of D (including Ps. 2), and 2, anon. Pss. not used in any previous Psalter.

The second part of  $\psi$  was 42-89 based on E. (a) 42-48 & 49 (E?) concluding with 50 of A, which was transferred to this place for the purpose of giving an appropriate liturgical close to this group before the penitential 51. (b) The group of D, 51-65, after which 66-67 of M, DK, followed by 68-70 of D, followed by 71, peculiar to E, and 72, the original conclusion of D. (c) The group of A 73-83. Pss. 42-83 were taken from E, which was thus inserted bodily in the middle of  $\psi$ , without additions, except in glosses. (d)  $\psi$  now appended 84-85 from E used by M, DK, then 86, a prayer, later ascribed to D, but really anon. (see §§ 27, 37), 87 from E, M, and the pseudonyms 88, 89, the latter being the conclusion of this second part.

The third part of  $\psi$  was 90-150, based on the Hallel and the Pilgrim Psalter. (a) Ps. 90, the pseudonym, was prefixed, 91, 92, 94, 95, anon. were added, then the great advent Ps. 93, 96-100, was broken up for liturgical reasons, 101 of D and M, and 102, a pseudon. prayer, follow; then 103 an anonym., a late hymn kindred to the first group of Hallel, 104-107, which it precedes. (b) To the second group of Hallel, 111-117, was prefixed 108 of M, 109 of D, M, DK, and 110 of D, M. To these, the Maccabean Hodu 118 was added. (c) The group of Pilgrim Psalms, 120-134, was placed in the midst of the third part, preceded by 119, the alphabetical praise of the Law. (d) To the Hallel 135-136 were added 137, the anon. exilic Ps. of vengeance, and 138 of D, 139, 140 of D, M, DK, 141 of D, M, 142 Maskil of D, 143 of D, M, 144, 145, anon. alphabetical Pss. (the latter ascribed to D, v. §§ 27, 37). (e) The concluding Hallel, 146-150.

§ 39. Liturgical assignments appear in several titles, referring to days of week, kinds of sacrifice, and festivals. These are so few that they must have been prefixed, not by the final editor, but by late scribes.

(a) Assignment to days of the week in the temple service. ליום השבת = for the Sabbath Day, in the title of 92, indicates its assignment for use on the Sabbath. E gives several other titles of this kind: in 24, for the first day of the week; in 38, the Sabbath; 48, for the second day of the week; 94, for the fourth day of the week; 93, for the day before the Sabbath. Doubtless in late liturgical use each day of the week had its appropriate Ps., but only the earliest assignment, that to the Sabbath, appears in E. In BS. 50<sup>14</sup> 89 there is an account of these temple services.

(b) Assignments to sacrifices in the temple. לחודה for the thank-offering is attached to 100. The Ps. was to be used in connection with that kind of a sacrifice. The word might mean for praise, but it would be meaningless in the midst of a multitude of Pss. which, of their very nature, are hymns of praise. יְהִי־פִיר in the titles of 38, 70, is a Hiph. denom. (Lv. 2<sup>2</sup> + 6<sup>8</sup> Nu. 5<sup>26</sup>) from זָכַר, the technical term for the offering of the Mincha. It doubtless means to make the Azkarah. These Pss. were designated for use at that sacrifice. Doubtless other Pss. were used on sacrificial occasions, but references to their use did not make their way into the titles of the Pss.

(c) Assignments to festivals. שִׁיר חֲנֻכַּת הַבַּיִת in the title of 30 indicates its assignment to a festival of the dedication of the temple, probably that of Judas the Maccabee, B.C. 164, when the temple was rededicated after its desecration by Antiochus, 1 Macc. 4<sup>59</sup> Jn. 10<sup>22</sup>. Ⲅ gives in the title of Ps. 29 ἑξοδίου σκη-νῆς, Ψ in consummatione tabernaculi, referring to its use on the last day of Tabernacles.

§ 40. There are doxologies at the close of the five books into which Ψ divides the Psalter. But these were designed to be used at the conclusion of every psalm in liturgical service.

Although these doxologies are counted in the verses of the Pss. in MT., so are the titles, and the former are no more parts of the original than the latter. These doxologies are benedictions, or ascriptions of blessedness to the God of Israel. A series of such benedictions has been preserved as the earliest part of the Jewish Liturgy apart from the Psalter. Such are also of frequent occurrence in the citations from the early Rabbis in the Misnayoth and Beraithoth. Though given usually only at the close of the books, the doxologies were really used at the conclusion of every Ps. or part of Ps. sung in the liturgy.

These are the benedictions in ψ:—

Ps. 41 <sup>14</sup>	כְּרוֹךְ   יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל   מִהַעוֹלָם וְעַד הָעוֹלָם   אֱמֵן וְאֱמֵן
72 <sup>18-19</sup>	כְּרוֹךְ   יְהוָה (אֱלֹהִים) אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל   עֲשֵׂה נִפְלְאוֹת לְבוֹ
	וּבְרוֹךְ   שֵׁם כְּבוֹדוֹ לְעוֹלָם   וַיִּמְלֹא כְבוֹדוֹ (אֶת) כָּל-הָאָרֶץ   אֱמֵן וְאֱמֵן
89 <sup>58</sup>	כְּרוֹךְ   יְהוָה   לְעוֹלָם   אֱמֵן וְאֱמֵן
106 <sup>48</sup>	כְּרוֹךְ   יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל   מִן-הָעוֹלָם וְעַד הָעוֹלָם
	(וְאָמַר כָּל-הָעָם) אֱמֵן

We also find the last of these in 1 Ch. 16<sup>30</sup>, where it was used as one of the doxologies of the temple service. It was not cited from this Ps. Rather the reverse is the case: that the doxology was added to ψ from the Chronicler; for it could not have been used by the editor of ψ in the time of Judas the Maccabee, the early part of the second century B.C., because it divides the group of Hallelis 104-107, which were designed as a tetralogy to be used together. These four doxologies began with ברוך Qal ptc. pass., Blessed, which was probably uttered by a solo voice, followed by a metrical pause. They close with the double Amen; verily, sung by the choir or by the people according to the rubric 106<sup>48</sup>, "Let all the people say Amen." The intervening material is a trimeter couplet, as 41<sup>14</sup> = 106<sup>48</sup>. These differ only in the scribal variation הָן קֵן הָ, the former destroying the measure preserved by the latter. 89<sup>53</sup> is evidently an abridgment of the same couplet. 72<sup>18-19</sup> gives a double benediction, and therefore a couplet in each v. יהוה is a Qr. for אלהים at the close of Ps. of E. אֵל is a prosaic insertion at the expense of the measure without affecting the sense. There are virtually, therefore, only two doxologies:—

(1) *Blessed be | Yahweh the God of Israel | From everlasting even unto everlasting.
Amen and Amen.*

(2) *Blessed be | Yahweh the God of Israel, | Doer of wonders alone.
Blessed be | His glorious name for ever | And may the whole earth be filled with His glory.
Amen and Amen.*

The first of these is the ancient benediction, and it was probably used in  $\psi$  at the close of the first and second divisions. The third division needed no such benediction because it ended with a series of Hallel doxologies. The more elaborate benediction of 72<sup>18-19</sup> and that of 106<sup>48</sup> were appended subsequently when  $\psi$  was divided into five books.

§ 41. Selah indicates the abbreviation of a psalm in liturgical use, and marks the place where the closing benediction might be sung. The word itself means: Lift up (the voice in praise). This interpretation explains the tradition of  $\mathfrak{S}$  that it called for an "interlude," and the Palestinian tradition, which represents it by the last word of the doxology, "forever." The term was first attached to psalms in the Psalter of the Mizmorim. It was used in the Director's Psalter, and in the Collection of the Elohist, and it continued in use at least until the time of the Psalter of Solomon and the earliest portions of the Jewish Liturgy.

Selah is used in  $\mathfrak{H}$  71 t. in thirty-nine Pss. It is also found 3 t. in Hb. 3. As it is used frequently in  $\mathfrak{BK}$ , it was probably attached to Hb. 3 before the removal of that Ps. from  $\mathfrak{BK}$  to its present position. It is used in all the major Psalters, and in 32, 89, in addition. The latest uses of Selah in the Psalter of  $\mathfrak{H}$  are in 66<sup>b</sup> 67 from the early Greek period; and in 24<sup>a</sup> 89<sup>c</sup>, parts of composite Pss. which belong to the later Greek period.

But Selahs continued to be added in  $\mathfrak{S}$  after the completion of that translation. They also appear twice in the Psalter of Solomon, and twice in the Jewish Benedictions. This late use makes it impossible to think that the term was misunderstood either in the Alexandrian or the Palestinian tradition. The former translates the word by διάψαλμα, interlude, the latter by forever. Both renderings depend on the same usage, regarded from different points of view. The former indicates an interlude at which the benediction should be sung, and the Ps. concluded for that particular service. The latter gives the last word of the benediction as an abbreviation for the benediction itself. The word סֶלָה calls for the lifting up of the voice in praise. This interpretation satisfies all the conditions of the problem, and is in accord with the actual position occupied by Selah in the Psalms.

and their Selahs may be later still. The use of  $\text{v}$  in 68<sup>8</sup>.<sup>33</sup> is probably due to error,  $\text{v}$ .<sup>33</sup> to txt. err. ( $\text{v}$ . Ps.), and  $\text{v}$ .<sup>8</sup> to err. of transposition, as  $\text{v}$  stands here in the midst of a citation from Dt. 5<sup>4-5</sup>. It may have stood originally at end of citation, or else of Str., or it may be due to dittog. So many uses of the term in this Ps. have been preserved in the different Versions, that it is difficult to form any opinion as to its genuineness in  $\mathfrak{H}$ .  $\text{v}$  was used in all three of the major Psalters. (1) There are 28 (26) of the Selah Pss. in  $\mathfrak{H}$ : 3-4, 7 ( $\mathfrak{G}$ ), 9, 20-21, 24, 39, 47-50, 62, 66-68, 75-77, 80 ( $\mathfrak{G}$ ), 82-85, 87-88, 140, 143. The term is used in these Pss.: (a) at close of Str.: 3-4, 9, 24, 39, 47-48, 50, 66-67, 76-77, 80, 82-84, 87, 140 (19 Pss.); and prob. also in 62<sup>5</sup> 66<sup>7</sup> 68<sup>20</sup> 75<sup>4</sup> before the insertion of gl. (b) Regardless of measure: 20<sup>4</sup> 21<sup>3</sup> 49<sup>14</sup> 67<sup>2</sup> 84<sup>9</sup> 85<sup>3</sup> 87<sup>6</sup> 88<sup>8</sup>.<sup>11</sup> 143<sup>6</sup> (9 Pss.). As this usage could hardly have come from the same hand, it must be regarded as later than  $\mathfrak{H}$ . (c) At close of gloss: in 49<sup>16</sup> 62<sup>9</sup> 66<sup>4</sup>. These gls. are all from time of  $\mathfrak{E}$  or later, so that these Selahs could not have been in  $\mathfrak{H}$ . The characteristic use of  $\text{v}$  in the Mizmorim is therefore at the close of Str., and the editor of  $\mathfrak{H}$ , when he would shorten a Ps., did so by leaving off one or more Strs. (2) There are 29 of the Selah Pss. in  $\mathfrak{BK}$ . All of these are found in  $\mathfrak{H}$  save: 44, 46, 52, 54, 55, 57, 59, 60, 61, 81 (10 Pss.). In this collection  $\text{v}$  stands: (a) at close of Str.: in 4, 9, 39, 46-47, 52, 59-60, 62, 66-68, 75-77, 80 ( $\mathfrak{G}$ ), 84, 140 (18 Pss.). Four of these Pss. were not in  $\mathfrak{H}$ : 46, 52, 59, 60.  $\mathfrak{BK}$  seems therefore to have continued the use of  $\text{v}$  begun in  $\mathfrak{H}$ . To these may be added Pss. 54<sup>5</sup> 61<sup>5</sup>, as  $\text{v}$  prob. antedates gl., and stood originally at end of Str. The use in 55<sup>8</sup> 57<sup>4a</sup> is doubtful, as has been seen, and may be rather that of (c) or (b) regardless of measure: 20, 21, 49, 52, 67, 84, 85, 88 (8 Pss.). All of these are in  $\mathfrak{H}$  save 52; but as it seems unreasonable to ascribe a regard for measure and a disregard of it to the same editor, it is necessary to consider this usage as later than  $\mathfrak{H}$ , and hence as due to  $\mathfrak{BK}$ . It is true that two of the examples given in Pss. of  $\mathfrak{H}$  are lacking in  $\mathfrak{BK}$ , 87<sup>6</sup> 143<sup>6</sup>; but 87 has another Selah at close of Str., so that the use of the term in  $\text{v}$ .<sup>6</sup> must in any case be due to a later hand. As to 143<sup>6</sup>, there is no special propriety in the use of  $\text{v}$  here, and if genuine, it may well be late. A similar use is to be found in 32, one of two Selah Pss. outside the major Psalters. (c) At the close of gl.: 44<sup>9</sup> 49<sup>16</sup> 55<sup>20</sup> 57<sup>7</sup> 62<sup>9</sup> 66<sup>4</sup> 81<sup>8</sup>. All of these Selahs are in Pss. of  $\mathfrak{BK}$ ; but, as has been shown, they can hardly be separated from their gls. and must therefore belong to the time of  $\mathfrak{E}$  or later. The Selahs added by  $\mathfrak{BK}$  seem to have been placed with less regard for the strophical organisation of the Ps. than was shown by  $\mathfrak{H}$ , the musical or liturgical interest being paramount. It is worthy of note that  $\mathfrak{BK}$  has added musical notes to the titles of many of the Selah Pss., including all those wanting in  $\mathfrak{H}$ , excepting 52, 61, and 44 (whose  $\text{v}$  is too late for  $\mathfrak{BK}$ ). (3) Twenty-four of the Selah Pss. appear in  $\mathfrak{E}$ : 44, 46-50, 52, 54-55, 57, 59-62, 66-68, 75-77, 80-83. All of these Pss. are also in  $\mathfrak{BK}$  save 48, 50, 82, 83, which are Pss. of  $\mathfrak{H}$  and use  $\text{v}$  only at close of Str. There seems to be no independent use of  $\text{v}$  in  $\mathfrak{E}$  apart from gls. All the examples of  $\text{v}$  at end of gl. are in Pss. of  $\mathfrak{E}$ : 44<sup>9</sup> 49<sup>16</sup> 55<sup>20</sup> 57<sup>7</sup> 62<sup>9</sup> 66<sup>4</sup> 81<sup>8</sup>.

These could hardly have been earlier than E, and may all have been later. The Selahs in 49<sup>16</sup> 55<sup>20</sup> 57<sup>7</sup> 62<sup>9</sup> 81<sup>8</sup> are possibly due to E. Those in 44<sup>9</sup> 66<sup>4</sup> seem to be from a later hand. It is possible that E is responsible for some of the gls. inserted between Selah and the last l. of the Str. in Pss. of DB. If E added any Selahs to his Psalter, he did so only at the close of gls. Thus of the three distinct uses of ס, one is characteristic of each of the major Psalters. There remain for consideration 2 Pss. excluded from the major Psalters: 32, 89. Both are Maskilim; 32 was in D, and 89 was a pseudonym. In 32<sup>4</sup> ס stands at close of Str.; so also in v.<sup>7</sup>, the gl. being a later insertion. In v.<sup>5</sup> Selah appears in the midst of a Str., though at an appropriate place in liturgical use. This Selah is doubtless later than the others. The usage of the Ps. corresponds with that of AB, DB. It is classed among the Mizmorim in G<sup>A</sup>. 89 is a composite Ps. 89<sup>b</sup> is from the time of the Exile, 89<sup>c</sup> from the late Greek period. This Ps. and 24<sup>a</sup> are the only Selah Pss. later than the major Psalters. All of the Selahs in 89 stand at the close of Strs. The ס in 89<sup>c</sup> and that at the close of 24<sup>a</sup> imply a continuation of the use of the term through the Greek period. Additional late uses are furnished by the Versions. G always translates ס by διάψαλμα, interlude (9<sup>17</sup> διαψάλλματος). It omits the term from 3<sup>9</sup> 24<sup>10</sup> 46<sup>12</sup> at close of Ps., and would doubtless have done so in 9<sup>21</sup>, if it had not combined 9-10 in one. G also omits ס from 88<sup>11</sup>, but some cod. H and P give it in 88<sup>18</sup>. G gives ס in 57<sup>8</sup> instead of 54<sup>4</sup>, and in 61<sup>5a</sup> instead of 61<sup>5b</sup>. It also inserts the term in 2<sup>2</sup> 34<sup>11</sup> 50<sup>15</sup> 68<sup>4</sup>.<sup>14</sup> 80<sup>8</sup> 94<sup>15</sup>. Of these, Pss. 2, 34, 94 certainly represent a late Alexandrian usage. Other uses are to be found in codd. of H and P, and in Psalterium Vetus. The Psalter of Solomon uses διάψαλμα in 17<sup>31</sup> 18<sup>10</sup>. Many codd. begin a new Ps. at the latter passage. The use in 17<sup>31</sup> corresponds with those in the Psalter. It is evident that this editor must have understood the mng. and use of Selah; so also the later scribes of G. There are additional uses of the term in the Jewish Liturgy. The Selahs in the third and eighteenth benedictions of Shemoneh Esreh or Eighteen Benedictions stand in the earliest portions of the Liturgy, and are, in all likelihood, genuine and ancient.

ס is inv. ל ל to lift up (the voice in praise), cf. Ps. 68<sup>8</sup> and it indicates that a benediction might be sung after the pericope thus designated. The explanations of Ew. "loud," a strengthening of the voice or instruments, De. forte, as opposed to piano, Bö. "a playing with full power," do not suit all the passages where it is used, and imply a use of instrumental music which is not justified by the titles of the Pss., or by their contents. The explanation of Ges., after Rosenmüller, deriving it from רָחַץ = rest, be quiet, and thinking of a pause, is conjectural, and does not explain the problem. Fürst, followed by Ley, derives from ס = separate, and thinks it indicates section. None of these theories explain the Jewish traditions. Σ, Θ, usually follow G in the rendering διάψαλμα. Υ does not translate, but omits. ℥ usually abbreviates. G διάψαλμα indicates an interlude, but does not imply its purpose. Aq. del followed by Quinta, Sexta, ℥ occasionally, and always by ¶ semper, iugiter, also ¶ and Jewish tradition cannot be explained by any of the older theories. A hint is, however, given by Jerome in his letter to Marcella (Ep. 28), where he compares the use of the word with that of Amen or Shalom to mark the end of a passage and confirm its contents. So Jacob of Edessa, as cited by Bar Heb. in his Com. on Ps. 10<sup>1</sup> in a passage quoted but not understood by Bā. (Lagarde's Prætermisssorum, p. 109). The ael = עֵל was an abbreviation of the second line of the couplet of the Benediction וְעַל עֵל, used for the benediction itself, which was to be sung at this place. This interpretation for Selah agrees with and harmonises the ancient traditions, the Alexandrian and the Palestinian; it is in accordance with the most natural explanation of the Hebrew word, and it accounts for every instance of its use as standing at the close of a pericope or liturgical selection.

§ 42. The Psalter in the middle of the second century, shortly before its translation into Greek, was divided into five books, after the division of the Pentateuch, and was numbered as 150 psalms, with variation of numbering to suit the variations needed for the three years' course of Sabbath readings.

The division of the Psalter into five books was doubtless made to accord with the five-fold division of the Law, and was in some way connected with the five great feasts of Judaism. Subsequently the Five Rolls were arranged in the same way and assigned for reading at these feasts. The second division of the Psalter was divided into two at 72, and a doxology was inserted. The third division of the Psalter was also divided at 106 and a doxology added.

The Pss. of ¶ are 150 in number. But, as we have seen, the numbering in ¶ differs from that in ¶. This has caused endless confusion in citations, as Jewish and Protestant Vrss. and usage follow ¶; Roman Catholics, Greeks, and Orientals ¶. But neither ¶ nor ¶ number according to the originals. The arrangement of the numbering of both was for liturgical purposes. The differences appear: (1) at Ps. 10 (¶), which in ¶ goes with 9, but in ¶ is separated. This makes ¶ number one less than ¶ until we come to (2) 114 (¶), which is combined with 115 to make 113 of ¶. But this difference is at once adjusted in (3) 116 of ¶, which combines 114, 115 of ¶. The difference of one now continues till (4) 147 of ¶, which combines 146, 147 of ¶. The concluding Pss., 148–150, have the same number. We then have in four cases variations which make it possible to number the Pss. from 148 to 152. These variations were probably indicated in Mss. which lie at the basis of ¶ and ¶. They remind us of the 153 lections of the Thorah, the oldest division of sections, made for a three years' course of Sabbath readings. It is probable that the numbering of the Pss. and the variations recognised was for the same purpose. Each reading of the Thorah had its accompanying Ps. It should be noted that Q adds Ps. 151, which evidently is a late composition, probably to give an additional variation for Sabbath readings. It was originally written in Hebrew, and describes the anointing of David and his combat with Goliath. It was probably of Maccabean origin.

· § 43. The Psalter represents many centuries of growth in the historical origin both of its Psalms, extending from the time of David to the Maccabean period, and of the various minor and major Psalters through which they passed, from the early Persian to the late Greek period, before the present Psalter was finally edited and arranged, in the middle of the second century B.C.

We may assign seven Pss. in their original form to the early Hebrew monarchy, before Jehoshaphat : 7, 13, 18, 23, 24<sup>b</sup> 60<sup>a</sup> 110 ; seven to the middle monarchy : 3, 20, 21, 27<sup>a</sup> 45, 58, 61 ; and thirteen to the late monarchy : 2, 19<sup>a</sup> 28, 36<sup>a</sup> 46, 52, 54, 55, 56, 60<sup>b</sup> 62, 72, 87 ; thus twenty-seven to the period of the Hebrew monarchy. During the Exile thirteen were composed : 42-43, 63, 74, 77<sup>a</sup> 79, 81<sup>b</sup> 82, 84, 88, 89<sup>b</sup> 90, 137, 142. In the early Persian period there was a great outburst of psalmody. As many as thirty-three Pss. were composed : 4, 6, 9-10, 11, 12, 14 (= 53), 16, 17, 22, 25, 31, 32, 34, 35, 37, 38, 39, 41, 57<sup>a</sup> 59, 64, 69<sup>a</sup> 70 (= 40<sup>b</sup>) 75, 76, 78, 80, 83, 101, 109<sup>a</sup> 140, 143, 144<sup>a</sup>. This was due to several influences. The conquest of Babylon by Cyrus, which aroused the enthusiasm of the exilic Isaiah, called forth lyric songs. The rebuilding of the altar and temple, with the restoration of the worship in Jerusalem, as it was accompanied by prophetic voices, so also by those of lyric poets. The struggles of the pious with the unfaithful in the community, and with the neighbouring little nations, whose jealousy and hatred constantly interfered with the growth and prosperity of the people in Jerusalem, also naturally expressed itself in song. Toward the close of this period the collection of Miktamim, or golden poems, was made after the example of the older collection of the book of Yashar. To the middle Persian period, the times of Nehemiah, we may assign sixteen Pss. : 5, 8, 15, 26, 29, 30, 40<sup>a</sup> 47, 51, 57<sup>b</sup> 65, 66<sup>a</sup> 69<sup>b</sup> 138, 139<sup>a</sup> 141 ; to the late Persian period, in which internal and external trouble was renewed, eleven Pss. : 27<sup>b</sup> 36<sup>b</sup> 44, 48, 49, 50, 68, 81<sup>a</sup> 85, 89<sup>a</sup> 102<sup>a</sup>. In this last period the collection of Maskilim, or religious meditations, was made; also D was edited as a prayer-book for use in the synagogues, and soon after B, more ornate in character. The conquest of Alexander introduced the Greek period, which in its early part was advantageous to the Jews. At the beginning of this period the great royal advent Ps. was composed, 93, 96-100, and soon after eight other Pss.: 66<sup>b</sup> 67, 73, 86, 91, 95, 108, 145. The Psalter of A was prepared in Babylonia; and later in Palestine the Psalter of the Mizmorim, the first of the major Psalters, as a hymn-book for use in the synagogues. Toward the close of this period DB was made, using all the earlier Psalters, as a prayer-book for the synagogues, and directions were given for musical rendering. The later Greek period was troublous in Palestine, owing to the constant strife between the kings of Egypt and Syria, and to internal dissensions resulting therefrom. But in the East the Jews were less troubled. There in the early part of this period E was prepared for synagogue use. To this period we may ascribe eleven Pss.: 1, 19<sup>b</sup> 24<sup>a</sup> 71, 77<sup>b</sup> 89<sup>c</sup> 92, 94, 103, 139<sup>b</sup> 144<sup>b</sup>, and the elaborate praise of the Law, 119. In addition fourteen Pilgrim Pss., 120-128, 130-134, were composed, and the Pilgrim Psalter collected in this period. Also sixteen of the Hallel, 104-107, 111-117, 135-136, 146, 148, 150, were composed and edited in a collection. The Maccabean period began with the persecution of Antiochus and the rise of the Maccabees at the head of the patriotic party. They gradually triumphed, and organised the Maccabean dynasty and kingdom. To this period we may ascribe Pss. 33, 102<sup>b</sup> 109<sup>b</sup> 118, 139<sup>c</sup>; also 129 of the Pilgrim Psalter, and 147, 149 of the Hallel. After the rededication of the temple the present Psalter was prepared, combining Pss. appropriate for use in the synagogue and in the temple, and using all the previous Psalters, especially D, DB, E, the Hallel, and the Pilgrim Ps. The collection was divided into three books. Toward the close of the second century the final editor divided it into five books and 150 Pss., in accordance with the same divisions of the Law, allowing for variations in usage.

C. CANONICITY OF THE PSALTER.

§ 44. The Psalter was the first of the Writings to win canonical recognition, and it has maintained this recognition in the unanimous consent of Jew and Christian until the present day. The testimony of representative Jews and Christians in all ages is that the Psalter is a holy Book, divinely authoritative, the norm and guide of worship and religious experience.

The Pss. were collected for the purpose of public worship in the synagogues and in the temple, some being appropriate for the latter, but the most of them evidently more suitable for the former. There were several minor Psalters, and then later several major Psalters, long before the present Psalter was edited. These collections were all made for use in public worship, and it is altogether probable that each one, as it was adopted, gained recognition as canonical. This gave the Pss. their first place in the Canon of the Writings, though they did not receive their final form until a long time after others of the Writings had been composed and had also been received into the Canon. The division of the Psalter into five Books is doubtless based on the same division of the Pentateuch, and it is probable that the numbering of the Pss. had a similar motive to the arrangement of the Pentateuch for a three years' course of Sabbath readings. These liturgical motives are strong indirect evidences of canonical recognition.

The Psalter was used in the synagogues in the time of Jesus and his apostles alongside of the Law and the Prophets, and is quoted by him and his apostles as prophetic and authoritative (Lk. 20<sup>12</sup> 24<sup>44</sup> Acts 1<sup>20</sup>), and used by them in worship (Mt. 26<sup>30</sup> Acts 16<sup>25</sup> James 5<sup>13</sup> 1 Cor. 14<sup>26</sup> Eph. 5<sup>19</sup> Col. 3<sup>16</sup>). The Jews have always used the Pss. in the worship of the synagogue and still continue its use (Schiller Sziessy, in Prayer Book Interleaved, p. 255). The Christian Church in all its branches has used the Pss. as the basis of its ritual and the common expression of divine worship. It is a tradition of the Church of Antioch that Ignatius introduced antiphonal singing of the Pss. (Socrates, Hist. Eccl. 6<sup>8</sup>). At all events it is certain that the use of the Pss. in the synagogues passed over into the Christian churches in all parts of the world (Tert. Apol. c. 39; Jerome, Ep. Marcella, xlv.), and has continued in unbroken succession to the present time. In the celebration of the Eucharist, the most sacred institution of the Christian religion, the use of appropriate Pss. has continued as an essential part of the liturgy from the most primitive times, doubtless based on their use at the Jewish feasts, especially the Passover. Chrysostom thus describes the use of the Pss. in his day: "If we keep vigil in the church, David comes first, last, and midst. If early in the morning, we seek for the melody of hymns, first, last, and midst is David again. If we are occupied with the funeral solemnities of the departed, if virgins sit at home and spin, David is first, last, and midst. . . . In monasteries, amongst those holy choirs of angelic armies, David is first, midst, and last. In the convents of virgins, where are bands of them that imitate Mary; in the deserts, where are men crucified to this world and having their conversations with God, first, midst, and last is he" (Neale and Littledale, Com. on the Psalms, p. 1). In the Ambrosian rite, still used in Milan, the Psalter is recited at the hours of prayer, once a fortnight; in the Roman or Gregorian rite once a week: Pss. 1-109 at Matins, 110-150 at Vespers; and fixed Pss. are assigned for use at Lauds, Prime, Tierce, Sext, Nones, and Compline. So also the Benedictine rite prescribes a weekly recitation of the Pss., and this usage has been followed by monastic, mendicant, and other religious orders in the Roman Church. In the Greek Church the Psalter is recited once a week, except in Lent, when it is recited twice. Similar uses are in the Coptic, Syrian, Armenian, Abyssinian, and other Churches. Proper Pss., or parts of Pss., are also assigned for the Mass in all rites; some fixed, others varying with the kind of Mass or the feasts and fasts of the ecclesiastical year. The Church of England, when it condensed the hours of prayer into two, matins and vespers, arranged the Pss. for recitation once a month, besides assigning proper Pss. for use daily, or for the varying sacred days of the ecclesiastical year at Holy Communion. The Lutheran and Reformed Churches also make the Psalter an essential part of their Liturgies. In the Reformed Churches in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and, in some of them even in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, the Psalter was the only hymn-book apart from a few paraphrases of Holy Scripture. The multiplication of Christian hymns in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries brought about a gradual disuse of the Psalter in Great Britain and America in several religious denominations, but toward the close of the century a reaction began in the form of responsive readings of the Psalter, for which purpose many arrangements have been prepared.

§ 45. The canonicity of the Psalter is attested by its contents. Its religious, doctrinal, and ethical materials give evidence to its holy character as coming from God and leading to God.

The Psalter contains, in the usual numbering, 150 Psalms, of great variety of form and content; but all within the limits of a hymn-book and prayer-book, composed for religious worship, public in the synagogue and temple, and private in the household and in the closet. It is therefore by its very nature essentially religious, and indeed in the lyric form. (A) Its religion is at once simple and comprehensive, equally appropriate to all classes and conditions of mankind in all nations and in all ages. It expresses the child-like yearnings of the simple-minded, and the loftiest aspirations of the mature man of God. It plays upon all the chords of the human soul, and evokes from each and all that which is most appropriate to union and communion of the individual or the community with God.

Many of the Pss. in their original form were composed as an expression of private devotion. These features remained even after they were adapted by editorial revision for use in the synagogues. Many others were composed for use in public worship in the synagogues, to express the worship of the congregation. In the synagogue the ceremonies of religion were reduced to a minimum, and therefore such ceremonies do not appear in these two classes of Pss., notwithstanding the fact that the most of them were composed long after the fully developed ritual of the Priest's code had become fixed in usage in the temple service. Only a few of the Pss. were composed for or even adapted to worship in the temple, and these, especially the Hallel's, were songs of praise suited to the ritual of the thank-offerings, votive offerings, or whole burnt offerings. These offerings are mentioned in appropriate places in the Psalter. The sin-offerings and the trespass-offerings do not appear, even in the Penitential Pss., doubtless because these offerings were not accompanied with sacred song. Furthermore, local and temporal references were gradually eliminated by editorial revision from the older Pss., making them more and more appropriate for worship. Therefore the Psalter became a hymn-book and prayer-book, having so little of the ceremonial side of religion that it was lifted above all that was local, temporal, and occasional, and made appropriate for the worship of all places, all times, and all occasions and persons.

(B) The doctrines of the Psalter do not appear in a dogmatic form, demanding acceptance by the intellect and will; but in a concrete form, expressing the faith already entertained or established. From this point of view, while on the one side the doctrines are not so complete in detail and not so clearly defined in their relations as in the Prophets, yet on the other side they rise to the loftiest heights in their conception of God, sink to the lowest depths in searching the soul of man, expand to the greatest breadths in their comprehension of the union of God and man and the world in the divine ideals of redemption. For these reasons the Psalter is the nearest to the NT. of all the writings of the OT.

Few of the Pss. are didactic, and these are ethical rather than dogmatic. The Pss. are chiefly lyrics, expressing religious emotions, experiences, aspirations. They are contemplative or intuitive, using the religious imagination and fancy rather than the logical faculty and the reasoning powers. They are also with few exceptions quite limited in extent, and doctrines appear in them in bold, graphic, realistic statement, in detached form, and out of connection with any system of belief. The Psalter represents in its various Pss. many different periods of Hebrew Literature. The temporal characteristics have to a great extent been obscured by editorial revisions; but at the same time these are in fact, though not on the surface, really embedded in the Pss., so that it is quite possible to distinguish the several stages in the development of doctrine in correspondence with those that appear in the Prophets.

The doctrine of God is especially rich in the attributes. The kindness, goodness, and love of God stand out more distinctly in the Psalter than in any other part of the OT. The vindictory, saving righteousness of Yahweh and His discriminating justice are no less prominent. The doctrine of creation appears in simple, beautiful, poetic conceptions, which might have modified the rigid dogma of the theologians, based on the early chapters of Genesis, if the theologians had been sufficiently comprehensive in their study of the Bible to take account of it. It is the divine providence in history as well as the experience of the individual upon which religious poets delight to dwell.

The doctrine of man is especially prominent in the Psalter from the very fact that the Pss. give expression to human experience, whether of the individual, or of the nation. This is well expressed by Calvin. "This Book not unreasonably am I wont to style an anatomy of all parts of the soul, for no one will discover in himself a single feeling whereof the image is not reflected in this mirror. Nay all griefs, sorrows, doubts, fears, hopes, cares, and anxieties, in short all those tumultuous agitations wherewith the minds of men are wont to be tossed, the Holy Ghost hath here represented to the life. The rest of Scripture contains the commands which God gave to His servants to be delivered unto us. But here the prophets themselves holding converse with God, inasmuch as they lay bare all their inmost feelings, invite or impel every one of us to self-examination, that of all the infirmities to which we are liable and all the sins of which we are so full none may remain hidden."

The doctrine of redemption is richly unfolded, especially on its experimental side, in the personal deliverance of the individual from sin and evil. The Penitential Pss. have always been and still are found to be the most suitable expression of Christian penitence and the joy of divine forgiveness. The elegies express the depths of woe that surge up about the reflective soul in all ages as he contemplates the brevity of life, the limitations of man, and the certainty and speedy approach of death. The Pss. of expostulation express, though often in a daring way, venturing close upon the brink of irreverence and despair, the writhings of the soul under the sense of injustice and wrongs that the faithful servants of God have so often to suffer in this life.

The Pilgrim Pss. are the most suitable expression of social religion that have ever been composed. The Guest Pss. sound a note of religious joy in the communion with God that has been attained by no other poets so thoroughly well.

In the Psalter the Messianic ideal is in some respects richer than in the Prophets. The royal Messiah, the son of David, appears in most vivid, dramatic situations in Pss. 2 and 110, which find their only realisation in the resurrection, enthronement, and reign of Jesus Christ. The suffering servant of Pss. 22, 40, 69, transcends that of Is. 53 in his vivid, lifelike picture of the suffering Saviour. The royal Pss. have ever been used in the Church as the most suitable expression of her longing for the second advent of her Lord. The future life of man in a state of redemption after death is more clearly depicted in Pss. 16, 49, 73, than anywhere else in the OT. It is not surprising therefore that Jesus and his apostles used the Psalter so much as reflecting and depicting the Messianic redemption.

(C) The ethics of the Psalter are relatively not so high as in the Wisdom Literature, which is essentially ethical. And yet from the point of view of ethical experience they are rich enough to give very important complementary material to the Law, the Prophets, and even Hebrew Wisdom. The ethics of the Law are summed up in the terse and comprehensive experience depicted in Pss. 1, 19, while Ps. 119 presents the Law as a mirror in which the pious man sees himself and others in such a wondrous variety of ethical experience that he is overwhelmed with a sense of a divine presence and influence. The ethics of the Prophets are summed up in that chaste and beautiful guest of Yahweh of Ps. 15.

All along the line of religion, doctrines, and morals the contents of the Pss. have always been found to be just what they are to-day; such unique, exalted, comprehensive, and satisfactory expressions in lyric form of what mankind needs for union and communion with God, that men in all ages and countries have been convinced that the Psalter is a divinely inspired Book, a rule of faith and life.

§ 46. The only objections to the canonicity of the Psalter seriously entertained are based on a number of imprecations upon enemies and protestations of righteousness on the part of suffering servants of God. These objections are invalid because they fail to apprehend that these imprecations and protestations belong necessarily to earlier stages of religion and to certain historic situations where they have their essential propriety.

These objections to the canonicity of the Psalter are quite modern. They have arisen in the Protestant world in connection with the stress laid upon the doctrine of justification by faith only, which makes any form of self-righteousness impossible; and by the growth of individualism, with its liberty of conscience and opinion, which is necessarily opposed to any kind of persecution or violence, even toward the enemies of religion.

The protestations of righteousness are in the Pss. which appeal to God for help from sufferings of body or of mind in connection with the experience of injustice and wrong. These protestations do not imply sinless perfection, or absolute conformity to the divine ideal of conduct, for they not infrequently are connected with the confession of sin; they are rather protestations of fidelity to God and His religion, which is essentially righteousness (cf. Gn. 15<sup>6</sup> Hb. 2<sup>4</sup>). Such fidelity demands divine interposition on its behalf, vindication from enemies and deliverance from sufferings and trouble. Though these protestations sometimes rise from plaintive expostulation with God to complaint of injustice and wrong, which seem in their intensity of passion to the modern mind to come close to irreverence, they do not really go so far, for it is in these very Pss. that are found the most sublime conceptions of the righteousness and justice of God, and it is to their God that they appeal in sublime confidence as they plead in intense and agonising petitions which will not be refused.

It is not without significance that the strongest protestations of this kind are found in Pss. 22, 40, 69, which are usually regarded as Messianic, and which Jesus himself used to express his own feelings in his most trying hours, and which his apostles regarded as most aptly suited to the situation of the Passion of their Lord. It is quite true that Jesus Christ was exceptional in his righteousness; but that does not in any way impair their propriety of use for others, for Jesus and his apostles used these Pss. as familiar to them from the liturgical use of the synagogue and the home, and thereby gave their sanction to the legitimacy of this experience for suffering Christians. Notwithstanding the fact that these protestations of righteousness seem to be inconsistent with the experience of sin and ill-desert that are felt by many of the best of men, yet there is no real inconsistency between general fidelity to God and occasional faults and failures. The Christian Church, in the greater part of its history and in the greater part of its membership at the present time, finds no inconsistency between the experience of merit and the experience of sin. Such a sense of inconsistency is a peculiarity of the Protestant world. And even among Protestants it is the common experience, notwithstanding the recognition of personal sinfulness and that justification is by faith only, that suffering and trouble are not in accord with demerit, and that there is injustice and wrong in the sufferings that the God-fearing often have to endure, and which the wicked often escape. Jesus Christ in the endurance of suffering and wrong taught his disciples how to undergo the sad experience, but that does not remove from him or from his disciples the injustice that there is in the sufferings of the righteous and the inconsistency that there is in the greater welfare of the wicked and their triumph over the righteous. The pious are justified, as Jesus was, in pleading with God against it, and it is not self-righteousness to do so.

It is an exaggeration of the doctrine of justification by faith only, which excludes from Christian experience the consciousness of personal righteousness and merit. Luther misled in his interpretation of Gn. 15<sup>6</sup> and Hb. 2<sup>4</sup>. The former represents that God accounted Abraham as really righteous because of his trust in Him. The latter states that the pious live by fidelity, faithfulness, אֱמוּנָה, and not by faith only. When Nehemiah prayed to God to remember his faithfulness and acts of kindness in His behalf and spare him in the greatness of His kindness, Ne. 13<sup>14, 22</sup>, he was not self-righteous, but acting in accordance with the common experience of the OT. His prayer of penitence (Ne. 9) is among the finest in the Bible. Jesus distinctly taught the meritoriousness of deeds of love. The only passage that can be adduced to the contrary in his teaching, Lk. 17<sup>10</sup>, is wrongly interpreted in this regard (v. Br. Ethical Teaching of Jesus, pp. 218 sq.). St. Paul, the apostle of justification by faith, did not hesitate to say, as his hour of martyrdom drew near, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me at that day: and not only to me, but also to all them that have loved his appearing," 2 Tim. 4<sup>7-8</sup>, cf. Acts 26<sup>26</sup> sq. 23<sup>1</sup>.

The imprecations are not so frequent in the Pss. as in the Law and the Prophets. Although they have a lyric intensity of passion, they are not more bitter than those of other parts of the OT. If imprecations are inconsistent with canonicity, the whole OT. is excluded, and not the Psalter especially. The imprecations of the OT. are connected with the sense of the solidarity of the interests of the individual servant of God with those of the nation of Israel, and with the religion of God itself; so that all personal and national considerations are merged in those of the kingdom of God, whose aggressive, unscrupulous, and deadly foes must be remorselessly crushed in order that the holy religion may continue to exist and accomplish its sacred mission to the world. Whenever and wherever this sense of solidarity of interests has existed, or still exists, these imprecations express the religious feelings of God's people toward the enemies of God.

It is the modern discrimination between the religion of the individual and that of the nation, and between both of these and the ideal religion of mankind that makes these imprecations impossible to the experience of many moderns. These discriminations certainly belong to a later stage in the development of religion than the indiscriminating sense of solidarity. But individualism, however important, whether we think of the person or the denomination or the nation, ought not to impair the higher interests of the organism of the kingdom of God, as the embodiment of the divine religion of mankind. It is indeed excessive individualism with its lack of appreciation of organic religion, that sees no place for imprecations against the enemies of the kingdom of God. Jesus Christ taught the exceeding value of the soul of the individual and gave an example of self-sacrificing love in dying for his enemies with the prayer for their forgiveness upon his lips; but these enemies knew not the wrong they did to him, to the world, and to themselves. Jesus Christ distinguishes between sins of ignorance and sins of self-will, sins repented of and sins glossed over by self-righteousness and hypocrisy. He pronounced woes upon the Pharisees because they were hypocrites, tempters to sin, and obstructors to the kingdom of God. He denounced them as blind guides and serpents, and dooms them to Gehenna (Br., Ethical Teaching of Jesus, pp. 175 sq., 184 sq.). He announced the doom of the traitor Judas. He proclaimed the judgment of the cities that rejected him and his apostles, culminating in the destruction of Jerusalem and the world. The Apocalypse does not misinterpret the spirit of Christ, when it tells of the wrath of the Lamb and describes him in his second Advent as treading the wine-press of the wrath of Almighty God; and when it pictures the martyrs underneath the altar crying aloud: "How long, O Master, the holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?" (Rev. 6<sup>10</sup>). The righteousness of God is on the one side vindictory and saving, on the other retributive and destructive. The unfolding of vindictory righteousness into the highest conception of self-sacrificing love is accompanied with the development of retribution into the most intense hatred and awful wrath. No one knows what love is, who cannot truly hate. It is a weak and sickly individualism which shuts its eyes against the wrath of God, and of the Lamb, and of the Church, the Bride of the Lamb, against evil and incorrigible sin. There is a place, therefore, for imprecation in the highest forms of Christianity, only it is more discriminating than in the OT. religion and much more refined. In substance, the imprecations of the Psalter are normal and valid; in their external form and modes of expression they belong to an age of religion which has been displaced by Christianity.

The imprecations of the Psalter belong to four historic situations: (1) The persecutions of Jeremiah and his associates by those who were pushing the national religion to destruction, Ps. 52<sup>1</sup> sq., cf. Je. 11<sup>18</sup> sq. 15<sup>16</sup> sq. 17<sup>18</sup> 18<sup>19</sup> sq. 20<sup>11</sup> sq. (2) The brutal cruelty of Edom and Moab toward the Jews at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians, Ps. 137, cf. Ob.<sup>10</sup> sq. (3) The treachery of Sanballat and Tobiah, Ne. 2-6, which threatened the very existence of the congregation of the Restoration. The imprecations of Ne. 4<sup>4-5</sup> 6<sup>14</sup> 13<sup>29</sup> are in accord with those of Pss. 9<sup>20-21</sup> 10<sup>15</sup> 69<sup>23-29</sup> 83<sup>10-18</sup>. (4) The persecution of Antiochus, which aimed at the extermination of the worshippers of Yahweh. To this period the majority of the imprecations belong, many of them glosses in older Pss. At that time, if ever, imprecations were appropriate, cf. Pss. 79<sup>10, 12</sup> 109<sup>6-15, 19-20, 23-29</sup>. Thus all the imprecations of the Pss. are upon just such treacherous hypocrites, traitors, and bloodthirsty enemies of the kingdom of God, as Jesus himself pronounces imprecations upon, who aim at nothing else than the wilful destruction of the true religion. It is the form and general character of these imprecations which are most obnoxious to the modern mind, especially the physical sufferings that are invoked, the dishonouring of wives and daughters, and the slaughter of babes, even of the unborn. This is from the point of view of the solidarity of interest in the family, tribe, and nation; and especially from the ancient principle of the duty of revenge which was inherited by sons and kinsmen; so that the only way to avoid future peril of revenge was the extermination of all who would be likely in the future to undertake it.

D. THE INTERPRETATION OF THE PSALTER.

§ 47. Jesus and his apostles interpreted the Psalter usually in accordance with the methods of their time, literally or allegorically, as they had need. But they chiefly used it either for practical exhortation, for dogmatic or ethical instruction, or for prophetic anticipations of the life and work of Jesus and his Church.

§ 48. In the ancient Catholic Church the Apostolic Fathers and Apologists used the Psalter for practical purposes. The School of Alexandria emphasized the allegorical method of interpretation, the School of Antioch the typical method.

The Christian writers of the second Christian century followed the example of the apostles in using the Psalter for practical purposes. Nothing at all resembling a Commentary, so far as we know, was composed by any of them. The citations of the Pss. in the Apostolic Fathers, Apologists, and early Fathers, Tertullian, Irenaeus, Cyprian, and others, are similar to those in the New Testament, using the same methods of interpretation, with a more decided tendency to the allegorical method and less restraint from its exaggeration. The School of Alexandria was established by Pantaeus, c. 200, and made famous by the great teachers and theologians, Clement and Origen. Pantaeus is said to have composed the first Commentary (Eusebius, Ecc. Hist. 5<sup>10</sup>). Clement distinguished between the body and soul of Scripture, and called attention to its fourfold use. Origen made a Commentary on the Psalms, using the allegorical method of Philo, which he worked out in a Christian form and became its father in the Church. He distinguished a threefold sense, body, soul, and spirit, and used thirteen of Philo's rules (v. Br. <sup>SHS. 448-449</sup>). The School of Antioch was established by Lucian and Dorotheus at the close of the third century. Its fundamental principles of interpretation were: (1) Every passage has its literal meaning and only one meaning; (2) alongside of the literal sense is the typical sense which arises out of the relation of the Old Covenant to the New (Kihn, Theodor von Mopsuestia, s. 29). The most of the Commentators on the Pss. in the Greek Church were from writers of this school. Jerome occupied an intermediate and not altogether consistent position. He strives for historical and grammatical exposition, yet it is easy to see that at the bottom he is more inclined to the allegorical method. Thus there grew up in the ancient Church three exegetical tendencies, the literal and traditional, the allegorical and mystical, the historical and ethical, and these became gradually interwoven in the writings of the Fathers, and in all sorts of abnormal forms of exegesis in others (v. Br. <sup>SHS. 453</sup>).

Corderius (Expositio Patrum Graecorum in Psalmos, 3 Tom. 1643) uses the following Greek Commentators: Athanasius, Ammonius, Anonymous, Apollinarius, Asterius, Basilus, Gennadius, Geo. Alexandrinus, Gregorius Nazianzenus, Gregorius Nyssenus, Didymus, Dionysius Areopag., Eusebius Caesariensis, Hesychius, Theodoretus, Theodorus Antiochenus, Theodorus

Heracleota, Isidorus, Cyrillus Alexandrinus, Maximus, Pachymera, Chrysostomus, Psellus, Origines. I have italicised those most frequently cited. Jerome (ep. ad August. cxii.) mentions the following Greek interpreters of the Psalter up to his time: Origen, Eusebius of Caesarea, Theodore of Heraklea (the Anonymous of Corderius), Astelios of Skythopolis, Apollinaris of Laodicea, Didymos of Alexandria. All of these interpretations of the Psalter, so far as preserved, are given by Migne in his Greek Patrology. For additional information we may refer to Pitra, Analecta Sacra, Bâthgen, ZATW., 1886, Lietzmann, Der Psalmencommentar Theodore von Mopsuestia, 1902. The work of the great Syrian scholar, Gregory Bar Hebraeus († 1286, given by Lagarde, Praetermissorum, 1879), must be added here as the noblest representation of the late Syrian School. The work of Jerome on the Pss. is given in his Epistles, XX., XXVIII., XXX., XXXIV., LXV., CVI., CXL. (Migne, XXII.), and his commentary (edited by Morin, Anecdota Maredsolana, III., 1895).

§ 49. In the Latin Church the allegorical method of interpreting the Psalter prevailed, chiefly through the influence of Ambrose and Augustine, although Junilius and Cassiodorus exerted a modifying influence in the use of the principles of the Antiochan School.

Ambrose may be regarded as the father of the interpretation of the Psalter in the Western Church; but Augustine, his pupil, was the one who dominated all subsequent times. He distinguishes four kinds of exegesis, — the historical, aetiological, analogical, and allegorical, — and laid down the principle that whatever cannot be referred to good conduct or truth of faith must be regarded as figurative. Junilius, and still more Cassiodorus, exerted a wholesome influence by the introduction into the West of the principles of the Schools of Antioch and Nisibis. He urged the comparison of Scripture with Scriptures, and points out that frequent and intense meditation is the way to a true understanding of them (v. Br. <sup>SHS. 449-453</sup>).

Jerome (ep. ad August. cxii.) mentions the following Latin interpreters of the Pss.: (1) Hilary of Poitiers, based on Origen and Eusebius; (2) Eusebius of Vercelli, who translated the Commentary of Eusebius of Caesarea; (3) Ambrose. Ambrose († 397) is the only one who was independent and original. Ambrose was a practical prelate, possessed of the true Roman spirit, and he gave the allegorical method a Western practical turn. His Enarrationes have had great influence on the Church. Augustine († 430) built his Enarrationes on those of Ambrose, and became the basal authority for all subsequent writers. The most wholesome commentary of the times is that of Cassiodorus († 563). Other early Western writers on the Psalter were Hippolytus († 235), Arnobius

(† c. 406), Asterius († 410), Gregory of Tours († 594), Gregory the Great († 604), Prudentius (eighth century). All of these are given by Migne in his Latin Patrology.

§ 50. In the Middle Ages the Commentaries were chiefly compilations of the earlier writers, called Epitomes, Glosses, Postilles, Chains, which appeared in great numbers, all under the domination of the allegorical principles of Augustine, often in exaggerated forms.

The compilers of the Oriental Church were Euthymius Zigabenus († 1118, v. Pitra, Analecta, IV.); Nicephorus, thirteenth century (given by Migne). A host of writers on the Pss. appear in the West: Beda († 735); Alcuin († 804); Walafrid Strabo († 849); Haymo († 853); Rhabamus Maurus († 856); Paschasius Radbertus († 866); Hincmar († 882); Remigius (ninth century); Bruno Herb. († 1045); Romualdus († 1027); Anselm († 1109); Bruno Carth. († 1101); Richard St. Victor († 1173); Innocentius III. († 1216); Hugo S. Caro, Postillae († 1263) (commentaries 1496 attributed wrongly to Alexander Hales, † 1245); Antonius Patavinus († 1231, Sermones in Pss., 1757); Thomas Aquinas († 1274, In Psalmos Expositio, 1876); Albertus Magnus († 1280, Comm. on Pss., Col. 1536); Ayguanus († 1396, Com. on Ps., 1524 +); Nicolaus de Lyra († 1340, Postillae, Rom. 1471; Biblia cum glossa ordinariu, 6 v., Basel, 1506); Herenthal († 1400, Catena, Col. 1483); Turrecremata († 1468, Expositio, 1474). Those italicised are found in Migne's Patrology.

§ 51. In the Middle Ages Jewish Commentators distinguished themselves as compared with the Christian by a fuller use of the literal and historical methods of interpretation, although no less dependent on Rabbinical tradition than Christian scholars were on Christian tradition.

The earliest important interpreter of the Pss. whose writings have been preserved was Saadia († 942), author of the Arabic translation of the OT. His Commentary was published in Cracow in 1660. Raschi's Commentary (R. Solomon Isaaki, † 1105) was published in the Rabbinical Bibles, also a Latin translation by Breithaupt, 1710. Aben Ezra's Commentary († 1167) was published in the Rabbinical Bibles. His Commentary on the first ten Pss. was published in Latin and Hebrew by P. Fagius, 1542. David Kimchi's Commentary († 1235) was published, Naples, 1487; Venice, 1518; Isny, 1541; Amsterdam, 1765; Latin translation by Janvier, 1566. The first book of Psalms was published according to the text of the Cambridge Ms. Bible with the larger Commentary of R. David Kimchi, critically edited from nineteen Mss. and early editions by Schiller Sziessy, Cambridge, 1883. The most important of later commentaries was by Obadiah Sforzo, teacher of Reuchlin, Venice, 1586; Amsterdam, 1724.

§ 52. The Reformation involved a great revival of Biblical study, and especially of the Psalter, the chief book of the OT. The allegorical method was pushed in the background by the Humanists in the interests of the grammatical sense, and so by Roman Catholics as well, and Protestants who were influenced by them. The chief difference was that the Protestants resorted to the Hebrew text as the original supreme authority, the Roman Catholics based themselves on the Vulgate Version, and interpreted it in submission to the authority of the Church and the Fathers. The successors of the Reformers fell back into pedantic and dogmatic methods.

The Humanists revived the study of the ancient languages and the ancient literatures, and thus the grammatical and literary study of the original texts was employed over against the allegorical method. Lyra and the Jewish Commentators were used more than the Christian Commentators of the Middle Ages. The Protestant Reformers were great exegetes. Luther began his academic lectures with an exposition of the Psalter in 1513. These lectures were published by Seidemann in 1876, under the title, Dr. Martin Luther's erste und älteste Vorlesungen über die Psalmen aus den Jahren 1513-1516 nach der eigenhändigen lateinischen Handschrift Luthers auf der Königlichen öffentlichen Bibliothek zu Dresden. Reuchlin published his Auslegung der sieben Psalmi poenitentiales, 1512; Bugenhagen, his in lib. Psalmorum, 1524; Bucer (Aretius), Psalmorum libri 5, 1526. Calvin's Commentary on the Psalms, 1564, was by far the best up to his own time. Other commentators of the time of the Reformation were Pellican, 1532; Münster, 1534-1535; Musculus, 1550; Castalio, 1551 +; Marloratus, 1562. The Moravian Rüdinger also issued a valuable Commentary in 1580-1581. The Protestants of the next generation fell back from the vital principle of the Reformers and became dependent on Protestant rules of faith, and were dogmatic and pedantic in their Commentaries. In the following lists, I give, so far as I know, the first edition; when there were subsequent editions, it is indicated by +. The works of Selnecker, 1581; Moller, 1573; Menzel, 1594; Gesner, 1609; Piscator, 1646 +; Quistorp, 1648; Amyraldus, 1662; Bakius, 1664 +; Geier, 1668 +; Carlov, 1672 +, though with valuable and useful material are reactionary and of no permanent value. The Roman Catholics vied with the Protestants in the sixteenth century in their work on the Psalter: Clarius, 1542 +; Vatablus, 1545; Palisse, 1548; Cajetan, 1530; Campensis, 1533 +; Flaminio, 1558; Gennebradus, 1577 +; Jansenius, 1586. In the early seventeenth century R. C. exegetes employed better methods, and were more able and fruitful than Protestants, as is evident in Agellius, 1606 + ; Faber Stapulensis, 1609 ; Lorinus, 1612 + ; Bellarmin, 1611 + ; Mariana, 1619 + ; Torinus, 1632 + ; Muis, 1636 + ; Corderius, 1643 + ; Drexelius, 1643 ; Hulsius, 1650 ; Heser, 1654 +.

§ 53. In the middle of the seventeenth century the English Puritans emphasized grammatical and practical exegesis ; Grotius, Hammond and the Arminians, the historical method ; Cocceius and the Federalists, the allegorical. The dogmatic method still prevailed to some extent.

Ainsworth is the prince of Puritan Commentators. His Commentary on the Pss., issued in 1626, is a monument of learning. He was too much influenced by Rabbinical subtilties, but he employed the grammatical method with great practical skill. Thomas Smith, Thomas Pierson, and especially William Gouge issued practical commentaries introducing a long and valuable series in Great Britain. Hugo Grotius in Holland and Henry Hammond in England revived the Humanistic spirit and laid stress on the literal and historical sense. The Commentaries on the Pss. of Grotius, 1645, and of Hammond, 1653, especially the latter, introduce a new epoch in the interpretation of the Psalter. Cocceius, the founder of the Federal School of Holland, 1660, revived the allegorical method, but with sobriety and practical sense. The Criticorum Sacrorum, 1660, sums up the chief material of previous authors, using Munster, Vatablus, Castalio, Clarius, Drusius, and Grotius. This was followed by Poole's Synopsis Criticorum, 1669, which uses Muis, Geier, Ainsworth, Hammond, Rivetus, Cocceius, Genebradus, Calovius. The Biblia Magna, 1643, and the Biblia Maxima, Paris, 1660, both by John de la Haye, are a magnificent summing up of R. C. exegesis, embracing a thorough study of texts and Vrss., and the expositions of Nic. de Lyra, Gagnae, Estii, Menochii, and Tirini. Vol. VI. of the latter contains the Psalter. There was then a lull in work on the Pss. which continued for a century. We may mention, however, the R. C., Le Blanc, 1682 + ; Ferrandus, 1683 ; Bossuet, 1691 ; Berthier, 1788 + ; Calmet, 1791 + ; Camponi, 1692 + ; the Protestants, Bythner, 1664 ; J. H. Michaelis, 1720 ; Clericus, 1731 ; Venema, 1762.

§ 54. The study of the Psalter was enriched through the work of Kennicott upon the text and of Hare and Lowth upon Hebrew poetry, connected in all these with original work upon the Psalter which influenced all subsequent scholars.

I have already called attention to the work of Hare, Lowth, and Kennicott on the text and Hebrew Poetry. These scholars carried on the grammatical and historical exegesis of Grotius and Hammond. Lowth in his notes attached to Merrick's Version, 1768, supported also by an Anonymous, made contributions which were often original and of great value. Kennicott, in his notes on the Psalms, 1772, also greatly advanced the study of the Psalter. All this material was used by Street, 1790, with independent and excellent judgment, resulting in the best Commentary on the Psalms of the eighteenth century. Bishop Horsley, 1815 (posthumous), inherited their spirit. These scholars are the real fathers of a large number of emendations of the text and of new interpretations for which later scholars, especially Germans, have received the credit. Many practical commentaries of great value appeared in this period, such as Henry, 1710; Horne, 1771; Gill, 1774-1776. The Commentaries of Dathe, 1787, and especially Rosenmüller, 1798-1804, represented this period in Germany.

§ 55. The study of the Psalter has been improved in the last century by a more comprehensive and thoroughgoing study of all the material by Textual Criticism, Higher Criticism, Historical Criticism, and Biblical Theology, with a just estimate of Exegesis in its different phases.

De Wette, 1811 +, began this most fruitful period, and was followed by Ewald, 1836 +, both with remarkable critical sagacity and profound historical sense. Hitzig, 1836 +, and Olshausen, 1853 +, opened wide the field of Textual Criticism; Hupfeld, 1855 +, and Böttcher, 1864, grammatical and lexicographical exegesis. Delitzsch, 1859 +, shows a deep spiritual sense and a thorough understanding of the genius of the ancient Hebrew people. Hengstenberg, 1842 +, is the father of the reactionaries. On these princes of modern German exegesis a great number of scholars build. Among these we may mention on the continent of Europe: Tholuck, 1843 +; Köster, 1837; Vaihinger, 1845; Reuss, 1879 +; Grätz, 1882-1883; Hirsch, 1882; Moll, 1884 +; Schultz, 1888 +; Bachmann, 1891; Bähgen, 1892 +; Wellhausen, 1895; Duhm, 1899; Valetton, 1903. Among R. C. scholars, we may mention Alioli, 1832 +; Aigner, 1850; Schegg, 1857<sup>2</sup>; Crelier, 1858; Rohling, 1871; Thalhoffer, 1889<sup>5</sup>. Migne, Cursus Completus, 1841, and Cornely, Knabenbauer, and Hammelauer in Cursus Completus, 1885, give a thesaurus of interpretation of many scholars, ancient and modern. Many British and American interpreters of the Pss. have been reactionary in the spirit of Hengstenberg, such as Phillips, 1846; Neale, 1860; Wordsworth, 1867; Alexander, 1868 +; Murphy, 1875; Cowles, 1872. The Puritan spirit was inherited in Spurgeon, 1870, and Barnes, 1871. Perowne, 1864 +, deserves the credit for the introduction into the English-speaking world of the modern spirit, which indeed is only a rebuilding on the work of the older English scholars of the eighteenth century. The following Commentators deserve mention: The Psalms Chronologically arranged by Four Friends, 1867; Kay, 1871; Cook, 1873; Jennings and Low, 1875; Burgess, 1879; Aglen, 1884; Cheyne, 1888 +;

Maclaren, 1893-1894 + ; Montefiore, 1901 ; Kirkpatrick, 1903 ; W. T. Davidson, 1903 + ; Ehrlich, 1904. Cheyne and Kirkpatrick are preëminent, the former for his brave investigation of the most difficult problems and his generous recognition of the work of other scholars, the latter for his sound judgment and excellent exegetical method. These scholars easily outrank all their predecessors. Their occasional faults and failures are cordially overlooked in view of their magnificent contributions to Biblical Science.

§ 56. English Versions of the Psalms began with Wycliffe in 1382. The Version of Coverdale of 1535, revised for the great Bible of 1539, has been used since as the Version of the Book of Common Prayer. The Version of 1611 was made from the Hebrew, with a limited study of other versions. It supplanted all other English Versions except that of PBV. The Version of 1885 was a revision of that of 1611, in closer conformity to the Massoretic text. The R. C. Version is that of Douay.

John Wycliffe made the first English translation of the Bible from the Vulgate Version, 1382. It was revised by John Purvey in 1388 (v. Forshall and Madden's text, 4 v., 1850; Skeats, reprint of Purvey's revision in 1879). Coverdale published a translation of the whole Bible in 1535. His translation of the Psalter was taken up into Matthew's Bible in 1537, and into the Great Bible in 1539-1541. Coverdale, in his dedicatory Epistle to the King and in Prologue, states that he had followed largely five sundry interpreters; to judge from internal evidence, the Vulgate, Luther, the Zurich Version, Pagninus, and Tyndale, the latter not giving the Psalter. The Zurich Version was completed in 1529 by Zwingli, Pellican, Leo Juda, and others. Pagninus' version was a translation of the Psalter into Latin (1527). The Psalter of the PBV. is from the last revision of the Great Bible of 1540 (v. Westcott, The Paragraph Psalter; Earle, The Psalter of 1539 a Landmark in English Literature, 1892; Driver, The Parallel Psalter, Int. 1904<sup>2</sup>; Fry, Description of the Great Psalter, 1865). The Genevan Version of 1560 was translated into English and used by the Puritans from that time onward. The Bishop's Bible of 1568 was used in the scriptural readings in the Church of England, but not in the recitations of the Psalter. In 1611 the Authorized Version was made by a select company of scholars under the authority of the crown. It displaced all other Vrss. for Protestants in the public and private reading of the Scripture: but did not succeed in displacing the Vrs. of the Great Bible in the recitation of the Psalter. The Roman Catholics continued to adhere to the Douay Version, which was a literal translation of the Vulgate, whereas the AV. was translated from the Hebrew. The AV. has maintained its hold on the English Protestant world until the present time. The RV. of 1885, prepared by a joint British and American Committee, under the authority of the convocation of Canterbury, has thus far been unable to replace it. The RV. is a more accurate rendering of the Hebrew text of Ben Asher ; but it is literalistic and pedantic. It was prepared in a period of transition of Hebrew scholarship and does not satisfy the present conditions of OT. scholarship or the needs of the Church or people. Furthermore, it does not sufficiently consider the Ancient Vrss., and is not based on a revision of the Hebrew text. The margin of the RV. gives the most important part of the work of the Revisers and is of great value. Several independent versions have been made in recent times: John De Witt, 1884 ; T. K. Cheyne, 1888 ; Furness, 1898 ; S. R. Driver, The Parallel Psalter, 1904<sup>2</sup> (an important and valuable revision of PBV.). The Jewish Publication Society of America, 1903, gave a new and excellent translation from the Massoretic text. There is no sound reason why Roman Catholics, Protestants, and Jews should not unite and agree in a Version far better than any that has yet been made.

Many metrical versions of the Psalter have been made for use in Christian worship in the service of song, the chief of which are those of Sternhold and Hopkins, and Tate and Brady, used in England; Rouse, used in Scotland; and Watts, used by the Nonconformists of England and their children in America. From a literary point of view the most valuable paraphrase is still that of Merrick, 1765. The fault of all these versions is that they are based either upon English Versions or the Massoretic text. None of them were made with any knowledge whatever of the measures of Hebrew poetry. It is now quite possible to reproduce the poetry of the Psalms in essentially the same measures in English poetry. Scholars who have the poetic gift should undertake this task, which when accomplished will greatly enlarge the use of the Psalter for English-speaking peoples, and enrich their devotion, public and private, with a finer literary flavour.

PSALM I., 2 STR. 6<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 1 is a didactic Ps. of the Greek period, introductory to the Psalter. In two antith. Strs. it contrasts the happiness of the righteous man (v.<sup>1-2</sup>) with the ultimate ruin of the wicked (v.<sup>4-6</sup>). The righteous man avoids the company of wicked men, and diligently studies the Law. An intermediate gloss compares the righteous to a fruitful tree in a well-watered garden (v.<sup>3</sup>).

HAPPY the man!

Who doth not walk in the counsel of wicked men,
And in the way of sinners doth not stand,
And in the session of scorers doth not sit down;
But rather in the Law of Yahweh is his delight,
And in His Law he studies day and night.

NOT so the wicked!

But rather they are as the chaff which the wind driveth away;
Therefore wicked men will not rise up in the Judgment,
And sinners (will not enter) into the congregation of righteous men;
For Yahweh knoweth the way of righteous men,
But the way of wicked men will perish (everlastingly).

Ps. 1 is orphan (Intr.<sup>§ 37</sup>) and therefore was not in any of the Psalters prior to the last. It was doubtless later than any of them. It was not counted originally, for 2 codd. DeR. do not number it; and 5 codd. Kenn., 3 DeR., some codd. G, Justin (Ap. 1<sup>40</sup>), and many fathers (especially Western), and rabbis, combine it with Ps. 2; according to the ancient saying that the first Ps. begins and closes with beatitude (Talm. Berakoth f. 9<sup>b</sup>). In Western texts and Vrss. of Acts 13<sup>38</sup>, Ps. 2 is cited as Ps. 1; so Meyer, Tisch., Blass; but the great Uncials have ευρέψ, so Westcott and Hort, and Wendt. It was selected as an introduction to  $\psi$  by the final editor. The date of Ps. 1 may be determined by the following considerations: (1) It is characteristic of late writings that they make much use of earlier ones. V.<sup>3</sup> is based on Je. 17<sup>5-8</sup> and Ez. 47<sup>12</sup>, and is therefore postexilic. If v.<sup>3</sup> be original, it gives evidence of date of Ps.; if a gloss, only as to date of the gloss. The argument of Bā. that the prose writer uses the poet and not the poet the prose, is without force if v.<sup>3</sup> is a prosaic gloss. V.<sup>2b</sup> is based on Jos. 1<sup>8</sup> (D), and is post-deuteronomic; for the Ps. substitutes for the external, "depart out of thy mouth," the first clause of Jos. 1<sup>8</sup>, the internal "delight in," indicating a later and more matured conception. The language of the Ps. is that of the Greek period: עַצֹּת רָשָׁעִים v.<sup>1b</sup>, מוֹשֵׁב לְצִידִים v.<sup>1d</sup>, פְּרִגֵּי מַיִם v.<sup>3a</sup>. The syntax is also late: וְהִיא v.<sup>3a</sup>, וְיָרַע v.<sup>6</sup>. (2) The רָשָׁעִים and צְרִיקִים are classes in the Jewish community. The earlier antitheses between wicked rulers and an oppressed people, characteristic of pre-exilic writings; and of righteous Israel and her wicked foes, characteristic of the long period of foreign domination, do not appear; the antithesis is between two classes among the Jews, the righteous, the strict students of the Law, who keep apart from the company of the wicked; and the wicked, who scorn the ethical teachings of Wisdom and transgress the Law. All this implies a fully developed school of Wisdom, as well as an intense scribal devotion to the Law. There is not that exclusive devotion to the Law of Pss. 19<sup>8-15</sup> 119, or to Wisdom of Pr. 1-9; but the author blends the teachings and practice of these two types. He lived in peaceful times before the antagonisms of religious parties, and thus probably in the late Greek period. A similar situation is in BS 6<sup>37</sup> 14<sup>20-21</sup>, which seem to be based on this Ps. (3) The reference to the Judgment, v.<sup>5a</sup>, implies a judicial interference of Yahweh; not as between Israel and her oppressors, as in the prophetic books, but as between the righteous and wicked in Israel itself. As the result of that Judgment the righteous will rise up, an organized congregation, v.<sup>5b</sup>, from which the wicked will be excluded. The wicked will not rise. If the rising here is to be interpreted as a resurrection, then the exclusion of the wicked implies an earlier date than Dn., which includes wicked Israelites in the resurrection, Dn. 12<sup>2</sup>, and is more in accord with Is. 26<sup>14-19</sup>, where the wicked oppressors do not rise with God's people. The apocalypse, Is. 24-27, seems to belong to the time of Alexander the Great. The resemblance in doctrine between Ps. 1 and Is. 26 would favour the putting of our Ps. between that apocalypse and Dn.; that is, in the Greek period before the persecutions of Antiochus. This Ps. was probably the basis of the doctrine of the Two Ways which plays such an important part in Jewish and early Christian Literature (Mt. 7<sup>13-14</sup>. V. Br. Ethical Teaching of Jesus, pp. 82 sq.).

The Ps. has two anth. Strs. of six tetrameter lines each. This has not been observed by Du. or Siev., both of whom regard v.<sup>3</sup> as original to the Ps. The former says: "Keine Strophen, wie mir scheint, sondern nur unregelmässig gebildete Stichen, die sich auch in Stil und Ausdruck der Prosa nähern." The latter says: "Ps. 1 enthält so viel metrisch Anstössiges oder Auffälliges, dass man nicht über den Zweifel herauskommt wie viel davon späterer Verderbnis oder persönlichem Form-ungeschick des Verfassers entstammt." The real difficulty is with both that they did not discern the gloss, and so could not understand the measure, which is really one of the simplest and finest in the Psalter.

Str. I. 1. The poet, in view of the description of the righteous man he is about to give, exclaims: Happy the man! He uses a dimeter, or half line, to allow a metrical pause after the exclamation. He is not thinking of mankind, men, women, and children; but of men only. He has not in mind all men, or all Jews, or all pious men; but specifically that kind of a man he is about to describe, one devoting his whole time, night and day, to the study of the Law; that is, the ideal scribe such as Ezra. Jerome tells us the pious Jews thought of King Josiah as the ideal. The righteous man is described first negatively in three syn. tetrameters which yet gradually became more intense, reaching a climax in the last line: who doth not walk] cf. Mi. 6<sup>16</sup> Je. 7<sup>24</sup>; doth not stand] cease from walking and so remain standing; doth not sit down] continual participation in. — in the counsel] while walking, listening to and receiving counsel or advice, in the way] the moral conduct, the course of life, in the session] not settling down in the session, or assembly of the scorers, and so being in entire accord with them. — Wicked men] a class in antithesis to righteous men, who studied and practised the Law; sinner] antith. to upright, a more general term referring to all who fail from or do not conform to the ethical and religious goal or way of life; scorers] antith. to wise men; those who mock at and scorn the discipline of wisdom. The righteous man abstains from all such conduct and avoids the company of all such men. — 2. The righteous man is described positively in two syn. lines antith. to the previous three. — In the Law of Yahweh] embracing the entire legislation compacted in the Pentateuch, and so called the Law as the first layer of the Canon, in the Greek period when this Ps. was composed (v. Br.<sup>SHS 120</sup>), repeated for emphasis. — his delight] the good pleasure the righteous man took in the Law, || studies day and night] reading it over and over again in the low, murmuring tone of one reading to oneself, to impress it upon the mind and commit it to memory, a method characteristic of oriental students, rather than meditating or musing upon what had been previously read. This study is habitual not only during the day but also during the night. The second line is cited from Jos. 1<sup>8</sup> (D).

3. The editor of  $\psi$  inserts four lines of illustration before the antistrophe.

AND he is like a tree transplanted beside channels of water,
 Which yieldeth his fruit in his season,
 Whose leaf withers not;
 So all that he doeth, he carries through successfully.

The happiness of the righteous man is illustrated by the simile of a tree, which is removed from its native soil and transplanted to the most favoured soil, in a fertile garden irrigated by many channels of water, such as Wady Urtas, where were the gardens of Solomon; Engedi, famed for its fertility (Rob.<sup>I. 477, cf. 556</sup>); the gardens of Damascus, Egypt, and Babylon, irrigated by canals drawn from the great rivers; and it is probable that the story of the streams of Eden, Gn. 2, was in the mind of the poet; for he adapts and combines from Je. 17<sup>8</sup> the beautiful and fully stated simile of the man trusting in Yahweh; from Ez. 47<sup>12b</sup> the description of the living trees on the banks of the river of life in the future paradise, which bear fruit monthly and whose leaves are ever green and medicinal (cf. Rev. 22<sup>2</sup>); with the irrigated gardens of his own time, for a condensed simile, suggesting a comprehensive ideal to one familiar with the sacred writings. He then interprets the simile of the last line by an adaptation of Jos. 1<sup>8b</sup>. The righteous man has in him such life and vigour from his study of God's word that he makes everything that he does to succeed and be prosperous. This verse is thus a mosaic of three earlier passages. The lines are irregular and prosaic (5.4.3.4). The two middle lines are synonymous but synthetic to the first line, and the last line is a synthetic explanation of the simile.

Str. II. is an antistrophe to Str. I. V.<sup>4</sup> is composed (a) of a dimeter line, v.<sup>4a</sup>, with metrical pause antithetical to v.<sup>1a</sup>, contrasting the wicked with the righteous man; and of a tetrameter simile, v.<sup>4b</sup>, likening the wicked to chaff on the threshing floor. This, in Palestine, is usually on flat, open places on hilltops, so that when the ears of grain are thrown up, the heavy grain falls to the ground, while the wind drives away the light chaff. This simile is antith. to that in v.<sup>3</sup>, so far as a fruit-bearing tree may be to chaff of grain; but the original antith. was probably of "driveth away" to deliberate walking in counsel, v.<sup>1b</sup>.—5. Rise up in the Judgment] is antith. to standing in the way, v.<sup>1c</sup>; enter into the congregation] antith. to the sitting down in the session, v.<sup>7d</sup>. Wicked men will not rise up, that is, in the resurrection which takes place in the Judgment, at the end of the age of the world. Only the righteous share in that resurrection. So Is. 26<sup>14-19</sup>, the people of God rise, their wicked oppressors do not. So Jesus speaks of the resurrection of the just, Lk. 14<sup>14</sup>, without mentioning that of the unjust; and St. Paul sets forth the resurrection of Christians 1 Cor. 15, those who are not, apparently, being in the background of his thoughts and so unmentioned (v. Br.<sup>MA 113 sq.</sup>). The resurrection of the wicked appears in OT. only Dn. 12<sup>2</sup>, and in NT. explicitly only Jn. 5<sup>28-29</sup> Rev. 20<sup>11-15</sup> (v. Br.<sup>MG 273</sup>). This interpretation, given by  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{U}$ ,  $\mathfrak{T}$ , Bă., is more suitable, in view of the late date of the Ps., than the usual modern interpretation, "stand in the judgment," that is, God's providential judgment in the course of human history. The congregation of the righteous men may be conceived as the congregation of the zealous Jews from which the wicked would be kept apart by divine judgment; but better, of the congregation after the judgment of the resurrection, in which there can be no wicked, for they have not been permitted to rise. — 6. The Str. concludes with two antith. tetrameters summing up the contrast already drawn. There are two ways. The way of the righteous is a way which Yahweh knoweth; not merely theoretically and ideally, but practically and really by personal acquaintance with and attentive supervision of it, so that it is Yahweh's way, leading unto true and lasting happiness. The way of wicked men is a way which goeth on to everlasting ruin, cf. 69<sup>29</sup>. The Ps. begins with happiness and concludes with ruin, cf. Ps. 112. All is comprehended between these two ends and in these two ways.

This is so appropriate metrically and intensively that it is altogether probable.

PSALM II., 4 STR. 7<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 2. was the Messianic introduction to III. It describes the nations plotting against Yahweh and His Messiah (v. 1-3); and in antistr. Yahweh Himself laughing at them and telling them of His installation of His king (v. 4-7a). The Messiah then cites the word of Yahweh constituting him Son of God and giving him the nations as his inheritance (v. 7b-9); and in antistr. warns them to serve Yahweh (v. 10-12c). A liturgical addition pronounces all happy who seek refuge in Him (v. 12d).

WHY do nations consent together,
And peoples devise plans in vain?
Kings of earth take their stand,
And princes do consult together,
Against Yahweh and against His anointed:
"Let us tear apart their bands,
And let us cast away from us their cords."

ONE throned in heaven laughs (at them),
My sovereign Lord mocks at them:
Then in His anger He speaks unto them,
And in His burning anger terrifies them:
(Declaring) the decree (of Yahweh),
"Now I, I have set My king, Upon Zion, My sacred mount."

YAHWEH said unto me:
"My son art thou,
I, to-day, have begotten thee;
I will give nations for thine inheritance,
And for thy possession the ends of the earth;

Thou shalt rule them with an iron sceptre,
 As a potter's vessel thou shalt dash them in pieces."
 "NOW therefore act prudently, O kings,
 Be admonished, governors of earth,
 Serve Yahweh with fear,
 And rejoice in Him with trembling.
 Kiss sincerely, lest He be angry,
 And ye perish from the right way,
 For quickly His anger will be kindled."

Pss. 2 and 72 are without D in titles in H. But G has  $\psi\alpha\lambda\mu\delta\varsigma\ \tau\hat{\omega}\ \Delta\alpha\upsilon\iota\delta$  in title of Ps. 2 in G<sup>R</sup> Ald. Compl., and in title of Ps. 72 in 42 codd. HP. none earlier than eleventh century. These rest probably on editorial conjecture. Ps. 72<sup>20</sup> after doxology, and therefore after attachment of doxologies to  $\psi$ , ends with a statement which implies that Ps. 72 concluded D (v. Intr. § 27). Ps. 2 was therefore introductory to D and Ps. 72 its conclusion, and being used for the same purpose by the editor of  $\psi$ , he omits the reference to D. The Ps. describes an ideal situation, in the universal dominion of the monarch and the vain plotting of the nations. Such a situation never emerged in the history of Israel before the exile, in David and his successors; or subsequent to the exile, in the Greek kings of Palestine or the Maccabean princes. The situation is rather that of the Assyrian and Babylonian world-powers, against which there was continual vain rebellion, according to the Hebrew prophets, and the cuneiform monuments of these kings. The same world-wide dominion was held by Persia and Alexander, but there was not the same situation of plotting and rebellion. It is probable that the poet idealizes the dynasty of David into just such a world-power as Assyria or Babylonia, and that he wrote during the supremacy of one of them. The seat of the dominion is Mt. Zion, and therefore we cannot think with Hi. of a Greek king, such as Alexander Jannaeus, or with Du. of Aristobulus I. The king cites a divine word as his title to his dominion. This is based on the covenant made by Yahweh with David, 2 S. 7<sup>11-16</sup> = 1 Ch. 17<sup>10-14</sup>, adopting the seed of David as son of God. This is paraphrased Pss. 89<sup>20</sup> sq. 132<sup>11-12</sup> (Br.<sup>MP</sup> 126 sq. 258 sq.). The king, Messiah and Son of God, of this Ps. must be of the dynasty of David. Therefore we cannot think of Maccabean princes who were not of the line of David. The Ps. refers to a birthday, a time of the installation of the king on Zion. We must therefore think of the day of the institution of the covenant, which is ideally combined with the installation of the dynasty in Jerusalem. It is probable that the Ps. represents David as himself speaking for himself and his seed in Strs. III. and IV.; just as in Str. II. Yahweh speaks, in Str. I. the nations. It is true that, in fact, David was not installed in Jerusalem and on Zion, but at Hebron first by Judah 2 S. 2<sup>1-4</sup>, and then some years after by all the tribes 5<sup>1-3</sup>; after seven years' reign in Hebron he captured Jerusalem and removed his capitol thither 5<sup>4-9</sup> without any further installation; and the covenant established by Yahweh confirmed him in his dominion there. But the poet combines all these several things in one picture and regards them all as the installation of the dynasty on Zion. Under these circumstances, it is not so important to determine when the Ps. was written, for in any case the Messianic dynasty is in view. It must, however, be later than the covenant which thinks only of an everlasting dominion and not of a world-wide dominion; and so must be in the period of the supremacy of the world-powers, when first universal dominion could be conceived in connection with the universal rule of God. Therefore we cannot think of the time of David (older scholars even Pe.), or of Solomon (Ew., Bleek, Kirk.), or of Uzziah (Meier), or the time of the prophecy of Immanuel (De.). The earliest time conceivable would be the reign of Hezekiah (Maurer, Gr.); but many arguments point rather to the reign of Josiah, or the time of Jeremiah. These are also against the views that it was composed in the pre-Maccabean times (Che.) or the Maccabean (Bä.). The language does not favour a late date, unless רגשו v.<sup>1</sup> רָעַם v.<sup>9</sup> and בר v.<sup>12</sup> be Aramaisms. But they are all good Heb. words appropriate to the age of Je., to which also the phrase נָתַתָּה אֶחָד מִסִּדְּרוֹתֵינוּ v.<sup>3</sup> points. There is no departure from strict classic style of syntax. The style, rhythm, and poetic conception are of the best types. There is no dependence on other Lit.; the Ps. is throughout original in conception. Ps. 59<sup>9</sup> has essentially the same two lines as 2<sup>d</sup> quoting our Ps.; Ps. 59 is a preëx. probably the oldest group in  $\psi$  (v. Intr. § 25). This would prove the preëx. date of the Ps., were it not that Ps. 59<sup>9</sup> is probably a gloss. Ps. 110 has the same essential theme. There is a possible connection between the חֶק of v.<sup>7a</sup> and the נָאֵם יְהוָה 110<sup>1</sup>, נִשְׁבַּע יְהוָה 110<sup>4</sup>, although the situation of the king is dissimilar. There is possibly a verbal correspondence between יִלְדֹתֶיךָ v.<sup>7c</sup> and יִלְדֶיךָ 110<sup>3b</sup>. It is difficult to show dependence; but probably 110 is earlier; at least it reflects a more warlike condition of the Davidic monarchy. Ps. 89<sup>28</sup> has the same idea of extensive dominion and sonship in firstborn and עָלִיוֹן לְמַלְכֵי אֶרֶץ. However, with Ps. 132 it laments the failure to realize the covenant and is probably later than Ps. 2, which is so confident of its realization. The Ps. is composed of four str. of 7 trimeters each. There are two parts each of two antith. str. The two parts are in introverted parall. or inclusion. Str. IV. is synon. with Str. I.; these include Str. III. synon. with Str. II. The parall. of the lines of str. with the corresponding lines of synon., or antith. str. has nothing to surpass it. A number of lines are in assonance in מִי — v.<sup>3a</sup> b, 4*a* b, 5*a* b. The Ps. is Messianic because it presents a world-wide dominion of the Son of David, such as was not a historical reality in the time of the poet or in any previous or subsequent time in history, but remains an ideal at the goal of history. Jesus of Nazareth is represented in the NT. as the Son of David and heir of this ideal. God at his baptism recognized him, “Thou art my beloved Son” (that is, Messianic Son) Mk. 1<sup>11</sup>, and at his transfiguration (Mk. 9<sup>2-8</sup>). In his reign from heaven over the world he is gradually fulfilling it. When he ascended into heaven and sat down on the right hand of God, he was installed as Son of God in his world-wide dominion as Messiah. So St. Paul Acts 13<sup>33</sup>, Rom. 1<sup>4</sup>, applies this Ps. to him. Also Heb. 1<sup>5</sup> combines our Ps. with 2 S. 7<sup>14</sup>, and refers them to the enthroned Christ, cf. Heb. 5<sup>5</sup>. Acts 4<sup>25</sup> applies the fruitless rebellion of the nations to the gathering together of Herod and Pilate, the Gentiles and the people of Israel against the crown rights of Jesus. The universal dominion of the Messiah is stated in connection with the enthronement Phil. 2<sup>10-11</sup>. It is only gradually realized, for he must reign until he hath put all his enemies under his feet, 1 Cor. 15<sup>20-28</sup>. At the Second Advent he is to rule with a rod of iron, Rev. 2<sup>27</sup> 12<sup>5</sup> 19<sup>15</sup>. The Ps. is a proper Ps. for Easter.

Str. I. The Ps. conceives of Yahweh as sovereign of all nations; and of the king anointed by Him, as ruling over the kings of the earth. His kingdom is world-wide, cf. 89<sup>28</sup>. The nations, like those subjected by the world-power Babylon, are impatient of this dominion, and accordingly they secretly plot together to throw it off. This is graphically described in 4 syn. lines.—

1. Why do nations consent together?] meet in council and come to a common agreement in their desire of rebellion; so most probably from mng. of Heb. stem and context; “rage” AV., RV., JPSV, “rage furiously” PBV, “tumultuously assemble” RV<sup>m</sup>, Kirk., and so variously, most moderns, are not sustained by usage or context.—peoples devise plans] to make their rebellion successful all in vain] for no plan that they can think of, is possible of realization. 2. Kings of earth take their stand] at the head of their nations, to embolden them and arouse their courage; finally, princes do consult together] in order for common action in real rebellion. They regard themselves as in bondage, bound by bands and tied by cords, as captives and slaves; and with one voice they resolve: 3. Let us tear apart their bands || And let us cast away from us their cords] This is the outcome of their plotting, the climax of their efforts, words and nothing more. They never get so far as actual rebellion. The reason appears in the antistrophe.

Str. II. describes, in 4 syn. lines, 4-5, One throned in heaven] in sublime contrast with the plotting nations. He laughs at them] those nations consenting together.—My sovereign Lord] giving the word its original mng. which is more suited to the context than the proper name Adonay, of Vrss.—mocks at them] those peoples devising plans in vain.—In His anger He speaks unto them] those kings taking their stand; and finally in His burning anger terrifies them] those princes consulting together. Nothing more is necessary. The nations are ready to revolt, but Yahweh is ready for war ; and He terrifies the plotters so that they can do nothing. Yahweh's words sound forth in antithesis to the words of the plotters. 6. I, I have set My king] he is already installed, Yahweh's response to v.<sup>3a</sup> — upon Zion, My sacred mount,] the sacred capitol, to which the vassal nations and kings are bound, His response to their resolution, v.<sup>3b</sup>. 7a. Declaring the decree of Yahweh] so Ⓔ ; these are, however, the words of the poet depending on v.<sup>5</sup>, and probably originally immediately following it, the decree being the words of Yahweh v.<sup>6</sup>, the inviolable law binding all vassals to His dominion : in antith. to v.<sup>2c</sup>. The transposition of this line led Ⓔ to interpret it as words of the king beginning, however, v.<sup>6</sup>, and Ⓕ to make the words of the king begin with v.<sup>7</sup>, both at the expense of the parall. and strs. The Ps. in this decree is thinking of the covenant which Yahweh made with David through Nathan the prophet, constituting David and his seed an everlasting dynasty. That dynasty was set or installed in David, and continued in his seed forever. This covenanted dominion cannot be thrown off. Though it be limited in the time of the poet to a small territory and to a small people, it is, in his ideal, world-wide, universal, over all the nations and kings of the earth. The ideal will certainly be realized, for it is a divine decree ; and though nations and kings may plot to overthrow the dominion, as they did that of the world-powers of Assyria and Babylonia, they will not succeed ; for the world-power of the king is so identified with Yahweh's dominion that that very thought will terrify the rebellious into submission. Zion the sacred mount, consecrated by the theophanic presence of Yahweh in His temple, is the seat of the dominion, the residence, of the anointed king, the capitol of the world, to which all nations and kings are bound, whether by cords of love or bands of iron, cf. Is. 2<sup>2-4</sup> ; Mi. 4<sup>1-4</sup> where the mountain of the house of Yahweh is the resort of all nations for instruction and government, in order to universal peace.

Str. III. 7b. Yahweh said unto me] David himself speaks as the father and representative of his dynasty, quoting Yahweh's words to him by Nathan the prophet. These words are in three progressive couplets, each in syn. parall. within itself. — My son art thou || I, to-day, have begotten thee] David and his seed were adopted as Yahweh's Son on the day of the institution of the Davidic covenant, when first David reigned by right of divine sonship. The poet ideally combines the installation of David, 2 S. 2<sup>4</sup>, with the covenant recognition of sonship, 2 S. 7<sup>11-16</sup>; although the former took place some years earlier. This was an unfolding of the earlier covenant with Israel which constituted Israel as a people, the firstborn son of God, Ex. 4<sup>22-23</sup> (J.), a kingdom of priests, Ex. 19<sup>3-6</sup> (E.). Now the Davidic line, by divine institution, becomes the son and king in a nation, which remains both son and kingdom in larger relations. — 8. The nations || the ends of the earth] A universal, world-wide dominion over them was not contemplated in the covenant with David. The inheritance || possession of the kingdom of Israel was the holy land, Gen. 12<sup>1-3</sup>, 49<sup>10</sup> sq. (v. Br. <sup>MP 481</sup> sq.); that of David's seed, the holy land and holy people. The rule of David extended over Ammon, Moab, Edom, Syria, Philistia; but never reached the extent of the old empires of Egypt, Babylonia, or the Hittites. Subsequently the kingdom of David was divided, each section was reduced, and finally destroyed, the Northern kingdom by Assyria, the Southern by Babylon. These arose successively as the great world-powers; making it evident that if the Davidic kingdom was to be in fact an everlasting kingdom, it must be a world-power, and have ultimate and universal dominion. This logical result of the Davidic covenant, in the light of the history of Babylonia, becomes to the poets of Pss. 2, 89 an essential part of the original covenant, and is put here ideally in the mouth of David himself. — 9. The rule of the Messiah is to be with an iron sceptre, because he has to do with rebellious nations, and these will only obey an iron rule; even though all their array of kings and nations are as a potter's vessel when brought in conflict with the power of the one king who rules as the son of God.

Str. IV. If we take the last line of the Psalm as original, it is necessary to think of the poet as speaking the warning; but then we are struck by the absence of the Messiah. If, however, we regard that line as a liturgical addition, it is better to think of David himself as warning the kings. There are three couplets of warning, with a concluding line giving the reason for it. The first and second are syn. couplets, progressive one to the other; the third is a synth. couplet progressive to the second. Line by line this antistr. corresponds with its str. 10–11. Act prudently, O kings]. You have to deal with Yahweh's words, v.<sup>7a</sup> || be admonished, governors of earth]. You have to do with Yahweh's son, v.<sup>7b</sup> || Serve Yahweh with fear], as vassals, not in the usual religious sense of worship and obedience to the Law; to serve Yahweh's son is to serve Him, v.<sup>7c</sup>. — rejoice in Him with trembling]. Yahweh has given the nations for the king's inheritance, v.<sup>8a</sup>, that is a reason for rejoicing; but that joy should be accompanied with trembling lest He be displeased. — 12. Kiss sincerely] the kiss of the hands in worship, cf. Jb. 31<sup>27</sup>. Worship in purity and fidelity, "with a pure heart" JPSV. because He has given the ends of the earth for the possession of His king, v.<sup>8b</sup>. ¶ paraphrases or had a different text in rendering "lay hold of instruction." EV<sup>s</sup>. "kiss the son," the Messiah, cannot be justified by usage or context, and is based on a misinterpretation due to Syriac and Aramaic influence. If the rulers do not render sincere homage, they may fear lest He be angry || lest ye perish]. He rules with an iron sceptre, v.<sup>9a</sup>; you cannot resist it successfully, you will perish if you try, therefore submit in joy and fear. The reason for this warning is now given, For quickly His anger will be kindled]. This is the climax corresponding with the climax of the previous str., v.<sup>9b</sup>. A liturgical editor adds a general statement which does not suit the ideal situation of the Ps., but which is appropriate to the congregation when they use it in worship. — Happy are all seeking refuge in Him.

Qal pf. 3 pl. √רנש usually explained as cog. with רעש and so a noisy, tumultuous assembling, after 7 turbabuntur; but in late Heb. this mng. is confined to Hithp., and it is doubtful whether the mng. tumultuatus est of 𐤒 is early. At all events this mng. is not suited to the context in any of the forms from the stem in the Heb. or Aram. of OT. The ordinary mng. of the simple form of the stem in Aram. and Syr. is observe, experience, so Hiph. of late Heb. It is better to build on this. The noun [רָנְשׁ] || סוּר 55<sup>15</sup> must mean either company, companionship, or concord; so

Ⲙ ἐν ὁμονοίᾳ in concord, AV. in company; but Ⲛ cum terrore, RV. with the throng are both unsuited to the intimate fellowship of friendship in syn. line. The noun [רִנְשָׁה] || סור 64<sup>3</sup> = Ⲛ a tumultu, Ⲙ ἀπὸ πλῆθους, AV. insurrection, RV. tumult; but none of these is so appropriate as companionship, concord, or possibly conspiracy, for some such mng. seems to be required by the synonymous סור. It is noteworthy that in our Ps. רגש vb. is synonymous with נוסר from יסר denom. סור (see below), and the syn. parall. urges a similar mng. such as be in concord, consent together, for consensus is an easy derivative from sensus, the normal mng. of stem in Aram. This mng. best suits the context. Such a poet as the author of our Ps. would hardly begin with an anticlimax. It should also be said that these three uses, the only ones in Bibl. Heb., are all in Ⲛ. It may also be said that the Aphel of רגש Aram. Dn. 6<sup>7</sup>. 12. 16 cannot with propriety have the strong mng. of tumultuous assembling. The Persian officials would hardly come to their king ר על v. 7. 16 in such a fashion, nor would they be likely in this way to assemble to watch Daniel at prayer, v. 12. The context and the situation would suit better their coming together in concord or in common consent, with one accord, to watch Daniel and to influence the king. Ⲙ ἐφρύαξαν behave arrogantly seems to be a paraphrase, rather than a translation. Since writing the above I have noticed that Ehr. takes essentially the same view with me.—[נוים] pl. 53 t. in ψ, always of foreign nations; sg. coll. of foreign nations 43<sup>1</sup> 105<sup>13</sup>. 13 147<sup>20</sup>; of Israel 33<sup>12</sup> 83<sup>5</sup> 106<sup>5</sup>.—[לְאֻמִּים] pl. of † לְאֻמָּה prop. common, vulgar people (BDB.); poet. sg. people, both of Israel and Edom Gn. 25<sup>23</sup> (J), elsw. of Israel Is. 51<sup>4</sup>; usually pl. of foreign peoples 2<sup>1</sup> 7<sup>8</sup> 9<sup>9</sup> 44<sup>3</sup>. 15 47<sup>4</sup> 57<sup>10</sup> 65<sup>8</sup> 67<sup>6</sup>. 5 105<sup>44</sup> 108<sup>4</sup> 148<sup>11</sup> 149<sup>7</sup>.—[יְהִיגוּ] Qal impf. 3 pl. הִגָּה (see 1<sup>2</sup>) frequentative of repeated action, in the discussion and elaboration of devices over against the emphatic present רגש. ### PSALM III., 4 STR. 4<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 3 is a morning prayer; the first in the order of the Davidic prayer book. The poet exclaims at the number of his adversaries and their denying salvation to him from God (v.<sup>2-3</sup>); asserts that Yahweh was his shield and had answered him (v.<sup>4-5</sup>). He had slept without fear sustained by Yahweh (v.<sup>6-7</sup>), Who had smitten all his enemies, and was his salvation (v.<sup>8-9</sup>).

YAHWEH, how many are mine adversaries!

Many are rising up against me;

Many are saying of me,

There is no salvation for him.

BUT Thou art a shield about me,

My glory and the lifter-up of my head.

Unto Yahweh I called with my voice,

And He answered me from His holy mountain.

I LAID me down and slept;

I awaked, for He kept sustaining me.

I am not afraid of myriads of people,

Which round about were arrayed against me.

FOR Thou hast smitten all my enemies,

The teeth of the wicked Thou hast broken off.

To Thee Yahweh belongeth my salvation;

And upon Thy people rests Thy blessing.

The Ps. was in ד (לירי v. Intr. § 27) and מ (מומר v. Intr. § 31). The title mentions an event in the life of David which in many respects suits the experience of the poet. His derision as one forsaken by God 2 S. 16<sup>7-8</sup>, the danger by night 2 S. 17<sup>1</sup> <sup>84</sup>, the myriads of people 2 S. 15<sup>13</sup>, 17<sup>11</sup>, and his high and honourable position. The Ps. certainly expresses the experience of a monarch, or some chief of the people, whose blessing was wrapt up in his salvation v.<sup>9</sup> and whose enemies were a myriad, in arms against him v.<sup>7</sup>. He is a Davidic chief far from the holy hill of Zion. Yahweh has answered him v.<sup>5</sup> and smitten his enemies v.<sup>8</sup>. The language and style of the Ps. are simple and of the best type. There is no reference to other scripture unless possibly to Gen. 15<sup>1</sup> (E) in the imagery of the shield; but though the word is the same, the construction is different. The expression "sacred hill" is used in preëx. writings. The use of שֵׁט v.<sup>7</sup> in the sense of set in battle array, is elsewhere Is. 22<sup>7</sup>. The Ps. is one of the earliest, and cannot well be later than the period of the monarchy, when it was exposed to the attack of the minor surrounding nations. It would suit well the situation of Jehoshaphat 2 Ch. 20. But, as this is only given in Chr. and not in the parallel of K., it is probable that many other historical experiences, such as that in our Ps., are not recorded in the condensed narratives of the historians. The Ps. gives individual experience, but this became characteristic for the nation, and so the Ps. was adapted to common use, although the language was left in its individual form.

Str. I. 2-3. The poet vividly describes adversaries in four synth. trimeters as many, as rising up against him, as saying of him, and what they say, There is no salvation for him] he does not possess it, and there is no prospect of his ever having it.

Str. II. 4-5. The antistr., in four synth. trimeters, contrasts his real experience with the actions and words of the adversaries: Yahweh a shield about me] antith. v.<sup>2a</sup>; my glory and the lifter up of my head], that is, the one in whom I glory, and the one who has exalted my head in victory over adversaries, antith. v.<sup>2b</sup>; — Unto Yahweh I called] in oft-repeated pleading, aloud with my voice] antith. v.<sup>3a</sup>; He answered me] as an historical fact, the climax, antith. v.<sup>3b</sup>. — From His holy mountain] from Zion (v. 2<sup>6</sup>); salvation has come in response to my prayer and I am in possession of it.

Str. III. 6-7 has two synth. couplets. The poet had not been in such peril and anxiety as his adversaries supposed. He had not been wakeful during the night: far otherwise, he says, I laid me down], calm and undisturbed; and slept]; and when I had sufficient refreshment, I awaked, for], all night long Yahweh kept sustaining me]. Under such an experience of the support of Yahweh, I am not afraid, even of myriads of people. The poet is a king, these myriads are enemies who have come up against him in war; they are foreign people in very great numbers. They are round about], so numerous are they, they surround the king and his army. — they were arrayed] his adversaries put these myriads in battle array against him.

8a. O rise up, Yahweh, Save me, my God] appeal to Yahweh to rise up to activity: a gloss, giving the plea of the people of Israel in troublous times, when surrounded by myriads of enemies, and when they were in a less calm and confident frame of mind than the author of the Ps.

Str. IV. 8b-9. The antistr. gives the well-grounded reason for the calm confidence expressed in the previous str. Yahweh had already given victory and wrought salvation. Thou hast smitten all mine enemies] they have been defeated in battle; that is a reason why he has had a calm and refreshing sleep v.<sup>6a</sup>; — The teeth of the wicked Thou hast broken off], so severely have they been smitten, that they are no longer able to bite. This is the reason for the assurance that God kept sustaining him all night long, v.<sup>6b</sup>. — To Thee belongeth my salvation] Yahweh was his protector, and it was His affair to save him. Therefore he was not afraid of the myriads of enemies, v.<sup>7a</sup>. — Upon Thy people rests Thy blessing]; What matters it then if the enemies are arrayed in arms against them, v.<sup>7b</sup>? Yahweh's blessing not only saves them from evil, but bestows upon them every good that is needful.

PSALM IV., 4 STR. 4<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 4 is an evening prayer. The poet is confident that the God of his right has answered his prayer (v.<sup>2-3</sup>). He tells his adversaries that Yahweh hath shewn extraordinary kindness to him, and warns them to tremble and not sin (v.<sup>4-5</sup>). He then urges his followers to offer the right sacrifices, trust in Yahweh, and pray for prosperity and the priestly benediction (v.<sup>6-7</sup>); then affirms his own gladness and peace and goes to sleep in safety (v.<sup>8-9</sup>).

WHEN I call, answer me, O God of my right;

In my distress Thou hast made room; shew me favour (by hearing) my prayer.

Ye sons of men, how long shall my honour be a reproach,

Will ye love a vain thing, seek after a lie?

BUT know that Yahweh hath shewn extraordinary kindness,

Yahweh heareth when I call unto Him.

Tremble and sin not (ye sons of men).

Say (it) in your heart, (lying) upon your bed, and be still.

(YE sons of mankind) sacrifice right sacrifices,

And trust unto Yahweh, ye many.

Keep saying: "O that He would shew us prosperity, Lift the light of Thy countenance upon us."

YAHWEH, Thou hast put gladness in my heart

More than that of the season when their corn and new wine were abundant.

In peace at once will I lay me down and I will sleep,

For Thou makest me dwell apart, in safety.

Ps. 4 was originally in 𐤁 as a mate to Ps. 3, an evening prayer following naturally a morning prayer. It was then taken up into 𐤁𐤁 and 𐤁𐤁𐤁 and assigned for rendering with the music of stringed instruments בנגינות. (See Intr. § 39.) The date of the Ps. depends upon a variety of considerations: (1) The high priestly benediction Nu. 6<sup>24-26</sup> is familiar to the author, for two of its clauses melt together in נסה אור פניך v.<sup>7b</sup>; and בשלום v.<sup>9a</sup> is suggested by it. This blessing belongs to the sources of P, and was familiar, especially in priestly circles, long before the Exile. (2) The blessing of Moses Dt. 33 is familiar to the author in the phrs. וזכתי צדק v.<sup>6</sup> = Dt. 33<sup>19</sup>; רגנם וחירושהם v.<sup>8b</sup>;

לְבַרְכּוֹ לִבְנֵי חַיִּיבֵי v.<sup>9b</sup> = Dt. 33<sup>28</sup>. These favour an early date. (3) The language is of best classic type. v.<sup>8</sup> בְּנֵי אִישׁ men of high degree in antith. with v.<sup>9a</sup> בְּנֵי אָדָם men of low degree, elsw. in Pss. 49<sup>8</sup> 62<sup>10</sup>; v.<sup>4</sup> הַפְּלִיא חֶסֶד elsw. Ps. 17<sup>7</sup> = הַפְּלִיא Ps. 31<sup>22</sup>. If הַפְּלִיא were from פִּלְהָ a dependence upon Ex. 8<sup>18</sup> 9<sup>4</sup> 11<sup>7</sup> (J) would appear; but this derivation is improbable. v.<sup>5</sup> אָמַר בְּלִבִּי is a phr. of D, here only in ψ. There are two resemblances to previous Ps., cf. v.<sup>7a</sup> with 3<sup>3</sup>, and v.<sup>9a</sup> with 3<sup>6a</sup>; but these are not sufficient to establish common author or date. The language favours a date not earlier than Je. (4) The historical situation is entirely different from that of Ps. 3, where a monarch was in peril from hostile peoples. Here a ruler, probably not a king, is sustained by the people, but oppressed by men of station and influence. By lying, and empty, baseless misrepresentation, they have changed his position of honour to one of reproach. This does not suit the experience of David during the rebellion of Absalom; for the adversaries were not men of rank. These were with David, but the common people were against him, having been seduced by Absalom 2 S. 15<sup>1-6</sup>; and David was not in fact in peace and safety 2 S. 17<sup>24-18</sup>. The experience of the Ps. is that of a reformer. The language of the Ps. favours a priest such as Amariah 2 C. 19<sup>11</sup>, Jehoiada 2 K. 11, Hilkiah 2 K. 22; but all of these excepting the last are too early and none of them were probably sustained by the people over against the princes. The situation is well given in Ezr. 4, where Zerubbabel and Jeshua were opposed at the court of Persia by lies and slanders, which had no basis in fact; and their honour was clouded by such attacks and their work really stayed. This would suit all the conditions of the Ps.

Str. I. 2. The poet prays that when he calls, Yahweh will answer him. It is just because Yahweh is the God of my right] the God who vindicates his cause against his adversaries and establishes his right, that he can so address Him and pray with confidence to Him. This is fortified in the syn. line by past experience; the God of his right has vindicated his right, when in distress, and has made room for him. Distress is here a being constrained into narrow limits; pressed from rightful freedom, and shut in on every side. The antith. is the removal of such restraint and pressure, giving room and freedom. The request for answer is strengthened into shew me favour (by hearing) my prayer. "The word suggests the free bestowal of favour rather than the exercise of forgiving clemency" (Kirk); or pity for sufferers.—3. The call upon God is followed by antith. remonstrance with his adversaries, who refuse his right and have brought him into distress. They are sons of men] men of rank, of high degree, and so have had the power to reduce his honour || right, to reproach, || distress.

They have done this because they are themselves false and dishonourable men. — Will ye love a vain thing?] empty and without reality, more specific — seek after a lie]. The reproach that they have brought upon him is thus branded as false, without foundation, and a lie. The charge is concrete and specific; “falsehood” (RV., Dr., JPSV) is too general; “leasing” (PBV, AV.) is obsolete for lie.

Str. II. 4. In the antistr., the poet gives his adversaries to know, in the first syn. couplet, that Yahweh hath shewn extraordinary kindness] as 17<sup>7</sup> 31<sup>22</sup> renewing the experience of v.<sup>2</sup>. ¶, though sustained by Vrss. ancient and modern and most critics with the mng. : hath separated, set apart, or distinguished, for Himself, the pious, godly man, is not so well suited to context and is not sustained by good usage. — Yahweh heareth when I call unto Him] constant experience resuming v.<sup>2a</sup>. 5. In the second syn. couplet, he warns them that had brought his honour to reproach, to tremble and not sin] by taking the steps necessary to realise their thoughts, make them effective in conduct. Over against their loving a vain thing and seeking out a lie against him, the poet warns them; say (what you have to say) in your heart, to yourselves, in secret, while lying upon your bed, and be still] give no expression to your wicked thoughts.

Str. III. The poet now turns to his discouraged people. 6. They are sons of mankind] men of low degree over against the sons of men, men of high degree v.<sup>3</sup>; the measure as well as the antith. requires this insertion. He exhorts them to sacrifice right sacrifices] while he is calling on the God of his right, v.<sup>2a</sup>. These were the normal sacrifices, in accordance with law and custom (Du., Bā.), rather than “of righteousness” offered in a right spirit (Pe., De., Hu., Kirk) or symb. of righteous acts (Aug, Chrysostom) or which justify, cf. v.<sup>2</sup>, Genebr. 7. He reminds his followers that they are many in numbers, and they should trust unto Yahweh, Who has made room for him in the past and Who shews favour to him in his prayer v.<sup>2b</sup>. He urges them to keep saying] expressing the wish, the strong desire, “O that He would shew us prosperity”], so JPSV, antith. to the reproach that has come upon their chiefs, cf. v.<sup>3a</sup>. This is better suited to the context than the question “Who will shew us?” of EV<sup>a</sup>. They should beg the bestowal of the divine benediction, Lift the light of Thy countenance upon us, in place of the vain thing and the lie, that the adversaries have sought out against him. The poet is thinking of the blessing of the high priest, Nu. 6<sup>24-26</sup> (P), which wishes that the light of Yahweh's face may shine upon His people with favour, bestowing peace and prosperity. This blessing the Psalmist seeks directly from Yahweh Himself, so 67<sup>2</sup>, cf. 44<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>16</sup>.

Str. IV. The antistr. asserts the poet's gladness, peace, and safety, over against the prayers of his people in the previous str., in introverted parallel clauses. Yahweh, Thou hast put gladness in my heart] the response to the prayer v.<sup>7b</sup>. This joy is greater than that of those who in harvest season rejoice that their corn and new wine were abundant]. This is in response to the petition v.<sup>7a</sup>. He resolves to lay him down and go to sleep at once, in peace, in the experience of that same trusting unto Yahweh which he has commended to his followers v.<sup>6b</sup>. He enjoys the calm peace which is imparted in the priestly benediction for which they had asked. Thou makest me dwell apart in safety] response to the offering of right sacrifices by his people v.<sup>6a</sup>. In calm, peaceful trust he goes to sleep upon his bed with this evening prayer upon his lips.

PSALM V., 5 STR. 4<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 5 is a prayer composed for public worship. The choir, at morning sacrifice, prays Yahweh to hearken to the cry for help (v.<sup>2-4</sup>); for evil and wickedness of speech and action have no place in His presence and are abhorrent to Him (v.<sup>5-7</sup>). Standing in the court and worshipping towards the temple, they pray for guidance (v.<sup>8-9</sup>); because the adversaries have abundant wickedness in mind, speech, and act, they plead that God would thrust them forth from His people (v.<sup>10-11</sup>); and they intercede for blessing upon all who seek refuge in Him (v.<sup>12-13</sup>).

- GIVE ear to my words, Yahweh; consider my murmuring;
 O hearken to the voice of my crying for help, my King, and my God;
 For unto Thee I pray in the morning, Thou hearest my voice;
 In the morning I set in order (my prayer) for Thee and I keep watch (for Thee).
 F FOR Thou art not a God taking delight in wickedness, evil cannot be Thy guest;
 Boasters cannot take their stand before Thine eyes;
 Thou dost hate all workers of trouble, speakers of a lie;
 Men of blood and deceit Thou abhorrest, Yahweh.
 B BUT as for me through the abundance of Thy kindness I enter Thy house;
 I worship with the reverence that is due Thee, towards Thy holy temple.
 Yahweh lead me in Thy righteousness because of those lying in wait for me;
 Even before me Thy way: (before Thee are my ways).

FOR there is no right in their mouth, in their heart is ruin ;

An open grave is their throat, with their tongue they flatter.

Declare them guilty, O (my) God, let them fall from their plans :

In the abundance of their wickedness thrust them out, for they rebelled against Thee.

BUT let all that seek refuge in Thee, rejoice, forever shout for joy ;

And let them exult in Thee, all that love Thy name ;

For Thou on Thy part blessest the righteous, Yahweh,

And Thou coverest them over with a great shield, with favour crownest them.

Ps. 5 was in D as the 2d morning prayer, then in M and also in DK as its 1st morning prayer (v. Intr. § 27. 31. 33). There seems to be a designed antithesis between the assignment of Ps. 4, an evening prayer בנגינת with stringed instruments, and Ps. 5 a morning prayer אל הנחילות for flute playing (v. Intr. § 39), probably because the former was regarded as more suited to evening prayer, the preparation for sleep; and the latter to morning prayer, the preparation for work. The antith. between the righteous and the wicked differs much from that of Ps. 1 and implies a much earlier date. The Ps. lacks the personal experience of Pss. 3-4, and is throughout that of the congregation of righteous worshippers. The wicked are wicked men in Israel itself. They are chiefly wicked in tongue: expressions are heaped up for this, boasters, v.<sup>6</sup>, speakers of a lie, men of deceit, v.<sup>7</sup>, no right in their mouth, an open grave their throat, with their tongue they flatter, v.<sup>10</sup>. Such do not appear in Preëx. or Exil. Literature; but in the peaceful times of Persian and Greek dominion. They are also men, who in their mind plot ruin, v.<sup>10</sup>, and have plans against the righteous, v.<sup>11</sup>, and they are also workers of trouble, v.<sup>6</sup>, men of blood, v.<sup>7</sup>; they rebel against Yahweh, v.<sup>11</sup>. The righteous on the other hand are those who observe morning prayer and sacrifice in the courts of the temple, v.<sup>4</sup>,<sup>8</sup>, from which evil is excluded from being a guest, v.<sup>6</sup>; they seek refuge in Yahweh and love His name, v.<sup>12</sup>. The author may have been one of the Levitical singers of the 2d temple. If so, his Ps. must have been composed earlier than those Levitical Pss. which appear in K and A. It must have been written in times of external peace and internal strife; after the second temple had been long built; and sacrifices were habitual in its courts—thus in the middle Persian period.

Str. I. 2. The choir, standing in the court of the temple, v.<sup>8</sup>, prays: O give ear to my words, Yahweh], those of this Ps., which has as its complement, consider my murmuring], the faint utterance which accompanies the words, and also has its petition. This makes better parall. than EV<sup>a</sup> “meditation.” — 3. The syn. clause is O hearken to the voice of my crying for help]. The righteous need help as the next Str. shows; and their words are a cry, aloud with the voice to Yahweh for it. The complement of l. 2 is syn.

with Yahweh, who is here in the plea, my King and my God], in personal special relations to the righteous petitioners, and in the double relation as King of the kingdom of Israel, and God of His people.—4. The reason for hearing is given in the syn. couplet, which is also syn. to the previous couplet. For unto Thee I pray in the morning], at the appointed hour of sacrifice, when Yahweh was accustomed to hear the voice of His worshippers in the liturgical morning prayer at the morning sacrifice.—I set in order] arrange, supplying “my prayer” EV<sup>s</sup>. JPSV, “my case,” Dr., “cause,” Kirk, possibly of the parts of prayer with an allusion to the parts of the sacrifice.—and I keep watch], for God’s manifestation of His acceptance of the prayer as it ascends to Him, with the flame of the sacrifice of the altar.

Str. II. 5–7. The reason for the prayer for help is given in four syn. lines. Those who occasion the cry for help are described as having wickedness and its complement evil, syn. with which are boasters of the evil which they plan and do, workers of trouble, with its complement, speakers of a lie; and men of blood and deceit. Wickedness and evil of speech are chiefly emphasized in these boasters, characteristics of wickedness in postex. Israel; but wickedness of violent action is also involved in men of blood and workers of trouble. God’s attitude towards these men is graphically stated in the syn. clauses: Thou art not a God taking delight in], but the very reverse, as is brought out in the complementary statement, evil cannot be Thy guest], be welcome in the house, in the courts of Yahweh, among His worshippers; || stand before Thine eyes], in the choir of worshippers, standing before the temple building; followed by the positive statement, Thou dost hate; and the climax, abhor. This attitude of God towards those against whom the choir of Israel cries for help, gives strong reason for the assurance that He will give that help.

Str. III. 8. The choir returns to the direct petition of the first Str.; stating in a syn. couplet, parall. to the second couplet of the first Str., the fact: I enter Thy house || I worship towards Thy holy temple], indicating with sufficient clearness that the choir is in the precincts of the temple, and prostrating themselves in the court, looking towards the temple, the throne room of Yahweh’s abode. These clauses are qualified with the recognition of the abundance of kindness of Yahweh which permitted this entrance, and a devout statement of the reverence with which the worship was accompanied. — 9. The second couplet is parallel with the first couplet of Str. I., only the petition, “give ear, consider, hearken,” advances to, lead me, with its syn., even before me, and the sphere of it, Thy righteousness || Thy way. Guidance in life is needed because of those lying in wait, the insidious foes described above in the previous Str. and again in the following. The last clause omitted by MT., but suggested by Vrss., is the climax, before Thee are my ways] complementary of, Even before me Thy way,] even them, make them Thy way.]

Str. IV. 10–11 is syn. with the second Str. and is a stronger representation of the attitude of God towards the wicked. There are two couplets, making four syn. lines. The emphasis upon wickedness of speech is still stronger; There is no right in their mouth], with its complement in their heart], that is in their mind, — ruin], the plan in their mind is to engulf the righteous in ruins; cf. 52<sup>4</sup> and so || an open grave is their throat, with its complement, with their tongue they flatter. There is yet in the last line wickedness of action, in the abundance of their wickedness, with its complement, for they rebelled against Thee. The attitude of God towards them passes over, from their exclusion from the temple worship, God’s hatred and abhorrence of them, in Str. II., to the stronger and more aggressive; declare them guilty, with its complement, let them fall from their plans], fail in them, and the climax, thrust them out.

Str. V. 12–13 is a final intercession which is parall. with Str. I. and III.; but needs no subsequent Str. parall. with II. and IV.; for the wicked have been left behind, thrust out from the community, as well as excluded from the temple. The choir accordingly rises, from petition for help, to intercession for the righteous. This is in two couplets, which again are syn. throughout. They are described as those that seek refuge in Thee], in the temple worship || ; love Thy name], the holy name of Yahweh, as connected with His holy temple. They are finally designated as the righteous. These, in the syn. clauses; rejoice, with its complement, forever shout for joy; || exult in Thee; three terms for the liturgy of temple worship. The climax is reached in the more comprehensive blessest, and its specific double simile of tender care and loving attention; coverest them over with a great shield], so guarding from all evil and adversaries; and its complement, with favour crownest them], as favoured guests rejoicing at a feast in their honour, cf. 23<sup>5</sup>, 103<sup>4</sup>.

PSALM VI., 4 STR. 5<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 6 is a penitential prayer. The congregation prays Yahweh not to chasten in anger; but to heal the long-continued languishing and dismay (v. 2<sup>4a</sup>); pleads that the peril of death may cease, for there can be no ritual commemoration of Yahweh in Sheol (v. 4<sup>b-6</sup>). The sufferings are indeed extreme: weariness, nights of complaining, bursts of tears, and eye wasting because of the adversaries (v. 7<sup>8</sup>). But Yahweh has heard the prayer, and the enemies must depart in shame (v. 9<sup>11</sup>).

YAHWEH, do not in Thine anger rebuke me,
 Do not in Thy rage chasten me :
 Be gracious to me, for I am languishing ;
 Heal me, for dismayed are my bones ;
 Yea exceedingly dismayed is my soul.

BUT Thou, O Yahweh, how long (shall it continue) ?
 O return, deliver my life ;
 Save me for the sake of Thy kindness ;
 For in death there is no commemoration of Thee ;
 In Sheol who can give Thee (ritual) praise ?

(FOR) I am weary with my groaning ;
 I must complain every night on my bed ;
 I make dissolve with my tears my couch.
 Wasteth away because of grief mine eye ;
 Waxeth old because of all mine adversaries.

DEPART, ye workers of trouble from me ;
 For He hath heard the voice of my weeping,
 Yahweh hath heard my supplication,
 Yahweh accepteth my prayer ;
 They will turn back, they will be put to shame in a moment.

Ps. 6 was in II, its first penitential prayer. It was taken up into III and III (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33), and appointed to be sung with the bass voice על-השמינית to the accompaniment of stringed instruments בנגינת (v. Intr. § 39), both peculiarly appropriate to the musical expression of penitence. The Ps. was composed for the congregation, and there is no trace in it of the experience of an individual. It is doubtless the earliest of the seven penitential Pss. 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 130, 143, and prior to the penitential prayers Ezr. 9; Ne. 9; Dn. 9. The church appropriately assigns these Pss. to Ash Wednesday. Ps. 6 is related to several other passages of OT. (1) v.<sup>2</sup> differs from Ps. 38<sup>2</sup> only in that the latter omits אֵל in second clause, and substitutes the late קָצַף for the earlier and simpler אָף. Je. 10<sup>24</sup> has a similar thought, and possibly was in the mind of the author. (2) v.<sup>6b</sup> is similar to Is. 38<sup>18</sup> בְּשִׂאוֹל מִיִּדְּהָלָךְ = כִּי לֹא שִׂאוֹל תִּדְּרָה (v. Intr. § 25), where we have מִכְתָּם = מִכְתָּב, v.<sup>6b</sup>; but the measure shows that we must read יִדְּרָה. Is. 38 is pentameter, Ps. 6, trimeter, therefore changes were necessary. In || line of Ps. 6 יָגֵר is used, and in the other half of line of Is. 38<sup>18</sup> הֵלֵל. The latter is the simpler and probably the earlier usage. יָגֵר in the sense of commemoration is only elsw. Pss. 30<sup>5</sup> 97<sup>12</sup> 102<sup>18</sup> 111<sup>4</sup>. The thought is more natural and more appropriate to the context of Is. 38 than to Ps. 6; it was essential there, but not so essential here. The Ps. is therefore later. (3) v.<sup>7a</sup> is identical with Je., which latter is certainly original. (4) v.<sup>8a</sup> is the same as Ps. 31<sup>10b</sup>, except that מִן takes the place of בְּ. We may safely conclude that Ps. 6 was later than Je. and Is. 38, but earlier than Pss. 31 and 38. The adversaries, who caused so much grief to the congregation, were not wicked rulers of Israel or hostile nations, but workers of trouble in Israel itself. They are not represented as a class over against the צְרוּקִים and חֲסִידִים (cf. Ps. 18<sup>3</sup>); but in a simpler and more primitive way. They were probably the enemies of the congregation of the Restoration, who were restoring the ritual worship in Jerusalem, in the midst of great hostility on the part of their neighbours and also of the lower grade of people, who did not cordially unite in their reform. The Ps. is one of the choicest specimens of the use of assonance. The lines require but few transpositions to have them all end in יָ, except in the Str. II. v. <sup>5b</sup>. 6a-b, which purposely end in הָ for the expression of formal antithesis, and in the last lines of Strs. III. and IV. v. <sup>8b</sup>. 11a, where intentionally pl. יָ takes the place of sing. יָ for the other four lines of these str. Besides, there is assonance in הָ in v. <sup>7b</sup>. c. 8a. d. Several trimeters were injured by later scribes by the insertion of יָהוָה for greater clearness of meaning, v. <sup>3a</sup>. b (not in B) 5a. 9b, and by amplification, by insertion of כָּל v. <sup>8a</sup> and מָאֵר v. <sup>11a</sup>. Only one line is too short in B, occasioned by the omission of כִּי after לֵךְ.

Str. I. 2. The congregation prays Yahweh in two syn. couplets; negatively, do not rebuke || do not chasten, in thine anger || in thy rage; thus recognising that Yahweh had sufficient reason to be angry with them and to be in rage against them; and that their sufferings were due to His rebuke and chastisement. — 3. They have now suffered sufficiently, and so, in a second syn. couplet, also syn. to the first, they pray positively be gracious to me, more specifically, heal me, the reason for which is their great need: I am languishing || I am dismayed. This latter is in the last line limited to the bones, which does not imply physical injury; but, as in other Pss. of penitence and lamentation, the sympathy of nerves and bones with the emotions and passions; and so the aching of the bodily frame in accord with the internal emotional agony, which now is expressed in climax. — 4a. yea exceedingly dismayed is my soul.

Str. II. 4b. The prayer becomes more intense. The first line expostulates with Yahweh for the long continuance of the chastisement, with its suffering and peril. — How long? shall it yet continue? This is followed by two syn. couplets, the second synth. to the first, giving the reason for it. — 5. In the first couplet is the plea, — O return ] with favour, condensing the thought of the previous line. The long continuance of suffering seems to imply divine absence or inattention. — Deliver || save ] make the return effective by redemptive interposition. It is the life of the congregation that is in peril by the continuance of this chastisement, and the kindness of Yahweh which is strained by it.—6. The motive proposed for this deliverance is, that if the life of the community is destroyed, the commemoration of Yahweh || His praise, in the worship of the ritual, will be destroyed; and though the congregation may continue their existence in the realm of Death and the cavern of Sheol, the abode of the dead, they will be no longer a congregation worshipping Yahweh in the ritual of the temple, as prescribed by Yahweh in His Law, and so well pleasing to Him. The Sheol of the Hebrews corresponds with Hades of the Greeks, the subterranean region whither all mankind go at death and live in a shadowy state of existence.

Str. III. 7. The congregation now intensifies the plea in five syn. lines, describing their sad condition, which again subdivides into an introductory line and two syn. couplets. The groaning has continued so long, and has become so intense, that they are weary, worn out with it.—Every night on the bed, || the couch, they must complain, and with such an intensity of grief, that tears burst from the eyes in a flood, wet the couch, and cause it to dissolve, as in a stream of rushing water. The figure seems extravagant to Western taste, but not to the Oriental. But it is still more extravagant in MT. and Vrss. in the previous line: “make my bed swim.” This, by a change of vocalisation merely, gives the more suitable mng. “must complain,” as we have given it above.—8. The eye wasteth away by this continual weeping, because of grief; and it waxeth old, becomes like the weakened, enfeebled eye of an old man, with little power of vision, — because of all mine adversaries] whose actions cause such grief and such bursts of tears.

Str. IV. 9–11. — The congregation have not been overwhelmed by their grief and the divine chastisement; their prayer receives its answer while they are making it. They express their confidence in a Str. of introverted parall. wherein the first and last lines are syn., and find their reason in the intervening syn. triplet. The reason is that Yahweh hath heard (repeated in emphasis) || accepteth]. That which he heard was the voice of my weeping || my supplication || my prayer. Therefore the congregation warns the workers of trouble = adversaries, v.<sup>8b</sup>: Depart from me; and expresses the assurance that they will turn back, they will be put to shame, and that in a moment, instantly without delay. This shaming of the enemies in the climax is in striking antith. to the anxiety they have caused the congregation, v.<sup>3b, 4a</sup>. A later editor, wishing to emphasise this still more, inserts v.<sup>11a</sup>.

They shall be shamed, and they shall be dismayed exceedingly, all mine enemies.

PSALM VII., 2 STR. 10<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 7 is a prayer for deliverance from a personal enemy: (1) a petition for salvation from his pursuer, with an imprecation of death upon himself, if he had done the wrong charged against him (v.<sup>2-6</sup>); (2) expressing confidence that Yahweh was preparing weapons against his pursuer, and that his mischief and treachery would receive just retribution (v.<sup>13-17</sup>). Subsequent editors inserted a plea for the judgment of the nations in an ultimate world judgment (v.<sup>7-8</sup>), a judgment between the righteous and wicked in Israel (v.<sup>9b-12</sup>), and a liturgical couplet of praise (v.<sup>18</sup>).

MY God, in Thee do I seek refuge;
 Save me from him that pursues, and deliver me;
 Lest, like a lion, he tear me,
 While there be (none) to tear away and none to deliver.
 My God, if I have done this,
 If there be iniquity in my palms,
 If I requited him that was at peace with me with evil;
 Let him pursue me, and let him overtake me,
 And let him tread to the earth my life,
 And my honour let him lay in the dust.
IF not, He whets His sword,
 Doth tread His bow and make it ready,
 And doth prepare for him deadly weapons;
 His arrows He maketh into fiery ones.
 Lo! he travaileth with iniquity,
 And conceiveth mischief and bringeth (it) forth.
 A pit he hath dug and dug out,
 And he will fall into the hole he is making.
 His mischief will return on his own head,
 And upon his own pate his violence come down.

Ps. 7 was in B, but only in its original form. In that form the historical reference in the title "which he sang to Yahweh because of the words of Cush, the Benjamite" has some propriety; although there is no mention of such a person in the history of the times of David. This fact gives some force to the correctness of a tradition only preserved here; for we know of nothing in the Literature upon which it could be based. There is nothing in the original form of the Ps. that prevents the composition by David under some such circumstances, when he was pursued by Saul and his Benjamite warriors. The traditional circumstance may, however, have been an editorial conjecture. This prayer appropriately follows Ps. 6 in B. It was not included in E or BB. Accordingly, no musical assignment was made. G, F have מוֹמֵר, implying its use in HH (v. Intr. § 31) instead of שָׁנוֹן of H which was probably a txt. err. The word has not yet been explained (v. Intr. § 34). There is a striking inconsistency between the plea for interposition against an individual enemy in v.<sup>2-6, 13-17</sup> and the judgment of nations v.<sup>7-9a</sup>, and between the righteous and wicked in Israel v.<sup>10-12</sup> (v. Bi., Che.). This can only be explained by the insertion of these latter as glosses, to give the Ps. a more general reference for congregational use under later circumstances. Moreover v.<sup>2-6, 13-17</sup> are trimeters: v.<sup>7-12</sup> in the main at least pentameters. Ch. is mistaken in regarding v.<sup>7-12</sup> as homogeneous. There is a difference between Yahweh's judgment of the nations v.<sup>7-8</sup> and Elohim's judgment of the wicked in Israel v.<sup>10-12</sup>. The original Ps. is very early, possibly as early as David; the Yahwistic gloss belongs to the Persian period, the Elohist gloss to the Greek period. Other minor glosses harmonized in a measure the differences, and a liturgical addition made the Ps. more appropriate for use.

Str. I. is composed of a trimeter tetrastich followed by two trimeter tristichs. — 2-3. The tetrastich has a synth. couplet stating, My God, in Thee do I seek refuge] followed by the petition, save me from him that pursues me and deliver me]. The poet was pursued by a personal enemy, an individual; and has sought refuge in Yahweh for deliverance, possibly at the sanctuary itself. A synth. couplet gives the reason for the plea, lest, like a lion, he tear me]. The pursuer will tear him, as a lion his prey, unless his God saves him. There is none (other) to tear him away, from this lion, and none (else) to deliver him. The pursuer seems to have some pretext for this pursuit: he charges the poet with violation of covenant and personal injury. This the poet repudiates before his God, in a syn. tristich of conditional clauses, followed by a syn. tristich of imprecation upon himself if the condition which he denies be true. — 4-5a. If I have done this] the specific thing charged against him by his pursuer; if there be iniquity in my palms] a phr. usually referring to the acceptance of bribes: it can hardly be physical injury by the hands, for there could be no dispute about that. — if I requited him that was at peace with me with evil] that is, one in a covenant of peace, a friend who had a right to look for good treatment, involving therefore treacherous breach of friendship and covenant, justly exciting the penalty of pursuit and death. He recognises the rightfulness of the pursuit if his statement be false. — 6. Let him pursue me] as he is doing, v.<sup>2b</sup>, and furthermore, let him overtake me], do not save me from him, v.<sup>2b</sup>, and let him tread to the earth my life], trample me under foot and kill me as v.<sup>3a</sup>, and my honour], phr. for living soul, life, let him lay in the dust], throw down prostrate in the dust of death, cf. v.<sup>3b</sup>. A later editor, adapting the Str. for congregational use, makes the pursuer pl.: “all that pursue me” v.<sup>2b</sup>, inserts “enemy” v.<sup>6a</sup>, and makes a premature renouncement of treachery.

Nay, I used to rescue them that were my adversaries to no purpose (v.<sup>5b</sup>).

7-12 constitute a series of glosses separating the two Strs. of the original Ps. They take a wider outlook than the rescue of an individual from his personal enemy; they contemplate the judgment of the nations, and of the wicked adversaries of the righteous in Israel. There were probably three separate stages in these glosses v.<sup>7-8</sup>, v.<sup>9a</sup>, and v.<sup>9b-12</sup>. 7-8 were probably three pentameters in the original text. They are syn. lines of beauty and power written by a real poet.

O arise, Yahweh, in Thine anger; lift Thyself up in outbursts of rage;
O rouse Thyself, Yahweh my God, to the judgment Thou hast commanded,
While the congregation of peoples assemble around Thee, on high O sit enthroned.

Yahweh is urged in a pressing appeal: O arise, Yahweh, || lift Thyself up || O rouse Thyself, Yahweh my God || on high O sit enthroned.] These were probably the original readings. (For variations see textual notes.) It is an invocation of the congregation of Israel to their national God to intervene on their behalf; to sit on His throne of judgment and convoke all parties to His judgment seat. It is assumed that the decision will be in favour of His people, in anger || outbursts of rage] manifested in striking ways. It is also affirmed that such a judgment has been already commanded. The people of God were sure that it would eventually take place, they are in such straits that they urge that it shall be at once. — While the congregation of peoples assemble around Thee]. It is a judgment of nations, gathered from all parts about the divine throne for that purpose. This reflects an entirely different situation from that of the original Ps., and a state of mind represented in Pss. 96-100, cf. Jo. 3.

9a, a trimeter line, Yahweh judgeth the peoples], is entirely apart from previous or subsequent context, stating a fact in the midst of earnest entreaties for judgment. It is a marginal gloss.

9b-12 is a series of pentameters of a different type from the original Ps. and also from v.<sup>7-8</sup>.

JUDGE me, Yahweh, according to my righteousness, according to the integrity that is upon me.

O let the evil of the wicked come to an end, and establish the righteous.

A trier of hearts and reins is the righteous God.

My shield is upon God, a Saviour of the upright in mind.

God is a righteous judge, an 'El taking vengeance every day.

The antith. is now, not between the individual and his pursuer, nor between Yahweh and the nations, but between the righteous and the wicked in Israel itself; and so is of a much later date. The judgment is not an ultimate one, but a daily testing and taking vengeance; and the divine name is Elohim and not Yahweh.

This gloss is not earlier than the Greek period (cf. Ps. 1). The author represents the righteous in Israel. The key word of the five lines is righteousness, according to my righteousness v.<sup>9b</sup>, the righteous v.<sup>10a</sup>, the righteous God v.<sup>10b</sup>, the upright in mind v.<sup>11b</sup>, righteous judge v.<sup>12</sup>; cf. the syn. terms for judgment: judge me v.<sup>9b</sup>, establish v.<sup>10a</sup>, in the sense of vindicate, cf. 99<sup>4</sup>; trier v.<sup>10b</sup>, Saviour v.<sup>11</sup>, judge v.<sup>12</sup>. In the other parts of the lines according to the integrity that is upon me v.<sup>9b</sup> has as its antith., O let the evil of the wicked come to an end v.<sup>10a</sup>; trier of hearts and reins has as its antith. taking vengeance every day. — My shield over me is God], protecting me from all enemies as 3<sup>4</sup>. ¶ “upon God” makes God the shield bearer of His people, a conception which all EV.<sup>s</sup> shrink from, in their varied modes of paraphrase. It is possible that the text of ¶ v.<sup>12a</sup> is correct: strong and patient; if so, the pentameter line is complete without “El taking vengeance every day,” and that must be regarded as a minor gloss. But it is better suited to the context than the additional words of ¶, and gives a better climax. Rather ¶ is a gloss.

Str. II. 13 sq. is an antistr. The condition of the imprecation in the previous Str. is taken for granted as false, in the abrupt if not] without vb. in the original, (“if it is not so, and it is not”; explained by gloss, if he, the pursuer, turn not). Yahweh becomes the pursuer of the poet’s pursuer. This is expressed in four syn. trimeters in antith. with v.<sup>2-3</sup>, so ancient Vrss. EV.<sup>s</sup> and most comm., but many moderns Che., Bā., Du., Ehr. make the enemies of Str. I. the actor here also. — 13-14. He whets His sword] in behalf of the one who has sought refuge in Him v.<sup>2a</sup>; He doth tread His bow and make it ready], to save from the pursuer v.<sup>2b</sup>; He doth prepare for him deadly weapons], to kill the lion ready to tear his prey v.<sup>3a</sup>; His arrows He maketh into fiery ones], in response to the apparent abandonment of v.<sup>3b</sup>. This tetrastich is followed by two trimeter tristichs v.<sup>15-16a</sup> v.<sup>16b-17</sup>, bringing out the true character of the pursuer and his ultimate ruin. — 15-16a. Lo! he travaileth with iniquity], over against the false charge against the poet v.<sup>4a</sup>; and conceiveth mischief and bringeth it forth], in antith. with v.<sup>4b</sup>. A gloss gives an object “falsehood” to the third vb., but that makes the line too long and mars the effect of the single word, mischief, syn. with iniquity. The pursuer is compared to a woman in childbirth: mischief is the babe which is born. — A pit he hath dug and dug out], passing over from the metaphor of childbirth to the metaphor of making a pit to ensnare animals, common in  $\psi$ . This is antith. to  $v^{5a}$ ; instead of the poet being the treacherous violator of covenant and friendship, the man, who pursues him with false charges, has tried to take him like an animal in the covered pit. — 16b-17. The final tristich is in antith. with the imprecation  $v^{6}$ ; the imprecation falls on the pursuer and not on the pursued. He will fall into the hole he is making] antith. with  $v^{6a}$ ; his mischief will return on his own head] antith. with  $v^{6b}$ ; and upon his own pate will his violence come down] over against  $v^{6c}$ . And so, seeking refuge in God, the poet sees God pursuing his pursuer, and bringing upon him the retribution which he demanded for the wrong which he himself had done.

18. A later editor added a liturgical gloss as a suitable close of the Ps. in its final form after it had been generalised and adapted for public worship.

I will praise Yahweh according to His righteousness
And I will make melody to the name of Elyon.

This liturgical couplet is a trimeter like the original Ps. It is syn. — I will praise] in public praise || I will make melody. Yahweh is the object of the first line, Elyon, the Most High, of the second line. The second Yahweh has been inserted as gloss. The name] of the second line is syn. with according to His righteousness of the first.

But such a parenthesis would not be expressed by ו consec., and has more of the nature of a gloss than the thought of the poet, who seems to balance the three lines of apodosis over against the three of protasis. Such a parenthesis would use ו coörd. and perfect for single act, or imperfect for frequentative; but then why cohort. form? Ges., De., Bā. think of a derivative mng. spoil, despoiled not known to Heb. elsw. exc. in n. חָלַץ plunder 2 S. 22<sup>1</sup> Ju. 14<sup>19</sup>; but found in Aram. Σ, T, Houh., Dy., Gr., Che., Du., rd. נֶחְלַץ, לחץ oppress Pss. 56<sup>2</sup> 106<sup>42</sup>. But this is not in accord with other lines of protasis, where the one supposed to be injured is a friend and ally, and not an adversary, still less an adversary who has not succeeded in accomplishing anything. The line is not consistent with the context. It is really an antith. gloss which anticipates the apodosis. The glossator means to say, he has done the very reverse of injury to his friend: he has delivered habitually his adversaries, while they have vainly and without result striven against him. — † רִיקָה] adv. in vain, without accomplishing anything, v. PSALM VIII., 2 STR. 8<sup>3</sup> + RF. 2<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 8 is an evening hymn in two synth. trimeter octastichs, contrasting the glory of man as creature with the glory of the Creator. The Strs. are enclosed by identical trimeter couplets, praising the name of Yahweh as widespread in all the earth (v.<sup>2a.10</sup>). An initial prayer that Yahweh would set His splendour above the heavens, is followed by a contemplation of His strength, in the speech of sucklings, overcoming His enemies; and of the insignificance of man when compared with moon and stars (v.<sup>2b-5</sup>). Man made lower than the gods is yet sovereign of all creatures (v.<sup>6-9</sup>).

YAHWEH, our Sovereign Lord,

How magnificent is Thy name in all the earth.

O SET Thy splendour above the heavens!
 Out of the mouth of little children and sucklings
 Thou dost establish strength, because of Thine adversaries,
 To still the enemy and the avenger.
 When I see the work of Thy fingers.
 Moon and stars which Thou hast prepared;
 What is man that Thou shouldst be mindful of him?
 Or the son of mankind that Thou shouldst visit him?

WHEN Thou didst make him a little lower than the Elohim,
 With glory and honour crowning him,
 Making him to have dominion over the works of Thine hands;
 All things Thou didst put under his feet;
 Cattle small and large, all of them,
 And also beasts of the field,
 Birds, and fish of the sea,
 Those that pass through the paths of the sea.

YAHWEH, our Sovereign Lord,

How magnificent is Thy name in all the earth.

Ps. 8 was originally in B, and then taken up into M and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). In the latter it received the assignment על הנחית, probably to be sung to a well-known vintage song (v. Intr. § 39). The linguistic evidence favours the Persian period י ארניו v.<sup>2.10</sup>, elsw. only Ne. 10<sup>20</sup>; the glory of God על השמים v.<sup>2</sup>, cf. 57<sup>6.12</sup> (= 108<sup>6</sup>) 83<sup>19</sup> +, all late; אויב ומתנקם v.<sup>3</sup> elsw. 44<sup>17</sup>, צנה v.<sup>8</sup> א.ל., for צנה. The relation of v.<sup>6-9</sup> to Gn. 1<sup>26-28</sup> is evident. Gn. 1<sup>27</sup> and מאלהים v.<sup>6</sup> must be interpreted in the same way as referring to gods, that is God and angels, in accordance with usage; cf. Pss. 86<sup>8</sup> 97<sup>7</sup> 136<sup>2</sup>; cf. v.<sup>7</sup> with Gn. 1<sup>28</sup>. We can hardly suppose that Gn. 1 derived its conception from Ps. 8, for it is there part of the larger conception, and is therefore original and Ps. 8 derivative. The mode of creation is, however, different. Moon and stars are not created by command, but by the fingers of God, v<sup>4</sup>. This is more like the mode of creation in Gn. 2<sup>7, 19</sup>; and there seems to be a reference to the superiority of man in speech of Gn. 2<sup>19, 23</sup>, in the emphasis upon the speech of sucklings v<sup>3</sup>. This free use of both of the poems of creation, originally in separate documents of the Hexateuch, but first compacted in the age of Ezra, is best explained by the supposition that, when the Ps. was composed, the Pentateuch had already been compacted in essentially its present form. The Ps. must therefore be subsequent to Ezra. The Ps. is an evening hymn; with no personal or historic references, but entirely general, adapted to the whole congregation of Israel; and therefore we may conclude that it was composed for the congregation, and for purposes of public worship. It is admirably suited for this purpose, being symmetrical in structure, of two equal Strs., having an introductory and concluding Rf. The Ps. was probably composed in time of peace and prosperity, for the tone is peaceful and joyous.

Rf. 2a, b is a trimeter couplet, the first line however without the last beat, in order to get a metrical pause before the utterance of the supreme thought. This is the Rf. which also closes the Ps. v<sup>10</sup> and so encloses it. Our Sovereign Lord] pl. emph. Heb., not sufficiently expressed by "Lord" EV<sup>s</sup>. — How magnificent] the majesty of God in its wide extent, amplitude, in all the earth] throughout its entire extent, cf. 76<sup>5</sup> 93<sup>4</sup>. "Excellent," EV<sup>s</sup>., suggests ethical rather than physical extent; "glorious," Dr., "majestic," Kirk. are too general. — Thy name] summing up God's manifestation of Himself as the object of commemoration and praise.

St. I. is a trimeter octastich, composed of an introductory line of petition, a synth. tristich, and a tetrastich of two syn. couplets, the second synthetic to the first. — 2c. O set] so most easily the Heb. cohort. inv. But a later scribe, wishing to connect with previous lines, and overlooking their independence as the Rf., inserted the relative, without venturing to change the form, and so has given difficulty to interpreters from the most ancient times. — Thy splendour] rich and brilliant display of majesty; "glory," EV<sup>s</sup>., "majesty," Dr., JPSV. are too general. — above the heavens] PBV., AV., as in all other passages; "upon the heavens" RV., Dr., JPSV., Kirk., al., though grammatically correct, is not justified by usage. The heavens are antith. to earth of the Rf. The poet would say: "Thy name is widespread in all the earth, magnify it still more, set it above the heavens in the splendour of its manifestations." — 3. Out of the mouth of little children] those just able to speak, and in this respect, notwithstanding their weakness especially as sucklings, superior to all other creatures, — a conception based on the naming of the animals by Adam Gn. 2<sup>19-20</sup>. — Thou dost establish] emph. present. "Ordain" PBV., AV. in modern usage is too strong and specific. — Strength] over against the enemies of God, sufficient to silence them if not destroy them. The poet may have been thinking of the creative strength of God's speech, of Gn. 1, and so of the strength that God had established in human speech even of little children as superior to physical prowess. It is probable that he was thinking of the divine strength as recognised and praised by children, in accord with the rendering of שׁוֹמְרֵי — because of thine adversaries] RV., in accord with Heb., and not "enemies," PBV., AV., which so translate two different Heb. words. — to still] to silence their hostile speech by the praise of children. — 4. When I see the work of Thy fingers.] The poet looks up to the heavens by night, above which he would have the splendour of Yahweh set, and sees there the work of His fingers. — the moon and stars] sufficiently indicate, in the absence of the sun, that it is night, and that the author is thinking of the heavens. A prosaic copyist inserted heavens in the first line, and so destroyed its measure. Moon and stars were created, and put in their places in the heavens by the fingers of God. Gn. 2<sup>7-19</sup> seems to underlie this conception of the mode of creation; only there man and animals were formed by the hand of God, as a sculptor carves out images or as a potter moulds them into clay. Here fingers are used with reference to moon and stars, and the verb prepared suggests the builder of 24<sup>2</sup> 65<sup>7</sup> 119<sup>90</sup> Pr. 3<sup>19</sup> 8<sup>27</sup>, the most frequent conception of the mode of creation, especially in later poets; only the builder in this particular reference to moon and stars is an artist executing the finest kind of work by the artistic skill of his fingers. The "ordained" of EV<sup>s</sup>. is not suited in modern usage (as it was in old English) to the conception of the use of the fingers of God. — 5. What is man. || The son of mankind] not any particular man, but the human kind, man as a race. When compared with moon and stars created by

God and manifesting His splendour, what does mankind amount to, that God should take any account of him?—that thou shouldst be mindful of him. || that thou shouldst visit him]. These in Heb. are final clauses, with subjunctive mood, and not to be rendered with EV<sup>a</sup>. by the indicative mood as statements of fact.

Str. II. is also a trimeter octastich, composed of an introductory line as protasis, and an apod. consisting of a syn. distich, and a synth. pentastich, all in one sentence. — 6. When Thou didst make him]. The Heb. Waw consec. does not admit of the rendering as an independent clause, "Thou madest" PBV., or causal, "for Thou hast made" AV., RV., or adv., "and yet" JPSV.; but requires either "and thou hast" Dr., going back to the historic act of creation of moon and stars of v<sup>4</sup>, and carrying it on into this new act of creation of man; or else protasis of temporal clause as given above. — a little lower than the Elohim] referring to the creation of man in the image of Elohim Gn. 1<sup>27</sup>, and the consultation of God with other Elohim, "Let us make" Gn. 1<sup>26</sup>. As the context is strictly monotheistic, and the whole passage is so late in origin that polytheism is not to be thought of in the mind of the poet, we must think of the Elohim as comprehending God and angels, the latter being in their historic origin, the ancient polytheistic gods, degraded to ministering servants of the one God Yahweh. Therefore, they are not merely "angels" Heb. 2<sup>7</sup>, PBV., AV., or "God" RV., JPSV. and most moderns, or "divinity," as abstract Heng., Hu., Pe.; but God and angels, divine beings, gods. — With glory and honour crowning him]. When man was created in the image of the Elohim, Gn. 1<sup>26-27</sup>, he was crowned with their glory and honour, at his inauguration as sovereign of the creatures. The splendour of Yahweh set above the heavens is reflected in His image, man, whom He has crowned as His representative to rule over the earth. — Making him to have dominion] as crowned king of the animal and vegetable kingdom man has rule over them. — Thou didst put under his feet] a paraphrase of Gn. 1<sup>26-28</sup>; two different but syn. verbs are used with essentially the same meaning. — Over the works of Thine hands || all things] on earth antith. moon and stars, the work of Yahweh's fingers in heaven. These works are described by specimens, using syn. words to those of Gn. 1<sup>26-28</sup>. — those that pass through] doubtless refers to the sea monsters of Gn. 1<sup>21</sup>.

PSALMS IX. AND X., 22 ALPHABETICAL STR. 4<sup>3</sup>.

Pss. 9 and 10 were originally one. The congregation thanks Yahweh in temple worship for His wondrous works of deliverance from the nations, and that He has become a high refuge to His oppressed people (9<sup>2-5, 10-11</sup>). They pray that He, who has in the past lifted them from the gates of death, may be gracious and terrorise the nations now afflicting them (9<sup>14-15, 20-21</sup>). He seems to stand afar off, while the nations are contending, and ignoring Him; and with craft are crushing His host with impunity (10<sup>1-11</sup>). They plead that Yahweh, their everlasting king, will arise, destroy the nations from the land, and do justice for the oppressed (10<sup>12-18</sup>). Later editors substitute for the original, detailed statements of a more external and dogmatic kind: that Yahweh had given over the nations to everlasting destruction (9<sup>6-7</sup>), that He was the everlasting king, ruling in justice (9<sup>8-9</sup>), that the nations were caught in their own pits and snares (9<sup>16-17</sup>), and that they were doomed to Sheol (9<sup>18</sup>); but that Yahweh's people would not be forgotten (9<sup>19</sup>); and the congregation are invoked to praise their king enthroned in Zion (9<sup>12-18</sup>).

I WILL give thanks with all my mind unto Thee.

I will tell all Thy wondrous works,

I will be glad and I will exult in Thee,

I will make melody, 'Elyon unto Thy name.

BECAUSE mine enemies turned backward,

They stumble and they perish at Thy presence;

For Thou hast done judgment and right in my favour,

Thou didst sit on Thy throne judging righteously.

. . . . . *

AND so Thou art become a high refuge for the oppressed,

A high refuge for times of dearth;

And they that know Thee trust in Thee;

For Thou dost not forsake them that seek Thee.

. . . . .

BE gracious to me, see my affliction;

Thou that liftest me up from the gates of death;

In order that I may tell Thy praise,

In the gates of the daughter of Zion may rejoice.

* These marks indicate that parts of the Ps. have been omitted. V. Comments and notes.

YAHWEH, let not (mere) men prevail;
 Let the nations be judged before Thy face.
 O appoint Terror for them
 That the nations may know that they are (mere) men.
 . . . . .

WHY standest Thou in the distance,
 Hidest in times of dearth?
 In their pride they hotly pursue the afflicted;
 Let them be caught in that they have planned.

THE wicked doth condemn Yahweh:
 "According to the height of His anger, He will not require,
 There is no God," are his devices.
 His ways are defiled at all times.

ON high are Thine acts of judgment, at a distance from him;
 As for his adversaries, he puffeth at them;
 He saith in his mind, "I shall not be moved,"
 (He doth swear) "In all generations (I shall be) without evil."

HIS mouth is full of deceits,
 Under his tongue is mischief;
 He sitteth down in the places of ambush of settlements,
 In secret places he slayeth the innocent.

HIS eyes spy on Thy host,
 He lieth in ambush in his secret place as a lion,
 In his covert to seize the afflicted,
 That he may seize hold of the afflicted, dragging him away.

(HE doth hunt) the oppressed with his net, and he sinks down,
 And Thy host falls because of his great numbers;
 He doth say in his mind, "'El hath forgotten,
 He hath hidden His face, He doth not see."

O ARISE, lift up Thy hand,
 Forget not, 'El, the afflicted.
 Wherefore doth the wicked condemn,
 Say in his mind, "Thou dost not require it"?

THOU hast seen the trouble and grief,
 Thou beholdest to requite with Thy hand;
 Upon Thee Thy host leaveth it,
 Of the orphan Thou art the helper.

BREAK the arm of the wicked,
 Let his wickedness be sought out, let it not be found;
 O King, forever and ever,
 Destroy the nations out of the land.

THE desire of the afflicted Thou hast heard,
 Thou settest Thy mind (upon them), Thou harkenest;
 To judge the orphan and oppressed,
 To terrify (mere) man from the land.

Pss. 9-10 were originally one as in G, V, I. They were separated for liturgical purposes as in H, and therefore Ps. 10 was left without title, and in modern Protestant and Jewish Vrss. the Pss. are numbered one higher than in the Oriental, Greek, and Roman Churches from Ps. 10 to Ps. 147 (v. Intr. § 42). The סִלָּה at the close of Ps. 9 is an additional evidence of the original unity of the two Pss., for it indicates a place where a selection might close (v. Intr. § 41). The Ps. was in 𐤀, then in 𐤁, and subsequently in 𐤁𐤁 (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33), in which last it was appointed to be sung by male sopranos, or falsettos (עֲלִמֹת לֵבָן [עַל] v. Intr. § 34). As Che. says, the Ps. is "partly trimeters, partly tetrameters, indicating either the imperfect skill of the psalmist in the management of his metre, or the interference of a second writer with the original poem. The second hypothesis is the more probable. Originally the poem was, no doubt, a perfect alphabetical psalm, at least so far as relates to the consistency of the metre and the number of stanzas." The nine strophes with א, ב, ג, ד, ה, ו, ז, ח, ט, י are essentially in their original form. Six others may be recovered from the present text. (1) Str. י in the present text is 𐤅<sup>18-19</sup>; but this is really composed of a trimeter couplet, v.<sup>18</sup>, and a tetrameter couplet, v.<sup>19</sup>, and is a late addition. The Str. is really v.<sup>20-21</sup>, disguised by the prefixing of קוֹמָה prematurely before 𐤅<sup>12</sup>, in order to make a suitable close for the Ps. (2) Str. נ is disguised in 𐤅 in the last clause of 𐤅<sup>3</sup>, but in 𐤅 it rightly begins v.<sup>4</sup>. (3) Str. מ is disguised in the midst of 𐤅<sup>5</sup>, its מָרִים is at beginning of l. 2 of v.<sup>5</sup>. (4) Str. פ is also disguised as second word of 𐤅<sup>7</sup>. אִירָה is vb., belonging to previous line. (5) Str. ע is disguised at beginning of l. 3 of 𐤅<sup>8</sup>. (6) Str. צ lacks the first word, the first line being defective. It may be restored by conjecture as צָר. Three Strs. have been displaced by others which have been substituted for them. It is possible to conjecture originals as underlying them; but only by entire reconstruction, and even then the form and substance of the thought is different from the original. (1) The Str. ג is a tetrameter with cæsura, evident in the midst of three of the lines, less evident but probable in the other. (2) Str. ט is also a tetrameter with cæsuras. (3) Str. ו is a trimeter; a call to praise, not suited to the context of the original Ps., but adapted to later liturgical use, and using late liturgical terms. The remaining Strs. are more difficult to find. Many efforts have been made to find them by reconstruction and conjecture. I have made several such efforts myself, accepting them provisionally, only to finally abandon them as unsatisfactory. (1) The Strs. with ד and ה have disappeared. In place of them is a trimeter tetrastich, beginning with יְהוָה in third person. But it uses terms of the royal Pss. 98<sup>9</sup>, 96<sup>10, 13</sup>, and these are statements, in liturgical language, of the general truth of the divine dominion, cognate with the idea of the Ps., but in more objective and less personal relations. (2) Str. כ is missing. Possibly a relic of it is present in 𐤅<sup>3</sup>, in the clause beginning כִּי הָלַל, but only one trimeter line and two words of a second line are there; and it is out of place between ל and ג. It is therefore more probable that the verse is a prosaic gloss. (3) Str. ס has disappeared entirely. We can only make it by a readjustment of the lines about where it should come, and at the expense of other Strs. The order of the Strs. is the usual one of the Heb. alphabet, except that ע, צ come together as in La. 2, 3, 4, probably an older order. נ and ט are transposed.

This is probably an editorial change and not original. The historical situation of the Ps. is indicated by internal evidence. The Temple worship was carried on 9<sup>2-15</sup>. The people suffer from crafty and cruel enemies, who ignore and contemn Yahweh. These are nations, 9<sup>20-21</sup>, 10<sup>16</sup>, described by coll. רשע 10<sup>2</sup>. 4. 13. 15, אֹנִי 9<sup>20</sup>. 21, 10<sup>18</sup>, who invade the land and imperil its existence. They are not the great conquering nations, but lesser ones, such as those which troubled Jerusalem before the walls were built by Nehemiah; Moabites, Ammonites, Arabs, and Philistines, Ne. 2<sup>10</sup>, 4<sup>7</sup>, 6<sup>1</sup>. The glosses indicate a later time of calm historical retrospect and confidence in Yahweh, the King enthroned in Zion; and therefore probably in the Greek period.

Str. 8. 2-3. Each line begins with 8 and closes with kah. The four lines are syn., using cohortatives, expressing resolutions or determinations. — I will give thanks || tell || exult || make melody], terms indicating in their usage public songs of praise. Each vb. has syn. obj. — unto Thee], so 8, adding also the divine name, Yahweh, which 8 substitutes for it, and so destroys rhyme. || Thy wondrous works], as context shows, of deliverance from enemies, cf. Ex. 3<sup>20</sup> (J) Ju. 6<sup>13</sup> Pss. 26<sup>7</sup> 78<sup>11</sup> +. || unto Thy name], cf. Pss. 61<sup>9</sup> 66<sup>4</sup> 68<sup>5</sup>. The qualifying ideas are with all my mind], better than “heart,” EV<sup>s</sup>., which in modern usage rather suggests affections, || all] intensifying wondrous works, || I will be glad] intensifying “exult.” — Elyon], divine name, “Most High,” EV<sup>s</sup>., intensifying Thy name.

Str. 2 has two syn. couplets. — 4. The enemies are in subsequent context, not private but public enemies, nations. — Because] giving a reason for the praise of the previous Str. — turned backward], in retreat. The context indicates a historical reference and not present experience or general truth. It is true stumble and perish are impfs., but they give graphic description of past events. They intensify the retreat as disastrous. — At Thy presence], the presence and power of Yahweh brought about the retreat; the whole credit of it is due to Him. — 5. For], causal particle with pf., either syn. with v.<sup>4</sup> as second ground of praise, emphasizing Yahweh’s dealing with His people over against His dealing with their enemies, or else reason of previous couplet, possibly not distinguished in author’s mind. The syn. words judgment and right intensify the idea. The sf. is objective, and can only be expressed by paraphrase: in my favour], that is, of

Str. 1 is a syn. tetrameter tetrastich, substituted for an original trimeter, giving a more comprehensive and general statement, and so differing from the personal experience expressed throughout the original Ps.

Thou hast rebuked the nations. Thou hast destroyed the wicked ;
 Their name Thou hast blotted out forever and ever.
 As for the enemy, they have come to an end. The ruins are forever.
 And cities Thou didst uproot, — their memory is perished.

6. Thou hast rebuked the nations]. This was probably in the original Str., but is now followed by a cæsura and a complementary phrase: Thou hast destroyed the wicked], of two beats, instead of one complementary word, as in the original Ps. Both phrs. are further expositions of v.<sup>4</sup>. The term wicked is coll. for nations, as 9<sup>17</sup> 10<sup>2. 3. 4. 13. 15</sup> 55<sup>4</sup> 139<sup>19</sup> Is. 11<sup>4</sup> Hb. 3<sup>13</sup> pl. Pss. 9<sup>18</sup> 3<sup>8</sup> 7<sup>10</sup> 17<sup>9</sup> +. — Their name Thou hast blotted out], so utterly have they been destroyed that their names are no longer known, save to the antiquarian. The author was thinking probably of the nations exterminated by Israel at the Exodus, as it is a phr. of D., Dt. 9<sup>14</sup> 29<sup>19</sup> 2 K. 14<sup>27</sup>. — 7. As for the enemy], coll. for nations. The position of noun and the article are emph., cf. pl. v.<sup>4</sup>. — they have come to an end], so that they exist no longer as nations. The cæsura requires an independent clause. — Their ruins are forever], possibly their land, as Je. 7<sup>34</sup> 44<sup>22</sup>, but more probably cities, as v.<sup>7b</sup> and Je. 49<sup>13</sup>, cities of Bosra.; Ez. 26<sup>20</sup>, of Tyre; Is. 61<sup>4</sup>, of Judah. There is no sufficient authority in usage for referring these to enemies. — And their cities], the possessive here and above is not expressed but implied in the context. — Thou didst uproot], only here of cities, but of nations Dt. 29<sup>27</sup> Je. 12<sup>14</sup> +, fig. of tree or plant. We might think of the use of cities for inhabitants. — Their memory is perished], syn. v.<sup>6b</sup>, cf. Dt. 12<sup>3</sup> Is. 26<sup>14</sup> Ps. 41<sup>6</sup>.

8-9. This Str. is a syn. trimeter tetrastich, generalising v.<sup>5</sup>, as the previous Str. did v.<sup>4</sup>. It takes the place of Str. ה of the original Ps. The initial ה might be gained by reading הנה "Lo," with Du.

for the המה at close of previous line; but this would make the line too long, unless we reject Yahweh as a gloss. But in any case we do not overcome the use of 3 sg. for 2 sg. of previous Strs. and the generalisation and late liturgical phrasing.

Yahweh sitteth enthroned forever,
He hath set up His throne for judgment:
He judgeth the world in righteousness,
He governeth the peoples with equity.

8. He hath set up His throne], phr. here of divine throne, cf. 103<sup>19</sup>, but 2 S. 7<sup>13</sup> of David's. — He judgeth the world in righteousness] = 98<sup>9</sup>; || He governeth the peoples with equity] cf. 96<sup>10</sup>; both implying a late comprehensive view of Yahweh, as sovereign of all nations, and of the entire habitable world.

Str. 1 is a syn. trimeter tetrastich. — 10. It has been changed to 3d pers. and assimilated to previous Str., and Yahweh has been inserted as gloss; and so most Vrss. and commentators, "Yahweh also will be," some ignoring the juss. form, others recognising it, as Dr. "So may Yahweh be." But Du. after ℥ reads rightly 1 consec.; but then better, if connected with original Strs. v.<sup>2-5, 14-15</sup>, 2d pers.: And so Thou art become] referring to historical experience, as in previous Strs. — A high refuge], a high place of refuge, cf. Pss. 18<sup>3</sup> 46<sup>3, 12</sup> 48<sup>4</sup> 59<sup>10, 17</sup> 62<sup>3, 7</sup> 94<sup>22</sup> 144<sup>2</sup>. — for the oppressed], coll. referring to the congregation, as so oppressed by the enemies as to be literally crushed, elsw. † 10<sup>18</sup> 74<sup>21</sup> Pr. 26<sup>28</sup>, in this form, but cog. forms also 10<sup>10</sup> 34<sup>19</sup> 51<sup>19</sup> Is. 57<sup>15</sup>. — for times of dearth], phr., elsw. 10<sup>1</sup>, cf. Je. 14<sup>1</sup> (v. BDB), the exact mng. uncertain. — 11. They that know Thee, so originally, syn. them that seek Thee.] "Thy name" has been substituted for sf. at such an early date as to appear in all Vrss., but it makes the line too long in its measure, and is in accord with later tendency to interpose something between God Himself and His people, as obj. of knowledge, cf. 91<sup>14</sup> Is. 52<sup>6</sup> Je. 48<sup>17</sup>. Knowing Yahweh Himself is an earlier idea, cf. Ex. 5<sup>2</sup> (J) Ho. 2<sup>22</sup> 5<sup>4</sup> 8<sup>2</sup> Ps. 79<sup>6</sup>.

Str. 1 is composed of two trimeter couplets, and is a call to the congregation, to the praise resolved upon in Str. 8. It is the same kind of a generalised explication of previous Str. as we have seen in v.<sup>6-8</sup>, and probably came from the same later hand.

Make melody to Him who is enthroned in Zion,
 Declare among the peoples His doings;
 For He that requireth blood doth remember;
 He doth not forget the cry of the afflicted.

Str. 7 is composed of two couplets, the former synth., the latter syn. — 14. Be gracious to me], intensified by see my affliction], the past experience of previous Strs. being the basis for second part of Ps., which now, as Calv., becomes petition for deliverance in present needs. — Thou that liftest me up], past experience renewed to enforce the plea. — from the gates of death], cf. 107<sup>18</sup> Is. 38<sup>10</sup> Jb. 38<sup>17</sup>, all referring to the abode of the dead, conceived as a city with gates. The nation had been in peril of death, and so of going down into Sheol the place of the dead; but Yahweh hath lifted the nation up from that awful descent. — 15. In order that], final clause, expressing object of lifting up to life. — In the gates of the daughter of Zion], the gates of Zion or Jerusalem, over against gates of Sheol. The daughter of Zion is a personification of the people of Zion, cf. Is. 1<sup>8</sup> 10<sup>32</sup> Mi. 1<sup>13</sup> Je. 4<sup>3</sup> Zc. 2<sup>14</sup>; cf. daughter of Tyre Ps. 45<sup>13</sup>, daughter of Babylon 137<sup>8</sup> Is. 47<sup>1</sup>, daughter of Jerusalem Is. 37<sup>22</sup> Mi. 4<sup>8</sup> La. 2<sup>13.15</sup>. The conception here is as Ps. 6<sup>6</sup> Is. 38<sup>18-20</sup> that the public praise of Yahweh in His temple, or royal residence in Jerusalem, is something unique, and of such special acceptance with Him, that it can be had nowhere else, not in Sheol any more than outside the Holy Land, or apart from the divine residence in Jerusalem.

Str. 10 is composed of two tetrameter couplets, and is the same kind of substitution, and doubtless by the same editor, as Str. 1.

The nations are sunk down in the pit that they made;
 In the net which they hid is their foot caught.

Yahweh hath made Himself known, He hath executed judgment;
In the work of His hands the wicked are trapped.

16. The nations are sunk down in the pit]. This is probably from the original Ps., where the pit referred to is the pit of Sheol as usual subsequent to Ez., Pss. 16<sup>10</sup> 30<sup>10</sup> 49<sup>10</sup> 55<sup>24</sup> 103<sup>4</sup>, and so antith. to the lifting up of the congregation of Israel from Sheol v. 14. But the editor, by the addition of that they made], refers it to a pit dug by the nations into which they hoped Israel would fall, cf. 7<sup>16</sup>; syn. with in the net which they hid], cf. 10<sup>9</sup> 31<sup>5</sup> 35<sup>7,8</sup> 140<sup>6</sup>. — is their foot caught], the nations snare themselves instead of Israel and receive retribution in kind. — 17. Yahweh hath made Himself known], reflex., cf. 48<sup>4</sup>, expl. hath executed judgment], cf. v. 5, so RV., Pe., Dr., Bā., Kirk., cf. JPSV. as emphatic independent clauses; better than AV., which explains the second clause as dependent and so relative: "by the judgment which He executeth," cf. PBV. after G. — In the work of His hands], Yahweh's put forth in judgment, syn. with previous line of the couplet; and not those of the nation, hiding nets and digging pits, of previous couplet, as EV<sup>s</sup>., though sustained by Dr., Che., and JPSV. — are trapped], by Yahweh's hands, who lays traps for them.

18–19. This Str. begins with ʾ, but it is not the original Str. ʾ, which we find rather in v. 20–21. It was inserted by an editor. It is composed of a trimeter syn. couplet and a tetrameter syn. couplet.

The wicked shall turn back to Sheol,
All the nations that forget God.
For the poor shall not always be forgotten,
Nor the hope of the afflicted perish forever.

18. The wicked], pl. for sg., coll. above, v. 17, but not, however, individuals, but syn. with all the nations. — turn back to Sheol], antith. v. 14. The wicked nations turn back in defeat and slaughter. So disastrous will be their fate that they will suffer national death and so descend as nations to the abode of the dead. There is no reference in this passage to the future destiny of individuals, cf. Is. 26<sup>14–19</sup> Ez. 37<sup>7–14</sup> Ho. 13<sup>14</sup> (v. Br.<sup>MP. 176, 276, 307</sup>). — That forget God], here of nations, cf. Ps. 50<sup>22</sup> of wicked Israelites; (v. 10<sup>4,11</sup>), an ignoring of the presence of God and His interest in His people.—19. For the poor || the afflicted shall not be forgotten], by God, antith. to their enemies forgetting Him.—Perish forever], the hope of God's people will not perish, but will be realised in renewed life in the Holy Land when the nations perish in death and Sheol.

20–21. Str. ' is disguised by prefixing O arise to 9<sup>20</sup> in order to make a suitable close for the Ps. before the Selah; but it destroys the measure. It is a trimeter tetrastich, having three lines syn., the fourth synth.—mere men, syn. nations], cf. v.<sup>21</sup> 10<sup>18</sup> 56<sup>2</sup> 66<sup>12</sup> all referring to enemies conceived, over against Yahweh and His people, as mere men. The congregation plead that the nations may know this at last, through the exposure of their weakness.—prevail], be stronger than Israel, cf. 52<sup>9</sup> 89<sup>14</sup>, to prevent which let them be judged, cf. v.<sup>5</sup>.—before Thy face], the divine face looking in wrath upon them.—O appoint Terror] Their defeat will be that of a panic-stricken army. Terror is personified as an angel of vengeance appointed by God to drive them on to their doom. G, U, S, RC.Vrss. render "appoint a lawgiver," with a slightly different text; so Luther "einen Meister," which is usually interpreted in a bad sense, as tyrant, Genebr.; Antichrist, Aug., Cassiodorus; but by some in a good sense, as Christ, Theodoret, Euthymius; as Yahweh Himself, Bā.

Str. ʾ is composed of two trimeter distichs, the first syn., the second synth. It expostulates with Yahweh for delay in interposition, already suggested in previous Str.—X. 1. Why standest Thou], as looking on with indifference, ready, but slow to act.—in the distance], phr. only here, stronger than the usual afar off.—Hidest]. The divine presence, not being manifest when so greatly needed, seems to imply a deliberate hiding from His people.—in times of dearth], resuming 9<sup>10</sup>.—2. In pride], emph. in position, to lay stress on this as a chief characteristic of the enemies.—hotly pursue], cf. La. 4<sup>19</sup>, RV., BDB., so essentially Kirk., al.; "persecute," PBV., AV., is too general; "set on fire," Dr., Bā., after Vrss., is too strong. Most think of the heat of anxiety, but some of the heat of affliction.—Let them be caught], the wicked nations, in accordance with the expostulation of previous context, so EV<sup>a</sup>., JPSV., Bā., al. But G, U render as indicative, "they (the afflicted) are caught, taken," so Pe., Dr.;

"a further description of the wrongs of the poor," Kirk. — that they planned]. They planned to catch the afflicted ; but Yahweh is entreated to catch them in their own crafty schemes.

X. 3. This syn. trimeter distich resembles the sentences of Heb. Wisdom, as Du. suggests, and is a late gloss. Its original meaning was obscured by an early copyist who by dittog. of suffix inserted the conjunction waw, and so divided the sentence after the fourth tone, making it into a prose sentence, difficult of explanation.

For the wicked doth boast about (his) covetousness,
The robber doth congratulate himself.

3. For the wicked, syn. the robber] so Pe. ; "covetous," EV<sup>a</sup>. is too weak. If a gloss, then it is no longer the nations, but the individual Jew, of the period of Heb. Wisdom. — Doth boast about his covetousness], in a bad sense, as 112<sup>10</sup>, Pr. 21<sup>25-26</sup>, cf. Ps. 32<sup>5</sup>, "desire" of EV<sup>a</sup>. is too general. — congratulate himself] as 49<sup>19</sup>, on his success in gaining what he coveted, cf. 36<sup>2-3</sup>.

Str. 1 was recognised by  $\mathfrak{S}$ , which begins with  $\mathfrak{P}$ , but obscured by  $\mathfrak{H}$ , which attaches this vb. to previous line with Yahweh, prob. in order to avoid a blasphemous expression, and get the thought, "whom Yahweh abhorreth," PBV., AV. It is composed of a trimeter tetrastich, two syn. lines enclosing a syn. couplet. — 4. The wicked] sg. coll., refers to nations of original Ps. as v.<sup>2</sup>. — doth contemn Yahweh] as shown in their thoughts, words, and deeds, v.<sup>4-11</sup>, cf. v.<sup>13</sup>, where the same expression is resumed in expostulation. — According to the height of His anger]. It is difficult to think of the wicked man's anger in such a connection, and therefore most moderns think of loftiness of nostrils (Hochnäsigkeit, Bä.), or "face" BDB., or "looks" Dr. ; as of eyes, 101<sup>5</sup>, mind, Pr. 16<sup>5</sup>, disposition, Ec. 7<sup>8</sup> ; but Du. rightly explains of divine anger ; and so as included in the thoughts of the wicked as well as the phr. : He will not require]. Yahweh may be very angry, as His people claim ; but however great or exalted He may be in anger, He will not interpose on their behalf, He will not require satisfaction from their enemies. — There is no God] not a denial of the divine existence, but of His presence and interposition. The PBV. "careth not for God," and AV. "will not seek after God," supply the object of vb. and take the wicked as subj. after most ancients.—his devices] his evil thoughts, that he is devising, his calculations, what he is saying to himself, in self-flattery, syn. with his contemning.—5a. are defiled] so G, S, Y “His thoughts and counsels are unclean,” Aug. “He always acts badly,” Genebr. This is well suited to context though resting on a different interp. of the form from H, which may be read parturiunt as I, Aq., or “strong,” “sure,” Pe., “stable” Dr., “firm” RV., “prosperous” JPSV. after C, “His plans succeed; he is never harassed by the vicissitudes of fortune,” Kirk.

Str. D is disguised by H, which puts the first line as second, in v.<sup>5</sup>; and also in all texts by letting it follow Str. J. This order cannot be original, but is due to editorial transposition, and possibly the insertion of the gloss v.<sup>3</sup>. It is composed of two trimeter couplets, the one synth., the other syn.—5b. On high] in heaven, cf. 92<sup>9</sup>, where Yahweh is standing v.<sup>1</sup>, not yet interposing v.<sup>12</sup>.—at a distance from him], cf. v.<sup>1</sup>.—Thine acts of judgment], they are still with Yahweh, not yet executed on earth against the wicked.—As for his adversaries] emph. in position.—He puffeth at them], possibly snorting, as gesture of contempt.—6. He saith in his mind], so v.<sup>11</sup>, cf. v.<sup>4</sup>, syn. he doth swear], interp. as perf. vb. and not as noun, “cursing,” as beginning of v.<sup>7</sup>, so disguising Str. D and destroying its measure.—I shall not be moved], phr. frequently used of the righteous 15<sup>5</sup> 16<sup>8</sup> 21<sup>8</sup> 62<sup>3-7</sup> 112<sup>6</sup>; presumptuous words of the pious when in prosperity 30<sup>7</sup>; here presumptuous words of the wicked enemies of God and His people. This is intensified in syn. clause, in all generations without evil], so G, I. H has another reading with relative, which is disregarded in PBV., RV., Pe., Kirk., but given in AV. as causal “for,” by Dr. “I who.” Both these are interpretations and were not original.

Str. D, disguised in ancient texts, is composed of a tetrameter syn. couplet, and a syn. trimeter couplet, the former stating what seems to be a general truth in a proverbial form; the latter specifying action of the enemies against innocent Israel. The former is therefore a substitution of the editor for the original couplet, which doubtless began with the same word, and set forth the craft and deceit of the enemy, but hardly in this form and in this general way. — 7. His mouth is full of deceits || mischief], so in the original, expressing the craft of the enemy. — and oppression || trouble] were added by later editor to indicate the actual injury that they had done to the people of God. — Under his tongue], secreted as Aug., and ready to spring forth; and not as Che., Dr., Kirk. after Jb. 20<sup>12</sup>, as a delicious morsel, which suits the context of that passage, but not of this. — 8. In places of ambush], as Jos. 8<sup>9</sup> Ju. 9<sup>35</sup> 2 Ch. 13<sup>13</sup>, enemies lying in wait to surprise, syn. in secret places], where they remain in secret until the time for attack. — of settlements], that is near settlements, whether of tents, Gn. 25<sup>16</sup> (P), or houses, Lv. 25<sup>31</sup>, referring to the un-walled villages exposed to sudden attacks of treacherous foes. — slayeth], his object is murder as well as robbery. — the innocent], those who have done them no wrong, who were not at war with them.

Str. ♀ is disguised by the ancient texts, because its first line is in the middle of the verse. It follows ♂ as in La. 2, 3, 4, an older order of the alphabet. It is composed of a trimeter tetrastich of stair-like parall. — 9. His eyes spy], cf. 56<sup>7</sup>, carrying on the thought of previous verse. — Thy host], as v.<sup>10.14</sup>, the people of Yahweh regarded as a host or army, however small, when compared with the enemy. — He lieth in ambush], vb. for noun of v.<sup>8a</sup>, in his secret place], sing. for pl. of v.<sup>8b</sup>, article for possessive, thus taking up both previous words of that verse, in order to stair-like advance in thought. This is made still more definite by unnecessary insertions of later editor. — as a lion], frequent simile for enemies, see 7<sup>3</sup> 17<sup>12</sup> 22<sup>14</sup>, and accordingly, in his covert], cf. 76<sup>3</sup> Jb. 38<sup>40</sup>. — to seize], by the paws of the lion. — dragging him away], as a lion does his prey to his den. ♂ attaches in his net to this vb. and is followed by most versions and interpreters, thus adding the simile of the hunter to that of the lion, and so losing the force of the stair-like parall., graphically describing the lion's mode of dealing with his prey. ♂, ♀ attach it to subsequent v., where it is needed for measure.

Str. ♂ lacks initial word with ♀ in ancient texts. If with ♂, "in his net" goes with this Str., we may supply the cognate vb. צר "hunt." The Str. then is composed of two syn. trimeter couplets resembling v.<sup>5.6</sup>. In the first, the simile of the hunter takes the place of the lion of the previous Str. — 10. The oppressed] as 9<sup>10</sup> 10<sup>18</sup>, the Kt. here which is better sustained by usage and context than vb. of Qr., which is variously rendered “he falleth down” PBV., “croucheth,” AV., RV., (of lion) without justification from usage of vb. ; better “is crushed,” JPSV., Pe., Kirk. But Qal is not used elsewhere, and so is improbable here. — and he sinks down], cf. 35<sup>14</sup> 38<sup>7</sup> 107<sup>39</sup>, that is overpowered, because of his great numbers], in accordance with usage referring to great numbers of the enemy, rather than their strength and prowess, “his captains,” PBV., “his strong ones,” AV., RV., Dr., i.e. ruffians, Kirk. ; or with reference to the claws of lion, as Ew., De., Che., Bā., BDB., as if this carried on the simile of previous Str. — 11. The enemies now say, to themselves as in v. <sup>6a-13b</sup>, ‘El hath forgotten], cf. v. <sup>13. 19</sup>. — He hath hidden His face], cf. the expostulation of v. <sup>1</sup>, where the congregation make a similar statement and complaint ; and therefore He doth not see], cf. 9<sup>14</sup>. And so the enemy afflict His people with impunity.

Str. פ is preserved in its original form. It is an expostulation renewing v. <sup>1</sup>, and taking up the most important terms in the intervening Strs. It is composed of two trimeter syn. couplets. — 12. lift up Thy hand], in order to interpose and smite the enemy with it. — Forget not ‘El], plea over against the word of the enemies, v. <sup>11</sup>. On account of this exact antith., as well as the requirement of measure, ‘El belongs in this line and not in previous one, though so given in all ancient texts, cf. 9<sup>13</sup>. — 13. Wherefore doth the wicked contemn?] taking up the statement of the fact v. <sup>4a</sup>, and also the words of the wicked to themselves, Thou wilt not require], already given in third person v. <sup>4b</sup>.

Str. נ is composed of two syn. trimeter couplets. — 14. Thou hast seen, || Thou beholdest], an appeal to the divine knowledge over against the words of the wicked, v. <sup>11</sup> — the trouble and grief] that caused Yahweh’s host by the crafty enemies described above. — To requite with Thy hand], antith. with v. <sup>13</sup>. — Upon Thee], emph. in position, implying reliance on their God only. — Thy host] as v. <sup>9-10</sup>, — leaveth it], that is in trust that God will attend to it, strengthened by past experience. — Of the orphan], emph. ; the nation is conceived as fatherless, without a ruler of their own, dependent upon the caprice of governors appointed by the world-

Str. W is composed of a trimeter tetrastich with introverted parall. — 15. Break the arm of the wicked], cf. 37<sup>17</sup> Jb. 38<sup>15</sup>, make them powerless, smiting them with the hand, cf. v. 12-14. — Let his wickedness be sought], as most ancient Vrss., cf. v. 4. 13, taking vbs. as Niphal, that is in vain, let it not be found], it will no longer exist; so complete has been the requital, that further requisition finds nothing more to be required. But EV<sup>a</sup>. follow H, I and regard the vb. as Qal with juss. force and render “seek out till Thou find none,” AV., RV., or more exactly as Dr., “mayest Thou require.” “When God ‘makes inquisition’ and holds His assize, He will find no crime to punish,” Kirk. — 16. O King], vocative, in order to give force to the plea, and not “Yahweh is king,” EV<sup>a</sup>., for Yahweh is a gloss. The conception of Yahweh as king is frequent, Pss. 29<sup>10</sup> 44<sup>5</sup> 47<sup>7</sup> 48<sup>3</sup> 68<sup>25</sup> +. — for-ever and ever], antith. to the disappearance of the wicked nations when called to account. — Destroy the nations], Pi. imv. syn. “break,” v. 5 as Du., cf. 5<sup>7</sup> 9<sup>6</sup> 21<sup>11</sup>, not Qal perf., “the nations are perished,” as H, AV., RV., and most Comm.; or impf., “will perish,” as G, V, Gr. — out of the land], as v. 18, the holy land of Israel.

Str. 7 is composed of a syn. trimeter couplet and an antith. trimeter couplet. It expresses confidence that the plea has been accepted by Yahweh. — 17. Thou hast heard], more fully: settest Thy mind], as 78<sup>8</sup>, and so preparatory to Thou harkenest]. The sf. “their” with mind (H) is a mistake of an early copyist, due to the desire of the afflicted in previous line. It has given trouble to all interpreters by a phr. not known elsw. and difficult to explain. — 18. To judge], execute justice in favour of as 9<sup>5</sup>, the orphan as v. 15, and oppressed as 9<sup>10</sup>; to terrify, cf. 9<sup>21</sup>; mere man, cf. 9<sup>20-21</sup>; from the land as v. 18, summing all these up in the final Str. An early copyist inserted in the margin a cognate thought in a familiar phrase “he shall not do it again,” namely the mere man, that is, what he had done as described in the Ps., because he will no more be in the land. This was subsequently incorporated in the text, destroying the measures of the last couplet, and so confusing the meaning of the clause as to give trouble to all subsequent readers.

PSALM XI., 2 STR. 8<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 11 is a guest Ps. The Psalmist has taken refuge in Yahweh (v.<sup>1b</sup>), and expostulates with those who urge him to flee from his enemies to the mountains (v.<sup>1c-3</sup>). Yahweh is in His heavenly temple (v.<sup>4</sup>), testing the righteous (v.<sup>5a</sup>), hating the wicked (v.<sup>5b</sup>), and about to destroy them (v.<sup>6</sup>). A liturgical couplet states the general truth that Yahweh loveth the righteous, and they will behold His face (v.<sup>7</sup>).

IN (Thee), Yahweh, have I taken refuge.

How say ye to me:

"Flee to (the) mountain as a bird;

"For lo they tread the bow,

"They have prepared their arrow on the string,

"To shoot in darkness at the rightminded.

"When the foundations are being thrown down,

"The righteous — what has he done?"

YAHWEH is in His holy temple;

Yahweh is in heaven, His throne;

His eyes behold (the world),

His eyelids try the sons of mankind.

Yahweh trieth the righteous,

But the wicked His soul doth hate;

He will rain upon the wicked coals of fire,

Brimstone and a burning wind will be the portion of their cup.

The Ps. was in D and then subsequently in DK (v. Intr. §§ 27. 33). It is a Ps. of refuge, giving the experience of an individual, and stating it objectively. It was generalised by glosses and a concluding couplet, and so adapted to public worship. The following are the evidences of date: (1) There is no reference to earlier literature, except possibly to the story of the destruction of Sodom: Gen. 19<sup>24</sup> (J), in the original v.<sup>6</sup>. (2) The words: השׁוּחַ v.<sup>8</sup>, elsw. Is. 20<sup>4</sup> 2 S. 10<sup>4</sup> in a different sense; וּלְעֶמֶת v.<sup>6</sup>, elsw. La. 5<sup>10</sup> Ps. 119<sup>68</sup>; and syntax, יִחַשׁ v.<sup>6</sup> showing neglect of juss. characteristic of Is.<sup>2</sup> give evidence of a date not earlier than the Exile. (3) The צִדִּיק v.<sup>8, 5, 7</sup> is one who seeks refuge in Yahweh and is rightminded; there is no trace of legal or gnomic conceptions. The enemies are not foreign but domestic, and are men of disorder. (4) (a) The reference to the heavenly temple and neglect of the earthly, points to a time when the earthly temple had little religious influence. (δ) The wide outlook of the divine inspection of the world implies the world-point of view rather than the provincial. (ε) The conception of the disciplinary testing of the righteous and the sure destruction of the violent enemies is post-deuteronomic. On the whole the Ps. seems to be subsequent to J, D, and Is.<sup>2</sup>, and to precede the legal attitude of Ezra and his times. It is best explained as from the circumstances of the feeble community in Jerusalem shortly after the Restoration.

Str. I. 1. The Psalmist states emphatically, I have taken refuge], probably in the original less objectively. — in Thee, Yahweh], as 31<sup>2</sup> 71<sup>1</sup>, condensed by a late editor to “in Yahweh,” cf. Vrss. Therefore he is not dismayed by his perils or the anxieties of his advisers, but on the contrary expostulates with them. — How say ye to me ?]. The remainder of the Str. is taken up with their advice, in which the poet describes the perilous situation. — Flee (thou)], so all ancient Vrss. and Qr., over against Kt. “flee ye,” which originated from “your mountain,” an error of MT., for mountain as of Vrss. — as a bird]. This is thought to be a proverbial popular phrase by Ew., Hu., al. Birds flee to forests when in peril, and as these in Palestine were on mountains, naturally to the mountains. The mountains of Judah were especially places of refuge on account of numerous caves, steep cliffs, and inaccessible rocks ; therefore from the earliest to the latest times they have been refuges of the persecuted ; so for David 1 S. 24, 26 ; for Mattathias 1 Mac. 2<sup>28</sup>. — 2. The reason for this advice is they tread the bow || they have prepared their arrow on the string]. The enemies are archers, they are all ready to shoot, he is in deadly peril. — to shoot in darkness]. They are not in battle array, they are not face to face with him ; but they are hidden, concealed in the darkness, so that he cannot tell when they will shoot or from what direction ; they are secret, treacherous, though deadly enemies. They are probably not real archers, but they are compared to bowmen in ambush. — at the rightminded]. They are not only the enemies of the Psalmist, but of all the rightminded, and for the reason that they are rightminded. Their purpose is to destroy the righteous. The poet is in peril just because he is righteous. — 3. When the foundations are being thrown down] : the foundations are the established institutions, the social and civil order of the community. G, S, Y interpret as vb. with rel. : "For what Thou hast established they throw down," which thinks of the institutions as divine. These enemies are not only enemies of the righteous, but they are pulling down all the institutions and good order of society. These institutions protect the rightminded righteous : when they are destroyed the righteous are exposed to violence of all kinds. — The righteous], emph. in position, for his righteousness is the real issue. That describes the Psalmist in the statement of his timid advisers. — what has he done], so PBV., Kirk. rightly. Experience shows that he has not accomplished anything under such circumstances ; therefore in such a time, and in such peril, the best advice is "flee," take refuge in the mountains — in striking antith. to the Psalmist's action in taking refuge in Yahweh. The translations : "What can the righteous do?" AV., RV., though sustained by Dr.<sup>s</sup>19 ; "shall do," JPSV., are difficult to reconcile with the Heb. perfect tense. The eight lines of this Str. are synth. each to the previous in regular order.

Str. II. The advisers have stated strongly what the enemies are doing. The Psalmist now in antith. states more strongly what Yahweh is doing, as a justification of his seeking refuge in Him. It is therefore an antistr. to the previous one. This Str. is composed of four couplets, three syn. v.<sup>4a, b, 4c, d, 6</sup>, one antith. v.<sup>5</sup>. — 4. Yahweh is in His holy temple], sometimes Yahweh is conceived as resident in His holy temple in Jerusalem, in the throne room of that temple, as 5<sup>8</sup> 79<sup>1</sup> 138<sup>2</sup> ; but here from the syn. Yahweh is in heaven, the temple is the heavenly one, as Mi. 1<sup>2</sup> Hb. 2<sup>20</sup> Ps. 18<sup>7</sup>. — His throne], either in apposition with heaven as a closer definition of heaven itself as the throne, cf. Is. 66<sup>1</sup>, or local accusative on His throne ; in either case, seated on His throne in His heavenly palace. Enthroned there He is not indifferent to what transpires on earth and among men. — His eyes behold], the object has fallen out of H, but is given in some Vrss. as the world, which is most appropriate to the context. It is especially favoured by the syn. His eyelids try the sons of mankind]. The eyelids are strained in the severe scrutiny, which marks closely and accurately all that men do in the world. This tetrastich is in antith. to v.<sup>1</sup>, the statement of the Psalmist that he has taken refuge in Yahweh, and the advice to seek refuge in the mountains. He has in fact sought refuge in heaven, a place infinitely higher and more secure than the mountains; and in Yahweh, the heavenly King, who is investigating just this situation in which he is involved.—5. Yahweh trieth the righteous]. If, as his advisers admit, he is righteous v.<sup>3b</sup> and rightminded v.<sup>2c</sup>, Yahweh is scrutinising him, trying him and his case thoroughly.—but the wicked His soul doth hate]. This exact antith. to the previous line is weakened by a later editor, at the expense also of the measure, in his effort to describe the wicked more particularly by him that loveth violence. They are the archers of v.<sup>2</sup>. Their treacherous preparations to shoot the righteous are all observed by Yahweh, and He hates them from His very soul. The soul is the seat of the passion of anger and hatred, for God as well as for man. If, therefore, Yahweh is trying the righteous man, and hating his deadly enemies, the reason given by the advisers for fleeing to the mountains is not a sound one; it is rather a reason why he should do what he has done: take refuge in Yahweh.—6. This couplet is synth. to the previous one and in antith. to v.<sup>3</sup>.—He will rain upon the wicked]. The figure of rain is suggested by the fact that Yahweh is on His heavenly throne and is looking down from heaven upon the earthly situation; and also by the fact that divine interpositions are ordinarily conceived as coming from heaven.—Coals of fire], so after 2. For an image of lightning flashes and thunderbolts in similar terms, v. Ps. 18<sup>13-15</sup>. His snares and fire gives a heterogeneous combination, and it is difficult to understand what snares have to do with this storm of judgment. The syn. brimstone reminds of the destruction of Sodom Gn. 19<sup>24</sup> (J), and a burning wind of the Samum or Sirocco of the East.—will be the portion of their cup], not that they were to drink in their cup such a mixture of brimstone and burning, but the cup is fig., as Ps. 16<sup>5</sup>, of what one enjoys at a feast. Yahweh rains from heaven upon these wicked men, and they drink their portion. Instead of a draught of joy, it is a draught of burning judgment. In antith. to these wicked men casting down the foundations of society v.<sup>3a</sup>, is Yahweh raining fire from heaven upon them; and so in response to the final question of the previous Str. “What has he done” v.<sup>3b</sup> is the answer—

there is no call for him to do anything. Yahweh has done it for him. The wicked have their portion already in hand.

7. The Ps. has reached its splendid climax. There was nothing more to be said. But a later editor, thinking he might give it a better devotional ending, appends an appropriate couplet. —

For the righteous Yahweh loveth;
The upright will behold His face.

This is a synth. couplet enhancing the privileges of the righteous of the Ps. The righteous || the upright] are the “rightminded” (v.<sup>26</sup>). A still later editor, probably on account of the unusual emph. position of “the righteous,” regards it as predicate of Yahweh, or adjective, and so either “Yahweh is righteous” or “the righteous Yahweh,” and accordingly supplies an object to the vb.: “righteous acts,” which may be interpreted either of righteous acts of the righteous man, as Is. 64<sup>5</sup>, or of the righteous acts which Yahweh Himself loves to do. — behold His face], so RV., Dr., that is, see the face of Yahweh, as His guest in the temple, Kirk., cf. 5<sup>5-6</sup>, or after death, cf. 16<sup>11</sup> 17<sup>15</sup>. That is the highest privilege of the one whom Yahweh loves. But it may be rendered “His face beholdeth the upright,” so essentially AV., JPSV., which is a rather tame repetition of v.<sup>46</sup>, and is improbable, even in a liturgical addition to the Ps.

Ges.<sup>§103</sup> (2) n. 3. This form of suffix gives a more melodious ending to the Ps. These two lines expressing a general truth are a later gl. for congregation, not suited to the original Ps.

PSALM XII., 4 STR. 4<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 12 is a prayer, in which the congregation implores Yahweh to save them, for the faithful vanish away and liars prevail (v. 2-3); and to cut off the liars (v. 4-5). Yahweh Himself says that He will arise, and set the afflicted in safety (v. 6-7<sup>b</sup>). The congregation finally expresses confidence that Yahweh will preserve them from the wicked round about (v. 8-9).

O SAVE, Yahweh, for (kindness) is no more;
For (faithfulness) is vanished from among the sons of mankind;
Empty lies they speak, each with his neighbour,
With flattering lip, with double mind they speak.

MAY Yahweh cut off every flattering lip,
And (every) tongue speaking great words:
Those who say, "To our tongues we give might,
Our lip is our own; who is lord over us?"

"BECAUSE of the spoiling of the afflicted, because of the sighing of the poor, Now will I arise," saith Yahweh.

"I will set (him) in safety, I will (shine forth for) him,
(When thrust down) to the earth he shall be purified seven times."

THOU, Yahweh, wilt preserve (his life),
Wilt keep (him) from this generation forever.
(Though) round about the wicked walk,
(When Thou risest up), (Thou dost lightly esteem) the sons of mankind.

The Ps. was in B, then in BA and BB (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). In the latter it received the assignment עֲלֵהשְׁמִינִי, indicating that it was to be sung an octave lower, that is, by the bass voice (v. Intr. § 34). The Ps. is unusually symmetrical in structure,  $4 \times 4 \times 4$ . This is disturbed by the gnomic gl. in v.<sup>7</sup>. The date of the Ps. cannot be too late because of juss. v.<sup>4</sup>, cohort v.<sup>2</sup>; but demonstr. וי without article v.<sup>8</sup> is not classic. גבר v.<sup>26</sup> as  $\gamma^{10}$   $\gamma\gamma^9$  and פסו v.<sup>2</sup> =  $\gamma\gamma^9$ ; the use of אמונים, חסיד v.<sup>2</sup>, עניים, v.<sup>6</sup>, for the righteous members of the congregation over against wicked members, all indicate a time of religious declension, in which the pious were in great suffering and peril, especially from slander and violence. It was a time of external peace and internal corruption. The great stress laid upon sins of speech, v.<sup>3</sup>, cf.  $41^7$   $144^8$  Pr.  $6^{24}$  I Ch.  $12^{33}$ ; v.<sup>4</sup> cf.  $131^1$ ; indicates the influence of Persian ethics. V.<sup>6</sup> gives a citation from Is.  $33^{10}$ , and not the reverse. All this favours the Persian period, at the time when the people were corrupted by mingling too freely with the neighbouring nations, subsequent to the building of the second temple and prior to the reforms of Ezra and Nehemiah.

Str. I. is composed of two tetrameter syn. couplets. The couplets themselves are antith. — 2. O save], cohort. inv., earnest entreaty to Yahweh. — for], giving the reason. — kindness || faithfulness] as suggested by chief ancient Vrss. and best suited to context.  $\mathfrak{H}$  and other Vrss. followed by EV<sup>8</sup>. have “godly” and “faithful.” — is no more], have come to an end as  $\gamma^{10}$   $\gamma\gamma^9$ . — is vanished], has disappeared, ceased, as  $\gamma\gamma^9$ . According to the interpretation adopted, kindness, trustworthiness seem no longer to exist in the community, cf. Ho.  $4^1$  Je.  $7^{28}$ . In the other case the persons themselves who should have these characteristics are no more, cf. Mi.  $7^2$  Is.  $57^1$ . — 3. Empty lies they speak], frequentative, of their custom or habit, cf.  $41^7$   $144^8$ .<sup>11</sup>. — each with his neighbour]. Unfaithfulness has so spread throughout the congregation that it has become a personal matter of man with man. — With flattering lip], as v.<sup>4</sup>, cf. Pr.  $6^{24}$ . — with double mind], with two different minds, cf. I Ch.  $12^{33}$  Ja.  $1^8$ .

Str. II. has two syn. couplets. — 4. May Yahweh cut off]. The juss. takes place of inv. of previous Str. — every flattering lip || every tongue speaking great words]. These do not refer to the character of the words as related to the speaker, and so “proud things” PBV., boastful; but as related to the hearer, greater than the reality, and so flattering, deceiving, and misleading. — 5. Those who say], referring to persons who use lip and tongue. — To our tongue we give might], as  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , Hi., De., Dr., Kirk., that it may speak these great words. We are mighty, with no one mightier than we are, — who is lord over us?] implying negative answer, no one. We are our own lord, our lips are our own], in our own possession and power, and therefore we may make them as mighty as we please. "Proud hypocrites are meant, putting confidence in their speech to deceive men, and not submitting themselves to God," Aug. The translation "with our tongue will we prevail," EV<sup>s</sup>, JPSV., after ℣, though followed by Bā., Du., al., is grammatically not so easy and not so well suited to context.

Str. III. is a synth. tetrastich disordered by a gnomic gloss.—6. Because of the spoiling]. The crafty enemies were also violent. They had attacked the people unprepared and had taken spoils from them.—sighing], indicating a sad condition as the result of this grievous wrong.—the afflicted || poor], as 35<sup>10</sup> 37<sup>14</sup> 40<sup>18</sup> (= 70<sup>6</sup>) 74<sup>21</sup> 86<sup>1</sup> 109<sup>16, 22</sup>; the prey of the liars and flatterers among their neighbours. These are the words of Yahweh Himself, who is resolved to interpose on their behalf—the reason for which is mentioned first for emphasis.—Now will I arise, saith Yahweh], an exact quotation from Is. 33<sup>10</sup>. Yahweh rises up, when He would interpose on behalf of His people or the righteous among them, cf. 10<sup>12</sup>.—I will set in safety], phr. only here, an exact response to the entreaty v.<sup>2a</sup>.—I will shine forth for him], in theophanic manifestation as Dt. 33<sup>2</sup> Pss. 50<sup>2</sup> 80<sup>2</sup> 94<sup>1</sup>, in accordance with Vrss. The three vbs. without conj. give emph. utterance to the purpose of Yahweh. But ℣ gives a vb. that occasions great difficulty, which is interpreted as a relative clause; "from him that puffeth at him" AV.; "at whom they puff" RV., as 10<sup>5</sup>; "at whom they scoff" JPSV., or, "that he panteth for" RV.<sup>m</sup>, Dr., or temporal "when they pant for him" Kirk.; none of which are satisfactory.—7. The words of Yahweh are pure words, silver refined]. This clause constitutes a gl., interrupting the words of Yahweh and destroying the structure of the Str., which has its fourth line at the close of v.<sup>7</sup>. It is a glossator's expression of admiration of the words of Yahweh uttered in the Str. It is, moreover, a gnomic sentence, cf. Pr. 30<sup>5</sup> Pss. 18<sup>31</sup> 19<sup>10</sup>. His words are as pure as refined silver.—When thrust down to the earth], referring to the afflicted among the people, continuing the words of Yahweh, cf. 74<sup>7</sup> 143<sup>3</sup> La. 2<sup>2</sup> Jb. 16<sup>15</sup>. The usual interpretation, referring this clause to the silver, is difficult in every respect. The translations: "As silver tried in a furnace of earth" AV; or "on earth" RV.; "refined in an earthen furnace" JPSV., are not sustained by etymology or syntax. The Vrss. and interpreters differ greatly, without in any case finding the sentence appropriate to the context. — he shall be purified], that is the afflicted, by sufferings; cf. Mal. 3<sup>3</sup>. — seven times], the holy number of complete purification.

Str. IV. is composed of a syn. and a synth. couplet. The pious now express their confidence in Yahweh, who has spoken with so great promptness and decision. — 8. Wilt preserve || wilt keep]. The obj. is dub. in text. The suffixes in ח are 3 pers. This is better suited to context than 1 pers. of שׁ, י. Probably both are interpretations, the Heb. vbs. being without suffixes in the original text. This is confirmed by the absence of one word in the first line, shortening the measure without reason. We should supply the usual object in such cases, probably his life. — from this generation], the class of men described above as liars and deceivers, cf. Dt. 32<sup>5</sup> Ps. 78<sup>8, 9</sup> Pr. 30<sup>11, 12, 13, 14</sup>. — 9. Though], the conjunction is needed for measure and meaning. — round about the wicked walk], familiar association with the righteous as in v. 3, close neighbourly conversation, and also publicity and boldness of their wicked life. — When Thou risest up], going back upon the promise of Yahweh v. 6, after שׁ, which interprets it of Yahweh, though regarding the form as noun. It is usually regarded as infin. with prep. in a temporal clause, referring to the wicked, according to the interpretation of the subsequent context as "the vilest men" י, AV. But ח makes it abstr. "vileness" RV., Kirk., "worthlessness" BDB. Such a word is, however, unknown elsw. in Heb. It is best therefore to follow שׁ, and to regard it as vb. and refer it to Yahweh: Thou dost lightly esteem], so Gr., cf. La. 1<sup>8</sup>. This gives an appropriate climax to the Ps.

2. הַיִּשְׁעָה Hiph. cohort. inv.  $\sqrt{\text{ישע}}$  v. 3<sup>8</sup>. שׁ  $\omega\sigma\tau\epsilon\mu\epsilon$ , so Che. is prob. interpretation. — כִּי־נִסְר causal conj. Qal pf.  $\sqrt{\text{נסר}}$  v. 7<sup>10</sup> real pf., subj. — חֲסִידִי ח, שׁ ||. אֱמִתִּים ח, י, ל, pl. ptc. pass. Qal,  $\sqrt{\text{אמן}}$ , cf. 31<sup>24</sup>, v. 19<sup>8</sup>; but שׁ pl. ἀληθείαι = veritates = truths, cf. שׁ, Σ, RV.<sup>m</sup>. † אֱמִנָּה n.m. faithfulness sg. Dt. 32<sup>20</sup>, pl. abstr. Pr. 13<sup>17</sup> 14<sup>5</sup> 20<sup>6</sup> Is. 26<sup>2</sup>. שׁ and ח differ also Ps. 31<sup>24</sup>. Probably שׁ is correct in interp. of form, but they were both abstract. In this case we should rd. חֲסִידִי as We. For similar mistake v. 4<sup>4</sup>. We should remember that in original Mss. only חֲסִידִי was written, and it might be interpreted either as חֲסִידִי or חֲסִידִי. —

PSALM XIII., 2 STR. 4<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 13 is a prayer expostulating with Yahweh for long-continued neglect (v.<sup>2-3</sup>); and petitioning for deliverance from deadly peril from an enemy (v.<sup>4-5</sup>). A liturgical addition rejoices in salvation already enjoyed (v.<sup>6</sup>).

HOW long, Yahweh, wilt Thou continually forget me?
How long wilt Thou hide Thy face from me?
How long (must) I put (grief) in my soul?
How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me?

YAHWEH, my God, O look, answer me;
Lest I sleep in death, O lighten mine eye,
Lest mine enemy say, "I have prevailed over him,"
Lest he rejoice that I am moved — even mine adversary.

Ps. 13 was in D then in M and MA (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). In its present form, it has three Strs. of 5, 4, 3 lines in M; in Ⓢ the last Str. has an additional line. It is tempting therefore to think of gradually decreasing strophes as De. "Das Lied wirft gleichsam immer kürzere Wellen, bis es, zuletzt nur noch freudig bewegt, still wird wie die spiegel-glatte See." But closer examination shows that the man responsible for the present form of the Ps. had not such a fine poetic sense for form. The original Ps. was composed of two tetrameter tetrastichs, rhyming in  $\acute{e}$ , the first Str. also in its four lines begins with עֵר־אֹנֶה; the second in three lines with מָן. In the Ps. as it now is, the tetrameter measure is changed to trimeter in v.<sup>6ab</sup>, the extra line in v.<sup>3b</sup> is without עֵר־אֹנֶה; the assonance of מָן is neglected in v.<sup>4</sup>; מָן is omitted altogether in v.<sup>5b</sup>; and rhyme is disregarded in an unnecessary change of order of words in both Strs., and also in change of sg. sf. to pl. in v.<sup>4.5</sup>. It is quite easy to restore the Ps. to its original form in these respects. It is true עֵר־אֹנֶה might be prefixed to v.<sup>3b</sup> (Br.<sup>SHS. 380</sup>), and it is possible with Du. to make over the trimeter in v.<sup>6</sup> to tetrameter; but even then there is a lack of harmony between v.<sup>6</sup> and v.<sup>2-5</sup>, which is best explained by regarding v.<sup>6</sup> as a liturgical gl. In that case the rejection of v.<sup>3b</sup> as expl. gl. is necessary. The Ps. in its present form is doubtless a congregational Ps. of prayer closing with praise. But if v.<sup>6</sup> be a gl., the two Strs. are most naturally explained as the prayer of an individual; and in that case the evidences favour an early date. The Ps. was not composed for public worship; but was adapted for the purpose, when it was taken up into  $\mathfrak{D}$ . There is no evidence of late date apart from gls. There is no intrinsic evidence against as early a date as the time of David. The Ps. is brief, terse, simple, and yet symmetrical and ornate in style and form. The author of 2 S. 1<sup>19-27</sup> might have written it. The use of מָן there v.<sup>20</sup> is similar to its use in this Ps. v.<sup>4-5</sup>. Hi., De., Kirk., refer it to Saul's persecution of David, and it admirably suits that historic situation.

Str. I. is a syn. tetrastich.—2. How long?] emph. repetition in four lines; earnest expostulation with Yahweh because of long-continued neglect of His servant. Wilt Thou forget me? || hide Thy face from me?], so as not to see, as 10<sup>11</sup>, where we have same parall. terms in mouth of the enemy.—Continually] as 16<sup>11</sup> Pr. 21<sup>28</sup>, and not "forever," RV. after Vrss. which is not suited to the sentence. There is no sufficient reason to break the sentence in two as AV. or paraphrase by "utterly" as JPSV.—3. Must I put in my soul?] The change from second person, referring to Yahweh, to the first person of psalmist, before third person of enemy is striking in these lines of expostulation. We may be sure this action was not a simple fact feared for in the future, but involuntary action; and so the mood of vb. cannot be indicative as EV<sup>a</sup>., but must be juss.—grief], so by an easy emendation of many scholars in accordance with context, and also with the usual meaning of nephesh. But the conception, of a person putting grief in his own soul, was so unusual, that an early scribe by the omission of a letter read "counsels," "advices," so EV*. This is thus explained by Pe. : "plan after plan suggests itself, is resolved upon, and then abandoned in despondency as utterly un-availing." But nephesh is seldom used of mental states, and this thought is not easy to adjust to the context. It had to be explained by the gl. : sorrow daily in my mind. — Mine enemy], personal in the original Ps., but congregational in the present text. — be exalted over me], in success, supremacy, and triumph : elsw. of God or His people ; here only of enemy over a pious man : all the more therefore emphasising the abnormal situation, the reverse of what it should be.

Str. II. is a tetrameter tetrastich, three syn. lines, synth. to the first line, and is all petition to Yahweh. — 4. My God], to emphasise personal relation of psalmist to Him. — O look] earnest entreaty followed by imv. answer me, without conj. expressive of urgency, antith. to v.<sup>2a</sup>. — Lest], in three lines antith. "how long," Str. I. — O lighten mine eye], cf. 19<sup>9</sup>, to which it has been assimilated by copyist in use of pl. eyes destroying rhyme. The antith. with "hide Thy face" v.<sup>2b</sup> indicates that it is here the turning of Yahweh's face upon the psalmist that lightens his eye as 4<sup>7</sup> 31<sup>17</sup> 67<sup>2</sup> 80<sup>4. 8. 20</sup> 118<sup>27</sup> 119<sup>135</sup>, all on basis of the High-priest's blessing Nu. 6<sup>25</sup>. The use of the phr. 1 S. 14<sup>27. 29</sup> Pr. 29<sup>13</sup> Ezr. 9<sup>8</sup>, as well as context, favours the enlightenment of the eyes in the sense of the revival of physical strength and moral energy. But it is due here to the light of Yahweh's countenance, so that probably lighten is here pregnant, comprehending both conceptions. — I sleep in death]. Death is often conceived as sleep 76<sup>6</sup> 90<sup>5</sup> Je. 51<sup>39. 57</sup> Jb. 14<sup>12</sup>, not implying that the dead continue in a state of sleep in Sheol, but that the state of dying is a falling asleep to awake in another world. The psalmist is in peril of death, unless the favour of God shine forth from the divine face upon him, with its quickening power. — 5. Mine enemy say], boastfully, antith. "grief," which the poet was obliged to put in his own soul v.<sup>3a</sup>. — I have prevailed over him], have the ability and power to overcome him, slay him, as parall. implies. — that I am moved], shaken, overthrown, removed from my place : the theme of the rejoicing of the adversary, who looks upon his plans as already accomplished. The poet is in grave peril of this result, but it has not yet transpired; and his urgent plea to Yahweh is that he may be delivered in good time. Elsw. in  $\psi$  this vb. is used of man with a neg. in the assurance that one "will not be moved" 10<sup>6</sup> 15<sup>5</sup> 16<sup>8</sup> 21<sup>8</sup> 30<sup>7</sup> 62<sup>3,7</sup> 112<sup>6</sup>.

6. An editor, desiring to make the Ps. more appropriate for public use, adds a trimeter couplet of faith and joy:

But I in Thy kindness trust;
My heart rejoices in Thy salvation.

A still later editor, with the same purpose, adds a resolution of public praise:

I will sing to Yahweh, because He hath dealt bountifully with me.

㉔, ㉕ give a fourth and still later liturgical line from 7<sup>18</sup>, preserved in PBV.:

Yea I will praise the name of the Lord Most Highest.

If this were original to Ps., we might with Du. insert יְהוָה, and so get tetrameter. — [יָגֵל] juss. with modal sense, if parall. with אֶשְׁפָּרֵץ Qal cohort., so Dr.; but if parall. with previous line has lost modal sense as usual in late style. Subj. לִב Pr. 24<sup>17</sup> Zc. 10<sup>7</sup>, more properly נַפֶּשׁ Ps. 35<sup>9</sup> Is. 61<sup>10</sup>, כְּבִיד Ps. 16<sup>9</sup>. — [בְּיִשְׁעֶךָ] might be given either one accent or two, acc. to good usage and design of poet as to measure; v. 3<sup>3</sup>. — [פִּי-נִמְלָ עִלָּי] deal bountifully with, as 116<sup>7</sup> 119<sup>17</sup> 142<sup>8</sup>, v. 7<sup>5</sup>. בִּי gives ground or reason of exultation. This l. is a tetrameter and is a still later gl. S adds a tetrameter l., καὶ ψαλῶ τῷ ὁσέματι κυρίου τοῦ ὑψίστου = וְאִמְרָה שֵׁם יְהוָה עֲלֵינוּ, a liturgical addition from 7<sup>18</sup>. יְהוָה עֲלֵינוּ elsw. 47<sup>8</sup>. If this Str. is to be taken as original, this line is needed to make up tetrastich. But it is difficult to explain its omission from H. It implies public worship of congregation. But if it be gl., the previous three lines are also gl., because they imply the same situation and a later date than the previous parts of Ps.

PSALM XIV. = LIII., 5 STR. 2<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 14 describes dramatically the impudent nations, acting abominably, saying to themselves, "There is no God to interfere" (v.<sup>1</sup>); Yahweh from heaven inspecting them (v.<sup>2</sup>), and declaring that there is not a single well-doer among them (v.<sup>3</sup>); the devourers of His people, ignoring Him in careless indifference (v.<sup>4</sup>); Yahweh suddenly scattering them, and putting their plan to shame (v.<sup>5-6</sup>). At a later date the congregation prays that salvation may come forth from Zion (v.<sup>7a</sup>); and still later, summons to the worship of Yahweh, because of the restoration of prosperity (v.<sup>7b</sup>).

THE impudent said to themselves, "There is no God (here)."

They corrupted their deeds, they acted abominably, there was no well-doer.

YAHWEH looked forth from heaven upon the sons of mankind,

To see whether there was any acting intelligently in seeking after God.

THE whole have turned aside, have drawn back, together are become tainted.

There is no well-doer, there is not even one.

HAVE the workers of trouble no knowledge — devourers of my people ?
 They eat bread : Yahweh they do not invoke.
 THERE feared they a fear ; for God scattered them ;
 Their plan was put to shame : for Yahweh rejected them.

Pss. 14 and 53 both have לָמוֹנָה and לָרוּר, and so were in AB and AB<sup>2</sup> (v. Intr. §§ 27, 33). Possibly the לָמוֹנָה of 14 was a later assimilation. To 53 is prefixed מַשְׁכִּיל, possibly owing to the use of מַשְׁכִּיל in v.<sup>2</sup>, but probably original, indicating that the Ps. was also in the little collection of Maskelim (v. Intr. § 26). AB<sup>2</sup> added a direction for the melody עַל מַחֲלֵה (v. Intr. § 34). Ps. 53 was also in E (v. Intr. § 32), where אֱלֹהִים was substituted for an original יְהוָה throughout. Thus the Ps. had several editings before it received its present positions in two different texts. There are several minor differences: (a) עֵיִל 53<sup>2</sup> = עֵילָה 14<sup>1</sup>; (b) the insertion of ו before הַחַעֲיִבו 53<sup>2</sup>; (c) כָּלִי 53<sup>4</sup> = כָּלִל 14<sup>3</sup>; (d) סָג 53<sup>4</sup> for סָר 14<sup>3</sup>; (e) כָּל before פָּעִלִי 14<sup>4</sup>; (f) יִשְׁעֵיהֶם 53<sup>7</sup> for יִשְׁעָהּ 14<sup>7</sup>. These are such variations as might readily occur in different texts without changing the sense. In most cases Ps. 14 seems to be nearer the original. Ps. 53<sup>6</sup> is different from 14<sup>6</sup> after the first clause שָׁם מַחֲרוּ מַחֲרוּ. This difference is due not to design, but to different interpretations of a difficult text, for the same consonant letters lie at the basis of both texts (v. v.<sup>6</sup> notes). In this v. Ps. 53 is nearer the original, as it points to an actual event of experience, where Ps. 14 generalises. SB. A. R., H, Syr. Hexapla, PBV, have a number of additional lines, cited in Rom. 3<sup>10-18</sup> from Pss. 5<sup>9</sup> 10<sup>7</sup> 36<sup>1</sup> 140<sup>4</sup> Is. 59<sup>7-8</sup>. They came into G at an early date by a marginal reference to Rom. 3<sup>10-18</sup>, and in cod. Kenn. 649 of H were translated back into Heb.

Their throat is an open sepulchre;
 With their tongues they have used deceit;
 The poison of asps is under their lips;
 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness.
 Their feet are swift to shed blood;
 Destruction and misery are in their ways,
 And the way of peace have they not known.
 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

It is impossible that these lines should be original, because of the textual evidence. They are absent from H, other Vrss., G<sup>A</sup> and later codd. G, and are rejected by Origen and Jerome. Moreover, they do not accord with the thought of the Ps.; they entirely destroy the strophical organisation, and are of several different measures. The Ps. reflects the same situation essentially as Pss. 9-10; cf. 14<sup>1</sup> with 10<sup>4, 6, 11, 18</sup>. The נָבֵל here is the same as the רָשָׁע there. It was a time when the congregation of the Restoration was in great peril from the surrounding nations contemning and treating with contumely their religion and their God: before the reforms of Nehemiah. The language is in general similar to D, Je., Zp., Ez., and Is. One word has no example in this list, נָאֵלָה v.<sup>3</sup>, elstw. Jb. 15<sup>16</sup>; but this is an Arabism, and may well have been of this time rather than later, when Aram. influences prevailed. The divine inspection from heaven v.<sup>2</sup> implies the doctrine that Yahweh is not merely the God of Israel, but the God of the nations, the only real God; and therefore the triumph of monotheism over polytheism, such as is evident in Is.<sup>2,3</sup>. The original reference of the Ps. to the nations, which is evident in 53 because of the more general interpretation of the situation, became in 14, in the worship of the congregation, adapted to the impudent contemners and ignorers of God in Israel itself. The Ps. is composed of five pentameter couplets, but there are three lines of different measure at the end. These represent two different liturgical additions: the one a petition for salvation from Zion the capital of Yahweh, as in 110<sup>2</sup>; the other a call to worship because the salvation had been accomplished. Both imply the temple worship of the Restoration.

Str. I. A synth. couplet describes the nations in their attitude to the people of Yahweh. — 1. The impudent]. They ignore God, treating His people with contempt, and acting in a shameful manner towards the religion of Yahweh and Yahweh Himself. The Nabhal is not a "fool" EV<sup>s</sup>. in any of the meanings of this word, but a more aggressive personality, one who, in an earlier religious stage, represents the scorner of WL. (v. Ps. 1<sup>1</sup>). He is not the antith. of the wise, but of the one acting intelligently v.<sup>2</sup>. The word is here sg. coll., and so is followed by pl. vbs. In Ps. 14 there is a generalisation of the earlier historical situation, referring to impudent nations hostile to Israel and the God of Israel, which, while not altogether destroying, yet so obscures it as to make it easy for the congregation in later worship to think of the impudent in Israel itself, who act contemptuously towards the pious portion of the congregation and their religion; and later still to think of the unbeliever and infidel. — Said to themselves], in their mind, as 10<sup>6</sup>. — There is no God (here)], not a denial of the existence of God, — these nations were polytheists and not infidels, — but a denial of the presence of God, to interfere with their actions, to interpose on behalf of His people, as 10<sup>4</sup>; interpreted by "He will not require" 10<sup>14</sup> and by "God hath forgotten, He hath hidden His face, He doth not see" 10<sup>11</sup>. Accordingly these nations, in a most impudent manner, went to the utmost length with apparent impunity. — They corrupted their deeds, they acted abominably]. Some, even Kirk., think that the psalmist has in mind the corruption that preceded the deluge

Gn. 6<sup>12</sup> (P) ; indeed, he uses the first of these vbs., but in a different phr. The phrasing here is in accord with Zp. 3<sup>7</sup>, all the more if we transpose the noun to be the obj. of the first vb., although the reference in Zp. is to corrupt Israel, and here to the nations. The reference to the universal sinfulness of mankind before the deluge is possible only by a generalisation of the text of the original even beyond the changes of Ps. 14. The abominable deeds towards Israel are more fully described in Ps. 10<sup>7-10</sup>. — There was no well-doer], among these hostile nations ; there was no exception, they were all alike ; they had attained a climax, the utmost possible limit in their impudent and abominable actions.

Str. II. A synth. couplet, describes Yahweh's attitude, antith. to that of the nations, of the first couplet. — 2. Yahweh looked forth from heaven]. He was in heaven, cf. 10<sup>5</sup>, at a distance from the nations. They could not see Him ; they might ignore Him, and condemn Him, and to themselves deny His presence ; but in fact He was there. He was intensely interested in what was going on ; so much so that He was looking forth upon the sons of mankind], these impudent nations, which yet belong to the race of mankind and not to the order of divine beings, — to see whether], making a careful, thorough, scrutinising inspection, — there was any acting intelligently], in order, if possible, to single out one from among these impudent ones that was their real antith. in seeking after God], in prayer and worship, cf. 9<sup>11</sup>.

Str. III. A synth. couplet, still further describing the character of the impudent nations. The result of the divine inspection corresponds entirely with the psalmist's description (v.<sup>1</sup>). — 3. The whole, 14<sup>3</sup> = all of them, 53<sup>4</sup>], variations of style merely, intensified in together, of joint action. They all alike share in the same characteristic doings. — have turned aside 14<sup>3</sup> || have drawn back 53<sup>4</sup>: syn. vbs., both needed for measure, the two different prosaic editors preferring, one the one term, the other the other term ; both further explication of v.<sup>1b</sup>. Instead of seeking after God and doing good, they have drawn back and away from God and good. — are become tainted], corrupt, spoiled, altogether bad. This is not, as has been commonly supposed, an assertion of universal human corruption ; but, as the context shows, of the total depravity of the impudent oppressors of the people of Yahweh, described in v.<sup>1,4</sup>.— There is no well-doer], showing in the climax the exact agreement of Yahweh with the psalmist as to the character of these nations, intensified, however, by the additional clause: there is not even one.

Strs. IV. and V. are synth. couplets, giving the psalmist's description of the final result of the antithetical situation described in the previous couplets.—4. He first expostulates with these nations: have (they) no knowledge?]. Is it possible that they do not know that Yahweh is inspecting them, and declaring their character and doom? How can they go on ignoring God as they have done? It seems incredible that they should act so.— The workers of trouble] take the place of "sons of mankind" v.<sup>2</sup> and "the impudent" v.<sup>1</sup>, as a more suitable term to sum up all that has been said about them.— Devourers of my people]. The bitter enmity and severe attacks made upon the people by their enemies to destroy them are compared to eating, devouring, as Hb. 3<sup>14</sup> Ps. 27<sup>2</sup>. This suggests the corresponding thought resuming that of v.<sup>1</sup>, that they so ignore God, are so impudent and contemptuous in their attitude towards Him, that they eat bread], partake of their ordinary food without regard to Him, without at all considering Him.— Yahweh they do not invoke], renewing the thought of v.<sup>2</sup> They have no thought of seeking after God, or of recognising Him at all, even in the enjoyment of His benefits.—5. There], pointing to a place and a historic event known to the original psalmist, but not indicated.— feared they a fear]. This is mentioned abruptly and dramatically, as if they were taken by surprise. It is still further emphasised by the gloss 53<sup>6</sup>, "where no fear was"; that is, either, when there was no apparent reason for fear, suddenly it came upon them without warning, or they were seized with a panic without external cause, due to the sudden realisation in their minds of the real situation described above.— For God scattered (them)], so 53<sup>6</sup>, in accordance with the panic of the previous context. The vb. admirably suits that scattering in all directions which takes place whenever a sudden panic comes upon a body of men, cf. 89<sup>11</sup>. But 14<sup>5</sup>, by error of copyist, has: "for God is in the generation of the righteous," which gives, indeed, a general reason why the nations should fear Yahweh, and stay their evil deeds against His people, but no reason for this sudden fear that has come upon them. Ps. 53<sup>6</sup> gives as the obj. of "scatter": "the bones of Thy besiegers." This conceives of the nations as besieging the people of Yahweh when the panic suddenly came upon them. This admirably suits the context and is tempting as a historical basis of the Ps., but in fact it is due to a misreading of the original, and destroys the measure. — 6. Their plan was put to shame]. This underlies and best explains both texts. Their plan was, as the previous context shows, to devour, utterly destroy, the people of God; and their deeds were most impudent, abominable, and corrupt. Their plan was frustrated and put to shame, because they were scattered in a disgraceful panic. Ps. 14 misreads so as to give either a statement of fact: "Ye put to shame the counsel of the afflicted," or a hypothetical clause: "Ye may put to shame"; but in either case it is difficult to adjust to the context. It is true that this clause might be regarded as a reiteration of the impudent conduct of the nations, but there is no apparent reason for it here, and we still lack, according to that interpretation, any explanation of the sudden panic with which the verse began. Ps. 53<sup>6</sup> takes the vb. as abs. and 2 sg. with God as subject, "Thou hast put to shame," which suits the vb. "scattered," but leaves the obj. to be supplied; while the 2 pers. sg. is strikingly out of place in the midst of 3 pers. sg. in previous and subsequent lines, all pers. alike referring to God. — For Yahweh rejected them], so 53<sup>6</sup>, in accord with its context; 14<sup>6</sup>, "is his refuge," is due to the mistake of a single letter of the original word, though it is quite well suited to the previous context. The original Ps. came to an end with this couplet.

7. A later editor, probably of 11, adds, as a liturgical prayer, a tetrameter line.

Oh, that the salvation of Israel might come forth from Zion!

Zion is here conceived as the capital seat of Yahweh's dominion, from whence therefore salvation comes. This implies a well-ordered worship in the temple and a strongly defended city, as in Pss. 46, 47. Here is an entirely different situation from that of v.<sup>2</sup>, where salvation comes from Yahweh in heaven; cf. 110<sup>2</sup> for a similar gloss.

A still later liturgical addition, a tetrameter couplet, was made, probably in  $\psi$ , calling upon the congregation in public worship:—

In that Yahweh hath restored the prosperity of His people, Let Jacob rejoice, let Israel be glad.

The juss. form probably has juss. sense, although at this late date it might be regarded as having lost its distinctive mng., and so be translated as indicative future, “shall rejoice,” “shall be glad,” EV<sup>a</sup>.; the former is more suited to a liturgical gloss, the latter is tolerable only in the view that it was original to the Ps., and then the early date would be against this interpretation of the jussive. — In that]. The infinitive cstr. with prep. may be interpreted as temporal clause, “when”  $\mathfrak{I}$  and most Vrss. and interpreters, but better as giving ground or reason for the exhortation, cf. 9<sup>4</sup>. — Yahweh hath restored the prosperity of His people]. This is to be preferred, especially at this late date, to the more specific and earlier rendering of the phr., “bring back the captivity,” EV<sup>a</sup>., which does not suit a late liturgical addition.

Ps. 15 is a didactic poem, inquiring what sort of a man is qualified to be a guest of Yahweh (v. 1); describing him in accordance with a decalogue of duties (v. 2-5b); and declaring such a man secure (v. 5c).

*YAHWEH, who shall be a guest in Thy tent?
Who shall dwell on Thy holy mount?*

HE that walketh perfect in his righteousness;
He that speaketh truth in his mind;
Who hath not played the spy upon his neighbour,
Hath not done harm to his friend,
Hath not taken up a reproach against the one near to him,
Despised in his eyes is the reprobate;
But them that fear Yahweh he honoureth.
He doth swear to (his friend) and changeth not.
His silver he hath not given in usury,
Nor taken a bribe against the innocent.

WHOSO doeth these things shall not be moved.

Ps. 15 was in D and Ps (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). It was not taken up into the earlier major Psalters, because it was neither hymn nor prayer, but simply didactic in character, and so less suited for public worship. It resembles Ps. 24<sup>3-6</sup>, which has a similar couplet of inquiry and a similar response; now a tristich, but probably originally a couplet, with a concluding couplet; and therefore more artistic than Ps. 15. The measure of Ps. 24 is also trimeter, the response is simpler and earlier. The language and phrasing are so different that there seems to be no interdependence. The situation is entirely different with Is. 33<sup>14-16</sup>, where there is a couplet of inquiry, a pentastich of response and a concluding tristich. These are tetrameters. But the language and phrasing are so similar to Ps. 15 that there is interdependence; and probably the briefer ethical conception of Is.<sup>3</sup> is earlier than the more complete one of the Ps. The question has the same conception of guest וַיִּשְׁמַח; although in Is.<sup>3</sup> Yahweh is a consuming fire, in the Ps. He has a hospitable tent. The different situations at the time of composition explain this variation. Three of the ethical requirements are the same: (1) הָלַךְ חֲמִים v. 2<sup>a</sup> = הָלַךְ צְדָקוֹת Is. 33<sup>15a</sup>. This is all the more the case if we read in v. 2<sup>a</sup> הָלַךְ חֲמִים בְּצָדִיק.

Str. I. is a couplet of inquiry, as 24<sup>8. 10</sup> Is. 33<sup>14</sup>.—1. Who] not, what person? but as often, what sort of a person? what shall be his character?—shall be a guest in Thy tent], v. Ps. 5<sup>5</sup>. The tent is a poetic term for the temple 27<sup>5-6</sup> 61<sup>5</sup>, based upon the ancient sacred tent of Yahweh, prior to the building of the temple 78<sup>60. 67</sup>. The temple was really the house or palace of Yahweh; sometimes conceived as the place of sacrifice and worship, sometimes as the place of His royal presence, to which He admits His servants, either as guests or to shelter them from their enemies.—dwelt on Thy holy Mount], parall. with previous line, but not entirely synonymous. The privilege of access to the sacred tent as guests is one thing; the privilege of a residence on the holy mountain as citizens is another. The holy mount is here as elsewhere Jerusalem or Zion (v. 2<sup>6</sup>).

Str. II. is a decalogue composed of two pentades of ethical requirements. The first, 2—3, comprehends a couplet and a triplet. The couplet is more general, requiring: (1) Moral walk or conduct. In this the guest of Yahweh should be perfect in his righteousness], complete, faultless, so probably the original, to rhyme with the other lines of the pentade. These two kindred words seemed to a later prosaic editor to require each its own verb, and so he inserted "worketh" before "righteousness," and destroyed the measure. (2) Moral speech. — He that speaketh truth ], not merely of external speech to others as 1 K. 22<sup>16</sup> Je. 9<sup>4</sup> Zc. 8<sup>16</sup>, where truth and falsehood are conceived in the preëxilic sense as connected with injury to others ; but, internal speech, to himself, in his mind ], the later and much higher conception of truthfulness, due to Persian influence ; the Persians, from an earlier date than their contact with Israel, being distinguished above all other ancient nations for the stress they put upon moral truthfulness. The more general attitude of this first pair of ethical requirements passes over into the more specific negative conduct in the triplet, which is progressive in order of thought. The relationship becomes constantly closer in the order : his neighbour, his friend, the one near to him, so also in the actions. — play the spy upon ]. This is the ordinary meaning of the Heb. phr. ; but a copyist in the omission of a single letter of the original “neighbour,” substituted a Hebrew word meaning “tongue,” and so made an obscure and unexampled phr. and construction, which has been rendered in various ways. Those most familiar to English readers, are : “He that hath used no deceit in his tongue” PBV., “He that backbiteth not with his tongue” AV., “He that slandereth not with his tongue” RV. ; none of which is well sustained. — Hath not done harm to ]. The evil disposition, as expressed in spying, has passed over into an active doing of injuries, and reaches its climax in : hath not taken up a reproach against the one near to him.

The second pentade, 4–5b, is also composed of a couplet and triplet, the couplet general, the triplet specific. The couplet is antith. — The reprobate ], the one rejected by Yahweh (v. 14<sup>6</sup> (revised txt.) = 53<sup>6</sup>), antith. them that fear Yahweh ], His worshippers, cf. 22<sup>24</sup> 25<sup>12</sup> 34<sup>10</sup> 112<sup>1</sup> 115<sup>11, 13</sup> 118<sup>4</sup> 128<sup>1, 4</sup> 135<sup>20</sup>. The former are despised in his eyes ], his eyes look upon them with contempt ; the latter he honoureth. The triplet is progressive, as the previous one, in the rejection of degrees of wickedness. — He doth swear to his friend ], so 6 “neighbour” PBV. ; which is easier and more suited to the context than the stronger and tempting, “to his own hurt” 3, AV., RV., JPSV., and most moderns. This rests upon a different interpretation of the same original consonant letters, which in the unpointed text may be interpreted by two different words. — and changeth not ], that is, adheres to his oath and does not violate it. This probably refers in accordance with the subsequent context to a promise made to a friend of some benefit or help. The violation of the oath of promise now passes over to the more positive usury, and more guilty bribery, in violation of the ancient codes; the former of Ex. 22<sup>24</sup> (E) Lv. 25<sup>37</sup> (H) Dt. 23<sup>20</sup>, cf. Ez. 18<sup>8.13.17</sup> Pr. 28<sup>8</sup>; the latter of Ex. 23<sup>8</sup> (E) Dt. 27<sup>25</sup> (Decalogue) Dt. 10<sup>17</sup> 16<sup>19</sup> 1 S. 8<sup>3</sup>, cf. Is. 1<sup>23</sup> 5<sup>23</sup> 33<sup>15</sup> Ez. 22<sup>12</sup> Ps. 26<sup>10</sup> Pr. 17<sup>23</sup>.

Str. III. is a monostich, summing up the decalogue in final response to Str. I.—5c. Whoso doeth these things shall not be moved]. This phr. is often employed to indicate the firm, secure condition of the people of God, in Zion, v. 10<sup>6</sup>. A later editor thought that he strengthened it by adding “forever.”

The only other use of vb. is Tiph. Ho. 11<sup>3</sup> teach to walk (dub.). The difficulty with רגל is due to לעשנו, which is not homogeneous to the vb. The context suggests לעשנו על שכני upon his neighbour, Che. The ל of לשנו originated from dittog. after the omission of כ. We should probably also rd. עלי for better measure. PSALM XVI., 3 STR. 8<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 16 is a psalm of faith. The psalmist has sought refuge in Yahweh his sovereign Lord, and supreme welfare (v.<sup>1-2</sup>); whose good pleasure is in His saints (v.<sup>3</sup>). The apostates have many sorrows, and he keeps apart from them and their impious worship (v.<sup>4</sup>). Yahweh is his portion and his inheritance in pleasant places (v.<sup>5-6</sup>); he enjoys His counsel (v.<sup>7</sup>) and continual helpful presence (v.<sup>8</sup>); he is glad and secure (v.<sup>9</sup>), confident that Yahweh will not abandon him in Sheol (v.<sup>10</sup>), but will grant him life and joy forever in His presence (v.<sup>11</sup>).

KEEP me, 'El; for I have sought refuge in Thee.
 I said to Yahweh: "Thou art my sovereign Lord,"
 For my welfare is not (without) Thee.
 To the saints who are in the land,
 (Yahweh) makes wonderful all His good pleasure in them.
 They shall multiply their sorrows who hurry backwards.
 I will not offer their drink offerings, because of bloodshed;
 I will not take up their names upon my lips.

YAHWEH is my share, (my) portion, and my cup;
 (Yahweh is) the maintainer of my lot (for me).
 The lines are fallen for me in pleasant places;
 Yea, mine inheritance is (mighty over) me.
 I will bless Yahweh, who hath given me counsel:
 Yea, in the dark night my reins admonish me.
 I have set Yahweh continually before me:
 Since He is on my right hand, I shall not be moved.

THEREFORE my heart is glad (in Yahweh);
 (Also) my glory rejoiceth (in Yahweh);
 Also my flesh dwelleth securely:
 For Thou wilt not leave me to Sheol;
 Thou wilt not suffer Thy pious one to see the Pit;
 Thou wilt make known to me the path to Life.
 Fulness of gladness is in Thy presence;
 Loveliness is on Thy right hand forever.

Ps. 16 was in 𐤁 belonging to the group of מִכְתָּמִּים (v. Intr. §§ 25, 27). It was not in 𐤁𐤁. That is the reason probably why it was separated from the other Miktamim, 56-60, which have been preserved, all of which were in 𐤁𐤁. This favours an early date for the Ps. (1) There is a use of Je. 23<sup>6</sup> 33<sup>16</sup> Dt. 33<sup>12</sup>, שָׁכֵן לִנְשָׁה in v.<sup>9b</sup>; (2) a dependence upon Ez. in the conception (a) of saints, consecrated ones, for faithful Israelites in accordance with the code of H v.<sup>3</sup>, and (b) of the pit in Sheol v.<sup>10</sup>; (3) a much greater dependence upon

Is.<sup>2.3</sup> (a) in the phrase, His good pleasure in them v.<sup>3b</sup>, cf. Is. 44<sup>28</sup> 46<sup>10</sup> 48<sup>14</sup>; (b) apostasy expressed by hurrying backwards v.<sup>4a</sup>, cf. Is. 50<sup>5</sup>; (c) the drink offerings v.<sup>4b</sup> if of blood, correspond with the abominations described in Is. 57<sup>5a</sup> 65<sup>11</sup> 66<sup>3</sup>; and it may be that v.<sup>4c</sup> finds its best illustration in Is. 65<sup>15</sup>, as Bā. suggests. The worship there repudiated is that of Palestine and Syria, not that of Babylonia or Egypt. If the situation is the same, we must think of the late days of the Exile or the early days of the Restoration. But it is more probable that these drink offerings were repudiated because those who made them were guilty of bloodshed, of murder of innocent persons. This favours a time when there was no strong government to repress such disorders. (4) The reference to a share or portion in the land (v.<sup>5</sup>) also favours one who has recently returned to the Holy Land. The expression "Saints who are in the land" implies an antith. to those who were not in the land, those still in exile, such as would be quite natural for one recently come to the land from among the exiles. (5) The tone of the Ps. is one of calm trust in Yahweh and the enjoyment of prosperity attributed to Yahweh. The author calmly separates himself from the apostates; but there is no evidence of active hostility, still less of peril or warfare. This does not favour the times of hardship and poverty described by Hg. and Zc., or the times of conflict of Ne. and Ezr. The Ps. was composed either between these times or subsequent thereto. (6) There is a single Aramaism, v.<sup>6b</sup> שפּרָה עָלַי, which is found elsewhere only Dn. This might have been used at any time in the Persian period; but most likely not at its beginning. However, it is a copyist's error. G has the correct text in a common word גּוֹבֵרָה. (7) The calm view of death and the expectation of the presence of God and blessedness after death imply an advance beyond Is. 57<sup>1-2</sup>; but prior to the emergence of the doctrine of the resurrection of the righteous Is. 26<sup>19</sup>, that is, in the Persian period. The same point of view is in Pss. 17<sup>15</sup> 49<sup>16</sup> 73<sup>23-26</sup> Jb. 19<sup>25-27</sup>. (8) The author was one of the חַסִּידִים v.<sup>10b</sup>, the pious who distinguished themselves carefully from those who were not faithful to Yahweh, and kept apart from them. (9) There is no trace of the observance of P, or of the practice of temple worship, in this profession of piety, probably, therefore, the date was prior to these. On the whole the composition of the Ps. is best assigned to the time subsequent to Zerubbabel and prior to Nehemiah. The Ps. is tetrameter and of three strophes. It is doubtful whether these are of eight lines or seven. If the text of Str. III. v.<sup>9-11</sup> is the test, it is not difficult to find glosses in v.<sup>3a, 5a</sup> with Du. If these are regarded as original, it is not difficult to reconstruct v.<sup>9</sup> into three lines and regard v.<sup>9ab</sup> as condensed by a prosaic scribe into one line, leaving a trace of it in having one word too many. V.<sup>8-11b</sup> is cited Acts 2<sup>25-32</sup> from G, and applied by St. Peter to the resurrection of Christ; so v.<sup>10b</sup> by St. Paul, Acts 13<sup>35</sup>. The hopes of the Ps., which apply only to the enjoyment of the presence of God after death, in view of the subsequent emergence of the doctrine of the resurrection, are realised in the eternal life of the resurrection, and so first in Christ, the first fruits of that resurrection.

Str. I. is a tetrameter octastich; three synth. lines giving the psalmist's attitude toward God, two Yahweh's attitude toward the saints of the land, and three the attitude of both toward the apostates. 1-2. Keep me], a plea for protection based on: I have sought refuge in Thee], cf.  $2^{12} 5^{12} 7^2 11^1 +$ . — I said to Yahweh], so Vrss., RV., JPSV., Dr., Kirk.; and not "(O my soul) thou hast said," MT., PBV., AV., which is not well sustained by text or context. — Thou art my sovereign Lord], "my Master" JPSV., "my Lord" AV.; pl. intensive, as  $2^4 8^1$ , and not the divine name "Adonay," "the Lord" RV.<sup>m</sup> — My welfare], prosperity, is to be preferred to "my goods," possessions,  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{U}$ , PBV., elsw. only Ec.  $5^{10}$ ; or to "goodness" AV. "Good" RV. is too general. — is not (without) Thee], as  $\mathfrak{A}$ , is most prob. "Nothing unto Thee" PBV., "(extendeth) not to Thee" AV., cannot be sustained. RV. "beyond Thee" is dub. (Dr.); though urged by Ew., RS., Kirk.: "Not merely is God the source of all his weal, but everything which he recognizes as a true good, God actually contains within Himself." The simpler idea that the psalmist is entirely dependent on Yahweh, the source of all good, for his welfare, and cannot prosper without divine favour, is much more probable. — 3. To the saints who are in the land], as distinguished from those abroad, those of the dispersion. — (Yahweh) makes wonderful all His good pleasure in them], so  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{U}$ ; preferable to  $\mathfrak{H}$ , which is so difficult to interpret that there is no agreement among later Vrss. or commentators. Yahweh takes good pleasure in these saints, and He magnifies His good pleasure in them in a wonderful manner. — 4. They shall multiply their sorrows, who hurry backwards], cf.  $44^{19}$  Is.  $50^5$ ; apostates who turn away from Yahweh and go backwards in apostasy from Him. This is better sustained by  $\mathfrak{H}$  and Vrss. than "hasten after another (God)" AV., "run after" PBV., "make suit unto" JPSV., which are not sustained by Hebrew usage; or than "exchange (the Lord) for another (god)" RV., Kirk., so essentially Dr., which requires unnecessary emendation of text. The psalmist, having represented that the saints enjoyed the wonderful good pleasure of Yahweh, now turns to the apostate Israelites who have gone backwards from Yahweh to the worship of other gods, and represents that they, in reverse of enjoying Yahweh's good pleasure, incur a multitude of sorrows. — I will not offer their drink offerings because of bloodshed]; that is, participate with them in their drink offerings to Yahweh, which were abominable because they were associated with bloodshed, the murder of innocent persons. Bā. thinks of the offering of children Is. 57<sup>5sq.</sup> 65<sup>11</sup>; Du. of the blood-guiltiness of such offerings as they make, cf. Is. 66<sup>3</sup>. — I will not take up their names upon my lips], cf. 50<sup>16</sup>, in order to speak to them or about them, — not the names of the gods so worshipped, according to the law, Ex. 23<sup>13</sup> (E), or their names as the names these apostates take on their lips, Ri., but the names of the apostates themselves, Bā., as Is. 65<sup>15</sup>. The poet repudiates them utterly, he will have nothing to do with them, will not even mention them in conversation. The psalmist was undoubtedly influenced by Is.<sup>2</sup>. If the Ps. belongs to the Persian period, we may think of the apostates to idolatry described in antith. with the pious, the saints, v.<sup>3</sup>.

Str. II. is composed of four syn. couplets. — 5. Yahweh is my share], in assonance with (my) portion and my cup, rather than “share of my portion” חֵלֶק, though sustained by Vrss. and most authorities. — Yahweh is the maintainer of my lot (for me)]. This was probably the original text, according to the context. The change to the 2d person is improbable. It was doubtless due to supposed editorial improvement of style. The poet here enlarges upon v.<sup>2b</sup>. Yahweh, the source of welfare, also embodies in Himself the share which He gives to His people, the portion assigned them, the cup of pleasure which they enjoy; and all this He maintains for them against all enemies and perils. “The language used here reminds us of the Levites who had no portion or inheritance, but Jehovah was their portion, Nu. 18<sup>20</sup> Dt. 10<sup>9</sup> 18<sup>1</sup>,” Kirk. “Let others choose for themselves portions, earthly and temporal, to enjoy; the portion of saints is the Lord eternal. Let others drink of deadly pleasures, the portion of my cup is the Lord,” Aug. — 6. The lines], the measuring lines of the portion, or share in the land, cf. Ps. 78<sup>55</sup> Mi. 2<sup>5</sup> Am. 7<sup>17</sup>. — are fallen for me in pleasant places], the lot in the holy land is a delightful one. — Yea, mine inheritance is (mighty over) me], the inheritance in Yahweh, Yahweh Himself as the inheritance, || share, v.<sup>5a</sup>, as חֵלֶק, and so similar to 103<sup>11</sup> 117<sup>2</sup>, where the mercy of God is mighty over His people. The "goodly heritage" of EV<sup>a</sup>. is a paraphrase based on H which cannot be sustained.—7. I will bless Yahweh who hath given me counsel]. The psalmist passes over from his portion in the land to his more intimate relations with Yahweh, whom he has sought as his sovereign Lord, v. 12<sup>a</sup>; He has counselled him in his life and conduct.—My reins admonish me]. The reins are the seat of the emotions and affections, cf. Jb. 19<sup>27</sup> Pr. 23<sup>16</sup> Ps. 73<sup>21</sup> Je. 12<sup>2</sup> || mind, Je. 11<sup>20</sup> 17<sup>10</sup> 20<sup>12</sup> Pss. 7<sup>10</sup> 26<sup>2</sup>. His own experience corresponds with Yahweh's counsel. This admonition is in the dark night], as 92<sup>3</sup> 134<sup>1</sup>, intensive pl., rather than "night seasons," AV., RV.—8. I have set Yahweh continually before me], before the mind, keeping Him continually in mind.—since He is on my right hand], present, near at hand, as close as possible to help. This is the reason why, I shall not be moved], the usual expression of confidence in God, Pss. 10<sup>6</sup> 15<sup>5</sup> 16<sup>8</sup> 21<sup>8</sup> 30<sup>7</sup> 62<sup>3,7</sup> 112<sup>6</sup>, cf. Pr. 10<sup>30</sup> 12<sup>3</sup>.

Str. III. is composed of a syn. couplet between two syn. triplets.—9. Therefore], because of confidence in Yahweh's presence as sovereign Lord and portion.—my heart is glad || my glory rejoiceth]. In both lines, in Yahweh, was probably in the original, completing the measures. A prosaic copyist condensed the two lines into a simple line, too long for the measure of the Ps.—also my flesh], the body in antith. with "heart" and "glory," so making up the entire man, body and soul.—dwelleth securely], liveth without anxiety, without fear of enemies, cf. Dt. 33<sup>12</sup> Je. 23<sup>6</sup> 33<sup>16</sup>.—10. For thou wilt not leave me to Sheol]. Nephesh is here, as often, the person of the man himself. The poet is not thinking of the soul as distinguished from the flesh, but of himself as composed of both soul and body. It is true the flesh does not go to Sheol at death, but only the soul. The psalmist is here thinking of his entire self and not specifically of that part of himself which goes to the abode of the dead. He expects to die and to go to Sheol, but he prays that God will not abandon him there; will not leave him in the power of Sheol; but will go with him and remain with him there.—Thou wilt not suffer Thy pious one to see the Pit]. The Heb. שחת is not abstract "corruption," which, though given in G and A, and followed by EV<sup>a</sup>., has no authority in the usage of OT.

The Pit is not the tomb, but is syn. with Sheol, usually understood as another name of Sheol itself as a pit or cavern under the earth; but usage favours the opinion that it is a Pit in Sheol, as a deeper place than Sheol, syn. Abaddon, the dungeon of Sheol. The psalmist will see Sheol, but he will not be abandoned there; he will not see the Pit, the dungeon of Sheol, the place of the wicked. The pious could hardly go there. In antithesis with this, the psalmist has hope and confident expectation of the presence and favour of God after death. — 11. Thou wilt make known to me the path to Life]. This might imply resurrection if the Ps. were late enough, a path leading up out of Sheol to eternal Life. But the context does not suggest this; the path rather leads to the presence of God in the abode of the dead. The path to life is antith. to the Pit in Sheol. — Fulness of gladness is in Thy presence]. The presence of Yahweh, to which the path to life leads, gives gladness to the full, and complete satisfaction, leaving nothing more to be desired. It is possible that the glossator had this in mind as the supreme good or welfare, v.<sup>26</sup>. — Loveliness || gladness, on Thy right hand], as the place of honour, || in Thy presence, antith. to Yahweh's being on his right hand in life, v.<sup>86</sup>. — forever]. Such a hope he could not express for this life; he is thinking of everlasting life in the presence of Yahweh and on His right hand, after he has departed this life and gone to Sheol.

This clause is not in אֱלֹהִים<sup>B</sup>, but in אֱלֹהִים<sup>A, R</sup>, where טוֹבָה is interpreted as my goods, פִּי bonorum, a mng. very late, Ec. 5<sup>10</sup>. אֱלֹהִים translates bene mihi, Σ ἀγαθόν μοι, טוֹבָה. — [אֲדַרְשִׁי] is difficult and is variously interpreted: (1) אֱלֹהִים<sup>A, R</sup> δὲ οὐ χηλαὶ ἐχέεις, thou hast no need or advantage, in a causal sentence. The  $\delta\tau\iota$  may be an interpretation or imply  $\text{כי}$  in the original. The  $\text{על}$  is interpreted in the sense of for the sake of, as † 45<sup>6</sup> 79<sup>9</sup> 105<sup>14</sup>. (2)  $\text{אֶל־מִן־טֶּה}$ ,  $\Sigma$  ἀπὸ σοῦ, paraphrased by  $\text{מִן־טֶּה}$  "from Thee," is a translation of  $\text{בְּלַעֲרִי}$ , which Houb., Hi., Du. think was in the original text. (3) Over, beyond, Ew. "Thou art my highest good," Dr. "My welfare is not beyond (?) Thee." BDB. gives in this mng. of excess † 138<sup>2</sup>, above all Thy name (dub.), in the sense of above, beyond Gn. 48<sup>22</sup> Ex. 16<sup>5</sup> Nu. 3<sup>46</sup> Dt. 25<sup>3</sup> Jos. 3<sup>15</sup> Ec. 1<sup>16</sup> Dn. 1<sup>20</sup>, in local relations, Lv. 15<sup>25</sup> of time. But none of these have precisely the sense proposed for this passage. (4) The more usual mng. of  $\text{על}$ , incumbent on, of duty, or care † 7<sup>11</sup> 10<sup>14</sup> 37<sup>5</sup> 40<sup>8</sup> 56<sup>13</sup> 62<sup>8</sup>, c.  $\text{הַשִּׁלִּיךְ}$  22<sup>11</sup> 55<sup>23</sup> 71<sup>6</sup> is adopted by Ra. But it is then necessary to make the clause interrog. or get a mng. the reverse of the context. Pe. avoids this by changing  $\text{בְּלַעֲרִי}$  to  $\text{בְּלִי}$ . (5) The mng. † in addition to 61<sup>7</sup> 69<sup>28</sup> 71<sup>14</sup> 115<sup>14</sup> is adopted by Ri., Moll., but it is improbable. The line is too short in  $\text{הֵן}$ . It is better to rd. as the original a real tetrameter  $\text{בְּלַעֲרִי בְּלִי בְּלַעֲרִי בְּלִי}$ . This explains  $\text{אֶל־מִן־טֶּה}$ . The err. of  $\text{הֵן}$  is chiefly the omission of  $\text{בְּלִי}$  of  $\text{בְּלַעֲרִי}$  by haplog. and then the err. of  $\text{הֵן}$  for  $\text{עֲרִיךְ}$ . — 3.  $\text{לְהַרְוִשִׁים}$  is also difficult and is variously interpreted: (1)  $\text{ל}$  in the sense of as for, as regards 17<sup>4</sup>,  $\text{עֵל}$ ,  $\text{אֶל}$ , De W., Ew., Dr.; (2) belonging to, Calv., Hengst., Hu., Pe., Moll; (3) depending on  $\text{אֶת־הוֹדִי}$  as a second indirect obj. in antith.  $\text{לִיהוֹדִי}$  Ki., De., RV.<sup>m</sup>. Ges.<sup>4</sup> § 170<sup>d</sup> allows an occasional cstr. in the sense of abs., but this is not allowed by more recent grammars. We might, however, regard the cstr. as before a rel. clause, De W., RV., Dr., and  $\text{ו}$  as introducing an apod.  $\text{עֵלֶּה}$  renders as vb.  $\text{ἐθαυμάστωσεν πάντα τὰ θελήματα αὐτοῦ}$  =  $\text{יִמְרֵי־הֵם}$ . More than 90 codd. HP., so † [אֲרָר] vb. is used in Niph. ptc. Ex. 15<sup>11</sup> of the majesty of God, cf. v.<sup>6</sup> and Is. 42<sup>21</sup> in the Hiph. make glorious, which is appropriate to this passage. This is the view essentially of Koehler, Schnurer, Bā., Hu.<sup>3</sup>.—4. עֲצֻבִים is regarded by ℣, Θ, Quinta, ℑ, Mich., Ols., Ew., Du. as fpl. for usual † עֲצֻבִים n.(m.) images, idols, v. 106<sup>36, 38</sup> 115<sup>4</sup> 135<sup>15</sup>; but עֲצֻבִים elsw. pl. † [עֲצֻבָה] n.f. hurt, injury 147<sup>3</sup> Jb. 9<sup>28</sup>, sg. Pr. 10<sup>10</sup> 15<sup>13</sup>, so doubtless here after ℣, ℑ, Aq., RV., and most, v. 13<sup>3</sup>. The lack of agreement between n.f. and vb. m. still remains difficult. The sf. עָרַר cannot refer to previous context, but to the rel. clause which follows. The vb. is interpreted by ℑ, ℣ as Hiph., and so the neglect of agreement is avoided, and this is to be preferred, though ℣, Aq., Σ, Θ, ℑ take it as Qal.—[אָחַר] is variously interpreted: (1) by ℑ, Θ post tergum as אָחֹר adv. backwards, v. 9<sup>4</sup>. This is most prob. (2) ℣ μετὰ ταῦτα ἐτάχυναν, ℑ postea acceleraverunt אָחַר, either having sf. or Vrss. supplying it, cf. 49<sup>18</sup> 50<sup>17</sup> 63<sup>9</sup>. (3) ℑ, Aq. as adj. It is interpreted by RV., Dr. as מִן of material, consisting of blood. Bā. compares Is. 57<sup>5</sup> 65<sup>11</sup>, and thinks of drink offerings connected with the sacrifice of children. De. thinks of the guilty hands of the offerer. Moll. and Du. refer to Is. 66<sup>8</sup> "he that killeth an ox is as he that slayeth a man." Kirk., "their libations are as detestable as though they were composed of blood." The usage of מִן favours bloodshed and not drink offerings of blood, which are unknown to OT. The מִן is never used of material in connection with blood; it is therefore, in the common sense, of on account of, because of bloodshed, as Hb. 2<sup>8</sup>. 17. PSALM XVII., 8 STR. 3<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 17 is a prayer for divine interposition in behalf of the righteous (v.<sup>1-2</sup>). The psalmist has been tested by God in mind and conduct, and approved (v.<sup>3-4a</sup>); he has kept the divine ways and avoided wicked deeds (v.<sup>4b-5</sup>), therefore he invokes God with confidence (v.<sup>6a</sup>). He prays again that his Saviour may show kindness and keep him as the pupil of the eye (v.<sup>6b-8a</sup>); that he may be sheltered from his greedy and arrogant enemies (v.<sup>8b-10</sup>), who surround him to prey upon him (v.<sup>11-12</sup>). Again he prays for the divine interposition and deliverance by the slaying of the wicked (v.<sup>13-14a</sup>); that penalty may be visited on them to the third generation, but that he himself may enjoy the divine presence (v.<sup>14b-15</sup>).

○ HEAR, Yahweh (a righteous man); attend to my yell;
 O give ear to my prayer, which is without lips of deceit;
 Let my judgment come forth from Thy presence, that mine eyes may behold it.
 IN equity Thou hast proved my mind; Thou hast visited me by night;
 Thou hast tested me, and Thou findest no evil purpose in me; my mouth transgresseth not.

As to deeds of man, (I intend) according to the word of Thy lips.

I ON my part have kept from the ways of the violent;
 My steps hold fast to Thy tracks, my footsteps slip not;
 I invoke Thee: for Thou answerest me, 'El.

INCLINE Thine ear to me, hear my speech;
 Show Thy kind deeds, O Saviour from those who rise up in hostility;
 I am seeking refuge on Thy right hand; keep me as the pupil, the daughter of the eye.

HIDE me in the shadow of Thy wings from the wicked,
 Those mine enemies that assail me, with greed encompass me.
 They shut up their gross heart, with their mouth they speak arrogantly.

(THEY advance), now they march about, they fix their eyes;
 (They purpose) to camp in the land, (they maltreat) as a lion;
 They are greedy for prey, they are like a young lion lurking in secret places.

○ RISE, Yahweh, confront him, cast him down;
 O deliver me from the wicked, destroy with Thy sword;
 May they be slain with Thy hand, Yahweh; slain from the world.

LET their portion be during life; their belly fill Thou with Thy stored-up penalty.
 May their sons be sated, may they leave their residue to their children:
 But as for me, let me behold Thy face; let me be satisfied with Thy form.

Ps. 17 was in 13, but not in any of the subsequent collections until  $\psi$ . It is rightly termed a תפלה, prayer (v. Intr. § 1). This probably is original, because the greater portion of Pss. of 13 were prayers, and there could have been no reason why the editor of 13, or any subsequent editor, should have singled out this Ps. as a prayer, rather than a multitude of others. The Ps. resembles Ps. 16 in words and phrases: שָׁמְרֵנִי  $v.^8 = 16^1$ ; communion with God at night  $v.^3 = 16^7$ ; the use of אֵל in prayer  $v.^6 = 16^1$ ; the vb. חָמַךְ  $v.^5 = 16^6$ ; the reference to the hand of God as protecting and defending  $v.^{7.14} = 16^8$ ; the contrasted portions of the poet and the wicked  $v.^{14.15} = 16^{2-6}$ ; the longing for the divine presence  $v.^{15} = 16^{11}$ . All this favours a similar situation, if not the same author. The use of חִלֵּר  $v.^{14}$  is the same as that of 49<sup>2</sup>, cf. Is. 38<sup>11</sup>, although the phr. of the latter and the conception are different. There is a reference in the use of חַסְדֵי and חַסְדֵי of God,  $v.^{15}$  to Nu. 12<sup>8</sup> (E). The visitation of penalty on the third generation  $v.^{14}$  is based on the Ten Words Ex. 20<sup>5</sup> = Dt. 5<sup>9</sup>. The conception of righteousness  $v.^{4-5}$  is that of D, and prior to P. And yet the conception of truthfulness  $v.^1$  and the testing the mind  $v.^3$ , show the higher ethical conception of the Persian period. The phr. הפלה חסד  $v.^7 = 4^4$  בצל כנפיו  $v.^8 = 36^8$  57<sup>2</sup> 63<sup>8</sup>, cf. 61<sup>5</sup> 91<sup>4</sup> (all post-exilic Pss.) Ru. 2<sup>12</sup>, implies the existence of the temple and probably the cherubic throne. The pupil of the eye  $v.^8 = Dt. 32^{10}$ . The Ps. must belong to the Persian period subsequent to the Restoration and prior to the reform of Ezra, a time of greater peril than that of Ps. 16, and therefore later than Zerubabel. The Ps. was originally the prayer of an individual. It has been generalised and made into a congregational prayer.

Part I. has three pentameter tristichs, the first of these a petition in two syn. lines followed by a synth. line. — 1–2. O hear || attend || give ear], the usual terms for importunate prayer,  $v. 4^4$  5<sup>2.3</sup>. — (a righteous man)], so 3 in accordance with  $v.^{3-6}$ , more probable than “my righteousness,” 6, U, or simply “righteousness.” H, Dr., or inexactly “the right” EV<sup>s</sup>, “righteous cause” JPSV. — my yell], shrill, piercing cry for help, || my prayer, as 61<sup>2</sup> 88<sup>3</sup>. — without lips of deceit]. The lips which utter the prayer are sincere, entirely truthful. — My judgment], either my just cause, or judgment in my favour. — come forth from Thy presence], from the judgment throne of Yahweh in heaven, cf. 9<sup>5</sup>. — that mine eyes may behold it]. He desires a visible manifestation from God that He has vindicated him. — In equity] properly goes with the next line as qualifying the divine proving. To make it an object of behold, with H and Vrss. destroys the measure of both lines. — 3–4a. The second tristich is composed of three lines essentially syn.; yet there is synth. in part, in the second line, and in greater degree in the third. — Thou hast proved || hast tested], v. 7<sup>10</sup> 12<sup>7</sup>. This has been by a personal visitation. Yahweh has not remained afar off on His throne in heaven; but has come down in spiritual presence to the bed of the psalmist. — visited by night], during the quiet hours, when he was alone by himself, and so most open to inspection; and especially so, as the inspection had to do not only with acts done during the day, the usual time of activity, but still more searchingly with the mind, which often is most active while the body is at rest. — Thou findest no evil purpose in me], as 10<sup>4</sup> 26<sup>10</sup> 119<sup>150</sup>. There was no evil in the mind after the most searching examination. — My mouth transgresseth not]. This statement, intermediate between the purpose of the mind and the deeds of man, external actions, supplements the previous clause and is still connected with the test by night. It probably refers to private, secret utterances, rather than words spoken publicly to other persons. And so, while deeds of men are mentioned, that is ordinary human actions, yet these are deeds not as done, but as intended, purposed; for so we should translate, inserting in the text the vb. (I intend). This insertion removes the difficulty of the verse and explains the antith. between “deeds of man” and according to word of Thy lips. The intent of the psalmist was that his deeds should be according to the word which came forth from the lips of God. Having set forth the righteousness of his mind, as attested by divine inspection, he now turns to a justification of his conduct. — 4b-6a. The third tristich is composed of an antithetical couplet followed by a synth. line returning to v.<sup>1a</sup>, the ground of assurance in prayer having been given. — I on my part], emph. personal asseveration, on the negative side, have kept from the ways of the violent], the deeds of those who commit robbery or murder, or both. On the positive side, My steps hold fast to Thy tracks], those prescribed by God in the Deuteronomic laws. — My footsteps slip not]. The context suggests the complement of the previous clause; the steps hold fast on the positive side and do not slip from the divine tracks on the other. Elsewhere the phrase is used for the firm standing, the security of the righteous under the divine protection, v. 10<sup>6</sup>. If we follow that meaning here, we have an expression of confidence in accordance with v.<sup>6a</sup>.

Part II. has three pentameter tristichs, setting forth the relation of the poet to his enemies, antith. to the previous part, setting forth his relation to his God. The first tristich is petition || v.<sup>1-2</sup>, an introductory line and a syn. couplet synth. thereto. — 6b-8a. Show Thy kind deeds], cf. 4<sup>4</sup>, literally “make them marvellous,” or “wonderful,” in accordance with v.<sup>2b</sup>; let them be visible in acts of vindication of the righteous. — O Saviour], title of Yahweh as one whose character and habit it is to save His people from their enemies; especially characteristic of Is.<sup>2</sup> — I am seeking refuge]. By an unfortunate transposition of the original text it has been attached as an object to the ptc., forcing the rendering with verbal force as ptc. absolute “savest,” and then as a general truth applying to all persons seeking refuge, without specification of the place of refuge. This also destroys the measure of the two lines and makes their interpretation difficult. Attaching it to, on Thy right hand], we get the place of refuge, recover the measures, and find an easy and natural explanation in accordance with good usage. The right hand of God is often the instrument of judgment and blessing, but also the place of safety, as 16<sup>8.11</sup>. The resemblance of Pss. 16 to 17 in so many other respects favours the same meaning of right hand of God here. This also is a proper basis for the closer and affectionate care indicated in the phr.: Keep me as the pupil of the eye], as Dt. 32<sup>10</sup> Pr. 7<sup>2</sup> || the daughter of the eye, a Hebraism as La. 2<sup>18</sup>, expressing a filial relation, implying affectionate care. The second tristich has also an introductory line with a synonymous couplet synthetic to it. — 8b-10. Hide me in the shadow of Thy wings], a favourite conception of poets of the Restoration 36<sup>8</sup> 57<sup>2</sup> 63<sup>8</sup>, cf. 61<sup>5</sup> 91<sup>4</sup> Ru. 2<sup>12</sup>. It is usually referred to the care of the mother bird for her young; not, however, the hen, Mt. 23<sup>37</sup>, which is not used in OT., but rather the eagle, cf. Dt. 32<sup>11</sup>, though the working out of the simile is different. It probably, however, refers to the cherubic wings of the most Holy Place of the temple in accord with the frequent conception that the temple itself is a sure refuge for the people of God, involving the idea that the protecting cherubic wings extended their influence to the holy temple and the holy city and its inhabitants. — from the wicked]. These are, as the context shows, not wicked Israelites, but wicked nations, who oppress and maltreat the Israelites, cf. 9<sup>4.6.18</sup>. —

Mine enemies that assail me]. They assault, act violently. — with greed], cf. 107<sup>9</sup>. They are not only violent, but greedy for their prey. — encompass me], surround so as to make escape impossible, v. v.<sup>11</sup>. — They shut up their gross heart]. They are not only greedy, but pitiless. They are so greedy that they have become fat and gross; their midriff, the seat of feelings, has become exceedingly insensible. "They have closed it against every influence for good and all sympathy" Kirk. It is necessary in accordance with English usage to substitute heart for midriff. — with their mouth], antith. with the mouth of the poet, v.<sup>36</sup>. — they speak arrogantly], v. 10<sup>2</sup> for the same kind of enemies and a similar situation. — 11–12. The third tristich describes the action of these enemies in three progressive pentameters — (They advance)], as 3, resuming the thought of v.<sup>9</sup>. This is much better suited to the context than "our steps" MT., EV<sup>s</sup>., which is not well sustained, and is difficult to construct and understand in this context. The enemies advance to the attack. — now], graphic description. — they march about], the people of God, probably the holy city, as 55<sup>11</sup>. — they fix their eyes], watching intently, so that no movement of Israel may escape them, showing their greed v.<sup>9b</sup>. — (They purpose) to camp in the land]. This is a most difficult clause in the original, and is variously explained in Vrss. and commentaries. The difficulty may be removed by finding the verb, missing in this line, to complete the measure. The infinitive that follows then becomes intelligible, having the ordinary meaning, "pitch," which is used without its usual object "tent," syn. with English "encamp." We then have the enemy purposing to encamp in the land, and so besiege the people, cf. Jb. 19<sup>12</sup>, and a very natural and appropriate progress in the activity of the enemy. The various renderings: "turning their eyes down to the ground" PBV., "bowing down to the earth" AV., "to cast us down to the earth" RV., "to spread out in the land" JPSV., all depending on MT., show how impracticable it is to get a good sense on that basis. — they maltreat as a lion]. This refers to the acts of violence of a besieging army ravaging for prey, seizing it with violence and abusing it without pity. — They are greedy for prey], reiterating v.<sup>9b</sup>. — like a young lion lurking in secret places]. They lie in ambush and lurk for their prey, to fall on it unawares. This situation resembles very much that of Ps. 10<sup>8-10</sup>.

Part III. has two pentameter tristichs, a petition that Yahweh may by theophanic interposition destroy the wicked enemies and let the people see His presence. — 13-14a. The first tristich is syn. — O rise, Yahweh], as frequent in such prayers 3<sup>8</sup> 7<sup>7</sup> 9<sup>20</sup> 10<sup>12</sup>. — confront him], in hostility, cf. 18<sup>6, 19</sup>. — cast him down], overthrow and prostrate in death, as 18<sup>40</sup>. — O deliver me from the wicked], the enemies, cf. v.<sup>9a</sup>. — destroy with Thy sword]. Yahweh interposes as a warrior, and so uses His sword, as 7<sup>13</sup> (cf. 35<sup>1-3</sup> for God's use of other warlike weapons). It is necessary, however, to supply a missing verb to complete the measure of line. This was probably "destroy." The omission lies back of H and Vrss., several of which take "sword" as in relative clause, "who is Thy sword" PBV., AV. The idea, though a good one after the analogy of Is. 10<sup>5</sup>, is yet inappropriate to the context, and calls attention needlessly from the main thought and its ready advance to a climax. RV., JPSV. rightfully render "by Thy sword." — May they be slain by Thy hand]. This rendering is in accord with the context, the use of the sword by Yahweh, and with a strict interpretation of the unpointed Hebrew text, and is favoured by ancient Vrss. The MT. is pointed so as to give the rendering "men," both here and in the next clause, "from men of Thy hand — from the men" PBV., "from men which are Thy hand" AV., "from men by Thy hand" RV., JPSV., none of which are satisfying. — from the world], away from the world, so as no longer to live in the world, v. 49<sup>2</sup>, cf. Is. 38<sup>11</sup>. "O Lord, destroy them from off the earth, which they inhabit" Aug. The usual rendering "from the evil world" PBV., "men of the world" AV., RV., implies an antith. between the world as evil and the righteous Israelite, which while in accord with the NT., Jn. 15<sup>19</sup>, is not in accord with the OT. religion and has no justification whatever in OT. usage. This supposed antith. has occasioned a general misinterpretation of the subsequent context, as if it contrasted the earthly joys of the wicked with the heavenly joys of the righteous; which also is a later Biblical conception, but not justified at such a date as that of our Ps. The idea can only be gained by awkward adjustments and renderings. This closing tristich is indeed a continuation of the petition for divine interposition, and contrasts the visitation upon the wicked in a synth. couplet with the vindication of the righteous in the closing line, and so is harmonious with the petition with which the Ps. opens. — 14b-15. Let their portion be during life]; that is, the portion allotted to them as penalty, as Is. 17<sup>14</sup> Jb. 20<sup>20</sup> 27<sup>13</sup>, and not a good portion enjoyed by them in this life, but no longer to be theirs. — their belly fill Thou with Thy stored-up penalty], as Jb. 21<sup>19</sup>; and not treasures of wealth, in accordance with other interpretations. This penalty they are to partake of to the full extent of their capacity. Their belly is to be filled with it, and yet it will not be exhausted. It passes over to their sons. — may their sons be sated], may they also be so filled that they cannot partake of any more; and still further in the climax — may they leave their residue to their children]. There still remains to the sons a residue of this penalty that they cannot appropriate. This they transmit as an inheritance of woe to their children; and so the ancient law is fulfilled, in a visiting of the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation, Ex. 20<sup>5</sup> = Dt. 5<sup>9</sup>. In antith. with this dreadful punishment of the enemies, the poet prays for himself — let me behold Thy face], unfolding the thought of v.<sup>2</sup>. A later editor, doubtless influenced by v.<sup>1</sup>, inserts “in righteousness” as a qualification; thereby destroying the measure, making the first half of this line of four tones instead of three. — let me be satisfied with Thy form], the form of God; that is, as seen in the theophanic vindication, based on the conception of the privilege of Moses, Nu. 12<sup>8</sup>. The form of God gratifies and satisfies the psalmist, while the wicked are sated with the divine penalty. This conception of beholding the face and form of God, gave difficulty to later editors; and so G, Y, paraphrase “when Thy glory appears,” thus interpreting it correctly as theophanic in character. In H a scribe inserted “when I awake” so EV<sup>s</sup>, which he probably meant to be interpreted, as awakening from the sleep of death, when the vision of the face and form of God was conceived as possible to the highly privileged righteous. But the vb. without suffix leaves other interpretations open, such as awakening from the sleep of anxiety and sorrow, or awakening in the morning from a night of anxiety and petition. The insertions of ℥ and ℥ make the last half of the line into three tones instead of the needed two, and thus destroy the measure of the closing part of the Ps. as well as the return to the conception of the petition with which it began.

PSALM XVIII., 2 PTS. OF 3-STRS. 14<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 18, originally an ode of victory of David over his enemies, was subsequently adapted to public worship. I. David praises Yahweh as his Saviour from a deadly peril described under the metaphor of drowning. He heard his cry for help (v.<sup>3-7</sup>); His anger caused earth and heaven to quake; He descended upon a cherubic chariot in a storm cloud (v.<sup>8-13</sup>). Thunder, lightning, and earthquake were His weapons, and He delivered David from his peril and became his stay (v.<sup>14-20</sup>). II. David praises God as his lamp and shield, who girded him with strength for war (v.<sup>29-35</sup>), giving him a broad position on which to pursue his enemies and exterminate them (v.<sup>37-43</sup>); delivered him from the strivings of his own people, made him head of nations, and doeth kindness to the anointed seed of David forever (v.<sup>44-45a, 47-49, 51</sup>). The ode was generalised for public worship by several changes in the body of the song; but especially (1) by prefixing an assertion of love to Yahweh (v.<sup>2</sup>); (2) by inserting two glosses, the first teaching that God rewards according to righteousness (v.<sup>21-24</sup>); the second, that God acts towards men just as they act towards others, especially in saving the humble and humiliating the lofty (v.<sup>25-28</sup>); (3) a reference to nations cringing, in the spirit of later times (v.<sup>45b-46</sup>); and (4) a resolution of liturgical praise (v.<sup>50</sup>).

PART I.

MY crag and my fortress and my deliverer,
 My God, my Rock in whom I seek refuge,
 My shield and horn of my salvation, my high tower,
 (My Saviour, from violence Thou savest me).
 Worthy to be praised I proclaim Yahweh,
 Since from mine enemies I am saved.
 The (breakers) of death encompassed me,
 And torrents of Belial fell upon me;
 Cords of Sheol came round me,
 Snares of Death came to meet me;

In my distress I called upon Yahweh,
 And unto my God cried for help;
 And He heard from His palace my voice,
 And my cry for help (came) before Him in His ears.
THEN the earth swayed and quaked,
 And the foundations of (the heavens) trembled,
 And tossed to and fro because He burned with anger;
 Smoke went up in His nostril,
 And fire from His mouth devoured;
 Coals were kindled from Him.
 Then He bowed the heavens and came down,
 Thick darkness under His feet;
 And He rode upon the cherub and flew,
 And swooped down upon wings of wind;
 And put darkness round about Him,
 A covering (of) darkness of waters,
 Thick clouds of the skies without brightness;
 Before Him passed His thick clouds.
THEN Yahweh thundered (from) heaven,
 And Elyon gave forth His voice;
 And sent forth His arrows and scattered them,
 And (flashed) flashes and made them rumble;
 And the channels of the (sea) appeared,
 (And) the foundations of the world were laid bare.
 He sends from on high, He takes me,
 He draws me out of many waters;
 He delivers me from my strong enemy,
 And from those hating me; for they were too strong for me;
 Who came to meet me in the day of my calamity.
 And so Yahweh became a stay to me,
 And led me forth into a wide place,
 And rescued me, because He took pleasure in me.

PART II.

FOR Thou art my lamp, Yahweh,
 My God who lightens my darkness:
 For in Thee I run up to a troop,
 And in my God I leap a wall.
 The 'El whose way is perfect,
 A shield is He to the one seeking refuge in Him.
 For who is a God (like) Yahweh?
 And who is a Rock (like) our God?
 The 'El who girdeth me with strength,
 And made my way perfect;
 Who setteth my feet like hinds,
 And upon high places made me hold my ground;
 Who teacheth my hands for war,
 And maketh mine arms bronze.

THOU broadenest my steps under me,
 And my limbs do not slip;
 I pursue mine enemies and I overtake them;
 And I return not until I have finished them.
 (And) I smote them down so that they could not rise,
 (And) they fell under my feet.
 And Thou girdest me with strength for war,
 Thou causeth them that rise up against me to bow down under me;
 And mine enemies Thou madest give the back to me,
 And them that hate me I exterminated.
 And they cry for help, but there is no saviour,
 Unto Yahweh, but He doth not answer them;
 And I beat them small as dust of the earth,
 And as clay of the streets pulverised them.
 THOU deliverest me from the strivings of (my) people;
 Thou settest me to be head of nations;
 A people I knew not serve me,
 At the hearing of the ear shew themselves obedient to me.
 Liveth and blessed is my Rock,
 And the God of my salvation is exalted.
 The 'El who giveth to me deeds of vengeance,
 And who bringeth down peoples under me,
 And who bringeth me forth from mine enemies,
 And lifteth me up above them that rise up against me,
 From the man of violence rescueth me;
 Who magnifieth acts of salvation to His king,
 And doeth kindness to His anointed,
 To David and to his seed forever.

The Ps. is described in the title as הַשִּׁירָה the song, just as other odes of victory over enemies bear this title, Ex. 15<sup>1</sup> (ode of victory over the Egyptians); Dt. 31<sup>30</sup> (Moses' ode of the triumph of Yahweh); cf. Ju. 5<sup>1</sup> (Deborah's ode, where vb. שִׁיר is used). The original form of the title is given in 2 S. 22<sup>1</sup>, "And David spake unto Yahweh the words of this song in the day that Yahweh delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul." This has been adopted by an editor of the Ps., only changing the second כִּי to the familiar יִי for richness of expression, and removing the name of David into the principal clause, making the rest a relative clause and prefixing לַעֲבֹד יְיָ לְרוֹד אֲשֶׁר. This raises the question whether לַעֲבֹד יְיָ here has the same meaning as in the other titles of Pss., all the more that the term servant of Yahweh precedes it. The titles both represent David as the speaker in the ode, and probably also designate him as the author. It is doubtful, therefore, whether the ode was in ד. It was in BB, and was probably taken from 2 S. 22. The text of 2 S. has many variations from that of the Ps. It lacks its Aramaisms: וְיָבִי v. 1, וְיָבִי v. 26, וְיָבִי v. 46, וְיָבִי v. 48. It also uses many 1 consec. impfs. as historical aorist, which in the Ps. are simply impf., with more general reference to present or future, v. 7c. 12. 39a-b. In other respects the text of 2 S. is more archaic. The ode, in both forms of the text, gives many evidences of late date. (1) There are late words of the text, gives many evidences of late date. (1) There are late words עני v. 28, ענוה v. 36b (but 2 S. ענה), בני נבר v. 45b, 46a; but these are all in glosses. (2) The ode is cited (a) Ps. 116<sup>1-4</sup> in the text of Ps., חבלי מות v. 5, and אהבתי || ארחמך v. 2; (b) Ps. 144<sup>1-7</sup> in the text of 2 S., הָרִירָה 144<sup>2</sup> = מריר 2 S. 22<sup>48</sup>, not וירבר Ps. 18<sup>48</sup>; מַפְלִישׁ 144<sup>2</sup> = 2 S. 22<sup>2</sup> = מַפְלִישׁ Ps. 18<sup>3</sup>; (c) Hb. 3<sup>19</sup> cites v. 34, only changing vbs. שוה, העמיד into more common ones, שים, הדריר; (d) Pr. 30<sup>5</sup> cites v. 31, giving an earlier form of text, לִכְלֹּחַ הַחוּסִים בּוֹ לַחוּסִים בּוֹ, and אִמְרָה אֱלֹהִים for אִמְרָה י; (e) Is. 55<sup>5</sup> cites v. 44 in two lines in fuller and more comprehensive style, using also גוי for עם. The Ps. is, therefore, preëxilic. (3) The ode cites (a) Mi. 7<sup>17</sup> in v. 46; the texts of Ps. and 2 S. vary as to the vb., both best explained by the vb. of Micah רגו as the original, but this is a gloss. (b) 2 S. 7<sup>12-16</sup> in v. 51. (c) It is not easy to determine whether v. 31 or Dt. 32<sup>4</sup> is the original. The evidence of citation favours a preëx. date for the ode. (4) There are many late doctrinal conceptions in the ode: (a) The affectionate love of Yahweh, v. 2, is post-Deuteronomic; but it is not in text of 2 S., and was a later addition to the ode. (b) The doctrine of the absoluteness of Yahweh as the only God is stated, v. 32, in terms of Is. 2; but this statement is incongruous to the context, which favours the assertion of the incomparableness of God, as in other early poetry. This couplet has probably been adapted to later conceptions. (c) The legal righteousness and its exact retribution of v. 21-24 with the terms שָׁמַר דְּרָכָיו v. 22a, סִיר מַיִם v. 23b, characteristic of D. 2, בָּרַךְ יְיָ v. 21b, רָשַׁע מַיִם v. 22b, חָקוֹה v. 23b still later. But this passage is evidently a gl. from its smoothness, calmness, and didactic character, as compared with the rapid, passionate movement in the ode. This gloss comes from the period of the reign of Levitical law, and states the doctrine questioned in the Book of Job. (d) The gnomic couplets, v. 25-28, are still later, implying the supremacy of Hebrew wisdom, and are ethical as compared with the legal character of the previous context. They begin with a line similar to v. 21a. (e) The cringing of foreign nations, v. 45b-46, suits the conceptions of postex. Judaism, and is favoured by Is. 2. 3. This is a gl. also. (f) The liturgical formula, v. 60, is similar to corresponding liturgical additions to other Pss. This is a gl. (5) On the other hand, (a) the conception of the cherubic chariot in the storm cloud, v. 11, is more primitive than the cherubic chariot of Ez. 1. (b) The theophany to decide battles is a primitive conception in the ancient odes, Ex. 15, Ju. 5; cf. Jos. 10<sup>12-14</sup>; as with Moses, Joshua, Deborah, so also with David. (c) The high places as battle fields is also an expression of the old songs, 2 S. 1<sup>19. 25</sup> Dt. 32<sup>18</sup> 33<sup>29</sup>. If the ode in its present form, in text either of 2 S. or of Ps., is regarded as a unit, one composition without interpolation, there can be no escape from the opinion that it was composed at the earliest in the late Persian period, more probably in the early Greek period. But if we remove the glosses, which have adapted an ode of victory of David to later religious uses, the ode stands out in simple grandeur as fitting appropriately to the historical experience of David, whether he wrote it or another wrote it for him by historic imagination, entering into the experience of the heroic king. After removing the glosses

there is nothing that bars the way to his authorship. The Ps., with the glosses removed, is divided into two parts, each part of three fourteen-lined trimeters; the first part sets forth his deliverance by theophany from peril of death, the second part his strengthening for war by his God and his victory over all his enemies. The two chief glosses, the legal gloss, v.<sup>21-24</sup>, and the ethical gloss, v.<sup>25-28</sup>, are inserted between the two parts. Remove them, and the unity and harmony of the ode appear. The other minor glosses are easy to distinguish. Their removal improves the poetic conception and movement of the poem. There are very few departures from the trimeter measure, and these are clearly due to textual errors.

An editor, wishing to adapt the ancient ode to congregational use, in view of the entire thought which follows, prefixes the exclamation I love Thee, Yahweh, my strength]. This line is not in the text of 2 S., taking the place of its v.<sup>3c</sup>, which was intentionally omitted from Ps. The words for love and strength are Aramaisms, and the conception of loving Yahweh is post-Deuteronomic.

Pt. I., Str. I. The Str. is composed of six trimeters, followed by eight. 3. Four syn. lines heap up terms to emphasise David's God as his Saviour from an enemy in war.—my crag and my fortress, my high tower], a place of refuge inaccessible to an enemy, too strong for him.—My God and my Rock are divine names, Rock being an ancient term for God, also v.<sup>32.47</sup> Dt. 32<sup>4.31.37</sup>.—My shield]. God is a warrior with a shield covering David's body.—horn of salvation]. God is like a great bull guarding him with his horns; cf. Gn. 49<sup>24</sup>. The syn. my deliverer, in whom I seek refuge, attain their climax in my Saviour, Thou savest me. One word, from violence, or possibly in the earliest txt. of the Ps., from the man of violence, cf. v.<sup>40</sup>, is the only indication of the peril in this part of the Str. A personal enemy who sought to use violence upon him and put him to death, is the reason of his seeking refuge in God. This situation aptly suits that of David when pursued in the wilderness of Judah by the violent Saul. 4. A synth. distich, synthetic to the tetrastich which precedes, in the first line proclaims Yahweh as the one worthy to be praised], a summing up of all the titles given to Him, v.<sup>3</sup>; and in the second line gives the reason for it.—Since from mine enemies I am saved]. The man of violence was accompanied by a number of enemies.—5-7. Two tetrastichs, the first, v.<sup>5-6</sup>, describes the peril of death, the second, v.<sup>7</sup>, the cry for help and its answer. The peril of death is graphically described in four syn. lines. David conceives of himself as in a rushing stream, like the rapids of the Jordan or the Kishon, which is hurrying him on to death (cf. Pss. 32<sup>6</sup> 42<sup>8</sup> 69<sup>2</sup>). These are the agents of Death. Death has its synonym Belial because of the destruction and ruin involved in it, and Sheol, the ordinary name for the place of the dead. David is, as it were, in the stream, rushing on to death. He says, breakers, agitated waves, breaking on me, encompassed me on every side, torrents fell upon me, attacking me as lines of an army to destroy me. And under the surface of the stream, cords came round me, the waters seemed like cords binding my limbs fast so that I could not move them; snares came to meet me, to ensnare me like an animal, draw me down so that I could not escape.—7. In this deadly peril he cries for help to Yahweh in a syn. couplet, and the answer is stated in another syn. couplet.—from His palace], in heaven, where Yahweh was enthroned; sometimes conceived as a heavenly temple, where He is worshipped by heavenly beings; but here as a palace because royal help is given, rather than response to worship.

Str. II. The salvation of David from his peril of death was through a theophany.—8-9. This is first described in two trimeter tristichs, the first of syn. lines picturing the heaven and earth in agitation. Then the earth swayed and quaked || and the foundations of the heavens trembled]. The heavens share in the agitation as in subsequent context and in usage in connection with theophanies; see Is. 13<sup>9-10.13</sup> Jo. 4<sup>15-16</sup>. So 2 S., but the Ps. "mountains" limits agitation to earth.—Tossed to and fro], both earth and heaven, because He burned with anger, in behalf of the one who sought refuge in Him against his enemies. The second tristich is composed of two syn. and one synth. line, the former describing the anger; He breathed hard and rapidly and His breath like smoke went up in His nostril, and so hot was it that it appeared like a flame of fire from His mouth, and (like a flame), devoured whatever came in its way. The last line in synthesis represents that coals were kindled]; whatever the fiery breath of His anger reached became coals, were kindled, and burned like coals from Him, that is, from the breath that issued from Him.—10-13. The theophany itself is described in two tetrastichs; in the first as a coming down of God from heaven to earth.—10. He bowed the heavens and came down]. God, enthroned above the physical heavens, the blue expanse, bends them when He would descend in theophany. He comes down on them. So Ex. 24<sup>10</sup>, the elders of Israel “saw the God of Israel; and there was under His feet, as it were, a work of bright sapphire, and as it were the very heaven for brightness.” The very heaven, its sapphire-blue expanse, was the base on which the feet of the theophanic God stood. Here, however, under His feet was thick darkness, because the theophany was in a storm of wrath; there it was in the bright sunshine of favour to establish a covenant with His people. So Solomon, in the snatch of an ancient poem preserved from the book of Yashar (according to  $\text{C}^{\text{S}}$ ), says, “Yahweh dwelt in thick darkness,” 1 K. 8<sup>12</sup> = 2 Ch. 6<sup>1</sup>; cf. Ps. 97<sup>2</sup> and the cloud of the theophany at Horeb, Ex. 20<sup>18</sup> (E), Dt. 4<sup>11</sup> 5<sup>22</sup>.—11. And rode upon the cherub]. The cherub, coll. sg. for usual pl. cherubim, is conceived as the living chariot upon which God rides when He descends from heaven to earth. So Ez. 1<sup>4-28</sup> 9<sup>3</sup> 10 11<sup>22</sup>, describe four cherubim inseparably attached to the living chariot of Yahweh; and 1 Ch. 28<sup>18</sup> connects the cherubic chariot with the cherubim of the Holy of Holies of the temple. They were the guards of Eden, Gn. 3<sup>24</sup> (J), and of the tabernacle and temple, in which two of them with outstretched wings sustained the base of the divine throne. They always have wings. The conception of the Ps. is a primitive one, but harmonious with the other representations.—And flew]. The cherubim constitute a winged chariot.—And swooped down upon wings of wind]. The wings of wind may be conceived as wings which the wind has, in which case wind and cherub seem to be synonymous, and we may think of Ps. 104<sup>3-4</sup>. But the thick cloud of Ps. 104<sup>3</sup> appears in 18<sup>13</sup> as “thick clouds of the skies,” and the cherubim are the chariot here in a different sense from the thick clouds there. The conception here is that heaven, thick darkness, cherub, wings of wind, are all under the feet of God, all constitute the platform on which He descends to earth. The cherubim are the living beings of the theophany as in other passages mentioned, and there is no sufficient reason to identify them with the thick storm cloud.

The second tetrastich, 12-13, in three syn. lines describes what was round about God in His descent, as the previous lines what was under His feet. The texts of Ps. and 2 S. differ greatly here, and it is difficult to find the original text and interpret it. — God put darkness round about Him], enveloped Himself in darkness when He descended || a covering of darkness of waters], a dark mass of waters was the covering; He was bringing with Him a great storm cloud heavily heaped up with waters, || thick clouds of the skies without brightness]. The Str. concludes with a line stating what preceded Him — before Him passed His thick clouds. Theophanies in storm for salvation in battle are reported for Israel under Moses at the crossing of the Red Sea, Ex. 14<sup>19-25</sup> 15<sup>1-18</sup>; Joshua at Bethhoron, Jos. 10<sup>11</sup>; Barak and Deborah at the Kishon, Ju. 5<sup>20-21</sup>; and so also for David against the Philistines, for 2 S. 5<sup>20</sup>, “Yahweh hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, like the breaking forth of waters,” implies the breaking forth of a storm; 5<sup>24</sup>, “when thou hearest the sound of marching in the tops of the mulberry trees,” the onward march of Yahweh in a storm manifested first in the tops of the trees.

Str. III. 14-16. The theophany is still further described as a storm in a syn. tetrastich and a syn. couplet synth. thereto. The approach of Yahweh in the storm has been described in the previous Str.: now the storm bursts forth. — Yahweh thundered from heaven (so 2 S. better than “in heaven” of Ps.) || and Elyon gave forth His voice], the sound of thunder as Ps. 29<sup>3</sup>. — And sent forth His arrows]. The thunderbolts are compared with arrows shot forth from a bow || flashed flashes], so 144<sup>6</sup>, citing this passage, preferable to Ps., whose text was corrupted into “many” flashes. The resulting clause, and scattered them, is usually referred to the enemy; but the enemy has not been mentioned since v.<sup>4</sup> and does not appear again till v.<sup>18</sup>, so the reference is here premature. It is rather the arrows which are scattered, so many are the thunderbolts in this great storm. — made them rumble], the long reverberating rumbling of the thunder which accompanies the flashes of lightning, all representing a terrible thunder-storm. The result of this terrific storm is described in the closing syn. couplet. — And the channels of the (sea)] 2 S. better than the weaker “waters” of Ps. — appeared; || (and) the foundations of the world were laid bare]. This is a return to the thought of the earthquake as preceding the storm, and now renewed during the storm. A later editor added a gloss corresponding with v.<sup>9c</sup>, only stronger: because of Thy rebuke, Yahweh, because of the breathing of the breath of Thy nostrils. — 17–19. The second section of the Str. is composed of a couplet and two triplets. The couplet continues the description of the theophany and gives the result of it. He sends from on high, He takes me. || He draws me out of many waters], that is, the waters described in v.<sup>5</sup>. — The first triplet of syn. lines then explains the imagery. He delivers me from my strong enemy, || from those hating me; for they were too strong for me || who came to meet me in the day of my calamity], the same as the enemies and man of violence of v.<sup>3-4</sup>. — The last triplet is also syn. — And so Yahweh became a stay to me], a firm prop and support referring back in correspondence of thought to v.<sup>3c</sup>. — and led me forth into a wide place], giving breadth and freedom of action without peril, and so antith. to his seeking refuge on a crag and in a fortress and high tower v.<sup>3a.c</sup>. — and rescued me, because He took pleasure in me], the climax resuming the thought of v.<sup>3b</sup>. Thus this part of the Ps. reaches a good conclusion, returning on itself, as is frequent in Hebrew poetry.

21–24. An entirely new conception now appears which is expressed in four syn. couplets. These set forth the doctrine of the reward of righteousness, and especially of legal righteousness, a doctrine which did not originate till after the Deuteronomic Law and which did not attain its height till after the giving of the priestly Law. It is doubtless a gloss from the Persian period. It has nothing in keeping with the previous thought of the Ps. The original Ps. is hot with passion; this section is calm and placid.

Yahweh rewards me according to my righteousness,
 According to the cleanness of my hands returns to me;
 Because I have kept the ways of Yahweh,
 And have not acted wickedly (in departing) from my God.
 For all His judgments are before me,
 And His statutes I did not depart from them;
 And I was perfect towards Him,
 And kept myself from mine iniquity.

21. Yahweh rewards me || returns to me], exact retribution, according to my righteousness || according to the cleanness of my hands], not using the hands for unclean purposes. This seems to imply not Levitical purity or purity from bribery, which never are expressed in this way; but, in accordance with Jb. 9<sup>30</sup> 22<sup>30</sup>, innocence from unrighteousness and so || “righteousness.” — 22. The ways of Yahweh], ways for ways commanded Dt. 8<sup>6</sup> 10<sup>12</sup> 11<sup>22</sup> 19<sup>9</sup> 26<sup>17</sup> 28<sup>9</sup> 30<sup>16</sup> Jos. 22<sup>5</sup>. — 23. For all His judgments], legal decisions in law codes || and His statutes], f. pl. usage of code of H. — depart from], Deuteronomic expression Dt. 9<sup>12</sup> + 7 t. — 24. And I was perfect towards Him and kept myself from mine iniquity]. This is given as a single pentameter line. It may be arranged as two trimeters by separating the preposition from its noun; but it was probably not so intended by the glossator. These verses can hardly be earlier than the later Deuteronomic writers.

25–28. This section constitutes another and still later gloss, gnomic in character, from the period of Hebrew Wisdom, and so probably as late as the Greek period. They begin with a couplet which is essentially the same as v.<sup>21</sup>. The retribution in the following couplets is ethical rather than legal.

And Yahweh returned me according to my righteousness,
According to the cleanness of my hands before His eyes.
With the pious Thou shewest Thyself kind;
With the perfect Thou shewest Thyself perfect;
With the clean Thou shewest Thyself clean;
But with the crooked thou shewest Thyself crooked:
For Thou savest humble folk;
But (Thine) eyes are (against) the lofty.

26. With the pious Thou shewest Thyself kind || with the perfect Thou shewest Thyself perfect]. The pious are those who are devoted to God and His law of kindness; and who are also complete, entire in their devotion to Him, and are so without blame. To such God is kind and perfect in His dealings. — 27. With the clean Thou shewest Thyself clean in antith. with but with the crooked (cf. Pr. 22<sup>5</sup>) Thou shewest Thyself crooked. — 28. For Thou savest humble folk]. The antith. compels the meaning “humble,” elsw. only Pr. 3<sup>34</sup> 16<sup>19</sup>, possibly also Zc. 9<sup>9</sup>; the earlier sense, “poor, needy, afflicted,” is not appropriate here. — But (Thine) eyes are (against) the lofty]. The texts of this line are difficult to explain: "lofty eyes Thou humblest" of Ps. is too easy and does not explain 2 S.: Thine eyes are upon the lofty that Thou mayest bring them down. The translation given above best explains both variations.

Pt. II., Str. I. begins with a personal reference to Yahweh reminding one of v.<sup>3</sup>. The Str. describes what God had done for David in war, in two parts of three and four couplets. — 29–31. has three syn. couplets advancing one upon another. — For Thou art my lamp, Yahweh], changed in Ps. to "lightest lamp" in order to better parallel with: My God who lightens my darkness. Yahweh was the lamp, as in v.<sup>3c</sup>, horn of salvation; the lamp to light up a dark path, fig. of a difficult task, so of prosperous way through it, cf. Ps. 132<sup>17</sup>, probably based on this passage. — For in Thee (through Thy help) I run up to a troop], a hostile marauding band of the enemy, to attack them. — and in my God I leap a wall], to get at them behind the wall. These expressions seem to refer to some difficult campaign in which personal courage, strength, and valour were required. — The 'El whose way], providential way of acting, cf. Dt. 32<sup>4</sup>. — is perfect], in help and defence, as appears from || a shield is He to the one (made more comprehensive by a later editor by insertion of "all") seeking refuge in Him]; cf. v.<sup>3b</sup> for both expressions. — 32–35. The second part of the Str. is composed of four syn. couplets, setting forth in relative clauses what sort of a God Yahweh is and what He has done for David. The first couplet asks, For who is a God like Yahweh? || and who is a Rock like our God?], implying a negative answer: there is none like Him, the incomparable One. ('El and Rock are as in v.<sup>3b</sup>.) So Ex. 15<sup>11</sup>, cf. 1 S. 2<sup>2</sup> Dt. 33<sup>26, 29</sup>. A later editor, adapting the Ps. for congregational use, substitutes for the comparison the terminology of Is.<sup>2</sup> 43<sup>11</sup> 44<sup>6, 8</sup> 45<sup>21</sup>, asserting that God is the only God; that is, monotheism, a doctrine without anything to suggest it in the context, which rather holds up Yahweh as the incomparable One in what He has done for David. — The 'El who girdeth me with strength]. Strength is compared to a girdle wrapt about him by his God. — Who setteth my feet like hinds], swift to run, as v.<sup>30</sup> || And upon high places], battlefields, as Dt. 32<sup>13</sup> 33<sup>29</sup> 2 S. 1<sup>19, 25</sup>. — made me hold my ground], stand firm in battle, cf. Am. 2<sup>15</sup> 2 K. 10<sup>4</sup>. —

Who teacheth mine hands for war]. As a warrior of Yahweh he has been trained by Yahweh Himself. — And maketh mine arms bronze]. The arms by divine discipline become so strong that they are like bronze weapons; so essentially ancient Vrss. The “bow” is an ancient interpretation which spoiled the measure and misled as to the sense, and in ~~H~~ led to a change in the form of the vb., which is followed by AV. “so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms” and RV. “mine arms do bend a bow of brass,” neither of which suits the context.

36. These two lines are doubtless a gloss. They are not in accord with the previous or following context, which describe what God enabled David to do and not what God was to David.

And Thou gavest me the shield of Thy salvation,
And Thy right hand supported me, and with docility to Thee Thou broughtest me up.

The shield is suited to the previous bronze weapon and the hands and arms, but then it should be a shield of victory and not shield of salvation. But the glossator was evidently influenced by the horn of salvation v.<sup>30</sup> and the shield v.<sup>31c</sup>. The last two lines vary in texts and Vrss. 2 S. omits: And Thy right hand supported me; and the first word of the next clause is pointed so as to read “Thy response,” or “Thy docility,” which suits better the vb. than MT. of Ps. “Thy condescension” or “Thy humility.” So also we may read the vb. “either made me great” or brought me up. But in either case the conceptions are later than those of the Ps. as a whole. Two different stages of glosses are represented by the two texts.

Str. II. describes the triumph of David over his enemies. It is composed of a couplet followed by a tetrastich in the first section, and of a tetrastich and two couplets in the second. — 37. The first section begins with a synth. couplet: Thou broadenest my steps under me], taking up the thought of v.<sup>34</sup>. The step is the place on which the feet step or stand; it is broadened so as to give ample room for standing, cf. v.<sup>20b</sup>, plenty of room for exercise and development. — And my limbs do not slip]. They stand firm on the broad stepping place. This may refer to the enlargement of the power of David after his final defeat of the Philistines. — 38. David now describes his victorious pursuit of his enemies.

He is no longer on the defence. — I pursue mine enemies and I overtake them]; cf. v.<sup>30</sup> of his running and leaping against them; || and I return not (from the pursuit) until (I have overtaken them and) I have finished them (destroyed them completely). — 39. And I smote them down so that they could not rise || and they fell under my feet]. This, in the original poem, described a historic experience of David, probably in his wars against Edom and Moab; but an editor, wishing to make future triumphs possible to the thought of the congregation, omits the waws consecutive, so that the verbs may be either futures or presents. The second section opens with a tetrastich: 40-41. And Thou girdest me with strength for war], resuming the thought of v.<sup>33a</sup>, then synth. as result of this warlike strength, Thou causest them that rise up against me to bow down under me]; they rise up only to bow down under my blows; || And mine enemies Thou madest give the back to me], turn the back of their necks in flight; || and them that hate me I exterminated. — 42. The pitiful condition of the helpless enemy is now stated in a couplet: And they cry for help, but there is no saviour || unto Yahweh, but He doth not answer them. — 43. The Str. concludes with a couplet bringing to a climax the final victory: And I beat them small as dust of the earth]. An editor substitutes for earth, “before the wind,” thinking of pursuit. — And as clay of the streets pulverized them]. This is probably an indirect reference to captured cities. The entire Str., describing victories over enemies, may be regarded as a poetic representation of the wars of David described in 2 S. 8, 10.

Str. III. sums up and generalizes all that has gone before; but it is mingled with two glosses, which make it more appropriate for congregational worship in later times. — 44-47. The first section is a hexastich as usual. — 44-45a. It begins with a single line: Thou deliverest me from the strivings of (my) people], which, if the text of 2 S. is correct, is the only reference in the ode to civil commotions. This is generalized in the text of Ps. to “people,” but the strivings are more suited in usage to civil commotion than to external war, cf. Ps. 55<sup>10</sup>. The three lines that follow are syn., referring to foreign nations. — Thou settest me to be head of nations]; the conquered nations submit to him as their head or chief. — A people I knew not serve me], unknown distant foreign peoples, such as the Syrians of Hamath, 2 S. 8<sup>9</sup>; || At the hearing of the ear shew themselves obedient to me]. This is followed by a gloss, in the hostile spirit to foreign nations of later times. — 45b-46. Foreigners come cringing unto me || foreigners fade away and come trembling out of their fastnesses]. These lines are in both texts, but there has been a transposition of v.<sup>45a-b</sup> in the text of 2 S. There is nothing in this part of the Str. apart from the gloss that transcends the experience of David; although naturally in later times it was given a more general reference, in accordance with the royal Pss., to a world-wide dominion of the Davidic dynasty. — 47. A concluding couplet ascribes life and blessedness to God. — Liveth and blessed is my Rock]. “Yahweh” has been inserted after “liveth,” but elsewhere “Yahweh liveth” is the formula of the oath, and here it seems to balance two clauses with two beats each, making a tetrameter. It is not expressive of a wish, as one says, “May the king live;” but is a statement of fact, as to the “Rock,” the divine name of the Song. — And the God of my salvation is exalted]; cf. v.<sup>3c</sup> and this exclamation of the fact to the couplet of challenge, v.<sup>32</sup>. — 48-51. The second section is constructed somewhat as v.<sup>32-35</sup> in relative clauses. — 48-49. The 'El who giveth to me deeds of vengeance], such as those described in v.<sup>38-43</sup>. — And who bringeth down peoples under me]; cf. v.<sup>40-41</sup>. An editor of the Ps. substituted a later Aramaic word “subdueth” for this ptc. — From the man of violence rescueth me]. This is the climax, going back upon v.<sup>3d</sup>, which is left out of text of Ps., but is preserved in text of 2 S., probably referring to Saul, as indicated in title. It was quite natural that the first reference in the ode to the peril, and the last, should refer to him; and as “a man of violence” rather than as classed with the other enemies. — This is followed by a gloss, 50, which is left in the text as a hexameter, a liturgical addition suitable for congregational worship at this point. — Therefore will I praise Thee, Yahweh, among the nations, and to Thy name will I make melody]. All the terms are common liturgical terms. — 51. The final triplet of the Str. is individual in its reference to David as the anointed king over against the man of violence. — Who magnifieth acts of salvation to His king, || And doeth kindness to His anointed]. There is a reference here to the covenant of David, 2 S. 7<sup>15</sup>sq. "My kindness shall not depart from him, as I took it from Saul," cf. also Ps. 89<sup>29, 34</sup>; and so the climax is appropriate in the mouth of David, To David and to his seed forever.

1. אֲרַחֶמֶךָ [I love thee, Qal impf. 1 p. sf. 2 m. of רָחַם, א.ל. in Qal; Pi. have compassion, frequent † Pss. 102<sup>14</sup> 103<sup>13, 18</sup> 116<sup>5</sup> and elsw. However, in As., Ar., Aram., Syr., used in Qal with mng. love. Possibly an early and rare use in Heb., but prob. a later one, an Aramaism. The idea itself is not earlier than Hosea, and is only common with אָהַב subsequent to D. This l. is cited Ps. 116<sup>1</sup>; but אָהַבתי is there substituted, or else gives evidence of an original אָהַבתי in poem. This vb. is not found in 2 S. and is doubtless a gl. — הִזְקִי] my strength: † הִזְקִי א.ל. (2 S. 22<sup>2</sup> <sup>GL</sup> has σχῆς μου, but this is gl. from Ps.); cf. הִזְקִי Is. 8<sup>11</sup>, הִזְקִי 2 Ch. 12<sup>1</sup> 26<sup>16</sup> Dn. 11<sup>2</sup>. † הִזְקִי is used Ex. 13<sup>3, 14, 16</sup> Am. 6<sup>18</sup> Hg. 2<sup>22</sup>; הִזְקִי adj. is used of the hand and arm of י in delivering Israel from Egypt, especially in D. Cf. Ps. 136<sup>12</sup> and Is. 40<sup>10</sup> (בְּחִזְקוֹ as in the character of a strong one). — 3. סִלְעִי] my crag; † סִלְעִי n.m. fig. of י 18<sup>3</sup> (= 2 S. 22<sup>2</sup>); also 31<sup>4</sup> = 71<sup>8</sup> (both וּמַצְרֵתִי אֶתְּהָה (ס); 42<sup>10</sup> (סִלְעִי); fig. of security 40<sup>3</sup>; in physical sense 78<sup>16</sup> 104<sup>18</sup> 137<sup>9</sup> 141<sup>6</sup>. — תְּצִירָה † n.f. fastness, stronghold, used in ψ of God 18<sup>3</sup> (= 2 S. 22<sup>2</sup>) 31<sup>3, 4</sup> = 71<sup>8</sup> (all סִלְעִי ||), 91<sup>2</sup> (תְּצִירָה ||), 66<sup>11</sup> 144<sup>2</sup> (both dub.); elsw. common in narrative of 1 S. 22<sup>4, 5</sup> 24<sup>23</sup> 2 S. 5<sup>7, 9, 17</sup> (= 1 Ch. 11<sup>5, 16</sup>) 23<sup>14</sup>; also in Ez. 12<sup>13</sup> 13<sup>21</sup> 17<sup>20</sup> Jb. 39<sup>28</sup>. It is therefore an early word, extremely suitable in the mouth of David. — מַסְקִי] my deliverer, Pi. ptc. sf. 1 (v. 17<sup>13</sup>); elsw. in this ptc. form v.<sup>49</sup> (for which 2 S. more correctly מוֹצִיָּא); 40<sup>18</sup> = 70<sup>6</sup>, 144<sup>2</sup>, as above, agreeing with 2 S. in adding לִי, which is doubtless original. But Bā., Du., rd. מַסְקִי, as Ps. 55<sup>9</sup>, more in accord. with context. The Ps. is without doubt a trimeter; therefore the initial יְהוָה must be a gl., though in both texts. — אֱלֹהֵי] my God; אֱלֹהֵי of 2 S. is prob. later; cf. אֱלֹהֵי 42<sup>10</sup>. — צִירִי] my rock, here as in Dt. 32<sup>87</sup>sq. הָסֵה בִי. In that poem it is a divine name, given in <sup>GL</sup> there as elsw., v.<sup>18, 30, 31, 31, 37</sup>, by θεός; so <sup>GL</sup> of 2 S. 23<sup>3</sup> Ps. 18<sup>32, 47</sup>. This usage and the personal reference favours its interpretation as a divine name here, although <sup>GL</sup> renders βροχῆς; <sup>GL</sup> of 2 S. has ὁ θεός μου φύλαξ ἔσται μοι, showing that <sup>GL</sup> rd. אֱלֹהֵי. † צִירִי n.m. rock; used elsw. In that case it is difficult to explain 1 consec. with וַיִּמְסְרֵי. ו may be taken as circumstantial, or we may think that it has consec. power notwithstanding the change of order. It certainly would be more natural to read וַיִּמְסְרֵי, and possibly that was the original. There was a tendency in later times, when 1 consec. had lost its force and usage, to change order of vbs. in the older poems. מוטרות השמים of 2 S. is a.l., and as the more difficult reading is to be preferred; that of Ps. is favoured by the use of הרה לו [retracted accent (v. 212)] † חרה vb. 12. Ps. = יֵשֶׁת חֶשֶׁךְ סָתַרוּ סְבִיבוֹתָיו סָתַרוּ חֲשֵׁכֵת מַיִם

2 S. = סְבִיבוֹתָיו סָתַרוּ הַשֶּׁרֶת מַיִם — וִישֵׁת חֶשֶׁךְ

1 consec. of 2 S. is evidently correct, for the movement of thought goes right on. סְבִיבוֹתָיו in both texts suits the clause. Then סָתַרוּ of Ps. must be either an addition or out of place. It was prob. a gl. to get a synonym of סָתַרוּ. סָתַר in this sense of booth, of God in storm, only here and Jb. 36<sup>29</sup>, where it is prob. borrowed from Ps. cf. 10<sup>9</sup>. In Ps. 27<sup>6</sup> (Kt.) 31<sup>21</sup> Yahweh is booth and shelter to the psalmist. The idea of a booth on a chariot of cherubs is not congruous. We might derive סָתַר from the other stem סָכַר = overshadow, screen (v. 5<sup>12</sup>). It is true that from this stem no form סָתַר is known, but only סָכַר and סָכָה, both in sense of covering; but there is no reason why סָתַר covering, screen, should not be derived from this סָכַר, as well as סָתַר booth from the other סָכַר. Besides, this explanation would bring into comparison La. 3<sup>44</sup>, where of Yahweh it is said, סָכַר בָּעָנָן לָךְ Thou hast covered Thyself with a cloud; so of anger La. 3<sup>43</sup>. — † סָתַר n.m. frequent in  $\psi$  as hiding-place. סָתַר hiding-place of thunder 81<sup>8</sup>; elsw. in sense of shelter in י 27<sup>6</sup> 31<sup>21</sup> 61<sup>6</sup> 91<sup>1</sup>, cf. 32<sup>7</sup> 119<sup>14</sup>, secret place of womb 139<sup>16</sup>, secrecy 101<sup>5</sup>. It is an easy gl. here; so ἀποκρυφῆς has gone into סָתַר of 2 S. — הַשֶּׁרֶת of 2 S. a word unknown elsw., and from stem unknown in Heb.; mng. conjectural, collection, mass. As. ašāru, collect, gather; prob. txt. err. for הַשֶּׁכֶת. Hi., Gr., כ mistaken for ר, all the more that ס has σκóτος. † הַשֶּׁכֶת darkness: opposed to light 139<sup>12</sup>; of theophany only here (18<sup>12</sup>), cf. Gn. 15<sup>12</sup> (JE); fig. lack of understanding 82<sup>5</sup>, distress Is. 8<sup>22</sup> 50<sup>10</sup>. חֶשֶׁךְ is more common. סָתַר is an original out of which both סָתַרוּ of Ps. and סָתַר 2 S. might be derived; rd. it, therefore, as cstr. sing. and connect it with next word, סָתַר הַשֶּׁכֶת מַיִם. Then the covering of darkness of waters is syn. with He put darkness about Him, i.e. He came enveloped in dark storm clouds, as in subsequent content. עָבִי שָׁחֲקִים goes therefore with next v. and takes as its complement מְנִיחָה. — [עָבִי] pl. cstr. of עָב n.m. thick, dense cloud: (1) rain cloud 77<sup>18</sup> 147<sup>8</sup> Ju. 5<sup>4</sup> Is. 5<sup>6</sup>; (2) cloud mass; so chariot of י Is. 19<sup>1</sup> Ps. 104<sup>3</sup>; connected with theophany 18<sup>12</sup> 13. — [שָׁחֲקִים] skies, the region of thin clouds; this phr. a.l.; elsw. in  $\psi$  pl. עֲרֵי שָׁחֲקִים (of the divine faithfulness reaching) 36<sup>6</sup> = 57<sup>11</sup> = 108<sup>5</sup>, עֲרֵי בִשׁ (God's) 68<sup>35</sup>, שֶׁכֶּמֶל 78<sup>28</sup> Pr. 8<sup>28</sup>, קוֹל נִהַר שׁ Ps. 77<sup>18</sup>; sg. sky 89<sup>7</sup> 88. † שָׁחַק vb. גִּדְרוּ עֲבִיו עֲבָרוּ בְּרַר וְנָחֳלִי אֵשׁ
 2 S. = נָחֳלִי אֵשׁ בְּעָרוּ גִּדְרוּ

Ps. gives two lines, 2 S. one line. בְּרַר וְנָחֳלִי אֵשׁ is given again in v. 14<sup>c</sup>, but not in 2 S. It is an easy assimilation, עָבָרוּ Ps. = 2 S. בְּעָרוּ, a transposition of ב by txt. err. עָבָרוּ is not appropriate to עָבִיו, but is needed with עָבָרוּ and would be easily suggested by עָבִיו of previous line. בְּעָר is more appropriate to נָחֳלִי אֵשׁ, if alone without בְּרַר, and goes back upon v. 9<sup>c</sup>, coals of fire were kindled from Him. This reference back to v. 9<sup>c</sup>, the closing line of first six lines of Str., is similar to the reference in previous Str. of v. 7<sup>ab</sup> back to v. 4<sup>ab</sup>. But the reference to hailstones and coals of fire here seems premature in connection with the descent of Yahweh in the storm cloud, and before the storm bursts in subsequent Str. It is best, therefore, to think that the Ps. has preserved the original of the first line. The transposition of עָבָר into בְּעָר has occasioned the insertion of נָחֳלִי אֵשׁ from v. 9<sup>c</sup>, and the omission of עָבִיו is by error of not observing similar letters. — 14. Usually sf. is referred to enemies, but these have not yet appeared in Ps. It is better with Gr., Du., to think of the scattering wide the arrows (of thunderbolts); Ps. 144<sup>6</sup> reverses the order of בָּרַק וְחֵן in the verse. The ו of Ps. is not in 2 S. and not original. 2 S. has וַיִּהָדָם (Kt., ויהם Qr.) of וַיִּבְרָקוּ רַב וַיִּהָדָם of Ps. 2 S. is one word too short. But Ps. 144<sup>6</sup> = בָּרַק בְּרָק וַיִּהָדָם שֶׁלֹּחַ חֲצִיזָה וַיִּהָדָם. We may explain text of Ps. 18 as an attempt to improve בָּרַק בְּרָק, and the text of 2 S. as resulting from the omission of one of these. When Ps. 144<sup>6</sup> was written the text must have been בָּרַק בְּרָק, so Che., Bu. † בְּרָק n.m. flash of lightning 18<sup>15</sup> (= 144<sup>6</sup>) 77<sup>19</sup> 97<sup>4</sup> 135<sup>7</sup>. — [רַב] before ו consec. impf. is prob. vb. as in parallel line, ἔτελλεθον, I multiplicavit, from רַב vb. be many, trans. sense, but not found elsw. Departing from laws of God is an expression of D. in Qal which is prob. original, Dt. 9<sup>12</sup> + 7 t., מִשְׁפָּטִי Ps. 119<sup>102</sup>; not elsw. in  $\psi$  in this sense. — 24. [וַיִּשָּׁב יְהוָה לִי כִצְרוֹקִי] vb. = Hiph. impf. c. ו consec. of שׁוּב. This phr. repeats essentially v. 21; it begins another and still later gl. of a gnomic type, coming from the Greek period of WL. — [כָּבַד יְדִי] reduction to כָּבַד in 2 S. is a unique expression and doubtless txt. err. — 26. [תִּתְחַקֵּךְ] Hithp. impf. 2 m. גִּבּוֹר תִּתְחַקֵּךְ vb. denom. (v. 4). — [גִּבּוֹר תִּתְחַקֵּךְ] = 2 S. תִּתְחַקֵּךְ. Neither גִּבּוֹר nor תִּתְחַקֵּךְ is needed; in all other lines there is a single word. גִּבּוֹר is an Aramaism for גִּבּוֹר and not original. גִּבּוֹר is an interpretation of גִּבּוֹר which has come in by mistake from the line below. — 27. [יִזְכָּר] Niph. ptc. of זָכַר vb. purify, and so Niph. be purified, pure; a.λ. in ptc.; in pf. Is. 52<sup>11</sup> of ceremonial purification of those bearing sacred vessels. Hithp. here and Dn. 12<sup>10</sup>. These three lines are in exact parallelism, with same preposition עִם, syn. nouns, and syn. vbs. reflexive of the nouns, תִּתְחַקֵּךְ, תִּתְחַקֵּךְ, תִּתְחַקֵּךְ. — [עָשָׂה עֲקֹשׁ] adj. twisted, perverted: (1) as adj. Dt. 32<sup>6</sup> Ps. 101<sup>4</sup>; (2) as noun masc., of persons Ps. 18<sup>27</sup> = 2 S. 22<sup>27</sup> Pr. 22<sup>5</sup>, of things Pr. 8<sup>8</sup>, cstr. Pr. 17<sup>20</sup> 19<sup>1</sup> 28<sup>8</sup>, pl. 21<sup>5</sup> 11<sup>20</sup>. Hithp. of עָשָׂה is not used, so the glossator substituted the kindred תִּתְחַקֵּךְ Hithp. of † [תִּתְחַקֵּךְ] twist, a.λ. in Hithp. and only usage of this vb. in ψ. 2 S. has corrupted it to תִּתְחַקֵּךְ = shew oneself perverse, or crooked; elsw. found only in Niph. Gn. 30<sup>8</sup> (E) of struggling in a circle, Jb. 5<sup>13</sup> of acting falsely; so also Pr. 8<sup>8</sup> (עֲקֹשׁ ||). — 28. [כִּי אֶתָּה] = 2 S. וְאַתָּה. The two readings may best be explained on the basis of an original וְאַתָּה. The ו is intensive and so expressed by כִּי in the Ps., and the אֶתָּה is אַתָּה, as usual in most ancient Hebrew. — [עֲנִי] phr. a.λ. For עֲנִי v. 9<sup>13</sup>. — [רָמִים] = 2 S. רָמִים, Qal ptc. pl. רוּם (v. 9<sup>14</sup>) for the lofty, powerful (v. also Jb. 21<sup>22</sup>, where Di., Bu., refer to angels); of enemies exalting themselves against, c. עַל Ps. 13<sup>8</sup> 27<sup>6</sup>; c. מִן Nu. 24<sup>7</sup> (poet.). עֲנִי of 2 S. here is justified by Ps. 32<sup>8</sup>. It is impossible to explain txt. of Ps. from txt. of 2 S.; but if we start with the latter, עֲנִי עַל רָמִים thine eyes are upon the lofty, we may regard the txt. of Ps. as a paraphrase, תִּשְׁמַל being exegetical of על and 2 pers. sf. of עָנִיךְ, and then עֲנִים רַמִּים explanation of רַמִּים in terms of WL. The line is complete without חַשְׁמִיל; we may suppose that it came into the text of 2 S. from text of Ps. The original would then be:

וְאַחַ עֲסֵדֵנִי חוֹשֵׁעַ וְעֵנִיךְ עַל רַמִּים

— 29. Ps. = אֵלֶּהי נָרִי יִהְיֶה אֱלֹהֵי יִגְיָה חֲשָׁנִי
2 S. = אֵלֶּהי נָרִי יִהְיֶה וַיִּהְיֶה וַיִּהְיֶה יִגְיָה חֲשָׁנִי

The vb. תֹּאִיר in Ps. is unnecessary; it is doubtless a paraphrase. אֱלֹהֵי is the usage of the Ps., and is more probable than double אֱלֹהֵי. יִהְיֶה נָר † lamp; in ψ only fig.; of prosperity here and 132<sup>17</sup> (עֲרֻכְתִּי נָר לְמִשְׁחִי) latter prob. based on this passage; of the Law as guide 119<sup>106</sup>. תֹּאִיר Hiph. impf. 2 m. אִיר vb. shine (v. 13<sup>4</sup>). Hiph. light a lamp only here, but light wood Is. 27<sup>11</sup>, altar fire, Mal. 1<sup>10</sup>. — 30. [בָּךְ] instrumental, emph. — [אֶרֶץ גִּדְרִי] I run up to a band. Bā., after Lag., Ki., rds. אֶרֶץ גִּדְרִי, I break down a walled (town); so Lucian of 2 S. πεφραγμένους; Du. favours רִצָּץ, but doubts גִּדְרִי. But there is no usage to justify רִצָּץ גִּדְרִי. There is more to justify רָוַץ vb. Qal, run; in 1 S. 17<sup>22</sup> David runs c. acc. הַמַּעֲרָכָה up to the army; although this is not in hostility, yet there is no reason why acc. should not be used in case of hostility, as well as in case of friendly running; so fig. Pss. 19<sup>6</sup> 119<sup>32</sup>; run and prepare (in hostility) 59<sup>5</sup>. — † גִּדְרִי n.m. troop, or band of marauders; this is suited to early hostile relations; cf. Gn. 49<sup>19</sup> (poem), also vb. Ps. 94<sup>21</sup>. — [אֶרֶץ שׁוּר] vb. = Pi. impf. of † רָלַץ Qal, leap, not in ψ, 1 S. 5<sup>5</sup> (ס) Zp. 1<sup>9</sup>. Pi. leap a.l. in ψ (18<sup>30</sup> = 2 S. 22<sup>30</sup>); as a stag Is. 35<sup>6</sup>; c. loci Ct. 2<sup>8</sup>. It is nowhere else connected with שׁוּר, or cstr. with acc. † שׁוּר n. wall, rare word in Heb., but same in Ar. and Aram. = 2 S. 22<sup>30</sup>; elsw. Gn. 49<sup>22</sup>. — 31. [הָאֵל תָּמִים דָּרְכֵי] cf. Dt. 32<sup>4</sup> הַצֹּר תָּמִים פְּעֻלֹּתָיו. — [אֶקְרָאת יְהוָה צְרוּפָה] although in 2 S. also, yet an early gl. from Pr. 30<sup>6</sup>. — [מָגֵן הוּא לְכָל הַחַיִּים בִּי] It might be that this l. was taken from the same place. Certainly it has been influenced by Pr. 30<sup>6</sup>, although כָּל is a later expansion, marring the rhythm. But this section of Ps. is composed of couplets, and v.<sup>31a</sup> needs its complement, and that is found in v.<sup>31c</sup>; v.<sup>31b</sup> is a late gnomic utterance, out of harmony with the Ps., but v.<sup>31c</sup> is suited to it. God as a shield מָגֵן is an early idea (v. 3<sup>4</sup>). For v. 3<sup>3b</sup>; but the original was prob. sg., as context is 1 sg.; rd. לחִיטִּי בִּי. 2 S. has אֵל, an earlier form of the divine name, and doubtless correct. — [וַיִּמְי צֹר וּלְהִי] 2 S. repeats מְבַלְעִי. מְבַלְעִי † (composite pl neg. and עָרִי unto) used in the sense besides, except, elsw. Jos. 22<sup>19</sup> (P) Is. 43<sup>11</sup> 44<sup>6, 8</sup> 45<sup>21</sup>. † וּלְהִי is more common, 2 S. 7<sup>22</sup> Ho. 13<sup>4</sup> Is. 45<sup>5, 21</sup> 64<sup>8</sup>. The term is monotheistic like Is.<sup>2</sup>, and not like אֱלֹהִים בְּאֵלִים under Ex. 15<sup>11</sup>. It seems prob. that the original was כִּי, and that an editor under influence of Is.<sup>2</sup> adapted it by inserting מְבַלְעִי, which appears in both ll. in 2 S., while the second l. of Ps. in better style uses וּלְהִי. The ll. are too long with these words inserted. — [אֱלֹהֵי] God; used Dt. 32<sup>16, 17</sup>, and on this basis as archaism in late poetry Pss. 50<sup>22</sup> 114<sup>7</sup> 139<sup>19</sup> Jb. 3<sup>4</sup> + 40 t. ⊗ of 2 S. has καὶ θλάσω αὐτοὺς καὶ οὐκ ἀναστήσονται. וְאֶמְחָצֵם is a repetition of כָּלוּ by error of enlargement and addition to the text; but ו consec. is possibly expressive of result, and original. וְלֹא יִכְלֶה is also an interpretation of the modal force of וְיִקְוִמוּן Hiph. impf. 1 sg. c. sf. 3 pl. of † מחץ vb. ## PSALM XIX.

Ps. 19 is composed of two originally separate poems: (A) a morning hymn, praising the glory of 'El in the heavens (v. 2-5b), and glorious movements of the sun (v. 5c-7); (B) a didactic poem, describing the excellence of the Law (v. 8-11), with a petition for absolution, restraint from sin, and acceptance in worship (v. 12-15).

A. v. 2-7, 2 STR. 6<sup>3</sup>.

THE heavens are telling the glory of 'El,
His handiwork the firmament is declaring;
Day poureth forth speech unto day,
Night maketh known knowledge unto night;
In all the earth their voice is gone out,
And in the bounds of the world are their words.

FOR the sun there is set up his tent,
 As a bridegroom he is going forth from his canopy.
 He rejoiceth as a hero to run his course,
 From the bound of the heavens is his going forth,
 And unto their bounds is his circuit,
 And there is nothing hidden from His sun.

B. V.<sup>8-15</sup>, 2 STR. 6<sup>5</sup>.

THE Law of Yahweh is perfect, refreshing the soul;
 The Testimony of Yahweh is trustworthy, making wise the simple;
 The Precepts of Yahweh are right, rejoicing the heart;
 The Commandment of Yahweh is pure, enlightening the eyes;
 The (Saying) of Yahweh is clean, enduring forever;
 The Judgments of Yahweh are true, vindicated altogether.
 MOREOVER Thy servant is warned by them; in keeping them there is much reward.
 Errors who can discern? Clear me from hidden ones.
 Moreover from presumptuous ones restrain Thy servant; let them not rule over me.
 Then shall I be perfect, and cleared from much transgression.
 Let the words of my mouth be for acceptance, and the musing of my mind,
 Before Thee continually, Yahweh, my Rock and my Redeemer.

Ps. 19 was in B, then in ff and BR (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33); but this only applies to the first half of the Ps. v.<sup>2-7</sup>, for the second half was originally a separate poem. The first half has the trimeter measure, the second half the pentameter. The first half is a morning hymn of praise of the glory of 'El as witnessed by heaven, and especially of the sun. The second half is not a hymn, but a didactic poem in praise of the Law. These were combined in order that, in public worship, a synthesis of the two might be made, and that it might be seen that the glory of Yahweh in the Law transcends His glory in the heavens. The latter is used as a foil to emphasize the former by its antithesis. The date of the first half is not difficult to determine. Its conception of the creation v.<sup>2</sup>, as the work of God's hands, resembles that of Ps. 8, yet without betraying the influence of the conceptions of creation either of Gn. 1 or of Gn. 2. It has a single Aramaism מִלֵּה v.<sup>5</sup>; but that is found in 2 S. 23<sup>2</sup>, and cannot therefore be regarded as very late. חֶמֶה v.<sup>7</sup> is also, as a poetic term for sun, not earlier than Is. 30<sup>26</sup>, used elsw. Is. 24<sup>23</sup>, Jb. 30<sup>28</sup>, Ct. 6<sup>10</sup>. This is, however, a poetic term which might have been used first in this Ps., and may be due to the circumstances out of which it was composed. The author was a true poet; an enthusiastic admirer of the sun, which is here personified, as are days and nights, the heavens and the firmament. It may have been written as a protest of a monotheist against the worship of Shemesh as a deity, described in Ez. 8<sup>16</sup>, and common among the Jews in the Babylonian period. At the same time it must be admitted that the sun in the second Str. is not declaring the glory of 'EL, as are the heavens and firmament, days and nights of the first Str., but is himself the object of admiration; and therefore it is quite possible that in the original the Ps. was a hymn to the God Shemesh, and was subsequently adapted to the worship of Yahweh. In either case we must put the composition in the Babylonian period, when such sun worship was characteristic and prevalent among the Hebrews and the nations which influenced them. Since writing the above I have read Gunkel's Ausgewählte Psalmen, s. 24, and find that he has independently come to a similar conclusion. The second half of the Ps. v.<sup>8-15</sup> is of an entirely different character. It is a pentameter in praise of the divine Law, using six different terms for it. In this respect it resembles Ps. 119, which is also a pentameter, but uses eight terms. The limitation in Ps. 19 is due to the number of lines in the Str. D. H. Müller (Strophenbau und Responsion, s. 60), followed by Che., supplies the other two terms for Law by prefixing them to the two tetrameter lines that follow, thus making them pentameters. This is tempting from that point of view. But it would be difficult to explain their omission from all texts and Vrss.; and, furthermore, as will appear in textual notes, this couplet is a gloss, making the Str. just so much too long as compared with the subsequent Str. In other respects these Pss. are so alike that they must be attributed to the same period, when the legislation of P was the great central and substantial fact in the Hebrew religion. The term and conceptions of the priestly legislation are evident: שגגות, sins of ignorance or inadvertence || נסחרות, over against זרים משע רב v.<sup>13, 14</sup>. The use of the sacrificial term לרצון v.<sup>15</sup> is to be noted. The term קרית v.<sup>8</sup> is characteristic of P, and is emphasised by having the second place after תורה. פקודים v.<sup>9</sup> is used elsw. only Pss. 119<sup>4+20 (21)</sup> t. 103<sup>18</sup> 111<sup>7</sup>, and is very late. This part of the Ps. cannot be put any earlier than the Greek period. V.<sup>11</sup> is gnomic in character, using terms and conceptions characteristic of WL. If original, it implies the Greek period also. But it is a tetrameter couplet. It makes the Str. just these two lines too long; it is therefore a gloss. This part of the Ps. was probably earlier than Ps. 119.

PSALM XIX. A.

Str. I. is composed of three syn. couplets, the first and second syn. to each other v.<sup>2-3</sup>, the third synth. v.<sup>5</sup> to them. A prosaic gloss has been inserted between them v.<sup>4</sup>.—2-3. The heavens, the firmament, day and night, are all personified; as the heavens 50<sup>6</sup> 97<sup>6</sup>, the morning stars Jb. 38<sup>7</sup>, the hills and trees Is. 55<sup>12</sup>, and nature in general Ps. 148<sup>2 sq.</sup> Jb. 12<sup>7 sq.</sup>.—are telling || is declaring]. The participles indicate that this action goes on continually without interruption. These pass over into imperfects, poureth forth || maketh known], because it is necessary to express the oft-repeated action of one day pouring forth unto another day, and one night making known to another night ; and these latter taking up the strain and passing it on to their successors in an endless chain of praise, which Ros. compares to a ring of dancers repeating the song in a series, and Horne, "like two parts of a choir chanting forth alternately the praises of God." These are illustrative conceptions from usages of other nations ; but there is no evidence that the Hebrews had these usages, or that the poet thought of them. The theme is the glory of 'El, especially as manifested in His handiwork. The firmament, the expanse of heaven, is conceived as having been spread out by the hands of God at the creation, as elsewhere the earth Is. 42<sup>5</sup> 44<sup>24</sup> Ps. 136<sup>6</sup>, and so as ever after exhibiting and praising the master workman's power and honour. This is a different conception of their creation from that of Gn. 1, where they are created by word of command. It rather resembles Ps. 8<sup>4</sup>. It is tempting under the circumstances, with Ges., to think of the speech in the more specific sense of hymn ; but this has no authority in Hebrew usage, and is too specific for the subsequent as well as the previous syn. terms. The speech and the knowledge, though undefined by suffix, must, from the context, mean speech about 'El, and knowledge of 'El.—4. There is no speech and there are no words, their voice is not heard], so most naturally translated, is rather a tame explanation of the previous lines. "This seems to be a kind of correction or explanation of the bold figure which had ascribed language to the heavens," Pe. It is difficult to see, then, why Pe. did not draw the reasonable inference with Ols., followed by Du., that it is a prosaic gloss. This internal reason is fortified by the external one that these two lines make this Str. just two lines too long in proportion to its antistr. The numerous attempts to get an appropriate meaning out of the verse have all failed to give satisfaction ; as indeed they are all awkward and entirely out of place in a Ps. of such wonderful simplicity, terseness, and graphic power. There is no agreement of EV<sup>a</sup>. in their translations.—5ab. In all the earth], emph., in antith. to the heavens v.<sup>2a</sup>. The heavens are telling to the earth, and their message extends throughout the earth || in the bounds of the world], that is in the extreme limits of the inhabited world.—their voice], in accordance with the parallel, their words], but this requires, with most modern scholars, after the ancient versions, the correction of the Hebrew text, which by the change of a single letter reads "their line," instead of "their voice." The Hebrew word translated "their line" admits only of the meaning measuring line, which, while it is suited to the thought of extension to the earth's limits, and might spring into the mind of a copyist whose attention was confined, in copying, to this single line, is yet out of harmony with the thought which is emphasised in each of the other five lines of the Str. The proposal to render the Hebrew word "string" of a musical instrument, and so the string, for the sound of it, though urged by Ew. and others, and possibly in accordance with usage in other languages, is not justified by Hebrew usage.

Str. II. is progressive throughout, and is an antistr. to the previous one. As the previous Str. sets forth the glory of 'El, this Str. describes the glory of the sun. — 5c. For the sun is set]. The sun is personified, as were heavens and firmament, day and night, of the previous Str., yet not as praising the creator, but as the theme of the praise of the poet. The 'El of the previous Str. does not appear at all in this Str., unless we suppose Him to be the unexpressed subject of the verb "set," and so render "He hath set." The vb. may, however, be more properly regarded in the present context as having a general subject expressed in English by the passive, "is set." The sun is emphasised at the beginning and also at the close of this Str. v.<sup>7b</sup>, as the great theme of its praise. It is therefore really put in parall. with the 'El of the previous Str., while the poet puts himself in parall. with the personified heavens, firmament, day and night. It seems most natural, therefore, to identify the sun with 'El. Was the Ps., then, originally a hymn in praise of the god Shemesh, who was worshipped in Jerusalem just before the exile, Ez. 8<sup>16</sup>? or is Shemesh used for the God of Israel, as in Ps. 84<sup>12</sup>? The praise of God by the sun, so conspicuous in 148<sup>3</sup>, is here conspicuous by its absence. On the whole, it seems probable that the Ps. was originally composed in honour of the god Shemesh, and that it was subsequently adapted by a few changes to the worship of the God of Israel, by interpreting 'El in accordance with Hebrew usage, and by interpreting the vb. as having 'El as subject, and so giving the sun a subordinate position. It is probable that the preposition ב was prefixed by the editor, and was not original. The original probably read, "Shemesh has set up his tent." ו makes a still further modification of the original in order to connect with the previous Str. by adding "in them," which was not in the original of ב, and makes the line too long for the normal measure. The reference to the heavens, which was doubtless designed by this addition, can only be made proper by following ו, and attaching this line to the previous one, and so destroying the strophical organisation of the Ps. All other explanations give grammatical difficulties. De W. thinks of the End of the world as the dwelling of the sun. Thus Helios turns into Thetis; and Ossian gives the sun a shady cave in which to pass the night. But all this is in the realm of mythology, and in so far as these ideas are based on primitive worship of the sun, rather favours the thought that the Ps. was originally a hymn to Shemesh = Helios. We may think of the tent of the sun as in Hb. 3<sup>11</sup>, where sun and moon have their dwelling; or of the tent of the god Shemesh, in accordance with the constant conception of the heavenly temple or abode of God. — 6. "And he," emph. reference to the sun, is unnecessary and difficult to justify from the context, and it destroys the measure. It is doubtless a gloss due to the effort to distinguish between 'El and the sun. — As a bridegroom], not implying a marriage of the sun, but setting forth the freshness, the vigour, and the joy with which the rising sun appears in the East. — He is going forth from his canopy]. During the night he has been in his tent, or abode, and behind and beneath his canopy; at daybreak he comes forth from the night's retirement with fresh, youthful, full-grown vigour. — He rejoiceth as a hero to run his course]. The path of the sun in the heavens is conceived as a racecourse. The ancient warrior or hero was a runner as well as a fighter, and he enjoyed running as well as fighting. — 7. From the bound of the heavens], the extreme East, is his going forth], rising. — unto their bounds], the extreme limits of the West, is his circuit], the fully rounded course. — And there is nothing hidden], all things throughout the earth come under his inspection during his circuit; nothing on the earth's surface escapes from his rays. — from His sun], that is God's sun; so the Hebrew word is elsewhere always translated, and in this sense it gives the most appropriate climax in antith. to the beginning of the Str. The usual rendering, "from his heat," while etymologically possible, has no usage whatever to justify it, and unduly limits the thought to heat, when the term "hid" would more naturally suggest light of the sun, which is thought of also under the more general word "His sun." At the same time it seems likely that the editor, who adapted the Ps. to the worship of the God of Israel, was responsible for the addition of the suffix, and that the original simply used Hamah as a parallel word to Shemesh, both alike referring to the same god. This, then, gives us the most appropriate climax, that all things earthly are under the eye of God, in accordance with a conception common to the OT., that God, enthroned in heaven, sees, knows, and inspects all things earthly. It is also common to the hymns to the god Shemesh, that he is the great inspector and judge of all the earth.

PSALM XIX. B.

Str. I. 7-10 has six syn. lines in praise of the Law. There are six different terms for Law, one for each line of the Str., each technically expressing some one special type of Law in ancient usage; but it is doubtful how far those distinctions were felt in the time when this Ps. was composed. The Law of Yahweh is the Law conceived as teaching, doctrine, and is especially characteristic of special laws of priestly origin. The Testimony is a term characteristic of the priestly legislation, and is the Law conceived as giving testimony for Yahweh, and so is appropriate as a mate of "Law." Precepts are types of Law known only to late psalmists. They are divine prescriptions of Law. This term is, indeed, a late syn. for Commandment, which is characteristic of the prophetic commands of the Deuteronomic code.—The Saying], for so we must correct the text, for "The fear of Yahweh," which is unknown elsw. as a term for Law, and was a mistake for the similar Hebrew word, which is a poetic synonym of "Word" in the usage of Ps. 119, a characteristic term of the most ancient type of prophetic Law, and one which least of all could be omitted from the series. It is, moreover, most appropriate as a mate for Judgments, which is also an ancient pre-Deuteronomic type of Law, characteristic of the Code of the Covenant, Ex. 21-22, and also of the recently discovered code of the ancient king Hamurabbi. The only terms of Ps. 119 absent are the "Word," the syn. of "Saying," and the "Statute," an earlier type of the "Judgment"; the terms most likely to be omitted by a late Hebrew poet, if he must make an omission, due to the limitations of his Str. Each one of the terms for Law has its adjective. These do not seem specially appropriate to the particular terms. There seems to be no good reason why they should not be used interchangeably here, as in Ps. 119 on a much larger scale, extending through twenty-two strophes. These adjectives are: perfect, complete, entire, without defect, v. 18<sup>31</sup>; trustworthy, firm, reliable, to be depended upon; right, equitable, just; pure, spotless; clean, without impurity or contamination; true, in their exact conformity to justice. Each of the legal terms has also its beneficent activity: "refreshing the soul," or "restoring" it, RV., imparting refreshment to the inner man, his true soul-food, as Dt. 8<sup>3</sup> Mt. 4<sup>4</sup>. The translation "converting the soul," PBV., AV., while true enough in itself, and in accordance with other uses of the term, is too specific here and not in accord with the context. — making wise the simple], imparting the divine wisdom contained in the Law to those who are so open-minded that they are capable of receiving it. — rejoicing the heart], taking hold of the affections and imparting gladness as well as instruction. — enlightening the eyes], the eyes of the mind, so that they may see and understand, cf. 119<sup>105. 130</sup> Eph. 1<sup>18</sup>. — enduring forever], not transient, but permanent; not changeable, but standing firm and immovable. — vindicated altogether], cf. 51<sup>6</sup>; so in accordance with all the previous lines, and not "righteous" as a quality; for statements as to quality are reserved in all the other lines for the first half of the verse. The Str. has come to an appropriate conclusion. If it were to be continued, the two missing words for Law would be used with appropriate adjectives and verbal clauses.

11. These two words are indeed supplied by D. H. Müller, and Che. at the beginning of the two lines of the following couplet, but even then these lines would be entirely different in character from the previous ones.

They are to be desired more than gold, yea than much fine gold;
They are sweeter than honey, and the droppings of honeycombs.

A similar thought to v.<sup>11a</sup> is indeed in 119<sup>72, 127</sup>; but the couplet resembles more closely Pr. 3<sup>14-15</sup> 8<sup>10-11</sup> Jb. 28<sup>15-19</sup>, and its thought may be regarded as characteristic of Hebrew Wisdom rather than of Hebrew Law. The use of it here was doubtless on the basis of the uses of Hebrew Wisdom and from a glossator whose enthusiasm for the Law justified him in ascribing to it the characteristics also of Wisdom.

Str. II. has six progressive pentameters. — 12. Moreover], emphasizing following words. — Thy servant], emphatic in position, whether we think of the individual Israelite as a worshipper of God, or of the nation as in a special sense the servant of Yahweh, in accord with the conception of Is.<sup>2</sup>. — is warned]. The positive benefits of the Law, in the previous Str., now pass over into negative benefits, in relation to transgression, in warning against it. — in keeping them], observing the Law by obedience. — there is much reward], in consequence of a beneficent kindness. — 13. Errors], transgressions of Law, due to ignorance or inadvertence; characteristic of the distinctions of the priestly legislation. These committed unconsciously trouble the psalmist; for, who can discern], either their number or their enormity, and the extent of their departure from the norm of duty. — Clear me], is the prayer; acquit, absolve, or possibly, as often, leave me unpunished. — from hidden ones], those errors which are so hidden from the psalmist that he cannot discern them, and which yet he knows are not hidden from God, and therefore may imperil his relations to God. He knows of no other way of deliverance from them except the divine gracious acquittal. — 14. Moreover], increased emphasis, calling attention to another class of transgressions. — from presumptuous ones], proud ones; known, clearly discerned, boldly and wilfully committed, corresponding with "high-handed" of the code of P, Num. 15<sup>30</sup>. — restrain Thy servant], hold him back, for he knows his peril of committing them and the serious consequences. — let them not rule over me]. Such transgressions overpower the man and reduce him to servitude. The phrase so greatly resembles that of Gn. 4<sup>7</sup> that it is probable the author had in mind the story of Cain, where sin like a wild beast couches at the door greedy to take possession of him and rule him, which it actually did, with terrible consequences. So here the presumptuous sins are personified; they strive to dominate the man, cf. 36<sup>2</sup> Jn. 8<sup>34</sup>. — Then shall I be perfect], that is, if cleared from sins of ignorance, and restrained from sins of knowledge and intention, he will be free from all sin, and so be complete, entire, faultless. — and cleared from much transgression]. This does not naturally refer to some great extreme transgression as parallel with the presumptuous ones, but rather to the transgressions hidden and to the errors to which he is so sensitive that he fears they may be many, and in their sum amount to much; for clear in the passive seems to refer to the same kind of sins as clear in the active, and to those from which he would be absolved, rather than to those from which he would be restrained. — 15. Let the words of my mouth be for acceptance], namely, those of the prayer which accompany the sacrifice made in the temple, making the sacrifices real earnest sacrifices, and so acceptable to God; as in Ho. 14<sup>2</sup> the calves (or fruit, v. Br.<sup>MP. 177</sup>) of the lips are thus offered, and Ps. 141<sup>2</sup> prayer as sacrifice. — and the musing of my mind], the mind acting in harmony with the mouth, as the mouth with the hand that presents the sacrifice. — Before Thee], all the activities of devotion, of mind, mouth, hand, tend to the divine presence where alone acceptance can be found. — continually], so  $\text{עַלְמָה}$ , as the measure requires, but omitted by  $\text{ח}$  and most Vrss. by error. The psalmist is not thinking of one single sacrifice, but of oft-repeated, continual approaches to God in sacrifice. All this is fortified and reaches its climax in the plea which gives assurance of success; my Rock and my Redeemer], cf. 18<sup>3</sup> 69<sup>19</sup>. The Rock is the negative refuge; the Redeemer is the one who grants the positive redemption from the sins so dreaded in the previous context.

These two lines are most easily tetrameters, but might be taken as trimeters by use of Makkephs. — 4. אֵין רָבִירִים || אֵין אָמַר are most easily explained as a denial of the use of speech and words in this praise of the heavens; then בְּלִי נִשְׁמָע would assert the same thing more strongly. † בְּלִי neg. adv. with vb. only here in  $\psi$ ; but with n. = without 59<sup>6</sup> 63<sup>2</sup> (v. בְּלִי עַד 72<sup>7</sup>). Their voice is not heard, is inaudible, i.e. except for the intelligent, pious mind. But why this qualification? It seems in direct antith. to v.<sup>3</sup> and <sup>5</sup> and is tame.  $\mathfrak{S}$  takes it as a relative clause: οὐκ εἰσὶν λαλῖαι οὐδὲ λόγοι ὧν οὐχὶ ἀκούονται al. φωναὶ αὐτῶν.  $\mathfrak{I}$  also: non est sermo et non sunt verba, quibus non audiat vox eorum. This seems a roundabout, unpoetic way of asserting that their speech was intelligible, although it is followed by De., Moll., Now. Ew. attaches to next v.: “without talk, without words, without their voice being heard, their sound becomes loud throughout the whole earth.” The measure of the last line can be only trimeter. This Str. is just the two lines longer than the second Str., and, therefore, in all probability they are a gl.; so Ols., Bi., Bā., Du. — 5. בַּקְצָה חָבַל || בְּכָל הָאָרֶץ emph., the first a spreading abroad, the second a reaching unto the utmost limits. בְּכָל הָאָרֶץ also in 82<sup>10</sup> 45<sup>7</sup> 105<sup>7</sup>. — הִנֵּנָם sf. of 3 pl. † הִנֵּה n.m. line, string: (1) measuring line, extending over wide territory, as Je. 31<sup>39</sup> Ez. 47<sup>8</sup> and elsw. PSALM XX., 2 PARTS 8<sup>3</sup> + RE. 2<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 20 is a Litany before a battle, in two parts: (1) During the offering of sacrifice, the leaders of the choir make a petition for the king that he may be victorious in the day of trouble (v.<sup>2-5</sup>), and a chorus sums it up with a vow of exultation and praise (v.<sup>6</sup>); (2) the leaders make a declaration of the certitude of victory, accomplished by Yahweh's hand rather than by the army (v.<sup>7-9</sup>), which is enthusiastically reaffirmed by the chorus (v.<sup>10</sup>).

IN the day of trouble may He answer thee,
 May the God of Jacob set thee on high;
 May He send from the sanctuary help to thee,
 And from Zion sustain thee;
 May He be mindful of all thy grain offerings,
 And accept as fat (all) thy whole burnt offering(s);
 May He give thee according to thy mind,
 And fulfil all thy plan.

We will be jubilant in thy victory,

And in the name of our God will we (rejoice).

NOW (the hand of Yahweh is made known);
 Yahweh hath given His anointed victory.
 He answereth him from His sacred heavens,
 By the mighty deeds of victory of His right hand.
 These by chariots and by horses;
 But by Yahweh our God are we strong.
 They, on their part, bow down and they fall;
 We, on our part, stand and are established.
Yahweh hath given victory to the king;
He answereth us in the day we invoke Him.

Ps. 20 was in D, then in FM and BR (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). It is a prayer for a king going forth to battle; implying the existence of the Hebrew monarchy v.<sup>7</sup>. It is a prayer at a sacrifice in the temple, with whole burnt offerings and accompanying grain offerings, and the use of ritual language v.<sup>4</sup>. The use of לָבַב v.<sup>5</sup> indicates, in præx. literature, the period prior to Je. The use of chariots and horses by the enemy v.<sup>8</sup> might refer to the Syrians, Assyrians, or Egyptians, and therefore gives no evidence of date. Theodore of Mopsuestia, and many since his time, have thought of Hezekiah; but the history of Hezekiah gives us no such situation as that described in the Ps. The victory of Jehoshaphat in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, cf. 2 Ch. 20, gives us a most appropriate historical situation; and the promise of victory, given by the prophet, gives an appropriate explanation of the change from petition to certitude in the two parts of the Ps.

Pt. I. is composed of five couplets, sung by the choir. Leading voices make the petition for the king, in eight trimeter lines, arranged in four synonymous couplets, all rhyming in Ka, which in English must be expressed sometimes by the personal pronoun thee, sometimes by the possessive thy. The reference to the king is not evident in this petition, but comes out clearly in the chorus v.<sup>10</sup>. Although we cannot suppose that the Levitical choruses were organised at so early a date, in accordance with the usage projected by the chronicler back even into the time of David, we may yet suppose that, with the institution of temple worship, some kind of an official choir was also instituted among the priests in Jerusalem, as in the ancient temples of other religions. — 2. In the day of trouble], implying a serious situation. The nation was in straits and in peril, and victory doubtful so far as their own ability to repel the invaders was concerned; their only hope was in divine assistance. — The God of Jacob]. The reference to the God of the ancestor of the nation, often used in such pleas, enforces the petition, especially as the name of their national and ancestral God was the pledge and security for their national existence and perpetuity. The honour of their God was necessarily involved in the honour of His people, according to the conception of the ancient Biblical writers. — set thee on high], in the exaltation of victory. — 3. From the sanctuary || from Zion], the source of divine assistance, according to the conception that it was God's place of residence among His people, the place of His theophanic presence, and therefore not only the place of prayer and sacrifice, but also the place from which His people may expect help in answer to prayer. — 4. all thy grain offerings], specific offerings of some kind of grain, which usually, especially in public sacrifices, accompanied all kinds of sacrifices of animals; the kind of grain offering differing, whether the simple grain, or roasted in the ear, or ground into meal for wafers or cakes or loaves, all depending upon the kind of sacrifice as discriminated in a later priestly legislation, not probably applicable at this early date. — all thy whole burnt offerings], special kinds of sacrifice of animals which differed from all other sacrifices of animals in that the entire victim, or rather all the parts that were in their nature clean, or that could be cleansed by washing, were entirely consumed on the altar and went up in the flame to God. This ancient form of sacrifice of animals, with its associated sacrifice of grain, was appropriate for the expression of worship, in the form of prayer. The nation were assembled, led by priests and choirs of singers, to participate in the sacrifice and prayer for the victory of their king and army. — May He be mindful]. There is little reason to doubt that this is a sacrificial term as truly as the || accept as fat], for it was characteristic of the grain offerings that they were offered Azkarah, to bring the offerer to the remembrance of Yahweh. For that service in the later ritual various Psalms were assigned (38<sup>1</sup> 70<sup>1</sup>, v. Intr. § 39). There is no good reason why we should not think that this conception of the grain offering was ancient. Such a conception does not by any means involve the numerous distinctions of the later priestly legislation. So also the phrase, “accept as fat,” is a sacrificial term, which indicates the essential thing in the sacrifice of animals, already recognised in the primitive story of Cain and Abel, Gn. 4<sup>4</sup>, that fat ones should be selected in order to find acceptance with God, implying that sacrifices, without such selection, would be regarded as niggardly and unacceptable. To accept or recognise the whole burnt offerings of animals as fat is, therefore, saying, in ritual terms, that they are entirely acceptable to God. — 5. According to thy mind || all thy plan], the plan devised already in the mind of the king for conducting the campaign or making the battle. — 6. The chorus now sings as it were a refrain, summing up the contents of the petition in a vow of jubilation and praise. That the chorus speaks is evident from the introduction of the first person plural, now for the first time, into the Psalm; as well as by the change of tone. — in thy victory]. The Hebrew word often means salvation from enemies, and so victory, which alone is appropriate to the context. The word may, however, be rendered “salvation,” in general, as Vrss., which was preferred for a liturgical use of the Ps. — will rejoice]. So some ancient codd. of G and many modern scholars, which is more natural than the unusual word of H, which is due to a copyist’s mistake of a single letter. The word of H is used elsewhere Ct. 6<sup>4.10</sup>; but here it can only be interpreted in a different sense, whether as “set up our banners,” AV., RV., or “wave” them, Kirk. and most. A later editor appended a line, "may Yahweh fulfil all thy askings," which is only a repetition of v.<sup>5b</sup>, in the use of an unusual word of late formation and out of harmony with the thought of the couplet. It might, however, be more appropriate for later congregational use to resume the tone of prayer, as indeed the editor aims to do at the close of the Ps. v.<sup>10</sup>.

Pt. II. 7. The leading voices again sing, not a soloist, as a late editor supposed, who wrote the first singular in place of the first plural of the chorus in an introductory statement which is prosaic. This destroys the symmetry of the couplets of the Ps. It is doubtless a textual error for the original line, which we have ventured to restore by conjecture. — Now], as the result of the petition. The time has come in which certitude takes the place of anxiety. — The hand of Yahweh is made known]. We may think of certitude born of internal evidence of answer to prayer, or due to the promises of a prophet intervening between the parts of the Ps. in accordance with 2 Ch. 20<sup>14-17</sup>, or to some external token of the acceptance of the sacrifice just offered. This last is most probable, if the restoration of the line given above is correct. The hand of Yahweh is displayed in behalf of His people; cf. for the use of the hand Is. 66<sup>14</sup>, of the arm Is. 52<sup>10</sup>, and of both Ps. 98<sup>1</sup>. This also makes the tetrastich one of introverted parallelism. — Yahweh hath given victory], not that the victory has actually taken place, but that it has already been given to the king in answer to the prayers of his people, and will surely take place. — His anointed], as anointed, installed on his throne by Yahweh, in accordance with 2<sup>2</sup>. — from His sacred heavens], the heavens as the sacred place in which God resides, and from which He gives victory to His people, especially in theophanic manifestations, when He would throw His enemies into a panic, such as those described in 2 Ch. 20, at the crossing of the Red Sea Ex. 14-15, at the battle of Bethhoron Jos. 10<sup>12-14</sup>, at the battle of the Kishon Ju. 5, at the battle of Rephaim 2 S. 5<sup>22-25</sup>; cf. also Ps. 18, Hb. 3, Jb. 38<sup>23</sup>. This turning toward heaven is not inconsistent with the previous turning toward the sanctuary as the source of help, for the conception of theophanic residence in sacred places on earth did not, from the earliest times of the Hebrew religion, lead them away from the thought that the real residence of Yahweh was in heaven. — mighty deeds], by acts of God Himself putting forth His might. — of victory], gained by those acts of might and overwhelming strength. — His right hand], theophanic and anthropomorphic expressions, frequent, especially in poetic literature, in connection with the divine deliverance of His people and judgment upon their enemies, from Ex. 15<sup>6, 12</sup> onward. — 8. These by chariots and by horses]. These were the chief reliance of the ancient enemies of Israel in their wars from the earliest times. Israel, living chiefly in hilly and mountainous districts, had little use for them. The law of the king (Dt. 17<sup>16</sup>) forbids them, although Solomon and other luxurious monarchs made use of them. The sentiment of the prophets was ever against their use. — But by Yahweh our God]. Yahweh is the chief, if not the sole, author of victory to His anointed king and people, cf. 33<sup>16-19</sup>. — are we strong], suited to the context, so  $\mathfrak{G}$  and many critics.  $\mathfrak{H}$ , followed by “we will remember” P<sup>B</sup>V., AV.; “we will make mention” RV., does not suit the context. — 9. They on their part], the enemy, in strong antith. to we on our part], the worshipping people of God. — bow down and they fall], a graphic description of the enemy as the mighty hand of God lays hold upon them, bending them down to the ground and prostrating them on the ground; frequent expressions for humiliation of enemies in defeat, v. 7<sup>16</sup> 17<sup>13</sup> 18<sup>40</sup>. — stand and are established], stand firm, upright and immovable. Each verb is in direct antith. to its mate in the previous line, to set forth the exaltation of the victorious king and people. — 10. The chorus now bursts forth in a couplet of enthusiasm, the climax of the Ps. Yahweh hath given victory], a renewal of the statement of the leading voices v.<sup>7a</sup>. — to the king], taking the place of “His anointed,” in accordance with the context. A later editor, whether because of dittog. of a copyist, changing a perfect into a cohortative imperative, or by intentional alteration to make the close of the Ps. more appropriate for public worship, as in v.<sup>6c</sup>, changes the certitude as to the victory, which pervades and dominates the entire second half of the Ps. up to this verse, into a petition for victory, in accordance with the first half of the Ps. — The texts vary in the second line. But  $\mathfrak{H}$  is doubtless correct in the impf. He answereth us, which resumes v.<sup>7b</sup>, and asserts the assuring fact that Yahweh habitually answers His people in their need. — in the day we invoke Him], in the very day, at the very time, they call upon Him in their distress. The whole Ps. is thus included between the day of trouble v.<sup>2</sup> and this day of prayer.

This has doubtless a sacrificial mng., corresponding with the term מִנְחָה, which belongs espec. to the מִנְחָה in P, and is expressed in the הִזְכִּיר in titles of Pss. 38, 70. — [כֶּל מִנְחָתֶךָ] the grain offering accompanying the עֹלָה, both expressing worship and prayer. The offering here is a special one for the king, and not a sacrifice which he might make during his reign. The use of pl. for grain offering and sg. for whole burnt offering is improbable, the one accompanied the other; rd. either both sg. or both pl. כֹּל is also needed for measure in 2d line. — † מִנְחָה n.f.: (1) gift, present 45<sup>13</sup> Gn. 32<sup>14</sup> (E) Is. 39<sup>1</sup> +; (2) tribute Ps. 72<sup>10</sup> Ju. 3<sup>15</sup> Ho. 10<sup>6</sup> +; (3) offering made to God, of any kind, Ps. 96<sup>8</sup>; (4) grain offering (as || עֹלָה and accompanying it) 20<sup>4</sup> in common use OT., so also 40<sup>7</sup> 141<sup>2</sup>; the special grain offering of P not in  $\psi$  unless in 141<sup>2</sup>. † עֹלָה n.f. whole burnt offering 20<sup>4</sup> 40<sup>7</sup> 50<sup>8</sup> 66<sup>13</sup>, רָצָה עֹלָה 51<sup>18, 21</sup>, הִעֲלָה עֹלָה 66<sup>15</sup>. — [וַיִּשְׁנֶה] cohort. Gr., Che. rd. יִרְצֶנָה accept as well pleasing; AE., Ki. make it denom. רָשָׁן reduce to ashes. It may, however, be conflation of two readings, רָשָׁנָה Pi. inv. and יִרְשָׁן juss., the latter alone suited to context. — 5. [לְהַבְהִיחַ] long form for usual לֵב, doubtless original to this Ps. = according to thy mind. — [וַעֲזָרָה] counsel, design, purpose (v. 1<sup>1</sup>), here for war, as Is. 36<sup>5</sup>. These eight lines are in syn. parall. ה' is in each one and also juss. of vb. This gives assonance, and it is probable that the lines all began or else closed with words ending in ה', most probably the latter. 1 pl. now takes the place of 3 sg.; there is prob. a different speaker, a chorus. — 6. בִּישׁוּעָה in thy victory, i.e. the victory given thee (by יי). יְשׁוּעָה (v. 3<sup>3</sup>). — [נִדְּוָל] Qal impf. 1 pl. of † [יָדַן] vb. denom. from נָדַל standard (not in  $\psi$ ) only here in Qal = set up standard, in Niph. The whole clause is a mere repetition of v. 5<sup>b</sup>. — 7. עַתָּה = now, temporal (v. 2<sup>10</sup>). This part of Ps. was sung later than the first part, after the sacrifice. — [יָדַעְתִּי] I know, present emph. This is certainly prosaic and not at all suited in the parall. of poetry. The original was prob. יִדְעוּ יְהוָה, cf. Is. 12<sup>5</sup> מִידְעָה יְיָ 66<sup>14</sup> נִדְעָה יְיָ was, as often in ancient codd., abbreviated to יי; this by haplog. fell out before יִדְעָה יְיָ still later fell out for a similar reason. יִדְעָה Pu. ptc. f. without נ, as often in Pi. and Pu., was wrongly interpreted as pf. [הִשְׁמִיךְ] cohort. inv. O save, give victory, but the pf. without ה is more prob., as v. 7. ה of cohort. is dittog. — [רַחֲמֶיךָ] = מִשְׁחֵי v. 7<sup>b</sup>, cf. 2<sup>2</sup>, obj. of vb., as  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ , and most moderns. MT. and other Vrss. refer מִי to God as king and attach it to יִתְנַחֵם. However, Jerome (Com.) says that in the Heb. text of his time it was Domine saluum fac regem. — [יִתְנַחֵם] impf. freq., as v. 7<sup>b</sup>.  $\mathfrak{S}$  has יִתְנַחֵם inv., so Hare, Bi., Che., Bā., al., which is an assimilation to previous inv. and less prob. The uncertainty of the interpretation of this text in  $\mathfrak{H}$  and the Vrss. is due probably to an editorial change, making an original statement of the assurance of victory into a petition more appropriate for later congregational use.

Ps. 21 is a Te Deum for the victory won by the king through divine help; composed of two parts, each of twelve trimeters, and a couplet of refrain; the former during sacrifice rehearsing the reasons for thanksgiving (v.<sup>2-7</sup>), with a chorus asserting the king's trust in Yahweh (v.<sup>8</sup>); the latter after sacrifice, expressing certitude of future victories of the king (v.<sup>9-13</sup>) with a fresh chorus of praise (v.<sup>14</sup>).

YAHWEH, in Thy strength the king is glad,
 And in Thy victory he greatly rejoiceth;
 Thou hast given him his heart's desire,
 And the request of his lips Thou hast not withheld;
 For Thou camest to meet him with blessings of good things;
 Thou settest on his head a crown of fine gold.
 Life he asked Thee, Thou gavest it him,
 Length of days forever and ever.
 His glory is great in Thy victory;
 Honour and majesty Thou layest on him;
 For Thou givest him everlasting blessings;
 Thou makest him joyful in Thy presence with gladness.
*Yea, the king is trusting in Yahweh,
 And through the kindness of 'Elyon he cannot be moved.*
 Thine hand will find all thine enemies,
 Thy right hand find all those hating thee;
 Thou wilt put them in a furnace of fire,
 In the time (of the setting) of thy face (against them).
 Yahweh will swallow them up in His anger,
 And the fire (of His rage) will devour them;
 Their offspring thou wilt destroy from the earth,
 And their seed from among the sons of men.
 Though they have extended evil unto thee,
 Thought an evil device, they shall not prevail;
 For thou wilt make them turn their shoulder in flight,
 With thy bowstrings thou wilt aim against their faces.
*Be Thou exalted, Yahweh, in Thy strength;
 We will sing and we will praise Thy might.*

Ps. 21 was in D, then in M and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). It is a royal Ps. like the 20th and its complement: the former a litany before a battle, the latter a Te Deum after a victory. It was therefore probably composed for the same occasion. That which was the theme of the petition was afterward the theme of the thanksgiving. As Ps. 20 it has two parts: one of thanksgiving made during sacrifice, one of certitude after the sacrifice; each with its chorus. Some have thought of a Coronation Ps. because of the reference to the crowning v<sup>4</sup>. But it is not necessary to think of that coronation as connected with the thanksgiving; we may suppose that it was at an earlier date, as was the request that follows it. It was only natural that the poet should go back to the coronation, a previous experience of blessing on the part of the king, as a prelude to the additional blessing of victory now enjoyed.

Part I. has six couplets, all syn. except v. 5, which is synth. — 2. In Thy strength], God's, exerted against the enemy in defeating them, and for the king, in giving him the victory, in which he greatly rejoiceth. The second line has been intensified by the insertion, by a later editor, of the exclamation "how" which was not in G, A, S. — 3. His heart's desire || the request of his lips], that specified in 20<sup>5</sup>, for victory over enemies. — 4. For Thou camest to meet him]. This causal clause, with imperfects between perfects, changes the tense as well as construction, in order to go back to the inauguration of the king which it vividly describes. The poet conceives that Yahweh Himself came to that festival with appropriate gifts. —  blessings of good things], the general welfare of the monarch in property and government. — Thou settest on his head]. Yahweh Himself was the chief actor, though the ceremonial was performed by His agents, probably the priests. The king was Yahweh's king, His son, in accordance with the covenant of David, making David's seed an everlasting dynasty for His people. — a crown of fine gold], the choicest gold for the royal crown. — 5. Life he asked], not because of previous illness or peril, but length of days], a petition for a long reign, undisturbed by perils of succession, as expressed in the usual address to kings, not only in Hebrew, cf. 72<sup>15</sup> 1 S. 10<sup>24</sup> 2 S. 16<sup>16</sup> 1 K. 1<sup>25</sup> 2 K. 11<sup>12</sup> Ne. 2<sup>3</sup>, but also among Egyptians, Babylonians, and other ancient nations. — forever and ever], not in the absolute sense of a never-ending life, and so realised alone in the Messiah, according to later conceptions; but in the ordinary concrete sense of a very long time. — 6. His glory || honour and majesty], heaping up terms to represent the exaltation and renown of the king due to Thy victory], recognising that it was Yahweh's gift to the king and that all this majesty was put upon him by his God. — 7. For Thou givest him], returning to the causal clause of v.<sup>4</sup>, in order to make a more general reference to the king's entire career; now in the climax departing from the specific reference to the victory.—everlasting blessings], sums up the blessings of good things of v.<sup>4</sup>, and the life, forever and ever of v.<sup>5</sup>.—in Thy presence]. The king as the son of God is conceived as not only enjoying the presence of Yahweh at his coronation and in the hour of victory; but also as living in the presence and favour of Yahweh, and so as ever joyful and with gladness.—8. The chorus, in a couplet of refrain, asserts that the king is trusting in Yahweh], the reason for all his experience of divine favour and blessing. It is through the kindness] as thus exhibited that he has the confidence that he cannot be moved; he will be in the future, as in the past, firm and immovable, and not be shaken by any wars or troubles that may arise in his realm.—Elyon], the name of God as the most High, the Exalted, is most appropriate in the mouth of the chorus, in the exaltation of His victory.

Part II. is an antistr. to the first part. It seems to have been sung after the sacrifice had been made. It thus resembles the second part of Ps. 20. On that account it probably expresses certitude with reference to the future, and the imperfects should be conceived as futures; although they might grammatically be rendered as jussives, expressing wish, as many interpreters would have them. Where the grammar does not decide, we have to depend upon the context and the circumstances of the Ps. This Str. has the same number of lines as the previous one, although ~~It~~ has abridged one of them; there are also six couplets, all syn. but v.<sup>10</sup>, which is synth.—9. Thine hand || Thy right hand . . . find], in pursuit in battle, overtaking, laying hold of thine enemies || those hating thee.—10. Thou wilt put them in a furnace of fire], not as some, fig. of fiery indignation as expressed by the || in the time of the setting of thy face]. This is the angry countenance, in accordance with the conception of God's wrath as a consuming fire, Is. 31<sup>6</sup>, and the fiery furnace of the day of judgment, Mal. 3<sup>19</sup>; but inasmuch as these passages refer to God's anger, and this Ps. to the kings, the furnace is probably literal, in accordance with the cruel methods of war of the early Davidic monarchy, as shown in David's treatment of the Ammonites, 2 S. 12<sup>31</sup>. "He put them under saws, and under harrows of iron, and under axes of iron, and made them pass through the brick kiln." What David did to the Ammonites

his successors in the monarchy might be conceived as doing to other enemies. This interpretation, which is confirmed by v.<sup>11</sup>, was softened by a later editor into a simile, whether by mistaking ו in for ו as, or intentionally, we may not be able to determine. V.<sup>10</sup> in the present text and Vrss. is two pentameters. We cannot regard it as a gloss because the entire conception of the verse is primitive, and not such as a glossator would insert. The loss of this verse would reduce the Str. by four lines, and so destroy the exact proportion of the two parts of the Ps. The difficulty originated by the condensations of a prosaic copyist, if not by mistakes of copying. The verb has fallen out of the clause: In the time (of the setting) of thy face (against them); and the noun has fallen out of the clause: and the fire (of His rage) will devour them. The poet emphasizes the angry face of the king by putting in parall. with it the divine activity: Yahweh will swallow them up in His anger. — 11. Their offspring || their seed]. The cruelty of ancient warfare, based on the principle of blood vengeance, which required children to avenge the blood of their parents, and descendants of a tribe to avenge the blood of their tribe, involved the apparent necessity of putting to death all male children in war in order to make such vengeance impossible. The poet simply shares these ancient conceptions, as expressed in the wars of extermination of the Canaanites at the conquest, Jos. 6<sup>21</sup> 10<sup>28-39</sup> 11<sup>14</sup>, and even in Pss. 9<sup>6</sup> 137<sup>9</sup>. — 12. Though they have extended unto thee || thought], completed action in the future, in a hypothetical clause. — evil || evil device], the plan, the purpose, the attitude of enemies in the future may be evil. Even if they have planned a campaign of injury, they shall not prevail], they cannot succeed any more in the future than they have in the past. They will be defeated with humiliation. — 13. For thou wilt make them turn their shoulder in flight]. The reason for their flight is given in the parallel clause which otherwise would be inconsistent with it. — With thy bowstrings]. The bow was one of the chief weapons of Israel in the royal period, especially of the king, v. 2 S. 1<sup>18.22</sup>, Ps. 45<sup>5-6</sup>. — thou wilt aim against their faces]. This deadly peril to the faces of the enemy, as the king and his army advanced against them, is, in the climax, in antith. to their backs as seen in retreat. — 14. The chorus appropriately concludes the festival by praising the strength || might of Yahweh, which has given the king the victory. They are impelled therefore not only to honour and magnify their king, but also to recognise that honour is due to Yahweh, and therefore they sing a glad choral: Be thou exalted, Yahweh.

I.

MY 'El, why dost Thou forsake me?
 Far from my salvation is my roaring.
 I cry in the daytime, but Thou answerest not;
 And in the night, there is no respite for me.
 But, O Thou (Yahweh), Holy One,
 Enthroned upon the praises of Israel;
 In Thee our fathers trusted,
 (In Thee) they trusted, and Thou didst deliver them,
 Unto Thee they cried and they escaped,
 In Thee they trusted and were not ashamed.
 BUT I am a worm, and no man,
 A reproach of mankind, and despised of peoples.
 All seeing me deride me;
 They let out (words), they shake their head, (Saying) "Roll on Yahweh, let Him deliver him;
 Let Him rescue him, seeing that He delights in him."
 But, O Thou who drewest me forth from the belly,
 (My trust) upon the breast of my mother;
 Upon Thee was I cast from the womb.
 From the belly of my mother Thou art my 'El.

II.

BE not far from me, for there is distress;
 Be near, for there is no helper.
 Many bulls encompass me,
 Mighty ones of Bashan encircle me.
 They open wide upon me their mouth,
 As a lion rending and roaring.
 As water I am poured out;
 Yea, all my bones are parted;
 My heart is become like wax.
 It is melted in the midst of mine inwards.
 MY strength is dried up like a potsherd,
 And my tongue is made to cleave to my jaws;
 And in the dust of death (they) lay me.
 (Many) dogs encompass me,
 An assembly of maltreaters enclose me;
 They dig into my hands and my feet.
 I count all my bones;
 While they look, they stare upon me.
 They divide my garments among them,
 And on my clothing they cast lots.

III.

OH Thou, put not afar off my (hind);
 Yahweh, O haste to my help;
 O deliver from the sword my life,
 From the power of the dog mine only one.

From the mouth of the lion save me,
 From the horns of the yore ox, mine afflicted one.
 Then will I declare Thy name to my brethren;
 In the midst of the congregation will I praise Thee.
 From Thee will be my praise in the great congregation;
 My vows will I pay in Thy presence. פ

Ps. 22 was in B; then in M and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). The latter designated the melody to which it was to be sung אילת השחר (v. Intr. § 34): a hind in the dawn (leaps). This is referred by some Rabbins to the dawn itself as a hind leaping in fresh vigour; by others to the hind hunted in the early morning (v. De., Psalmen<sup>4</sup> s. 225). The former would be a joyous melody not suited to the Ps.; the latter is most suitable, especially if there be a connection between the hind in the title and the אילת v.<sup>20</sup>. The Ps. is composed of five trimeter decastichs, each of two sections, hexastich and tetrastich v.<sup>2-6</sup>, 7-11, 12-15, 16-19, 20-23. 26. These are arranged in three parts, each characterised by the use of רחוק v.<sup>2</sup> 12. 20. The first two parts consist of Str. and Antistr., the third of a single Str. It is possible that the third also had an antistr. whose place has been taken up by the later additions to the Ps. The Ps. is a simple, graphic, and powerful description of a sufferer, trusting in God, though apparently forsaken by Him and left in the hands of cruel enemies, who have already brought him to the point of death. He yet continues his plaintive cry for deliverance, and concludes with a vow of thanksgiving in the congregation assembled in temple worship. The description is too varied for any individual experience. It heaps up similes and situations which are not always consistent, and which cannot be attached to any real historical event, either of a heroic sufferer, or of the pious part of the community, or of the nation itself. It is indeed an ideal situation such as that described in Lam. with reference to Jerusalem, and that of Is.<sup>2</sup> with reference to Mother Zion and the servant of Yahweh. In these writings many different situations are described in which individuals might be conceived as suffering, and are combined with national experiences, and the whole made into a mosaic of affliction to represent the woes of a pious community, abandoned by God to their cruel foes. The ideal of the Ps. is so nearly related to the suffering servant of Is.<sup>2</sup> that there must be dependence of the one upon the other: קרוש v.<sup>4</sup>, cf. Is. 40<sup>26</sup>; חולעה v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Is. 41<sup>14</sup>; בוי עם v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Is. 49<sup>7</sup> 53<sup>3</sup>; ולא איש v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Is. 52<sup>14</sup>; חרפת אדם v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Is. 51<sup>7</sup>. But the poet is also independent; for his use of animals, lions, bulls, dogs, for enemies, and probably also of the hind for himself is characteristic, and while not without example in Pss., is yet beyond anything else in the OT. The authors cannot be the same. The poets use, however, the same trimeter measure, and in the main the same ideals; and the historical situation which occasioned the poems is similar. If the suffering servant of Is.<sup>2</sup> is exilic, that of the Ps. is post-exilic, for, (1) the reference to the fathers v.<sup>5</sup> is in the style of post-ex. writers, (2) the existence of the temple is implied in the assembly for worship, v.<sup>23</sup>. 26; the payment of vows, v.<sup>26</sup>; and probably also the cherubic throne idealised in the כהלות of Israel, v.<sup>4</sup>, which in itself seems to imply the temple hymns. But we cannot go too far from the exile because, (1) Ps. 71<sup>5-6</sup> cites from v.<sup>10-11</sup>. (2) The use of אח v.<sup>23</sup> for the brethren of the קהל, cf. 133<sup>1</sup>, Pr. 6<sup>19</sup>, implies a time when the people were compacted by persecution into a brotherhood. (3) The kingdom or nation no longer exists. The persecutors are foreign nations, עיר מרעים v.<sup>17</sup>, an organised body, over against the קהל of the people of God. They are compared to bulls v.<sup>13. 22</sup>, lions v.<sup>14. 22</sup>, and yet also to dogs v.<sup>17. 21</sup>; thus implying a number of enemies, and enemies of different characteristics. This is the situation of the infant community of the restoration, when they were exposed to the cruel and treacherous attacks of the minor nations as described in many Pss. of the period (v. Pss. 9-10 and Ne.). There is, in the fifth Str., the same kind of a distinction between the poet and the sufferer that we find also in Is. 53. This is due to the fact that the poet is not speaking altogether for himself, but for the pious community as the servant of God. And so he speaks of my hind || mine only one || mine afflicted one, as of my help, my life, and me, v.<sup>20-22</sup>. The sufferer is thus the ideal community, and the sufferings are idealised in a mosaic of varied experiences. The Ps. received additions in order to give it a wider outlook: (1) the fact that the sufferer was heard and answered, and that the entire seed of Jacob united in the praise of Yahweh in sacrificial meals, is stated in v.<sup>24-25. 27</sup>. In this section v.<sup>27</sup> in its use of ענינים, at the sacrificial meals at the temple, particularly in public praise, and the use of the phrase יהי לבבכם for ונשכם, Is. 55<sup>3</sup>, implies a later period of composition. The vbs. in v.<sup>27</sup> have been changed from original imvs., as v.<sup>24</sup>, into 3 pl. in accordance with the subsequent pentameter. This was made easier by the separation of v.<sup>27</sup> from v.<sup>24. 25</sup> by v.<sup>26</sup>. (2) The world-wide significance of this deliverance is brought out in a pentameter heptastich. This addition was probably earlier than the other, and is similar to the combination of the trimeter and pentameter poems in Is.<sup>2</sup> (v. Br.<sup>MP 339</sup>). This heptastich also has features of resemblance to the last parts of Is.<sup>3</sup>, especially in the conversion of the nations and their participation in the worship of Yahweh in sacrificial meals in Jerusalem, v.<sup>28-30</sup>, cf. Is. 66<sup>19-23</sup>. The conception of Yahweh as the universal king, v.<sup>29</sup>, is in accordance with that of the royal group of Pss. 93, 95-100. For יבאו, יורו, נולר, v.<sup>31-32</sup>; cf. יורו אחרון, עם נברא, 102<sup>19</sup>. All this indicates a period in which the minor persecuting nations have passed out of view, and the greater and more distant nations, who are not persecutors, but friendly, have come into the range of thought as hopeful converts to the God of Israel. This addition gave the earlier Ps. a wider outlook and made the deliverance of the sufferer of world-wide importance. The Ps. has been regarded by the Church from the most ancient times as the great Passion Ps., and it is the proper Ps. for Good Friday. This was due: (1) to the use of v.<sup>2</sup> by Jesus Himself when dying on the cross, Mt. 27<sup>46</sup> Mk. 15<sup>34</sup>; and the remarkable resemblance in the situation of Jesus at that time to the situation described in the Ps.; (2) the casting lots for His garments, v.<sup>19</sup>, Mk. 15<sup>24</sup> Jn. 19<sup>23-24</sup>; (3) the parching thirst, v.<sup>16</sup>, Jn. 19<sup>28-29</sup>;

(4) the agony of the stretched bones on the cross, v.<sup>16</sup>, and the digging into the hands and feet by the nailing to the cross, v.<sup>17</sup>; (5) the cruel gazing on His sufferings, v.<sup>18</sup>, Mt. 27<sup>36-44</sup>; (6) the mocking of His enemies in the words of the Ps., v.<sup>9</sup>, cf. Mt. 27<sup>43</sup> Lk. 23<sup>35</sup>. It seems to the Christian that the psalmist indeed gives a more vivid description of the sufferings of Christ on the cross than the authors of the Gospels. Has the psalmist's description of the suffering servant of Yahweh an accidental coincidence with the sufferings of Christ, or is the coincidence due to prophetic anticipation? We cannot think of direct prophecy. The reference to a historical situation is unmistakable. But inasmuch as the poet, like the author of the conception of the suffering servant of Is.<sup>2</sup>, idealises the sufferings of Israel, and gives his sufferer a mediatorial relation to the nations, and does this in order to hold up to the pious a comforting conception of a divine purpose in their sufferings, we may suppose that this ideal was designed to prepare the minds of the people of God for the ultimate realisation of that purpose of redemption in a sufferer who first summed up in his historical experiences this ideal of suffering. In this sense the Ps. is Messianic (v. Br.<sup>MP 322 sq.</sup>).

Pt. I., Str. I. is composed of a trimeter tetrastich antith. to a trimeter hexastich. In the tetrastich, the experience of the sufferer is described, as the reverse of the experience of the fathers. — 2-3. My 'El], the ancient poetic name of God, intensified by repetition by a later editor, but at the expense of the measure. — why dost Thou forsake me], expostulation with God for a situation which to the sufferer seems inexplicable, cf. Is. 49<sup>14</sup>. EV<sup>8</sup>. continue the question through the next line, so Dr., Kirk.; but it makes a difficult construction in Hebrew. The ancient Vrss. regard the second line as the beginning of the description of suffering, and this is easier and more natural. It begins a syntristich as the basis of the expostulation. — Far from my salvation]. There is an awful gap and appalling distance between the agony and the salvation from it. It is this long distance in time, this prolonged postponement of salvation, which the psalmist cannot understand. — is my roaring], the loud continued outcry of intense suffering, lengthened by a prosaic copyist at the expense of the measure, and weakened into "words of my roaring." || I cry in the daytime, which passes over into, and in the night, all day and all night long. A later editor inserted "O my God," to emphasize the appeal to God, but at the expense of the measure. — Thou answerest not]. God is silent in this long interval. —

— there is no respite for me]. His agony continues without interruption, his cry for help has no pause. — 4-6. The expostulation is strengthened by a reference to the past experience of the fathers which was so different; an appeal to Yahweh in a syn. couplet, and a statement of the experience of the fathers in a syn. tetra-stich. — O Thou (Yahweh), Holy One], an exclamation, not a statement of fact, "Thou art holy," which is tame and unpoetical, and not in accord with the state of mind of the sufferer. The divine name "Yahweh" is necessary to the measure; it was omitted by an unpoetic copyist. The term "Holy One" is characteristic of Isaiah, and represents God in His majestic aloofness, a conception peculiarly appropriate here; rather than in accordance with later ideas, God as the ethically complete and perfect Being. — Enthroned upon the praises of Israel], a poetical spiritualisation of the more physical idea that He was enthroned upon the cherubim in the Holy of Holies of the temple, cf. Ps. 80<sup>2</sup>. Thither the praises of Israel were directed in temple worship; thither they were conceived as entering, with the clouds of incense from the altar of incense, which stood in front of this most sacred place. This incense, whose very idea is to give efficacy to prayer and praise, sweetens them and makes them acceptable to Yahweh, goes up and envelopes the cherubic throne so that the throne of Yahweh is conceived as sustained by them. ℟̄, ℣, ℑ give a simpler text, "O Thou enthroned in the sanctuary, the praise of Israel," which is tempting, and followed by Genebr. and R. C. scholars generally; but not by modern Protestants, who follow Calv. in the interpretation given above. Aug., Euthymius, al., interpret the holy as of holy persons. Horsley follows ℟̄ except that he thinks of the abstract "holiness" instead of holy place. PBV. "And Thou continuest holy; O Thou worship of Israel," is an intermediate rendering, which though advocated by the older English scholars such as Ham., Jebb, "is based on an untenable construction of the words," Kirk. — In Thee], emphatic in position, repeated in the second line, though omitted in ℣ by a copyist's mistake at the expense of the measure; so also in the fourth line, with the syn. unto Thee], required by its verb in the third line. — our fathers], the common subject of the verbs of the four lines, and so emphasized over against their suffering descendants. — trusted ], repeated for emphasis in the second and fourth lines, with the intervening cried, of the third line, so plainly expressed, in view of the present situation. The fathers were not forsaken, as is their son. Thou didst deliver them || they escaped || they were not ashamed. This is the climax; the shame of his present position was in its being so much the reverse of theirs.

Str. II. is composed of a hexastich, describing his miserable situation, and a tetrastich of expostulation, based on his own previous experience. — 7. But I am a worm, and no man ], taking up the sense of shame, expressed in the last vb. of the previous str. He has lost his manhood and is become a miserable worm. — a reproach of mankind ], an object of reproach to mankind in general. — despised of peoples ], the nations by whom he was surrounded. Such is also the description of the servant of Yahweh in Is.<sup>2</sup>: “thou worm Jacob” 41<sup>14</sup>, “whom man despiseth,” “despised of person,” “abhorred of the nation” 49<sup>7</sup>, “the reproach of men” 51<sup>7</sup>, “so disfigured more than man was his appearance and his form than the sons of men” 52<sup>14</sup>, “despised, and forsaken of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief” 53<sup>3</sup> (v. Br.<sup>MP 349-357</sup>). — 8. All seeing me ]. These same nations, looking upon the affliction of the people of God, have no compassion, but deride in word and gesture; they let out (words), so essentially Ḳ, words that they would not venture to speak to a self-respecting people able to vindicate themselves; they do not restrain themselves, but give full vent to their maliciousness. This seems more appropriate to the use of the Hebrew term, and more in accordance with their words given in v.<sup>9</sup>, than the usual rendering, “shoot out the lip” EV<sup>a</sup>, explaining the original as an insulting gesture, although apparently sustained by similar expressions 35<sup>21</sup> Jb. 16<sup>10</sup>. This interpretation was due to the insertion of the word “with the lip” in the text, with the same motive, at the expense of the measure. But this is difficult to reconcile with the other uses of the Hebrew word, or with any known gesture of that time. — they shake their head ]. This is the gesture of derision accompanying their words. The same gesture appears in those who mocked the crucified Jesus. “And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying” Mt. 27<sup>39</sup>. — 9. Roll on Yahweh ], so H imv. ; “commit thyself” RV. ; “cast thyself” JPSV. ; which is better than ancient Vrss., which render as pf., so “He trusted” PBV., AV. The enemies say this in derision. The burden, to be rolled off on Yahweh, for Him to bear for His people, was the agony and reproach. — Seeing that He delights in him]. The people were well known to be trusting in Yahweh, their God, and as therefore presumably acceptable to Him, and delighted in by Him, cf. Wisd. 2<sup>16sq.</sup> The derision of suffering Israel is here, as ever, accompanied with the derision of Yahweh their God by the hostile nations. — 10. But, O Thou], emphatic repetition of personal address to Yahweh in antithesis to But I v.<sup>7</sup> ; better than the usual interpretation stating a fact, “Thou art He.” This syn. tetrastich emphasises the previous experience, that Yahweh had not only taken an active part at the birth and during the infancy of the nation, but had continued to be their God without ceasing until the present, cf. Is. 46<sup>34</sup>. — 11. My’El], at the close of this Str. and at the beginning of the Ps., incloses the entire first part within this most comprehensive relation.

Pt. II., Str. III. begins with a description of the external situation in three couplets, and concludes with the effect upon the person himself in two couplets. — 12. Be not far from me], renewing v.<sup>26</sup>, and renewed in v.<sup>20a</sup> || Be near], the negative transformed into a positive, more probable than the present text, which makes “near,” an adj. predicate of distress, at the expense of the measure and parallelism. — for there is distress || for there is no (other) helper], the reason for the plaintive appeal to God. — 13. Many bulls], intensified in mighty ones of Bashan]. Bashan was famed for its rich pastures, fat cattle, and powerful and fierce bulls. The enemies are compared to them, cf. Am. 4<sup>1</sup>. They encompass || encircle], enclose and shut in on every side with their horns, cf. v.<sup>22</sup>, so that there is no escape, no one within that enclosure to help. — 14. Leaving the bulls and reverting to the enemies: they open wide upon me their mouth], in order to devour, swallow up. This statement is appropriate not to bulls, but to beasts of prey, and so as a lion rending and roaring], opening the mouth to roar as well as to devour. Cruel enemies are frequently compared to lions, see v.<sup>22</sup> 7<sup>3</sup> 10<sup>9</sup> 17<sup>12</sup>. — 15. As water I am poured out], so Jos. 7<sup>5</sup>, “the hearts of the people melted and became as water." — all my bones are parted], each one distinct in pain, all aching and seeming as if they had broken apart; both graphic descriptions of feverish anxiety. The reference to the heart is renewed and enlarged as the principal thing. It melts as if it were wax within him, cf. 68<sup>3</sup>.

Str. IV. The antistr. is composed of two tristichs and two couplets. — 16. The agony of the previous tetrastich is continued, the result of the feverish anxiety is still further described. — My strength is dried up], is sapped; the blood is dried up and the body is become brittle and breakable, like a potsherd, a piece of pottery. — My tongue is made to cleave to my jaws]. By intense thirst, the tongue adheres to the roof of the mouth so that he cannot use it, cf. Jn. 19<sup>28</sup>. — In the dust of death], a phrase especially appropriate not only to the previous context, the dry, brittle potsherd, but also because it involves the idea of the formation of the original man out of dust, as a potter makes his pottery, Gn. 2<sup>7</sup>, and also the conception of death as a return of the body to the dust, Gn. 3<sup>19</sup>. This is probably the reason why the 2 pers. sg. is given in ℋ, "Thou layest me," referring to God as the primary agent, instead of the simpler and more natural 3 pl. referring to the enemies, cf. v.<sup>13</sup>. — they lay me]. The enemies have been active against the sufferer, while his God, through it all, has remained afar off. — 17. (Many) dogs], so ℄, ℥, PBV. || "many bulls" v.<sup>13</sup> more suited to parallel. "For dogs," ℋ, AV., RV. The enemies are now compared to the more ignoble animals. Dogs in the OT. are the fierce prowlers of the night and scavengers of the streets, v. 2 K. 9<sup>35-36</sup> Pss. 59<sup>7.15</sup> 68<sup>24</sup> Je. 15<sup>3</sup>. They come in a pack, and so are called an assembly of maltreaters], cf. 86<sup>14</sup>, greedy to seize, maul, and in every way maltreat their victim. — They dig into], the dogs with their teeth. — my hands and my feet]. The extremities are first gnawed by the dogs. This is the translation best sustained by the Vrss. and the context. EV<sup>a</sup>. "pierce" is not justified by the Hebrew word, and was due to a desire for a specific reference to the crucifixion. ℋ "as a lion," used a word for lion not found elsewhere in ψ for the usual word given above v.<sup>14</sup>, and not suited to the previous mention of dogs, or of hands and feet. The sufferer here v.<sup>16a</sup> is lying in the dust in extreme peril of death, and his enemies have already begun to devour him. — 18. I count all my bones], renewing v.<sup>15b</sup>. Each one stands out with its own special ache. — While they look || they stare], a circumstantial clause. While the enemies are looking with intense eagerness, staring greedily upon him, he is aching all over from head to foot, in all his framework of bones. The usual rendering, as an independent and emphatic clause, makes two lines in this verse, in no proper relation of parallelism, and justifies in a measure the proposal of some moderns to transfer v.<sup>18a</sup> to the beginning of the Str. — 19. They divide || cast lots], returning from the dogs to the enemies they represent, as above v.<sup>16c</sup>. They have stripped him of garments || clothing, and they divide these as their spoil in the usual way by lots.

Str. V. is composed of a hexastich of petition and a tetrastich of vows. — 20–22. The Str. begins with a plea similar to that of v.<sup>12</sup>. — O Thou, put not far off], as ℣, required by the object and to be preferred to ℣ “be not far from.” Yahweh has been transposed with my hind, because of a misconception of the meaning of the Hebrew word, which is usually interpreted after ℣ as “my help” or “succour,” by EV<sup>s</sup>. and most after ℣ as “my strength.” But really it is the same word as that in the title translated by ℣ as “help,” but pointed by ℣ as “hind.” Indeed the suffix, in accordance with Hebrew usage, which regards the soul as well as the body as resting on a common substratum, the person himself, (v. 42<sup>5.7</sup> 131<sup>2</sup>) objectifies the soul as the seat of his suffering. It is first compared to a hind, hunted until its strength fails and it pants, ready to perish, cf. 42<sup>2</sup>; just as in the parallel v.<sup>21a</sup> my life, v.<sup>21b</sup> mine only one (cf. 35<sup>17</sup>), as his unique priceless possession, and again in v.<sup>22b</sup> after ℣, mine afflicted one. Here also later copyists, not understanding the original usage, interpret it in MT. as vb. pf. 2 m. “Thou hast answered me,” making a very abrupt conclusion to the petition, by a single word of divine response, and making it difficult to explain the phrase from the horns of the yore ox, which occasions great difference of opinion among interpreters. In fact the six lines all rhyme in ī. Each couplet has its verb. — O haste to my help], a phrase frequent in Pss. of lamentation || deliver || save. The four kinds of enemies of the previous Str. appear also in this climax of petition: the sword of the enemies themselves, the dog, the lion, the yore ox. The latter is an intensification of the bulls of Bashan, and refers to that large, fierce bull of ancient times which has now become extinct. — 23, 26. The petition is sustained by a vow in four lines: I will declare Thy name], make it known as a saving name, praise || pay vows], make votive offerings. The declaration is to be to my brethren], those associated in the community of God's people. See Heb. 2<sup>12</sup>, where these words are put in the mouth of Christ. — the great congregation] assembled for worship in the temple. — in Thy presence], before the sacred place where Yahweh dwelt, in the most Holy Place of the temple. The phrase, From Thee] is probably to be interpreted as the source of the deliverance, and therefore of the praise for it. This last couplet, which is parallel to the previous couplet, has been separated by the insertion of a gloss v.<sup>24-25</sup> which changes the reference to God to the 3d pers., and so makes awkward changes to and from 2d to 3d pers., and also destroys the organisation of the Str. The original Ps. comes to an appropriate close here with a vow of public recognition and thankoffering in the temple for the deliverance, the prayer for which has been the theme of the Ps.

24-25. This piece is composed of two syn. trimeter triplets. It is a call upon the congregation to praise Yahweh because of His deliverance of the afflicted people. It is a generalisation of the situation by a later editor.

Ye that fear Yahweh praise Him,
 All the seed of Jacob glorify Him,
 All the seed of Israel stand in awe of Him;
 For He hath not abhorred to answer the afflicted,
 And He hath not hid His face,
 But when he cried unto Him He heard.

24. Ye that fear Yahweh], those that have the religion of Yahweh and are in the habit of doing reverence to Him. — All the seed of Jacob || seed of Israel], phrases for the people Is. 45<sup>19, 25</sup> Je. 31<sup>36, 37</sup> 33<sup>26</sup>. — praise || glorify || stand in awe], usual phrases of public worship. — 25. For He hath not abhorred]. This strong and unusual term, in this connection, received a milder variant in the margin, "He hath not despised," which subsequently came into the text by conflation and so destroyed the measure. The uncommon expression is weakened in the following line to the usual one, hath not hid His face, and the ordinary one, heard. — to answer the afflicted]. This seems to be the best interpretation of the unpunctuated text, taking the first word as infin. construct of the vb. “answer” after א. But ה points it as abstract noun from the stem meaning affliction, which gives us the tautological “affliction of the afflicted,” AV., RV., modestiam, so Aq. takes it as another abstract noun, PBV. “low estate,” which gives a better sense, but is not suited to the context.

27. This tristich resembles in form the previous two, v. <sup>24-25</sup>, of which it was originally a continuation; but it changes from 2d to 3d pl., and in this respect agrees with subsequent context.

The afflicted will eat and be satisfied;
Those who seek Him will praise Yahweh,
Saying, “Let your heart live forever.”

The afflicted], pl. for the sg. v. <sup>25a</sup>. — will eat and be satisfied], partake of the thankofferings in the temple, as Calv., Ges., De W., Hi.; and not to be understood in a merely spiritual sense, as Ew., De., or in the still more general sense of refreshment by divine blessing Hu., cf. 23<sup>5</sup>. — Those who seek Him] are worshippers in general; they praise Yahweh. — Let your heart live forever]. Owing to the change of person this can only be words of those who seek Yahweh, addressed to the afflicted; and therefore congratulatory, and wishing perpetual health and prosperity to them, as an antidote to their previous affliction. The heart stands here for the man himself, in late usage, confounding לב with נפש.

28-32. This is a pentameter heptastich, a later addition to the Ps., composed of a triplet and two couplets.

All the ends of the earth will remember, and they will turn unto Yahweh,
And all the families of the nations will worship before Him;
For unto Yahweh belongs the kingdom, and He rules over the nations.
Have all the fat ones of earth eaten and worshipped,
Then will bow down all about to descend to the dust, and he who doth not keep himself alive.
A seed will serve Him. It will be told to a generation to come;
And they will declare His righteousness to a people to be born, that He hath done (it).

28. All the ends of the earth], as 2<sup>8</sup> 67<sup>8</sup> 72<sup>8</sup> Is. 45<sup>22</sup> 52<sup>10</sup>, to comprehend the entire earth. — all the families of the nations], cf.

Ps. 96<sup>7</sup>: all the families or clans into which the nations may be subdivided, with a probable reference to the patriarchal blessings, Gn. 12<sup>3</sup> 28<sup>14</sup>. — will remember], call to mind their obligations to Yahweh, whom they have forgotten in going after other gods, and so, will turn, in repentance for previous neglect, in entire change of attitude, unto Yahweh, so that Yahweh will be recognised as the universal God. — and worship before Him], unite in the prescribed worship in His temple. H “before Thee” is certainly an error of a copyist. G has the correct text. — 29. For unto Yahweh belongs the kingdom]. The reason for the conversion of the nations is that they all are in His kingdom, subject to His dominion. He rules over the nations as the universal king. — 30. Two classes of worshippers are brought into sharp antithesis: all the fat ones of earth], the rich, prosperous, powerful nations, and all about to descend to the dust], those decaying, dying, who are going down to the Pit 28<sup>1</sup> 30<sup>4,10</sup> 88<sup>5</sup> 143<sup>7</sup>, to Sheol 55<sup>16</sup>, an expression used frequently of dying nations, Is. 14<sup>15</sup> Ez. 26<sup>20</sup> 32<sup>18-30</sup>. — He who doth not keep himself alive], the nation unable to protect its life against more powerful neighbours seeking to destroy it. The Vrss. and interpreters have many suggestions here, but none of them are so simple as H, which gives an explanatory complement to the previous clause. This does not refer to the nations in Sheol after death, in contrast with those still alive on earth, for this would leave us with only the rich nations worshipping Yahweh on earth. The context demands poor, feeble nations, and that is admirably expressed in the terms above where they are represented as dying. The ptc. represents rather the process than the result. The rich and prosperous come first, in a clause which is conditional in form. Have they eaten and worshipped], taken part in the sacrificial meals of the temple, and worshipped in connection with these sacrifices; then will bow down], in the prostration of worship, the other class also, the poor and perishing nations, and so the worship of Yahweh will be universal. The universality of worship having been stated as to its comprehending all nations and classes, it is now represented in temporal forms. — 31. A seed will serve Him], a seed descending from the nations mentioned above, their next generation. — It will be told to a generation to come], either the seed previously mentioned, or more probably a generation to come after them, a second generation. The measure and parallelism requires the exclusion of "of the Lord" as a gloss, and the attachment of "come" to this line with Ⲅ, rather than to the next with ⲕ. — 32. And they will declare His righteousness], His vindication of His suffering servant, His salvation of His people, in accordance with the usual meaning of righteousness in  $\psi$  and Is.<sup>2.3</sup>. — to a people to be born], a people in the distant future, beyond the second generation, after this universal conversion of the nations; a people not yet born, but ultimately to be born, probably conceived as summing up all the nations in itself, in accordance with concept, cf. Ps. 87, where one after another is born in Zion and all inscribed as citizens. — That He hath done (it)], the salvation He has wrought; in the full sense of this universal conversion, and worship of Yahweh in Jerusalem. This ideal is a Messianic ideal, as connected with a sufferer whose suffering is mediatorial, and whose salvation mediates universal salvation.

2-3. [אֱלֹהֵי אֲלִי לְמַה עֹוֹבְרָנִי. Ⲅ has  $\delta\theta e\delta s\ \delta\theta e\delta s\ \mu o\nu\ \pi\rho\delta\sigma\chi e s\ \mu o i = \text{הַיְשִׁיבָה לִי}$ , v. v.<sup>20</sup>. Che. and Du. think that ⲕ has been shortened and rd.  $\text{הַקְשִׁיבָה לִי}$ ; but Ⲅ gives the clue to the insertion, if one is thought necessary. Toy thinks Ⲅ rd. second אֱלִי as a prep., My God unto me (attend), so Hare  $\text{הָאֵל אֲלִי}$ . This would make two trimeter lines instead of one in first half of v. —  $\text{חִישְׁוּעָתִי}$  Hi., Dy., Gr., Ehr. rd.  $\text{מִשְׁוּעָתִי}$ . —  $\text{דְּבָרֵי שְׁגָאָתִי}$  Ⲅ has  $\text{o}\iota\ \lambda\acute{o}\gamma o i\ \tau\acute{o}\nu\ \pi\alpha\rho\alpha\pi\tau\omega\mu\acute{\alpha}\tau\omega\nu\ \mu o u = \text{דְּבָרֵי שְׁגָאָתִי}$  affairs of my errors, so Ⲯ, cf. 19<sup>13</sup>. —  $\text{אֱלֹהֵי}$  is a gloss. It certainly does not go with v.<sup>8</sup>. V.<sup>2a</sup> is given in NT. in:

- Mt. 27<sup>46</sup> {  $\epsilon\lambda\omega\iota\ \epsilon\lambda\omega\iota\ \lambda\epsilon\mu\acute{\alpha}\ \sigma\alpha\beta\alpha\chi\theta\alpha\nu\epsilon\iota$ ;
                   {  $= \text{Θεέ μου Θεέ μου, ἵνα τί με ἐγκατέλιπες}$ ; (as Ⲅ).
 Mk. 15<sup>34</sup> {  $\epsilon\lambda\omega\iota\ \epsilon\lambda\omega\iota\ \lambda\alpha\mu\acute{\alpha}\ \sigma\alpha\beta\alpha\chi\theta\alpha\nu\epsilon\iota$ ;
                   {  $= \delta\ \Theta\epsilon\delta s\ \mu o\nu\ [\delta\ \Theta\epsilon\delta s\ \mu o\nu]$ ,  $\epsilon\iota s\ \tau\acute{i}\ \epsilon\gamma\kappa\alpha\tau\epsilon\lambda\iota\pi\acute{\epsilon}s\ \mu\epsilon$ ;

$\text{Ⲯ}$  אֱלִי אֲלִי מִשּׁוּל מַה שְׁבָרָתִי. Cod. D for Mt. and Mk. rds.:  $\eta\lambda\epsilon\iota\ \lambda\alpha\mu\acute{\alpha}\ \zeta\alpha\phi\theta\alpha\nu\epsilon\iota$ , which, according to Resch, implies a Heb. original  $\text{שְׁבַר}$ ; for Aram.  $\text{שְׁבַר}$ . If Ps. is a trimeter, it is not difficult to explain the glosses, which destroy the measure. It was natural that אֱלִי should be repeated for greater emphasis. The  $\text{רוּחַ}$  is sustained by its use in v.<sup>12.20</sup>; therefore we must regard דְּבָרֵי as an unnecessary addition. אֱלֹהֵי is the usual insertion of the divine name. Therefore read:

אֱלִי לְמַה עֹוֹבְרָנִי
 רוּחַ מִשְׁוּעָתִי שְׁגָאָתִי אֲמָרָא יוֹמָם וּלְאַחֲרָתָא

πρὸς δὲ of Ⓢ after κεκράξομαι is a prosaic addition. שׁוֹרֵר is taken by AV. as || יְשׁוּעָה and so the force of לַמָּה is retained. It is better to regard the l. as statement of fact upon which the anxious plea is based: so Ⓢ, Ⓜ, Ⓜ, Ⓜ, Ⓜ, Ⓜ, Quinta and Sexta, also Horsley, Bā., al. — † שׁוֹרֵר n.f. roaring in agony, of person Ps. 22<sup>2</sup> 32<sup>3</sup>, pl. Gr. inserts הַכְרוֹבוֹיִם after יֵשֶׁב and נִרְאָה before חֲהֵלוֹת. But this is unnecessary. קָדִישׁ is a favourite term for God in Is. 1. 2. 3 (v. 16<sup>3</sup>), cf. [וְאַתָּה] emph. introducing a new section, cf. v. 1<sup>7a</sup>. — [אֶיִלִּיתִי] a. l. 6 τὴν βοήθειάν μου, obj. of μὴ μακρύνης. 7 fortitudo mea connecting with לעֲזֹרָתִי as 12. The word is abstr. in form, but improb. in itself and difficult to explain, whether from אֵיל or אֵיל. This v. is used in essentially the same terms:

38 <sup>22, 23</sup>	אֱלֹהֵי אֵל תִּרְחַק מִמֶּנִּי חוֹשָׁה לְעֹזְרִתִּי אֲדֹנִי
40 <sup>14</sup> = 70 <sup>2</sup>	יִהְיֶה לְעֹזְרִתִּי חוֹשָׁה
71 <sup>12</sup>	אֱלֹהִים אֵל תִּרְחַק מִמֶּנִּי אֱלֹהֵי לְעֹזְרִתִּי חוֹשָׁה

In 38<sup>28</sup> אֲדֹנִי stands for an original יִהְיֶה; therefore the last clause has always יהוה except in 71<sup>12</sup> 72, which has changed an original יהוה in the first clause to אֱלֹהִים. The יהוה in the original of the first clause here would sufficiently account for the אֱלֹהֵי in the second. Accordingly Gr. thinks the original here was אֱלֹהֵי אֵל compressed into אֱלֹהֵי. It is noteworthy that 6 interprets אֵילִית as ὑπὲρ τῆς ἀντιλήψεως, the same word that it uses for עֲזָרָתִי here. This shows that in the original text the two words were regarded as syn., and that the ו of v. 20 is fully written ו of interpretation. If the original was אֱלֹהֵי, we might in both cases rd. אֱלֹהֵי and think of the נֶפֶשׁ as the אֱלֹהֵי in accordance with 42<sup>2</sup>. In this case it goes with l. 1 || יִחְדְּקֵנִי of v. 21<sup>5</sup>, and we would have a rhyme in חֶ for each l. of this Str. if עֲזָרָתִי also is transposed to the end of l. יהוה would then go with לְעֹזְרִתִּי חוֹשָׁה as in the other similar passages. We must then follow 6 and make the vb. PSALM XXIII., 3 STRS. 4<sup>3</sup>, 4<sup>4</sup>, 4<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 23 is a guest psalm. It expresses calm confidence in Yahweh: (1) as shepherd, providing His sheep with plentiful pasture and water (v. 1-3a); (2) as guide, conducting His companion safely in right paths through a gloomy ravine (v. 3b-4); (3) as host, anointing His guest for the banquet and granting him perpetual hospitality (v. 5-6).

YAHWEH is my shepherd, I have no want.
In grassy pastures He maketh me lie down;
Unto refreshing waters He leadeth me;
He restoreth (forever) my soul.

HE guideth me in right tracks for His name's sake.
Yea, when I walk in a gloomy ravine,
I fear no evil, for Thou art with me;
Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me.

THOU spreadest before me a table in the presence of mine adversaries.
Hast Thou anointed my head with oil; my cup is exhilarating.
Surely goodness and kindness pursue me all the days of my life;
And I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh for length of days.

Ps. 23 was in D and ℳ (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). No other statement appears in the title. Its structure is artistic. The three Strs. are tetrastichs, with parallel themes: shepherd v. 1-3a, guide v. 3b-4, host v. 5-6. It is a mistake to suppose that the theme of the shepherd extends into the 2d Str. While it is true that the shepherd may conduct his flocks through the gloomy wadys safely, yet there is nothing in any terms used to suggest a flock. The flock is conducted into safety in Str. I. Why take the flock back to a gloomy wady in Str. II.? The new and parallel figure of the guide takes the people to the same safety as that to which the shepherd had taken his sheep already in Str. I. We then have three syn. Strs., each with its own simple and beautiful imagery to set forth the central idea of the Ps. The Strs. have the unusual feature that the measure changes from a trimeter in the first Str. to a tetrameter in the second, and a pentameter in the third. This is an advance towards a climax of joyous faith in Yahweh. The language and syntax of the Ps. and all its ideals are early. There is not the slightest trace of anything that is post-deuteronomic. The historical circumstances of the poet must have been peaceful and prosperous. We cannot go down so late as the prosperous times of the Greek period, or the late Persian period. We cannot think of the Exile, or early Restoration, for the literature of those times is full of trial and sorrow. Absence from the temple is indicated by ~~the~~, but that is due to a textual error. The temple was the habitual resort of the poet. He was a guest there. We cannot, therefore, think of the Exile, or of the time of David, the traditional author of the Ps. That he was a shepherd before he became king affords no evidence, for the conception of Yahweh as shepherd is as early as the story of Jacob, Gn. 48<sup>16</sup> 49<sup>24</sup>, is used in Mi. 7<sup>14</sup> Zc. 11<sup>4</sup> of the early prophets, Is. 40<sup>11</sup> 63<sup>11</sup>, and especially in ~~A~~ 74<sup>1</sup> 78<sup>52</sup> 79<sup>13</sup> 80<sup>1</sup>, and in the royal Pss. 95<sup>7</sup> 100<sup>3</sup>, and also in the NT. Lk. 15<sup>3-7</sup> Jn. 10<sup>1-16</sup>. In fact, the three figures, shepherd, guide, host, are all simple, natural, and characteristic of the life in Jerusalem and its vicinity at any period in Biblical history. A short walk from Jerusalem at any time would lead to gloomy wadys and the pastures of shepherds. We cannot think of the period of conflict with the Assyrians and Babylonians. We must, therefore, go back to an earlier and simpler period, the days of the early monarchy, not earlier than Solomon, or later than Jehoshaphat.

Str. I. is a trimeter tetrastich expressing the confidence and joy of the sheep in the shepherd.—1. Yahweh is my shepherd], as frequently in OT., a conception which doubtless originated in the pastoral life of the early Israelites, especially that of the ancestor Jacob, which was also the employment of David when a youth, and which was ever one of the chief occupations of the inhabitants of Bethlehem; cf. 1 S. 16<sup>11</sup> Lk. 2<sup>8</sup>. Yahweh was conceived as taking the same patient, unwearying care of His people as the shepherd of his flock.—I have no want], because the shepherd has provided for all wants. The imperf. is not future, but a present of habitual experience.—2. In grassy pastures], those where the tender grass, the young herbage, was abundant.—makes me lie down], in the midst of plenty, so that it may be enjoyed with ease and comfort.—Unto refreshing waters], not “beside,” “along side of,” AV., RV., thinking of a stream, which is not easy to find in the grazing lands of Palestine except in the rainy season; but “unto,” thinking of the wells, or fountains, from which flocks are usually watered, Gn. 29<sup>10-11</sup> Ex. 2<sup>16-21</sup> (v. Tristram, Natural History of the Bible, 142). These waters are not merely drinking water, but choice water; not only satisfying thirst, but giving refreshment, implying the same kind of rich provision for the sheep as the grassy pastures.—He leadeth me]. The shepherd, in the East, leads his flock, and they follow him. He does not drive them as in the West, v. Jn. 10<sup>4-5</sup> (Thomson, The Land and the Book, 202 sq.).—3 a. He restoreth (forever) my soul]. By the rich provision for eating and drinking, He revives, strengthens, restores to full activity and enjoyment; passing over from the figure of the sheep to the man himself. The soul is here, as usually in Hebrew, the seat of the appetites and desires. The original text has but two tones, when three are needed for measure. It has also an unusual verbal form for the usual one in this phrase. This was probably due to a copyist's error in condensing two similar words, the infin. absolute, expressing temporal intensity, "for ever," after its verb, and the usual Hiph. imperf. form.

Str. II. is a progressive tetrameter tetrastich with a cæsura in each line. The guide takes the place of the shepherd in a parallel conception.—3 b. He guideth me], on a journey, in which it is easy to stray from the right path. A guide was needed. Yahweh is the guide.—in right tracks], those that lead directly and safely to the place of destination, as distinguished from wrong tracks that would lead astray. The moral and religious reference is involved in the whole figure, and is not to be gained by departing from it in the rendering "righteousness" of EV<sup>s</sup>., after the ancient Vrss.—For His name's sake]. The divine name, or honour is involved in guiding rightly.—4. Yea, when I walk in a gloomy ravine]. The hill country of Judah is broken up by narrow and precipitous ravines, or wadys, difficult to descend and ascend, dark, gloomy, and abounding in caves, the abode of wild beasts and robbers (v. 1 S. 24). To pass through these wadys was still more difficult than to find the right path over the hills. The desire to depart from the figure of speech too soon is probably responsible for the pointing of ה, so as to get "death shade," "shadow of death," as if it implied the peril of death; which interpretation, through the EV<sup>s</sup>. and Bunyan's use of it in his Pilgrim's Progress, has become well nigh universal in English Literature until recent times.—I fear no evil], harm, or injury of any kind, either from falling or going astray, or from wild beasts, or robbers.—for Thou art with me]. The companionship of his trusty guide removes all fear.—Thy rod and Thy staff]. The rod for giving blows in defence, the staff for support in walking. The reference to the shepherd's crook, though justified by an occasional use of the word translated "rod," has no usage to justify it in connection with the word translated "staff." It involves the continuation of the figure of the shepherd throughout this Str., which is improbable. — they comfort me]. The presence of the guide with rod and staff in hand ready for use in his defence, assures him of safety, of true guidance, and of eventually reaching his destination. Any tendencies to fear are at once checked, and any agitation or anxiety is soothed and calmed.

Str. III. is a progressive pentameter tetrastich, in which the host takes the place of the shepherd and the guide of the previous Strs. — 5. Thou spreadest before me a table]. The host welcomes his guest to a feast all prepared for him on the table. — in the presence of mine adversaries]. The psalmist is not without adversaries, but they are not dangerous. He has guest-right with Yahweh. He is safe and secure, because, in accordance with Oriental customs, the host is obliged to protect his guest from all enemies, at all costs. — Hast Thou anointed my head with oil]. A temporal clause with an apodosis subsequent thereto. It was the custom in the Orient to honour guests by anointing the head with oil, or scented grease, before entering the banqueting room; cf. Am. 6<sup>6</sup>, v. also Lk. 7<sup>46</sup>. It was also the custom to sprinkle the guests with perfumes (Lane, Modern Egyptians, p. 203). The entertainment here conceived is royal. — My cup is exhilarating], the cup given to me by my host, the wine cup of welcome. It is conceived here not so much as a cup full to overflowing, as EV<sup>a</sup>. and most moderns, but as one whose wine saturates, drenches, or soaks the one who drinks it, so excellent its quality and so ample its quantity, intoxicating, as the ancient Vrss.; so Aug., explaining inebrians, "And Thy cup yielding forgetfulness of former vain delights." "Inebrians, irrigans, laetificans, consolatione plenus, exuberans, redundans excellentissimo liquore," Genebr.; cf. Ps. 104<sup>15</sup> "wine that maketh glad the heart of man." The Fathers generally find here a mystic reference to the cup of the Eucharist. — 6. Surely goodness and kindness], of the host to his guest. — pursue me]. These attributes are personified, as attendants waiting upon the guest, just as other attributes, 43<sup>8</sup> 85<sup>11-12, 14</sup>; cf. Is. 35<sup>10</sup>. — all the days of my life || for length of days]. This one is not a guest who is to be entertained once, and then depart; or one who is permitted occasionally to return; but a guest who is to have a permanent and perpetual place at the table of Yahweh. Kindness is to follow him about, to wait on him continually throughout his life; and so in the parallel.—I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh]. He takes up his continual residence as guest in Yahweh's house. This which is given in Q, I is more suited to the context than H, which by another pointing of the same consonant gives another vb. and construction, "and I will return." This is difficult to explain grammatically, and also is not in accordance with the context which emphasises presence in the house and not absence from it. The house of Yahweh is, indeed, the temple, and the feasts are the sacrificial feasts continually provided in the temple. The conception that Yahweh is the host to those partaking of the sacrificial meals in His temple is not uncommon, v. 5<sup>5</sup> 15<sup>1</sup> 27<sup>4</sup> 61<sup>5</sup> 84<sup>5</sup>.

PSALM XXIV.

Ps. 24 combines two Pss., originally independent, in the one theme, entrance into the holy temple and city. The first is a didactic choral. A choir within the court of the temple praises Yahweh as creator and owner of all things (v.<sup>1-2</sup>). A choir at the gate inquires what sort of a man may enter the holy place (v.<sup>3</sup>). The choir within responds, giving both the characteristics of the man and the benefits he will receive (v.<sup>4-5</sup>). The choir without asserts the claims of Jacob to such a character, and to an entrance (v.<sup>6</sup>). The second Ps. is a triumphal choral. Yahweh has come to the holy city after a victory. The choir without the city demands that the gate be raised that the glorious king may enter into Jerusalem (v.<sup>7</sup>). The choir within inquires who he is; and is answered that it is the victorious Yahweh (v.<sup>8</sup>). Entrance is again demanded (v.<sup>9</sup>), the same inquiry is renewed, and the effectual reply is made that it is Yahweh, God of hosts (v.<sup>10</sup>).

A. v.<sup>1-6</sup>, 2 STR.  $4^3 + 2^3$ .

TO Yahweh belongs the earth and its fulness,
The world and those that dwell therein;
For He founded it upon the seas,
And upon streams establisheth it.

*Who may ascend the hill of Yahweh?
Who may stand in His holy place?*

ONE clean, and pure of mind,
Who hath not lifted up his soul to a lie;
He shall bear away a blessing from Yahweh,
And righteousness from the God of his salvation.

*This is a generation which resorts to Him;
Those who seek His face are Jacob.*

B. v.<sup>7-10</sup>, 2 STR.  $3^3 + 1^3 + 2^3$ .

LIFT up, O gates, (your) heads;
And exalt yourselves, ye ancient doors:
And the King of glory will enter.

Who, then, is the King of glory?

Yahweh, strong and mighty,
Yahweh, mighty in battle.

LIFT up, O gates, (your) heads;
And (exalt yourselves) ye ancient doors:
And the King of glory will enter.

Who, then, is the King of glory?

Yahweh, (God of) hosts,
He is the King of glory.

Ps. 24 was in D and MA (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). G adds to the title an assignment to the first day of the week, which corresponds with the statement of the Talm. as to its liturgical use (v. Intr. § 39). In Christian usage it is a proper Ps. for Ascension day. The Ps. is composed of two Pss. of entirely different character, composed at widely different periods. The older of these is evidently the second, v.<sup>7-10</sup>, which probably alone bore the title. The first, v.<sup>1-6</sup>, was probably inserted subsequent to the prefixing of the title to the second. The combination was made in order to make a Ps. appropriate to some special occasion in the late Greek or the Maccabean period, otherwise the Ps. would have been taken up into IE and MB (v. Intr. §§ 32, 33). The second Ps. alone would hardly be suitable for worship either in the temple or synagogue. The second Ps. in its use of יְהוָה (אלהי), v.<sup>10</sup>, and its emphasis upon His warlike characteristics, v.<sup>8</sup>, implies the warlike Yahweh of David's time. The entrance into the city is that of Yahweh at the head of a victorious army, which suits the removal of the ark to Jerusalem; cf. 2 S. 6. There is no mention in the history of any subsequent going forth of the ark to war, and it is improbable. From that time on, Jerusalem was the holy city, the capital of Yahweh the king, from whence He granted victory; cf. Ps. 20<sup>3</sup>. But He is not conceived as going forth from the city to make war. Moreover, the entrance is into the city, and not into the temple, as we would expect in later times after the temple was built. The פתחי עולם, v.<sup>7-9</sup> the ancient gates, are the gates of the city, which, though a recent conquest of David, had been a royal city for centuries earlier than his time, and whose gates might justly be named ancient, reaching back into an antiquity beyond the memory of man. There is nothing in the Ps. which requires a later date. It is difficult to see how a Ps. could better fit a historical situation. V.<sup>1-6</sup> are entirely different. It is the temple, not the city, which is to be entered. It is not Yahweh who enters, but men into His presence. He is enthroned in the city, and is not at its gates. The mountain is the mountain of Yahweh, His sacred place, v.<sup>8</sup>. His face they seek, v.<sup>6</sup>, from Him they are to receive a blessing, v.<sup>5</sup>. But not only is the city His; the earth and all the inhabitants of the world are His, v.<sup>1</sup>. That implies the later postex. conception that Yahweh is king of the whole world, and that His temple is the central place of worship for the world. The conception of creation is that of the erection of a building, an idea which we find Pss. 89<sup>12</sup>, 104<sup>5</sup>, Jb. 38<sup>4sq.</sup> Is. 48<sup>13</sup>, although here it is conceived as upon subterranean seas. The characteristics of the one privileged to enter the sacred place are not external conformity to Law, but internal, in the mind and soul, v.<sup>4</sup>, implying a lofty ethical conception, not earlier than the late Persian period, and sufficiently late to be influenced by Heb. Wisdom rather than Law. The emphasis upon Jacob as the name of the nation is based upon the Is.<sup>2</sup>; but the implication that he has such ethical characteristics as are required by Yahweh, is a conception which could only have originated in peaceful times, when Pss. of lamentation and penitence were no longer written, and when the pious might attend to their internal, ethical development. On the whole, this Ps. seems to belong to the Greek period subsequent to BB, the early time of Heb. Wisdom.

PSALM XXIV. A.

Str. I. 1-2 was sung by a choir within the outer court of the temple, praising Yahweh as creator and owner of all things. It is a trimeter tetrastich of two syn. couplets, the latter giving the reason for the former.—1. To Yahweh belongs]. He is the possessor and owner, cf. 89<sup>12</sup>.—the earth and its fulness], all that fills it, its contents, its creatures.—the world], with the special signification that it is habitable, and accordingly associated with it are those that dwell therein], its inhabitants. Thus is asserted the universal ownership of Yahweh, in accordance with the post-exilic conception that Yahweh is the universal God and the only God for the whole earth. His ownership is based upon the fact that He had created them. The creation is conceived as the erection of a great building, as in 89<sup>12</sup> 104<sup>5</sup> Jb. 38<sup>4sq.</sup> Pr. 8<sup>25sq.</sup> — 2. For He], emphatic, He and no other. — founded it || establisheth it]. The single act of creation passes over, as usual in OT., into the habitual act of God's sustaining providence; both later and more comprehensive ideas than those given in the poems, Gn. 1-2, although the primitive conception of subterranean seas and streams is still retained, cf. Gn. 7<sup>11</sup> Ex. 20<sup>4</sup> Ps. 136<sup>6</sup>. For various other conceptions of the relations of sea and dry land, cf. Gn. 1<sup>9</sup> Pr. 8<sup>29</sup> Jb. 26<sup>7sq.</sup> — 3 is a trimeter couplet sung by a choir outside the gate, inquiring the conditions of entrance. — Who may], not what person, but what sort of a person, as 15<sup>1</sup>. — ascend], go up the hill, which is called the hill of Yahweh, because His temple or residence was upon it, as Is. 2<sup>3</sup> = Mi. 4<sup>2</sup> Is. 30<sup>29</sup>. — may stand], among the accepted worshippers, admitted to the sacred precincts. — in His holy place], as consecrated to His worship.

Str. II. 4-5 is the response of the choir within, in two syn. couplets, the first giving the characteristics of the one who might be admitted to Yahweh's presence. These are two in number. — 4. One clean]. An innocent man, as 10<sup>8</sup> 15<sup>5</sup>. This one is still further defined as pure of mind. He is characterized by internal innocence, cleanness, and purity. This has been weakened in the ancient texts by the insertion of "hands" after "clean," which makes it refer to action, giving two characteristics and making the line into a tetrameter. — Who hath not lifted up his soul], in desire, cf. 25<sup>1</sup> 86<sup>4</sup> 143<sup>8</sup>. — to a lie], falsehood, in accordance with 12<sup>3</sup> 41<sup>7</sup> 144<sup>8.11</sup>. This is an internal desire, harmonious with the previous purity of mind. This explanation is favoured not only by the parallel. of the previous line, but also by the subsequent line, H, and Vrss. — and hath not sworn to deceit]. This was doubtless an explanatory gloss; but it changes the tetrastich into a pentastich, and so destroys the symmetry of the Ps. — 5. The second couplet sets forth the benefits to be derived from Yahweh in His house. — He shall bear away], take with him, when he departs from the temple. — a blessing], suited to the pure in mind, || righteousness, suited to the sincere desire. This latter is not in the sense of alms, as Ḥ, a meaning not known to OT.; or in the sense of that which is ethically right, which could hardly be bestowed upon him; but in the meaning urged by the phr. God of his salvation, saving righteousness, righteousness of vindication, as usual, Pss. 5<sup>9</sup> 22<sup>32</sup> 36<sup>11</sup> + and Is.<sup>2</sup> 45<sup>8</sup> 46<sup>13</sup> 51<sup>6</sup> +. — 6. The choir without claims the right of entrance in a couplet responding to the demand as to character, by stating the privilege belonging by inheritance to the seed of Jacob. They are not strangers who seek access to Yahweh, but His own people. — This is a generation], a class of men whose characteristic it is, that they resort to Him || seek His face]. The ptc. express continual resort to the sacred place for worship. Ḥ has “Thy face,” which gives an abrupt change of person and makes it difficult to explain the context. “O Jacob,” PBV., is an adaptation to Ḥ of some texts of Ḥ which have “face of Jacob.” But the context makes it evident that these are not strangers seeking Jacob, but Israel resorting to his God. “Thy face, O God of Jacob,” RV., adapts Ḥ to Ḥ, which gives “the face of the God of Jacob,” but the insertion of “God” looks like an interpretation and it leaves the subj. out of the parall. The subj., syn. with generation, is exceedingly forcible in the climax if it is defined as Jacob, with all the historic rights to the covenanted promises contained in the name. Inasmuch as the suffix “they” is not in Ḥ, Ṣ, Ṭ, it is an interpreter’s addition. It is easy to correct the text after the parall. and read “His face,” and to regard the couplet as inclusive, “generation” beginning and “Jacob” closing it.

PSALM XXIV. B.

Str. I. is a trimeter tristich, the first two lines syn., the third synth. A triumphal army, with Yahweh at its head, is at the gates of Jerusalem demanding entrance. The choir summons the gates to open to admit the king. — 7. O gates], personified and addressed as persons, || Ye ancient doors], as reaching back in history into hoary antiquity. Jerusalem was a very ancient city before David captured it, whose origin is so remote that it is earlier than all historical accounts of it. — lift up your heads || exalt yourselves]. The reflexive is more in accord with the parallelism than the passive “Be ye lift up,” EV<sup>s</sup>. It is well explained by Ewald: “A new king is about to enter the ancient and venerable city, and indeed the highest and mightiest conceivable, Yahweh Himself, enthroned upon the ark of the Covenant. Such a king has never entered this city, and the gray gates, although venerable with age, are too small and mean for Him.” — And the King of glory], a phr. only here; but Yahweh is frequently conceived as king, Ex. 15<sup>18</sup> Pss. 5<sup>3</sup> 10<sup>16</sup> 29<sup>10</sup> 44<sup>5</sup> 47<sup>3.7.8</sup> 48<sup>3</sup> 68<sup>25</sup> 74<sup>12</sup> 84<sup>4</sup> 95<sup>3</sup> 98<sup>6</sup> 99<sup>4</sup> 145<sup>1</sup> 149<sup>2</sup>; and glory is one of the most common attributes of Yahweh, 29<sup>3</sup> 72<sup>19</sup> 145<sup>12</sup>. Here the glory is that of warlike achievements, such as that ascribed to the king of David’s dynasty, 21<sup>6</sup>. — 8. The choir within the gates responds to the summons in a monostich of inquiry. It is not necessary to think of the gates as speaking. It is the challenge of the sentinels, who must demand the password officially, even if they know what the answer will be. It is the poet’s art to thus get a reason for the glorification of Yahweh the king. The choir without respond in a couplet setting forth who the king is. — Yahweh], the God of Israel, is this king, and not David, God’s son, the divine representative in kingship. — strong and mighty]. These attributes are those of a warrior, as defined in the stairlike parall. mighty in battle. The king is a valiant hero, victorious in battle, a great conqueror. He has returned from a glorious war; cf. “Yahweh is a man of war” Ex. 15<sup>2.3</sup>; cf. also Num. 10<sup>35</sup> 1 S. 4<sup>21 sq.</sup> for the warlike character of the Ark, as bearing the divine presence.

Str. II. 9–10. The choir of the army repeats the trimeter triplet, renewing the demand for entrance in identical terms.

10. The sentinels make an identical challenge. The choir respond in terms that cannot be questioned, by giving the divine name, characteristic of the Davidic dynasty. The longer and more ancient title, Yahweh (God) of Hosts, is required by the measure. It was shortened by an early editor at the expense of the measure, in accordance with the usage of his time, into “Yahweh Sabaoth,” and so in all Vrss. after 6 “Lord of Hosts.” The original title of Yahweh, given as the countersign or military password for entrance to the royal city, is used here in accordance with the original meaning of this divine name as given in 1 S. 17<sup>45</sup>, "God of the battle array of Israel." It was especially appropriate if we suppose that the entire army of Israel was then at the gates of Jerusalem with king David at their head, conducting the Ark of Yahweh to the sacred place consecrated for it. — He], emphatic, and no other, is the King of glory, cf. v. 7.<sup>9</sup>

1. [לִירוּהָ ל of possession, emph. — † הָרָאֵץ וּמִלִּיָּהָ phr. Dt. 33<sup>16</sup> Is. 34<sup>1</sup> Mi. 1<sup>2</sup> Je. 8<sup>16</sup> 47<sup>2</sup> Ez. 19<sup>7</sup> 30<sup>12</sup>; cf. חָבַל וּמִי Pss. 50<sup>12</sup> 89<sup>12</sup>, 96<sup>11</sup> 98<sup>7</sup>. — [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] retracted accent because of final monosyl. 𐤀 inserts πάντες = כל; but it is absent in this same phr. 98<sup>7</sup> 107<sup>84</sup>, and is interp. חָבַל (v. 9<sup>9</sup>). — 2. [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] (v. 24). V. 1-2 rhymes in final הָהָה — 3. [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] is a prosaic addition impairing the measure. — [הָרָאֵץ וּמִלִּיָּהָ] the temple mount, elsw. Is. 2<sup>3</sup> (= Mi. 4<sup>2</sup>) 30<sup>29</sup>; of Horeb, Nu. 10<sup>83</sup> (JE), חָרֵי צִבְאוֹת Zc. 8<sup>3</sup>, cf. Ps. 15<sup>1</sup>. — 4. [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] a. l., but יִשְׁכְּנֵי used for innocent person, v. 10<sup>8</sup>. נָפִיס is a gl. of interpretation, making the l. tetrameter. — [בְּרִי לִבְבִּי] cf. 73<sup>1</sup> לִבְבִּי v. 4<sup>5</sup>. — [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] rel. is a gl. balanced with נָפִיס, making this l. also tetrameter. A tetrameter couplet in the midst of trimeters is altogether improbable. — [לֹא נִשְׁאָ לְשׁוֹאֵם נִשְׁוֹ] Kt., 𐤀, 𐤁. But Qr. נִשְׁוֹ, as if it were a citation from Ex. 20<sup>7</sup> = Dt. 5<sup>11</sup>. נִשְׁוֹ for נִשְׁוֹ, cf. Ps. 139<sup>29</sup>. שׁוֹא v. 12<sup>3</sup>. Syn. is [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] For שְׁבַע v. 15<sup>4</sup>. שְׁבַע v. 5<sup>7</sup>. This favours falsehood in the previous l. rather than the dishonouring of the name of God. It is prob. that this l. is an explanatory gl., so Bi., Bā. It makes the only tristich in the Ps. 𐤀 adds the gl. τῷ πληστον αὐτοῦ, 𐤁 proximo suo. — 5. [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] 𐤀 has ἐλεημοσύνην, but this is a late mng. of צָדָקָה not used in OT. Here צָדָקָה || בְּרָכָה is || יִשְׁעָה, as in Is. 2 (espec.) and subsequent writers, v. 5<sup>9</sup>. — [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] cf. 184<sup>7</sup> 25<sup>5</sup> 27<sup>9</sup> 65<sup>6</sup> 79<sup>9</sup> 85<sup>5</sup>, and for other uses of יִשְׁעָה v. 12<sup>6</sup>. 𐤀 σωτήρ is concrete for abstr. — 6. [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] Kt., רָשָׁיו, Qr., both ptc. as rel. clauses, || מְבַקְשֵׁי 𐤀, 𐤁, both pl., as in 9<sup>11</sup>. רָשָׁה vb. seek, consult, by resorting to a sacred place, so acc. of 78<sup>84</sup> Gn. 25<sup>22</sup> (J) Ex. 18<sup>15</sup> (E) +. — [וְיִשְׁכְּנֵי בָּהּ] Jacob is not vocative, the suffix cannot refer to him. It is not the face of Jacob that is sought, but God's face. It is possible to make יַעֲקֹב an independent clause, it is Jacob, but that is harsh. 𐤀 has τοῦ Θεοῦ Ἰακώβ, so 𐤂, 𐤃, and most moderns, which makes the l. too long unless with Hare and Grimme יַעֲקֹב. It gives good sense in accordance with parall. 𐤁 in text of Lag. has faciem tuam Jacob, as 𐤃, but in text of Nestle, faciem Jacob, מִנִּי יַעֲקֹב, cf. PBV. But it is not foreign peoples seeking the face of Jacob, as in the conception of second Isaiah and Zechariah, but faithful Israelites seeking the presence of their God in the temple in Zion. A simple and natural interpretation would be to regard this l. as in introverted parall. with previous l.:

This is a generation which resorts to Him;
Those who seek His face are Jacob.

ך in פניך is txt. err., not in G, S, rd. פני || פניו. י has been omitted in the one place, ו in the other, and ך has been inserted in H, J as interpretation. — 7. [שאו שְׁעָרֶיךָ רִאשִׁיכֶם] so Aq., J, S, T. G, S make ראשִׁיכֶם = oi ἀρχοντες ὑμῶν here and in v.<sup>9</sup> the subj., and שְׁעָרֶיךָ obj., so H principes; the chiefs are to lift the gates instead of their spreading themselves open; but the sf. with ראשִׁיכֶם is not easy; in this case it ought to be with gates. Prob. both sfs. were interp. and the original had none. — [יָבִיאוּ]. The י might be subordinate with subjunctive, that he may enter: better introducing apod. of inv., and he will enter, v. Dr.<sup>s152</sup>. — 8. [יִזְרְיָה] enclitic, who then, so v.<sup>10</sup> 25<sup>12</sup>. — [עָזוּ] adj. only here of י, and Is. 43<sup>17</sup> of army; vb. for י Ps. 68<sup>29</sup>, cf. 89<sup>11</sup> ורוע עֵז, and עֵז as attributive 62<sup>12</sup> 63<sup>3</sup> 68<sup>36</sup> 93<sup>1</sup> 96<sup>6</sup>, עֵז מִלְחָמָה 99<sup>4</sup>. — [גִּבּוֹר] adj. for might of God fighting for His people, elsw. Dt. 10<sup>17</sup> Ne. 9<sup>32</sup> Is. 10<sup>21</sup> Je. 32<sup>18</sup>; of valiant man, v. 19<sup>6</sup>. — [גִּבּוֹר כְּיָחֶזֶק] stairlike parall., for this l. completes what the previous l. began, defining mighty as mighty in battle. — 9 = v.<sup>7</sup> save that הַנִּשְׁאִי gives place to שָׁאֵה; but this is doubtless txt. err., for there is no obj. G had Niph., so Hare, al. J changes to erigite from elevamini. But a change is improb. in this word only. — 10. [מִי הוּא יְיָ]. The inquiry is repeated, differing only from v.<sup>8a</sup> by insertion of הוּא, but this makes the l. too long. הוּא is copula and interpretative. G is same as v.<sup>8a</sup>, so also J. — [יְיָ צִבְאוֹת] so G and J, makes a dimeter. This is possible, but it is more likely that it was a copyist's shortening of the older phr. יהוה אלהי צבאות, which gives a good trimeter, into the phr. used in his own time. — [צָבָא] n.m.: (1) army, organised for war 44<sup>10</sup> 60<sup>12</sup> 68<sup>13</sup> 108<sup>12</sup>; (2) of angels 103<sup>21</sup> 148<sup>2</sup>; (3) fig. of heavenly bodies 33<sup>6</sup>; (4) war 68<sup>12</sup> (?), others fig. G has αὐτός ἐστὶν οὗτος = הוּא זֶה.

PSALM XXV., 3 STR. 7<sup>6</sup>.

Ps. 25 is a prayer of the congregation in three parts. (1) Petition, that they that trust in Yahweh may not be shamed, but rather those dealing treacherously (v.<sup>1-3</sup>); that Yahweh will teach His ways (v.<sup>4-5</sup>), and remember His compassion rather than sins of youth (v.<sup>6-7</sup>). (2) Confidence, that Yahweh will teach the afflicted His way (v.<sup>8-9</sup>); that His paths are kindness and faithfulness (v.<sup>10</sup>); and that He will instruct and give His intimacy to those fearing Him (v.<sup>12-14</sup>). (3) Petition, that Yahweh will bring out of distresses (v.<sup>15-17</sup>); that He will see his enemies (v.<sup>19</sup>); and that He will deliver those that wait on Him (v.<sup>20-21</sup>). Petitions for pardon were inserted by an editor in place of lines which he threw out (v.<sup>11.18</sup>). A liturgical addition makes a general plea for the ransom of Israel (v.<sup>22</sup>).

UNTO Thee, Yahweh, I lift up my soul; (O my God,) let me not be ashamed.
 In Thee I trust, (therefore) let not mine enemies exult; even mine;
 Yea, let none that wait on Thee be ashamed; let them be ashamed that deal treacherously without effect.
 Thy ways make me know, Yahweh, (and) Thy paths teach me;
 Lead me in Thy faithfulness and teach me; for Thou art the God of my salvation.
Remember Thy compassion, Yahweh, and Thy kindness, for they are of old.
 The sins of my youth remember not; according to Thy kindness, remember me.
 GOOD and upright is Yahweh: therefore will He instruct in the way.
 He will lead the afflicted in (His) judgment, and He will teach the afflicted
 His way.
 All the paths of Yahweh are kindness and faithfulness to them that keep His covenant.

* . . . . .
 Who then is (he) that feareth Yahweh? He will instruct him in the way He chooseth;
 He himself will dwell in prosperity; and his seed will inherit the land.
 The intimacy of Yahweh have they that fear (His name), and His covenant, to make them know it.

MINE eyes are continually unto Yahweh, that He may bring forth my feet.
 Turn unto me and be gracious unto me; for desolate and afflicted am I.
 As for the troubles of my mind, O make room from my distresses; O bring me forth.

■ . . . . .
 O see mine enemies; for they are many, and they hate me with a hatred of violence.
 O keep me and deliver me; let me not be ashamed, for I seek refuge in Thee.
 Let integrity and uprightness (deliver me); for, Yahweh, I wait on Thee.

Ps. 25 was in 𐤁 (v. Intr. § 27). 𐤂 has ψαλμός; but it is not in 𐤃, and it is improbable that it would have been omitted if original. The Ps. is an acrostic hexameter; all the letters of the alphabet appear except ו and ק. The ו might be found if with 𐤂 we read ואתך for 𐤃 אותך v.<sup>5c</sup>; but then only three of the six words would be given, and that at the expense of the strophical organisation of the Ps. These words are more like a gloss of intensification. The analogy of Ps. 34 favours the opinion that the omission of ו was intentional. With twenty-two letters it was impracticable to get symmetrical Strs. without such an omission. The ק Str. might be restored by substituting קראה for ראה, v.<sup>18</sup>, regarding the repetition of the latter word as due to dittography. But it is probable that this line was a later substitution for the original line, as was v.<sup>11</sup>, in order to introduce into the Ps. two petitions for forgiveness of sins. For these two lines are awkward in their relation to their context, interrupting the movement of the thought; and they lack the catchword of the stairlike parallelism (v. Intr. § 12 A) characteristic of the Ps. in every other line: בוש v.<sup>1.8</sup>, למר v.<sup>4.5</sup>, זכר v.<sup>6.7</sup>, דרך v.<sup>8.9</sup>, ירא v.<sup>12-14</sup>, הוציא v.<sup>15.17</sup>, and it is probable נצל v.<sup>20.21</sup>, the נצר v.<sup>21</sup> being due to a copyist's error or a stylistic change. It is noteworthy that the catchword is in both lines of the distichs, but only in first and third lines of the tristichs, v.<sup>1-3.12-14.15-17. V.<sup>22</sup></sup>, as Ps. 34<sup>23</sup>, is a liturgical addition. It is improbable that any writer would omit a letter of the alphabet from his acrostic, and then add a supplementary line to rectify the omission. Moreover, the use of יהוה ואלהים of the Ps. is evidence of a later hand, as well as the use of ישראל by way of generalisation of the petition and confidence of the Ps. The Ps. has three Strs., the first and the third petitions, separated by the second, expressing trust in Yahweh. It shows no dependence on earlier writings. It is entirely original as a composition. The language is not early and not very late. The phrase השאון נעורי v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Ez. 23<sup>21</sup> Job. 13<sup>26</sup>, looks back on the youth of the nation. The terms (דרך) הודיע v.<sup>4.14</sup>, למר ארחות v.<sup>4</sup>, הדריך v.<sup>5.9</sup>, יורה v.<sup>8.12</sup>, all show the influence of D. There is no evidence of the influence of P save in ערתי v.<sup>10</sup>, which is a gloss. נצרי ברית v.<sup>10</sup> is elsewhere only Dt. 33<sup>9</sup>, and may be regarded as a poetic synonym of ברית שמר. The use of לבב v.<sup>17</sup>, as 15<sup>2</sup> 24<sup>4</sup> 90<sup>12</sup> 104<sup>15</sup>, is that of the Prophets of the Restoration Zc. 1-8 Hg., Jo. There are phrases and words peculiar to the Ps.: טוב וישר v.<sup>8</sup>, the ethical use of טוב for God elsw. ψ 119<sup>39.68</sup>; שונא חסם v.<sup>19</sup> for alliance or friendship with God v.<sup>14</sup>, חס וישר v.<sup>21</sup> personified attributes. Other noteworthy words and phrases are: הלין בטוב v.<sup>13</sup>, cf. Job. 21<sup>13</sup> 36<sup>11</sup> Ec. 7<sup>14</sup>; סור v.<sup>14</sup>, cf. Job. 29<sup>4</sup> Pr. 3<sup>32</sup>; פנה אלי והנני v.<sup>16</sup> 86<sup>16</sup> 119<sup>132</sup>; יחיד alone, solitary v.<sup>16</sup> 68<sup>7</sup>; הרחוב v.<sup>17</sup> dubious meaning, cf. Ps. 4<sup>2</sup>; מצוקה v.<sup>17</sup> 107<sup>6.13.19.28</sup> Job. 15<sup>24</sup> Zp. 1<sup>15</sup>. These tend to the terminology of Job. The language and style favour the Persian period prior to Nehemiah.

Str. I. is a hexameter heptastich of petition, composed of a tristich and two distichs, each with its catchword, in stairlike parallelism. — 1-3. Unto Thee || in Thee], both emphatic in position, to indicate that Yahweh, || my God, was the only person to whom it could be said, I lift up my soul, in longing desire, || I trust, of confidence and reliance, || wait on Thee, cf. v.<sup>21</sup>, hoping, expecting help. — let me not be ashamed], by being overcome by enemies: the catchword of the tristich, repeated both negatively and positively in v.<sup>3</sup>. — let not mine enemies exult], in triumph. These two vbs., originally in synonymous clauses in two different lines, were by a prosaic editor brought together in one line in 11 and so in EV<sup>s</sup>, at the expense of the parall., the measure, and the acrostic of the second line. — them that deal treacherously], they are crafty, intriguing, treacherous enemies. — without effect], without accomplishing anything, as 7<sup>5</sup>, “disappointed of their expectations,” Ham.; “without cause” of EV<sup>s</sup>. is not justified by usage. All this is not the prayer of an individual, but of a community in peril from crafty enemies. — 4-5. Thy ways || Thy paths], terms of the legislation of D., in which the people were to walk in their course of life. — make me know || teach me], the latter the keyword, reappearing therefore in v.<sup>5</sup> || lead me; all bringing out the divine discipline of Israel on its positive side of instruction and guidance in the Law. This is enforced by an appeal to historic experience, in Thy faithfulness], that is, to the promises of the covenants with the fathers. — God of my salvation], whose character it is to save, and from whom salvation comes. A later editor adds, either to the text or originally on the margin, so that it subsequently came into the text, on Thee do I wait all the day]. This is parallel in thought to the previous clause, and a repetition of that of v.<sup>3</sup>, without any proper motive in the Ps. itself, and at the expense of the measure and strophical organisation. — 6-7. Remember], the keyword of the distich, repeated therefore in both negative and positive form in v.<sup>7</sup>; cf. v.<sup>3</sup>. — Thy compassion], the sympathetic attitude of Yahweh towards His people as their Sovereign and Father; || kindness, as in v.<sup>7</sup>, which is the only measure of the remembrance. This is more probable than the pl. “loving kindnesses” EV<sup>s</sup>., more properly “loving deeds” JPSV., which, though sustained by ḥ and Vrss., is a late and uncommon usage, and is probably an assimilation to the previous plural, which, however, is an abstract plural and not, as this would be, a plural of number. The difference is one of interpretation and not of an originally different text. — They are of old]. These gracious attributes of Yahweh have characterised Him from the most ancient times in the historical experience of His people. This suggests in antithesis, The sins of my youth remember not], the sins that the people had committed in former generations, in the beginning of the national existence, as in Ez. 23<sup>21</sup> in connection with the abode in Egypt. — and my transgressions] is a gloss of amplification, making the line over full. “Remember not sins” is a prophetic term,

Je. 31<sup>34</sup> Ez. 18<sup>22</sup> 33<sup>16</sup> Is. 43<sup>25</sup> Ps. 79<sup>8</sup> +, to indicate that Yahweh, in His sovereign grace, puts them out of mind, treats them as if they had never existed. It is parallel to "not impute" Ps. 32<sup>2</sup>, "not reward according to" 103<sup>10</sup>. It is also syn. with "passing over, overlooking, ignoring" them, Acts 17<sup>30</sup> Rom. 3<sup>25</sup>. — O Thou for Thy goodness sake]. This is a gloss, introducing an additional plea, and adding a prosaic short sentence to a line and a Str. which are already complete.

Str. II. expresses trust and confidence in Yahweh, intervening between Strs. of petition. It is composed of a distich, v. 8-9, and a tristich, v. 12-14, with catchwords and stairlike parallelism, and two intervening lines, v. 10-11. — 8-9. Good and upright is Yahweh]. The ethical character of Yahweh is here emphasised, at the beginning, in order to indicate that His disciplinary guidance is ethical. Usually God is good, as benignant; here, as 119<sup>39, 68</sup>, seldom elsewhere in OT., ethically good. — Therefore], on the basis of this character of Yahweh. — will He instruct || lead || teach], stating as a fact what was prayed for in v. 4-5. — the way], the keyword of this distich, therefore, repeated in v. 9, which also takes up the term of v. 4-5, the afflicted; pious Israel, as afflicted by enemies, v. 2; v. 9<sup>13</sup>. Therefore sinners v. 8 is improbable in the parallelism. It is a later gloss, making the line over full, and preparatory to the petition for pardon v. 11 — 10. All the paths of Yahweh], not the paths in which Yahweh goes, but the paths which Yahweh teaches His people, as v. 4 — are kindness and faithfulness], as in v. 5. 7. He leads in faithfulness, and kindness is the norm of His remembrance of His people. — to them that keep His covenant], the covenant between Yahweh and His people, whose substance is the Deuteronomic instruction in those ways and paths already spoken of. The keeping of this covenant is a walking in its ways under the guidance of Yahweh. — and His testimonies], a gloss of amplification from the point of view of the later priestly legislation, making the line over full. We should now expect, in accordance with the method of this psalmist, a synonymous line with the catchword of this line repeated, and that covenant would be this word. In fact the expression of trust and confidence which characterises this Str. is suddenly abandoned, and petition abruptly appears. — 11. For Thy name's sake], an urgent plea, as the basis of the petition, thrown before for emphasis, that the good name, the honour of Yahweh may not suffer in His people.—pardon mine iniquity], lift it up as a burden, and bear it away from me and from Thee; syn. “forgive,” as v.<sup>18</sup>.—for it is great], not in intensity, but in amount, cf. 19<sup>14</sup>. All this is well suited to a worshipping congregation; but it is not in accord with the context, or the course of thought of the Ps. It doubtless was a liturgical substitution for the original line, which was parall. with v.<sup>10</sup>—12. Who then is he?] This inquiry is in order to prepare the mind for the emphatic answer, that feareth Yahweh], the key-word of this tristich, reappearing therefore in v.<sup>14</sup>—He will instruct him in the way, as v.<sup>8</sup>, || make them know it, as v.<sup>4</sup>.—He chooseth], relative clause with Yahweh subj., as 33<sup>12</sup> 65<sup>5</sup>. It is usually interpreted as “he should choose,” with man as subject. The context favours the former interpretation.—13. He himself] antith, to his seed, or posterity; the former will dwell in prosperity, in accordance with the blessedness and prosperity promised to those who fear Yahweh and walk in His ways, cf. Dt. 28; the latter will inherit the land, the promised land of Canaan, as Pss. 37<sup>9-34</sup> 44<sup>4</sup>, in accordance with Gn. 15<sup>7</sup> Num. 13<sup>30</sup> 21<sup>24, 35</sup> Jos. 18<sup>3</sup> (JE) Dt. 1<sup>8, 21, 39</sup> +.—14. The intimacy of Yahweh], the intimate, secret fellowship granted to those admitted to the inner circle of friendship or alliance, cf. Pr. 3<sup>32</sup>, Jb. 29<sup>4</sup>; || covenant, which, while referring to the Deuteronomic covenant, as above v.<sup>10</sup>, has yet in this connection the more fundamental meaning of an alliance, as Ps. 55<sup>21</sup>.—they that fear (His name)], as 61<sup>6</sup> 86<sup>11</sup> 102<sup>16</sup>, for so the text originally read, as the measure requires, instead of “fear Him” of  $\mathfrak{H}$ , followed by EV<sup>a</sup>., which leaves the measure defective by just one word, which appears, however, in  $\mathfrak{G}$ , although “His name” is there expanded into a clause, practically identical in other respects with the previous one.

Str. III. is composed of a tristich, v.<sup>15-17</sup>, and a distich, v.<sup>20-21</sup>, with the usual catchwords and intervening lines, v.<sup>18-19</sup>, of a different character; cf. v.<sup>10-11</sup>.—15. Mine eyes] in antithesis with my feet. The former look continually unto Yahweh; the latter, Yahweh on His part, in response to the pleading look, brings forth from a place of peril.—that He may bring forth], in accordance with the petition which is characteristic of the entire Str., as distinguished from the calm statement of fact which is characteristic of the previous Str. The EV<sup>s</sup>. and interpreters generally regard the clause as causal in accordance with previous context, "for He shall pluck," a loose but poetic rendering of vb. meaning "bring forth," which is the keyword of the tristich. — from the net] in H and Verss. is due to an interpretative gloss after 9<sup>16</sup>; but it is at the expense of the measure and has nothing to suggest it in the context, and really is too specific, leading away from the more general thought of the tristich. — from my distresses], the parallel of v.<sup>17</sup>, where the vb. is repeated, also syn. with the adj. desolate, abandoned to enemies, left alone (v. 22<sup>21</sup> 68<sup>7</sup>), and afflicted, suffering from words and deeds of the enemies, as v.<sup>2</sup> 9; so also with troubles of my mind, mental distress, anxiety caused by the treachery of the enemies. — 16. Turn unto me and be gracious unto me]. The turning unto the people on the part of Yahweh is an appropriate response to their eyes continually directed unto Him. — 17. O make room], in accordance with the usage of 4<sup>2</sup>; give breathing-place, breadth of position, in contrast to the straits, the cramped and narrow position, in which they were now situated, a mng. entirely appropriate between the verbs "bring forth." The rendering of G, I, EV<sup>s</sup>., al., "the troubles of my heart are enlarged," has no usage in Heb. to justify it; and the interpretation of the vb. as perfect, while justified by H, is against the context, and due to an ancient misreading of the text, attaching the letter Waw to the preceding instead of the following word. — 18. O see mine affliction and my travail]. This line is rendered suspicious at the start by its substitution of a vb. with ו, and indeed the same as that of v. 19, for the expected one with פ, which should appear here in the order of the alphabet. An easy emendation would give us this; but there remain the same objections that we have found against v.<sup>11</sup>, namely, the unexpected plea, and forgive all my sins, and the absence of the catchword of the distich. It is probable, therefore, that we have a liturgical substitution for the original line syn. with v.<sup>19</sup>. — 19. O see mine enemies], the same as those mentioned v.<sup>2</sup>, only there they were treacherous, and so dangerous; here they are many, numerous, and so outnumbering the people of Yahweh that they need reinforcement. — and they hate me]. This is probably the catchword of the distich, and was to be found in the original mate to this line; intensified by with a hatred of violence, a hatred that prompts to deeds of violence. — 20-21. O keep me and deliver me], the latter probably the keyword of the distich, reappearing in v.<sup>21</sup> in the original text; but an early copyist by the mistake of a single letter read it “preserve me,” which really implies a previous deliverance, and is not so well suited to wait on Thee || seek refuge in Thee, which imply that the deliverance has not yet been granted. — Let me not be ashamed] goes back to the beginning of the Ps. v.<sup>1-3</sup>, and implies the continuance of the same situation. — Let integrity and uprightness], personified as messengers of God sent forth to deliver His people, cf. 23<sup>6</sup> 43<sup>3</sup>. — Yahweh] concludes as well as begins the Ps., according to 5; but 11 omits it, and so loses one tone from the measure. — 22. This is a liturgical addition by a late editor, as 34<sup>23</sup>. — O God] is characteristic of 12 and an Elohist period of composition. Yahweh was this psalmist's God. — ransom out of all his troubles], cf. 78<sup>42</sup> 130<sup>8</sup>. — Israel], the name of the people of God, cf. 14<sup>7</sup>. This final petition was suited for the congregation in worship at all times; it generalises the Ps., which was based upon a particular historical experience.

Ps. 26 is a profession of integrity by a Levite, engaged in worshipping Yahweh in the temple choir. (1) He professes integrity in walk, and unwavering trust in Yahweh, as attested by Yahweh Himself (v. 1-2). (2) Ever conscious of the divine kindness and faithfulness, he abstains from all association with the wicked (v. 3-4). (3) He hates the company of the wicked and purifies himself for sacrifice (v. 5-6). (4) He loves the temple (v. 8), and stands in its choir blessing Yahweh (v. 12). A later editor by additions and changes introduces the elements of prayer (v. 1a, 9-11) and worship (v. 7).

- I HAVE walked in mine integrity;
 In Yahweh I have trusted without wavering.
 Yahweh hath tested me and proved me;
 Tried out are my reins and my mind.
- YEA, Thy kindness is before mine eyes;
 And I walk in Thy faithfulness.
 I do not sit down with worthless men;
 And with dissemblers I will not come.
- I HATE the assembly of evildoers,
 And with the wicked I will not sit down.
 I will wash my hands in innocence,
 And I will march around Thine altar, Yahweh.
- I LOVE the habitation of Thine house,
 And the place of the tabernacle of Thy glory.
 My foot doth stand in the level place,
 And in the choirs I bless Yahweh.

The title has only לָרֹר, as the entire group 25-28. This Ps. was not taken up into M, DB, or E. It was, in its original form, not appropriate for worship in the synagogue, for it was a profession of right conduct from an ethical point of view, as required by Pss. 15, 24<sup>3-6</sup>, rather than from the legal of Ps. 1, which in other respects it resembles in v. 4-5 by repudiation of any association with the wicked. v. 5 רָשָׁעִים are not wicked nations, but wicked Israelites v. 4; נְעֻלְמִים, מַחֲיִשׁוֹת v. 5, whom the author is only anxious to avoid. The v. 9 אֲנָשֵׁי רִמָּים and v. 10 שָׁחַר v. 10, are of an entirely different type, who are in deadly hostility. These terms represent a different situation and come from a later editor. The author of the Ps. is in no other peril than that of ethical contamination. Therefore he purifies himself by Levitical purifications for participation in the service of the altar v. 6, and worship in the temple choir v. 12. מִשְׁוֹר v. 12 is probably the level place of the court before the temple where the choir took its stand. The v. 12 מַקְהִלִּים, elsw. only 68<sup>27</sup>, might mean assemblies but more probably choirs. This ethical and religious situation in times of peace and prosperity is best suited to the middle Persian period, before Hebrew Wisdom had become the mould for Hebrew ethics. This profession of integrity is not so inappropriate as many moderns think. It is not self-righteousness. It is not so much self-conscious, as conscious of the divine presence and the requirements that invoke it. It is the ethical answer to the requirements of Pss. 15, 24<sup>3-6</sup>, Is. 33<sup>14-16</sup>. It reminds us also of Dt. 26<sup>1-11</sup> on the one side and of Jb. 31 on the other. The language of the Ps. has no other special features than those mentioned above. The Ps. is a trimeter. The first line has prefixed a petition which makes the line too long, or, if regarded as an abbreviated line, makes the Str. too long. It is an editorial change in order to begin with a petition. It is also probable that original perfects v. 2 as implied by the Kt. צִרְפָּה, have been changed by pointing as imv. for the same reason. V. 7, for similar reasons, introduces praise, and v. 9-11 urges petition again, all of which make the Ps. more suited to public worship in the synagogue, and so later in the church; but spoil the simplicity and symmetry of the original, which was two pairs of trimeter tetrastichs.

Str. I. 1 a. Judge me, Yahweh]. This in the present context must be interpreted in the sense of vindication. But it is difficult to see in what respect vindication was needed. The context shows that the psalmist was assured of his integrity, and all that he really needed was divine recognition and acceptance in worship. This petition is not in harmony with the context; but it is an appropriate one in liturgical worship, where various emotions of the congregation mingle together, and logical consistency is the last thing that is thought of. It is an editorial gloss. The first half of the Ps. is composed of two trimeter tetrastichs, as Str. and Antistr., each composed of two syn. couplets.—1 b. I have walked], the course of life, conduct. This has been in mine integrity], in entire accord with ethical requirements, complete and perfect; not in the absolute sense, but in the plain, popular sense that, so far as he knew, he was unconscious of any wickedness in his conduct. This he asserts as a fact, professes it in the presence of his God. He makes not a profession of faith, but a profession of morals, as Job 31. The ancient Hebrew was not a philosopher and had no thought of speculative ethics. The editor is obliged to introduce this by “for” and make it a reason for the plea for vindication; but the connection is remote.—In Yahweh I have trusted], inner disposition, as parallel with outward conduct; the God-ward attitude of soul, corresponding with the man-ward attitude of body, faith and works united in one.—without wavering], steady, unshaken, uninterrupted was his communion with Yahweh, in faith, as the counterpart of the integrity, completeness of conduct. The faith and the works were both alike complete, entire, unimpeachable.—2. Yahweh hath tested me], with its complement, proved me, and its parallel, tried out, as by the refining of metals, v. 17<sup>3</sup>. A most searching examination has been made by Yahweh Himself, and that has been complete, for it has extended to my reins and my mind], v. 7<sup>10</sup> Je 11<sup>20</sup> 17<sup>10</sup> 20<sup>12</sup>, the seat of emotions and passions as well as the seat of the intellectual and moral nature. The profession of faith and morals therefore rests upon the divine examination and approval. This assertion of fact did not suit the requirements of a later worship, and therefore probably the Ps. was left out of the collection made by DI and E. But by changing the pfs. of the vb. to the imvs. "test me || prove me || try out," especially when introduced by "judge me," the Ps. was made more suited to the worship of the synagogue and so also for the Christian congregation.

Str. II. 3. Yea], if our interpretation of the foregoing is correct; but doubtless the editor interpreted it as "for" in accordance with v.<sup>1b</sup> which it resumes; so all Vrss. — Thy kindness], as usual parallel with Thy faithfulness; the former in accordance with the trust of v.<sup>1c</sup>, although it is before mine eyes; the latter in accordance with the walk, which is indeed expressed in this clause. This latter is not a qualification of the psalmist, or of the way in which he walks, and so to be rendered "Thy truth" as EV<sup>a</sup>. because this Hebrew word seldom has the meaning of "truth," and never when it is connected with the divine kindness. The "faithfulness" is syn. with the "kindness," both of which divine attributes as present with him, before the eyes of his mind, enable him to walk in his integrity. — 4. I do not sit down with]. In this and the syn. line, so also in v.<sup>5</sup>, the poet repudiates any association whatever with the wicked. This reminds us of Ps. 1<sup>1</sup>, where walking, standing, and sitting down with the wicked are repudiated. Here only two of these actions are mentioned. The action of sitting down with, is greatly emphasised here because it is repeated in v.<sup>5b</sup>, as indeed it is the climax of the actions in Ps. 1<sup>1</sup>. Such a sitting down with them would imply prolonged association and greater intimacy and responsibility for companionship, than walking with them or standing with them. — I will not come with], that is, be seen approaching in company with. The vb. has been intentionally changed from that of v.<sup>1b.3b</sup> and implies a movement the reverse of going; therefore it is improbable that it should have the specific meaning "go in" of EV<sup>a</sup>. implying entrance to a house or assembly, which is awkward without designation of place. — worthless men], men whose speech and conduct is empty, false; their speech and professions empty of reality; with nothing in them that is reliable; and so parallel with dissemblers, those who conceal their thoughts so that they may appear differently from what they are.

Str. III. The second part of the Ps. is composed of two trimeter tetrastichs, Str. and Antistr., contrasting what the psalmist loves and hates, the first couplet of each syn., the second couplet of each synth. — 5. I hate], in antithesis with “I love” v.<sup>8</sup>. The object of the former is the assembly, or congregation of evildoers || wicked, more general and positive terms for those of v.<sup>4</sup>; the object of the latter is the assembly of the worshippers of Yahweh in the temple choir, although that is not brought out distinctly until the closing line of the Str. — 6. I will wash my hands], doubtless referring to the ceremonial purifications prescribed by the Law for those who were to serve in the temple worship; the use of pure, running water from the sacred lavers of the temple courts. This washing was not made symbolical by the use of the ethical term, in innocency, which recurs to the integrity of v.<sup>1b</sup>; but in order to show that the external ceremonial purification was only expressive of an internal purity of mind, as indeed the Law and the Prophets require. — And I will march around Thine altar], in festal procession, with music and song, while the sacrifice was being made by the priests. There is no good reason to doubt this ceremonial among the Hebrews, although the direct evidence for it is slight. But there are many indirect references, cf. 42<sup>5</sup> 118<sup>27</sup> 1 S. 16<sup>11</sup> 30<sup>16</sup>; and the usual meaning of the Hebrew word favours this interpretation, as well as the reference to choirs v.<sup>12</sup>. There is still less justification, from anything we know of Hebrew customs at sacrifice, to interpret it of the psalmist’s taking his place in the ring of worshippers around the altar.

7. This v. is a couplet of gloss.

To cause the sound of thanksgiving to be heard
And to tell of all Thy wondrous deeds.

This couplet is attached to v.<sup>6</sup> as an explanation of the march about the altar, to show that it was accompanied with song and music. The contents of the song were thanksgiving and praise; thanksgiving, sounding forth from human voices and musical instruments so as to be heard far and near. The wondrous deeds of Yahweh, especially in the redemption of His people, are what these Pss. of praise commonly tell. This addition is quite appropriate and in accordance with v.<sup>12</sup>; but it is hung on to v.<sup>6</sup> by an infinitive, so that it must go with v.<sup>5-6</sup>. It makes the Str. just these lines too long, as compared with other Strs.; and it is also overfull in statement as compared with the simplicity of thought and expression of the previous context. The motive of the addition was evidently to introduce the missing element of praise to Yahweh, and so make the Ps. more appropriate for public worship.

Str. IV. 8. I love the habitation of Thine house], that is, the divine abode itself in the temple, the Debir or Holy of Holies, behind the curtain of which Yahweh was conceived as in residence; and so syn. with place of the tabernacle of Thy glory]. The glory of the divine presence was centred there.

A late editor inserts a hexastich gloss—

Gather not my soul with sinners,
Or with men of blood my life;
In whose hands is an evil device,
And whose right hand is full of bribery.
Since I in mine integrity walk,
Redeem me and be gracious to me, (Yahweh).

This hexastich is composed of a tetrastich of two syn. couplets, the latter synth. to the first, followed by an antith. synth. couplet. This is also a gloss introduced for the purpose of making the Ps. more appropriate for public prayer.—9. Gather not], as the context shows in order to take away the soul in death || life, cf. 104<sup>29</sup>, antith. v.<sup>11b</sup> Redeem me, and its complement, be gracious to me. Yahweh is needed here for the measure, unless we are to regard v.<sup>11</sup> as a pentameter appended still later than v.<sup>9-10</sup>, without regard to the measure of the previous or subsequent context.—With sinners || men of blood], violent men who shrink not from bloodshed, implying a different set of men from the false and dissembling of v.<sup>4</sup>—10. In whose hand] emphasised in the parallel right hand, as stretched out to give an evil device, or plan. In the hand it is something tangible, defined by full of bribery, a gift of money, or jewels, or something valuable, to purchase immunity from crime. These are probably criminals who bribe, and not judges or rulers accepting bribes.—11. Since I in mine integrity walk], a repetition of v.<sup>1b</sup> in order to get an antith. with the blood-thirsty men, as a basis for the final plea for redemption. The construction is, however, changed from the perfect to the imperfect of the habit of life, and the whole is put in a circumstantial clause.

12. My foot doth stand in the level place]. This couplet is closely associated with v.<sup>8</sup> as its complement, although separated by the intervening gloss. The psalmist is standing on his feet in the levelled place of the court, where the sacrifices were made at the divine altar. — And in the choirs], the group of singers, who unite in the chorus of the benediction. This is more probable than assembly of worshippers in general, especially as I will bless Yahweh is not merely an attitude of the soul in worship, but doubtless refers to the benedictions as sung. These benedictions were sung in full chorus at the close of every Ps. or liturgical selection (v. Intr. § 40). We may either think of them or of the entire liturgy as sung by the choir.

PSALM XXVII.

Ps. 27 is composite. (1) A guest Ps. expresses confidence in Yahweh in time of war (v.<sup>1-3</sup>), and in the security afforded by the temple to worshippers (v.<sup>4-6</sup>). (2) An anxious petition urges Yahweh to answer prayer (v.<sup>7-8</sup>), not to forsake His servant (v.<sup>9</sup>), but to give instruction and deliverance (v.<sup>11-12</sup>). (3) Glosses adapt the Ps. for congregational worship (v.<sup>10, 12b, 13-14</sup>).

A. V.<sup>1-6</sup>, 2 STR. 6<sup>5</sup>.

YAHWEH, my light and my salvation, of whom shall I be afraid?

Yahweh, the refuge of my life, of whom shall I be in dread?

When evildoers drew near against me to eat up my flesh,

Those who were mine adversaries and enemies to me, stumbled and they fell.

Though a camp encamp against me, my heart will not be afraid;

Though battle rise up against me, I shall be trusting.

ONE thing I ask from Yahweh, that will I seek after;
 To gaze on the loveliness of Yahweh (in the morning) in His temple.
 For He will conceal me in His covert in the day of distress;
 Hide me in the hiding-place of His tent, (in straits) lift me up.
 Now therefore He will lift up mine head above mine enemies round about me;
 And I will sacrifice in His tent sacrifices of shouting to Yahweh.

B. v.<sup>7-9. 11-12</sup>, 3 STR. 4<sup>3</sup>.

HEAR, Yahweh, my voice.

I call, therefore be gracious to me and answer me.

To Thee said my heart:

"Thy face, Yahweh, (do) I seek."

HIDE not Thy face from me;

Turn not in anger (against me).

My help, abandon me not;

Forsake me not, my salvation.

IN Thy Way instruct me,

In an even path lead me;

Give me not over to the greed of mine adversary,

He that breatheth out violence to me.

Ps. 27 was in D. There is nothing else in the title of H, but G has in addition  $\pi\rho\delta\ \tau\omicron\upsilon\ \chi\rho\iota\sigma\theta\eta\eta\nu\alpha\iota$  ¶ priusquam liniretur. Jerome in his Commentary has antequam ungueretur; but says that it was not in H and omits it from I. Since Kenn. the Ps. has been generally regarded as composite, the second Ps. beginning v.<sup>7</sup>. So Horsley, Che., Kirk., Dy., Ew., Ols., Reu., De., al. As De. says: "Aber auch übrigens sind die zwei Hälften einander sehr unähnlich. Sie bilden ein Hysteronproteron, idem die fides triumphans der 1 in der 2 in fides supplex umschlägt und mit Beginn der δέησις v.<sup>7</sup> der Stil schwerfällig, die strophische Anlage unklar und sogar die Begrenzung der Verszeilen unsicher wird." The first Ps. v.<sup>1-6</sup> has two pentameter hexastichs. It was composed in time of war, when the army of the enemy was to be feared v.<sup>3</sup>. The enemies were national  $\text{אכל בשר}$  v.<sup>2</sup> as 14<sup>4</sup>. The refuge was the  $\text{היכל}$  v.<sup>4</sup>,  $\text{סכה}$  v.<sup>5a</sup>,  $\text{סתר אהל}$  v.<sup>5b</sup>. The worship was carried on by sacrifice  $\text{זבח}$  with  $\text{חרוּעָה}$  v.<sup>6</sup>.  $\text{לבקר}$  v.<sup>4</sup>, if a verb, is an Aramaism and implies postex. date; but it is doubtless a noun, in the morning, referring to morning sacrifice as 5<sup>4</sup>, and the  $\text{אור}$  of v.<sup>1</sup> may be compared with 4<sup>7</sup>. The Ps. is then preëxilic. The calm confidence in connection with extreme peril from enemies, apparently besieging the city, reminds us of the situation of Jerusalem in the time of Hezekiah and Isaiah, v. 2 K. 18-19. The second Ps., v.<sup>7-9. 11. 12</sup>, has three trimeter tetrastichs of prayer for deliverance. Nothing indicates any particular occasion. It was probably added to the first Ps. in the Persian period at the time of the editing of D in order to make this ancient Ps. appropriate for synagogue worship. The difficulties to which De. alludes are due to glosses of a still later date, adapting the Ps. by generalisation for later situations. (a) The forsaking of a person by his parents, v.<sup>10</sup>, suits a time of persecution such as the Maccabean period, when families were divided. (b) v.<sup>13-14</sup>, at the conclusion, seem to be an effort to harmonise the two parts by combining the elements of trust and petition. They bring the composite Ps. to a more appropriate conclusion. This was probably the work of the final editor.

Str. I. is composed of three syn. pentameter couplets, progressive one to another in their order. — 1. Yahweh], not probably, “is” EV<sup>a</sup>.; but vocative. — my light], light to me, that is light coming forth from the face of Yahweh, turned toward the people in favour, in accordance with the priestly blessing, Nu. 6<sup>24-26</sup>, cf. 4<sup>7</sup> 44<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>16</sup>; here conceived as in its source, the face of Yahweh being itself a light-giving body or luminary, as in 84<sup>12</sup> Yahweh is a sun. The light is a saving light, and so the source of it is, my salvation || refuge of my life], or for my life. The people seeking refuge in Yahweh found their life secure, safe from the enemy. — of whom], is therefore a triumphant challenge, implying a negative answer, of none. — shall I be afraid || be in dread]. However great the external reasons for fear, because of the numbers and strength of the enemies; under divine protection His people are sure that they are absolutely safe. We are reminded of the sublime challenge, Is. 37<sup>21-35</sup>. — 2. When evil doers], here as elsw. referring to cruel, ruthless enemies, who maltreat their foes; || mine adversaries || enemies to me], not private enemies, individuals; but public enemies engaged in war. — drew near against me], in hostility and probably to besiege. — to eat up my flesh], as in 14<sup>4</sup>, as beasts of prey to devour, consume utterly. What the enemies expected did not come to pass, but the reverse. The latter is reserved therefore for stronger antith. in the complementary section of the second line of the couplet. — stumbled], over obstacles they did not anticipate, and they fell, that is to the ground in defeat and death. — 3. Though a camp encamp against me], surround the people of God in siege, as the army of Assyrians, 2 K. 18<sup>17</sup> seq. It is better to preserve the identity of words in English than to use the syn. “host” EV<sup>a</sup>. — Though battle rise up against me]. The specific meaning is more probable here than the general meaning war. The battle was something to be feared as the consequence of the siege already begun. In these circumstances, justifying fear, my heart will not be afraid], resuming v.<sup>1</sup>;

but the reverse, I shall be trusting], the ptc. expressing the uninterrupted, unbroken continuance of the trust in Yahweh.

Str. II. is composed of two synth. couplets, and an intermediate syn. couplet. — 4. One thing], emph. at the beginning. He is confident of deliverance from the enemy; he need not ask for that; but there is one, and one only thing, he desires: I ask], emph. of present experience and not of past experience, or experience just completed. — that], resuming the one thing with the syn. vbs.: ask || seek after. — To gaze on], defining the one thing, the privilege of beholding steadfastly, contemplating with a joyous gaze, the loveliness of Yahweh], His glory as manifested to the devout mind in public worship. — in His temple], the place where Yahweh resides and where He manifests Himself to His worshippers. This worship, especially in early times, was chiefly in the morning, the chief time of sacrifice, as 5<sup>4</sup> 59<sup>17</sup> 88<sup>14</sup>. This Hebrew word has been interpreted, by a difference of vowel points, as a vb. which properly means “inquire” AV., RV.; but this is so unsuited to the context and so difficult to explain satisfactorily that Vrss. are compelled to resort to speculative mngs.: “visit” PBV., “consider” RV<sup>m</sup>., “contemplate” BDB.; some such meaning being required to suit the parall. A later editor, not satisfied with this designation of the one thing, proposes another, though similar thing, from 23<sup>6</sup>: dwell in the house of Yahweh all the days of my life, at the expense of the strophical organization. — 5. For He will conceal me || hide me], renewed expression of confidence. — in His covert || the hiding-place of His tent], both referring to the temple as a place of refuge; not that the enemy might capture the city, but be compelled to respect the sacred right of refuge in the temple; for no such respect for the temple appears among the historic enemies of Israel. The conception is rather that the temple is such a covert and hiding-place that it protects the entire city in which it is situated, so that God’s people, when they resort to the temple for worship, will be kept in safety from all enemies. Accordingly, this is definitely asserted, in the day of distress]. The siege has caused distress, notwithstanding the courage and confidence of the people. — in straits], as the parall. suggests; but an early editor has interpreted the Hebrew word by a different pointing, as “upon a rock”; and this has gone into Vrss. ancient and modern, introducing a thought which, however appropriate in itself, is difficult to reconcile with the context. The people have their refuge in the temple. The rock was the refuge of those who were pursued by enemies away from the city and temple, in the country, where by climbing a lofty rock they would be inaccessible. — lift me up], in victory, the same antith. to the previous vbs., as is found in the couplet v.<sup>2</sup>. — 6. Now therefore], logical sequence and not temporal. — He will lift up mine head above mine enemies], in victory, repeating the previous vb. in stair-like parall. in accordance with  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , PBV., Pss. 3<sup>4</sup> 110<sup>7</sup>, interpreting it as Hiphil of vb., which is much more probable than  $\mathfrak{H}$ , though sustained by other ancient and modern Vrss. “shall mine head be lifted up,” interpreting it as Qal. — round about me]. The enemies are besieging the city, in accordance with v.<sup>3</sup>; so most Vrss. to be preferred to  $\mathfrak{G}$ , interpreting it as vb. “go about in procession” as 26<sup>6</sup>, attaching it to the next line, at the expense of the measure of both lines. — And I will sacrifice] in the morning hour of worship, as v.<sup>4b</sup>. — in His tent], poetic for temple as v.<sup>5</sup>, including the court of the brazen altar, the place of sacrifice. — Sacrifices of shouting], sacrifices of peace-offerings in the form of thank-offerings for the victory granted by Yahweh, whose chief characteristic was feasting on the flesh of the victims together with bread and wine in joyful festivity, and therefore accompanied with the sacred shout to Yahweh. A later editor, at the expense of the measure, inserts two vbs.: “I will sing, yea I will sing psalms,” more appropriate to the fully developed temple service of later times.

PS. XXVII. B.

Str. I. is a syn. tetrastich. — 7. The first two lines are composed of usual phrases, v. 3<sup>5</sup> 4<sup>2,4</sup>. — I call] is attached by MT.,  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , and all Vrss., to the first line, usually as a relative or temporal clause; but they differ as regards the connection of my voice.  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , PBV. make it the object of hear, but AV., RV., and most moderns attach it to call. The former is required by the measure, and then it is better to attach call to the second line as the antecedent of the two vbs., and so the first trimeter couplet is simple and harmonious. — 8. To thee], emph., referring to Yahweh. — said my heart], a late expression instead of the usual "in my heart." We would expect at once what was said. — Thy face, Yahweh, do I seek], that is, resort to the temple, the place of the divine presence. This simple trimeter couplet was disturbed by an early marginal exclamation "seek ye My face." This marginal exhortation eventually, as in so many other cases, came into the text at the expense of the rhythm.

Str. II. is a syn. tetrastich. — 9. Hide not Thy face], in indifference, not looking at me, ignoring my need of Thee; || abandon me not || forsake me not]; so the intermediate, turn not, as G, J, interpreting the verb as Qal. But H followed by EV<sup>a</sup>. and most moderns interpret it as Hiphil, "cast away" PBV.; "put away" AV., RV. None of these has any sure warrant in Hebrew usage, and all are against the parall. — in anger against me], so probably in the original. But as often "Thy servant" has been substituted for "me" by an editor. This is more natural than to take "servant" as obj. of verb, in accordance with the interpretation rejected above, or "from Thy servant" of G, J, which requires the insertion of a preposition in the original text. — my help || my salvation]: the assertion of past experience is the basis of the plea.

10. When my father and my mother have forsaken me], as PBV., AV. is more probable than "for" RV., though sustained by G, J. It is then the protasis with perfect of vb. This most naturally is to be referred to a time of religious persecution, such as the times of Antiochus and the early Maccabees, when families were divided, and subsequently when parties in Israel became bitterly antagonistic even in families, an idea hardly suited to the Ps. in this context. The apodosis is: then will Yahweh take me up]. This is a late meaning of the Hebrew word. The verse may be regarded as a pentameter, but more probably is a mere prose sentence. In either case it does not correspond with the rhythm of the simple trimeter in which it is embedded, or the construction of its Strs. This verse is therefore a gloss, not earlier than the Maccabean period.

Str. III. is composed of two syn. couplets in antith. — 11. In Thy way instruct me]. In 25<sup>8, 12</sup>, this phr. refers to the Deuteronomic legislation; but that does not suit the present context, which suggests rather a way of safety from enemies. This is favoured by the || In an even path lead me], a path leading to a level place, a place upon which one can stand securely. This was certainly the interpretation of the glossator, who at the expense of the measure, added from, 5<sup>9</sup>: because of those lying in wait for me. — 12. Give me not over], taking up the abandonment of v.<sup>9</sup> and putting it in another syn. form. — to the greed]. The soul of the adversaries, as the seat of greedy desire, is all greed. Parallel with this is, he that breatheth out], the greed is expressed by excited, eager, hot breath. The greed of soul is expressed in violence of word and deed. The same glossator, probably, as the one who inserted v.<sup>10</sup>, also inserted between the two lines of the couplet the words: For false witnesses have risen up against me, which suits quite well the situation in the strife of parties in the Maccabean times.

13–14. An editor, probably earlier than the glossator mentioned above, possibly the one who combined the prayer with the original Ps., made that combination more appropriate by summing up the essential ideas of both parts in these verses.

I believe that I shall look on the good things of Yahweh in the land of the living.
Wait on Yahweh. Be strong and let thy heart take courage.

¶ “unless” followed by EV<sup>s</sup>. is marked in MT. as doubtful by extraordinary points, and it is not justified by most ancient Vrss.

13. I believe,] emphatic present with infin. const. of obj. — that I shall look on the good things of Yahweh], those given by Yahweh; which takes the place of the loveliness of Yahweh of v.<sup>4</sup> as a practical interpretation of it. — in the land of the living] : cf. 142<sup>6</sup>, as distinguished from the realm of the dead, emphasising continuance of life on the earth. This also generalises the more specific and devout thought of v.<sup>4</sup>. — 14. Wait on Yahweh], in faith, confidence, and hope; paraphrased in PBV. “the Lord’s leisure”; repeated at the close of the verse for emphasis, probably added by a much later hand. As the previous line expressed the confidence of the first Ps. by the perfect of the vb., this line expresses the prayer of the second Ps. by imperatives: Be strong, intensified in, let thine heart take courage], cf. 31<sup>25</sup>, which is a more probable interpretation of the vb., as ס, י, RV., Dr., Kirk., al., than PBV. "He shall comfort thine heart," interpreting the vb. as apodosis of imv. and giving it a causative force.

Toy renders make inquiry. The proper mng. of the vb. is improper here. What was he to seek in the temple syn. with gaze? BDB. contemplate suits context, but Toy says there is no authority for such a rendering. Point it therefore לְבֹקֶר in the morning, the hour of prayer, as 5<sup>4</sup> 59<sup>17</sup> 88<sup>14</sup>. — 5. כִּי is causal and the vbs. are futures. — סִכָּה Qr. סִכָּה [סִכָּה] thicket, covert, lair (v. 10<sup>9</sup>) not suited to context; better Kt. סִכָּה booth, a refuge in storm, as 18<sup>12</sup>. — בְּיוֹם רָעָה in the day of distress, as 41<sup>2</sup> (v. 21<sup>12</sup>). — בְּסִתְרִי אֶהְיֶה phr. α.λ., but סִתְרִי hiding-place (v. 18<sup>12</sup>). אֶהְיֶה tent, for the temple. — בְּצֹרִי (v. 18<sup>2</sup>) not suited to the situation in the courts of the temple, though צָר is sustained by ancient Vrss. Rd. בְּצָר in straits. An ancient editor interpreted it as צָר and wrote it fully צָר. — 6. וְנִקְלִי not temporal, but logical (v. 2<sup>10</sup>). — יִירָא Qal impf. יִירָא; but ס, י, PBV., יִירָא Hiph. more prob. in accord, with previous context, as 3<sup>4</sup> 110<sup>7</sup>. — סִבְיָתִי יִירָא and all Vrss. except ס, י, as 18<sup>12</sup> 79<sup>3</sup> (v. 3<sup>7</sup>). It then has two tones as the complement of the line. ס rd. vb. סִבְיָתִי Polel pf. 1 s. go about in procession, as 26<sup>6</sup> (v. 17<sup>11</sup>), and attached it to next vb., which is then interpreted as consec. impf.; but the obj. of vb. in this sense could hardly be missing, and no adjustment of the measure is practicable. — וְנִקְלִי v. coörd., with Qal cohort. expressing resolution. For וְנָח vb. and noun, v. 4<sup>8</sup>. — תְּרִיעָה n.f. shout, in ψ (1) religious shout in temple, in connection with sacrifices; so here, 33<sup>8</sup> 47<sup>6</sup> 89<sup>16</sup>; (2) clashing, of cymbals 150<sup>5</sup>; cf. vb. רָעַע, v. 41<sup>12</sup>. The l. needs a word to complete its measure. That is probably לִיחֹה. Then מְשַׁיְרָה and מְאֻסְרָה are expansive gls.

XXVII. B.

7. A new measure, trimeter; and doubtless another Ps. begins here, which was pieced on to the previous Ps.; cf. But Vrss. had a different text: 𐤒<sup>B</sup> ἐξέζητῆσα τὸ πρὸς ὤμους σου, so Roman Psalter quaesivi faciem tuam, פָּנַי בְּקִשְׁתִּי; 𐤕 exquisivit te facies mea, 𐤓 quaesivit vultus meus, so Σ and 𐤒<sup>N</sup> c. a. T. and 98 other codd., HP. Compl., Theodoret, בְּקִשְׁתִּי פָנַי. 𐤒 has the shorter text פָּנַי בְּקִשְׁתִּי and attaches יְהוָה to the next l. The latter is tempting, but improbable. All but 𐤒 agree in this l., which is entirely appropriate to context. All but 𐤒 in the oldest codd. agree in פָּנַי בְּקִשְׁתִּי which is best explained in 𐤕 and then regarded as a marginal pious gl. — 9. [אֶל־הַשֵּׁשׁ בָּאֵף עֲבָרָה] phr. a.λ. and difficult. Vb. Hiph. of 𐤕 improb. 𐤒, 𐤕, 𐤓, take it as Qal, as if with מעבִּיר, so Horsley. עֲבָרָה is prob. a later substitution for בִּי, which is required by rhyme. The vb. is best interpreted as Qal. — [עֲוִירָתִי] emph. (v. 22<sup>20</sup>). — [הָיִיתִי] aorist of past experience in order to get a basis for plea. It makes the l. too long and is gl. — [אֶל־הַתְּשֻׁנָּה] juss. with neg., two tones. † נִשְׁחַל, vb. [וַיְהוֹה] emph. — [יִאֲסָפֵנִי] Qal impf. אָסַף in sense of take up, care for, late (v. 26<sup>9</sup>). This v. is a general statement, not in accord with the urgent petition of the psalmist in a real situation of difficulty. It has five tones and is not in accord with the rhythm. It disturbs the strophical organisation. It is a generalising gl. to make the Ps. more appropriate for synagogue worship, when such breaking up of families took place as in Maccabean times. — 11. [בְּאֶרְחָ מִישׁוֹר] phr. a.λ.; for אֶרְחָ v. 8<sup>9</sup>, מִישׁוֹר v. 26<sup>12</sup>. — [לִמְעַן שִׁירֵי] gl. from 5<sup>9</sup>, which was in the mind of the copyist. The vbs. שִׁירֵי, were originally at end of line for rhyme in י, characteristic of the Ps. — 12. [עָרִי] pl. sf. i.p. This clause disturbs the thought and is a gl. — [יִמָּח] dub., BDB. adj. † יִמָּח a.λ. √ יָמַח only Je. 4<sup>81</sup>, both dub.; better n. formed by י from יָמַח, which vb. is used in 𐤕, Pss. 10<sup>6</sup> 12<sup>6</sup>, in the same sense as here. — 13. the measure requires another word with the previous clause. לֹלֵא is probably a conflation of two readings, לִי and לֵא. But the original was doubtless לִי in rhyme, as all other lines of this Ps. The Ps. is complete here. The remaining lines are liturgical additions. — [בְּרָצָה חַיִּים] phr. elsw. in 52<sup>7</sup> 142<sup>6</sup> Is. 38<sup>11</sup> 53<sup>8</sup> Je. 11<sup>19</sup> Ez. 26<sup>20</sup> 32<sup>28</sup> (+ 5 t. PSALM XXVIII., 3 STR. 4<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 28 is a prayer: (1) expostulating with Yahweh for abandoning His people in peril of death, and crying aloud for help, with hands uplifted towards the holy shrine (v.<sup>1-2</sup>); (2) urging that He discriminate between them and their enemies, visiting the latter with retribution for their deeds (v.<sup>3-4</sup>); (3) blessing Yahweh, the strength and shield, and rejoicing in Him as the refuge for king and people (v.<sup>6-8</sup>). Glosses give a reason for the imprecation upon enemies (v.<sup>5</sup>) and a liturgical petition for salvation (v.<sup>9</sup>).

UNTO Thee I call, my Rock: be not silent (turning) from me;
Lest, if Thou be still (turning) from me, I be compared to them that go down to the Pit.

Hear the voice of my supplication for grace, while I cry unto Thee for help;
While I lift up my hands, (my God) unto Thy holy Shrine.

DRAW me not away with the wicked, and with workers of trouble;
Who are speaking peace with their neighbours, while wrong is in their minds.
O give them according to their deed, and according to the badness of their doings;
According to the work of their hands, render them their recompense.

BLESSED be Yahweh, because He hath heard the word of my supplication for grace!

Yahweh, my strength and my shield, in whom my heart doth trust!
And I am helped, and my heart doth exult, therefore with my song will I praise Him,

Yahweh, the strength (for His people), and the refuge for victorious deeds for His anointed.

Ps. 28 was in B. It received two important glosses: (1) v.<sup>5</sup>, a mosaic from Is. 5<sup>12</sup> and Je. 24<sup>6</sup> 42<sup>10</sup> 45<sup>4</sup>; (2) v.<sup>9</sup>, a liturgical addition. The Ps. is a prayer for help in time of war, closing with a certitude of victory. It resembles Pss. 20, 21: מְשִׁיחוֹ v.<sup>7</sup> = 20<sup>7</sup>; עֵן v.<sup>7.8</sup> = 21<sup>2.14</sup>; יְשׁוּעוֹת v.<sup>7</sup> = 21<sup>2.6</sup>; שִׁיר v.<sup>7</sup> = 21<sup>14</sup>. The lifting up of hands towards the רִבִּי v.<sup>2</sup>, is similar in situation to the sacrifices offered in 20<sup>4</sup>. The Davidic monarchy was still in existence v.<sup>8</sup>, and the temple worship was carried on v.<sup>2</sup>. The wicked are foreign enemies who are treacherous, professing peace, but really bent on mischief v.<sup>3</sup>. The situation is one of extreme peril. The nation is in danger of perishing.

וַיִּרְרֵי בּוֹר<sup>1</sup> is a phrase, of which no earlier usage can be assigned than Ez. and the exilic apocalypse Is. 14. The Pit is the Pit of Sheol. We are led to think, therefore, of the late Babylonian period shortly before the exile. The king was probably Jehoiakim. The wicked nations were probably the Moabites, Ammonites, and Syrians of 2 K. 24<sup>2</sup>.

Str. I. is composed of two stair-like couplets. — 1. Unto Thee], emph. in position, Thee, and no other, defined by my Rock, which in the earlier literature is a divine name; but which has become in the time of composition of this Ps. a concrete expression for Yahweh as the safe refuge of His people (v. 19<sup>15</sup> 73<sup>26</sup> 92<sup>16</sup> 144<sup>1</sup>), an idea taken up again in syn. phrases in v. 7-8. A later editor inserted Yahweh, at the expense of the measure. — I call], emphatic present, what is now being done, and not as EV<sup>a</sup>. “will call” future action. — be not silent], changed in the syn. line into a conditional clause, if Thou be still; that is ignoring, neglecting the prayer, and the serious situation of the people. These verbs have a pregnant construction in Hebrew involving the insertion of an appropriate verb turning from me. — I be compared to], not only become like, resemble, but in the eyes of others, before the enemies, be compared to the other nations they have conquered and destroyed. — that go down to the Pit]. The Pit is the deep dark dungeon in Sheol, to which the wicked nations descend, according to Is. 14<sup>15, 19</sup> Ez. 26<sup>20</sup> 32<sup>25, 29, 30</sup>, cf. Ps. 7<sup>16</sup>, and not another name for Sheol itself. So the people of God would lose their national existence, just like the other nations destroyed by the Babylonian empire, unless Yahweh their God saved them. — 2. Hear the voice of my supplication for grace]. The prayer is a supplication for favour and bestowal of gracious deliverance. It is aloud, the voice of the petitioners sounding forth in the court of the temple in plaintive tones; defined by while I cry unto Thee for help. These public prayers, recited aloud by priests and people, doubtless, as always, accompanied the sacrifice of whole burnt-offerings in the courts, and the burning of incense in the temple itself. At the same time, the attitude of supplication is expressed in the gesture, I lift up my hands, the ancient and natural attitude of invocation and supplication, stretching forth the hands to call and to receive. So in La. 3<sup>41</sup> “Let us lift up our heart to our hands unto God in the heavens.” The heart goes up to the uplifted hands and from them upward to God in heaven. But to the author of La. there was no temple; it had been destroyed. This Ps. was, however, sung in the temple, and the hands were lifted up towards the place where Yahweh was conceived as resident. — Unto Thy holy Shrine], the Debir, the throne room, otherwise called the Holy of Holies of the temple. The measure requires the insertion of My God, which was omitted by copyist's mistake, due to the similarity of the Hebrew word with the preposition that follows.

Str. II. is composed of a synth. couplet and one of introverted parallel. — 3. Drag me not away]. The petition for discrimination between the people of Yahweh and the nations that have perished, or are ready to perish, at the hands of the Babylonian empire, now passes over into a plea for discrimination between them and the minor surrounding nations, who are in similar peril, lest they be involved in the common ruin. Israel would not be dragged along and away as captives with them. — with the wicked]. These are, as frequently in the preëxilic Pss., wicked nations || workers of trouble, the trouble, mischief, injury that they were doing to the people of God in their extremity. They are also treacherous, speaking peace with their neighbours]. They pretended to be friendly and in alliance against a common foe; but in reality they were hostile, ready to betray Israel on the first opportunity. — wrong is in their minds], their real intent was to take advantage of the troubles of Israel, to unite with their enemies and prey upon them. This is exactly what Moab and Ammon, the Syrians and Edomites, did, according to 2 K. 24<sup>2</sup>; cf. also Ez. 25 for the prophet's denunciation of them. — 4. O give them || render them their recompense], an imprecation, in introverted parallel., not upon individuals, but upon the treacherous, cruel, neighbouring nations, calling upon Yahweh to give them exact retribution. — according to their deed || the badness of their doings || the work of their hands], the treachery of which they have been guilty and the trouble which they have wrought upon His people. A later editor feels constrained to add a reason for this imprecation, which was evident enough to the author of the Ps. in the historical situation in which he wrote, but not so evident in later times: — 5. Because they regard not the works of Yahweh, nor the operation of His hands,

He breaketh them down and buildeth them not again]. The first of these clauses is a free citation from Is. 5<sup>12</sup>, contrasting the work of Yahweh's hands with the work of the hands of the wicked nations, and His work with their work; with the implication that, if they had paid attention to His work they would not have done their work, and because of this neglect, retribution comes upon them. The second clause is a free citation of a favourite expression of Je. 24<sup>6</sup> 42<sup>10</sup> 45<sup>4</sup>. Yahweh will break them down, destroy their national existence, and not build them up again; their ruin will be complete and final.

Str. III. is a tetrastich with introverted parallel. It expresses certitude that the previous petition has been granted, and that by using again the exact words of v.<sup>2a</sup>. This certitude was probably due, as in Ps. 20, to some external evidence, given either by a prophetic utterance, or by some sign of the acceptance of the sacrifice; and so the Ps. changes its entire tone to a blessing.—6-7. Blessed be Yahweh]. Such benedictions subsequently became the ritual conclusion of every Ps. or liturgical selection (v. Intr., § 40). Yahweh is repeated for emphasis in the second line in order to attach to Him, in apposition, the attributes already involved in "my Rock" v.<sup>1</sup>, namely, my strength and my shield. This phrase, only found here, combines the usual conceptions that Yahweh is the source of strength to His people (v. 21<sup>1</sup> 46<sup>2</sup> 84<sup>6</sup>), and that He is the shield, interposing between them and their enemies (as 3<sup>4</sup> 7<sup>11</sup> 18<sup>3</sup>).—in whom my heart doth trust]. The calm confidence to which the psalmist has now come, is in striking antithesis to the expostulation for neglect and the cry for help with which it begins.—And I am helped], the help has been given and is now enjoyed, and as a necessary consequence, my heart doth exult]. The trust of the heart has passed over into exultation, and the vow, with my song will I praise Him], the song of thanksgiving which is to accompany a thank-offering for the victory over enemies, now regarded as certain. The whole is summed up in the common experience of king and people.—8. Yahweh], in apposition with the object of the previous verb, and not an independent clause; and therefore having in apposition, as v.<sup>7</sup>, and not as predicates, the strength, as v.<sup>7</sup>, explained more fully as the refuge.—victorious deeds], from whom deeds of victory come as a gift, as in 21<sup>2</sup>. — for His people], the nation, as  $\mathfrak{E}$ ; but  $\mathfrak{H}$ , by error, has “for them,” which must have the same interpretation, although there is nothing to which the 3d plural refers. — for His anointed], their king, anointed by Yahweh over His people, and so His representative, belonging to Him as His own.

9. When the Ps. was adapted for public worship, probably in the final Psalter, a liturgical addition was made in order to generalise this warlike situation. This is a tetrameter couplet. — O save], in the later situation more probable than “give victory,” which would be necessary in accordance with v.<sup>8</sup> if original to the Psalm. But then we miss the reference to “Thine anointed,” which would be expected rather than “Thy people,” as in v.<sup>8</sup>; || thine inheritance, which also must refer to the people, conceived as the special divine possession. The absence of reference to the king here can hardly be explained otherwise than that this couplet was appended when Israel had been so long without a king that it was not natural to think of him any more. — And be Thou shepherd], and as a shepherd lifts up and carries in his bosom the lambs of the flock, carry them forever. The author probably had in mind Yahweh the shepherd of Is. 40<sup>11</sup>.

Ps. 29 is a hymn, describing the advent of Yahweh in a storm. (1) The angels worship Yahweh in the heavenly temple (v.<sup>1-2</sup>); (2) the thunder of Yahweh's voice is a great power (a) on the waters (v.<sup>3-4</sup>); (b) upon Lebanon and its cedars (v.<sup>5-6</sup>); (c) upon the wilderness and its forests (v.<sup>8-9</sup>); (3) Yahweh, enthroned over the Flood, reigns forever and bestows blessings on His people (v.<sup>10-11</sup>).

- ASCRIBE to Yahweh, ye sons of gods,
 Ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength;
 Ascribe to Yahweh the glory of His name;
 Render worship to Yahweh in holy ornaments.
- THE voice of Yahweh is upon the waters,
 (The voice of) Yahweh is upon great waters;
 The voice of Yahweh is in power,
 The voice of Yahweh is in majesty.
- THE voice of Yahweh breaketh cedars,
 Yahweh breaketh in pieces the cedars of Lebanon.
 And He maketh Lebanon skip like a calf,
 Sirion like a young yore-ox.
- THE voice of Yahweh whirleth the wilderness about,
 Yahweh whirleth about the wilderness of Kadesh.
 The voice of Yahweh whirleth about the (terebinths),
 (The voice of Yahweh) strippeth bare the forests.
- YAHWEH sat enthroned (over) the Flood,
 Yahweh (will sit) enthroned forever;
 Yahweh giveth strength to His people,
 Yahweh blesseth His people with peace.

Ps. 29 was in D and M (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). In G a liturgical assignment appears ἐξᾠδου σακεῖς, the עֲצֶרֶת, coming in the Jewish year the next day after the seventh day of Tabernacles, so Bar Hebraeus. But the earliest Palestinian tradition knows nothing of this. Sofrim, c. 18, § 3, assigns it to Pentecost. The Ps. for the עֲצֶרֶת is 65 (v. De., Psalmen, pp. 266–267). The advent of Yahweh in a storm may be compared with 18<sup>8sq.</sup> בני אֱלֹהִים angels, v.<sup>1</sup> = 89<sup>7</sup>, cf. Jb. 38<sup>7</sup>, implies the influence of Persian angelology. הַרְרָה קִדְשׁ v.<sup>2</sup>, the holy ornament, or vestment of angelic priests, implies a fully developed priesthood as expressed in P. The use of מְבוֹר v.<sup>10</sup> for the ancient Flood is also in accordance with P. V.<sup>1-2</sup> are cited in 96<sup>7-9a</sup> except that מִשְׁפַּחַת עֲמִים is used for בני אֱלֹהִים, an intentional change. Ps. 29 must be earlier than this royal Ps., which is used in 1 Ch. 16<sup>23sq.</sup> The Ps. seems to belong to the Persian period subsequent to Nehemiah.

Str. I. The parall. of this tetrastich is stairlike; though syn. in the main, each line gives an additional idea.—1-2. Ascribe to Yahweh], thrice repeated; the recognition of Yahweh and the giving utterance to this recognition in worship.—Render worship] expressed usually by bowing down or prostration.—ye sons of gods], a term for angels as belonging to the class of divine beings; and yet in Hebrew conception the servants and worshippers of Yahweh, cf. Ps. 89<sup>7</sup> Jb. 38<sup>7</sup>. That which is ascribed is glory and strength, the former intensified in the next line, the glory of His name], manifested in His revelation of Himself in His name, or that which is made known and is known of Him. The latter is the theme of praise as 8<sup>8</sup>, and so in G conceived as the praise itself.—in holy ornaments]. The angels are conceived after the manner of ministering priests in the earthly temple as clothed in sacred vestments.

Three tetrastichs describe the voice of Yahweh, the thunder-storm, in its effects upon nature, upon the sea, the mountains, and the wilderness. Str. II. The thunder-storm is first described on the sea.—3-4. The voice of Yahweh], eight times repeated in the original, but omitted by copyists in v.<sup>3c</sup>, v.<sup>9b</sup>, inserted in gloss v.<sup>7</sup>, leaving seven times, the symbolical holy number. In accordance with ancient conceptions the thunder is the voice of God. Yahweh descends in theophany to earth, in a storm, either for vengeance upon His enemies or for the deliverance of His people, v. 18<sup>8sq.</sup>.—upon the waters || upon great waters], in accordance with usage of the phrase, the waters of the Mediterranean Sea, producing, as is suggested, by in power || in majesty, powerful, majestic waves, cf. 93<sup>4</sup>. An ancient scribe inserted an explanatory gloss in different measure: "The God of glory thundered," which destroys the symmetry of the Str. — Str. III. 5-6. The thunder-storm is next described in the mountains. — breaketh], is intensified into, breaketh in pieces the cedars], intensified into cedars of Lebanon, the giant trees growing in that region, famed in antiquity. The storm is of such extreme violence that it breaks off the limbs, breaks down the trees themselves and breaks them in pieces. — He maketh to skip], implying an earthquake accompanying the storm, as 18<sup>8sq.</sup> 114<sup>4-6</sup> as usual in connection with theophanies. It shakes the mountains on which the cedars grew. H, G, and all Vrss. make the obj. them refer to cedars, which would not be harmonious with breaking them in pieces. The suffix is therefore a copyist's error. Lebanon is the object in this line, as Sirion in the next. — Lebanon], the range of mountains along the coast dividing Syria from Phoenicia. — Sirion], the Phoenician name for Mt. Hermon, the giant of the parallel range of Anti-Lebanon, as Dt. 3<sup>9</sup>. These great mountain ranges skip and dance about under the power of the earthquake; like a calf || a young yore-ox], leaping and dancing about when they are excited.

7. The voice of Yahweh divideth the flames of fire], so G, V, J, PBV., AV., referring doubtless to the forked lightning; but H, followed by RV<sup>m</sup>., has "heweth out," which is difficult to understand and is probably erroneous. This line, in any case, interrupts the thought, is isolated, having no place in the strophical organisation of the Ps., and is a gloss.

Str. IV. 8-9b. The author now turns to the wilderness to describe the storm there. — whirleth about], thrice repeated, an appropriate term for the whirling effect of a severe storm; so G. J takes the alternate meaning of the vb. "make writhe," in pangs, especially of childbirth, so Dr. for the three. It is improbable that the meaning would change. The difficulty is in the Hebrew word rendered "hinds," which seems to favour the latter rendering, the thought being that the storm so frightens them that it brings a premature delivery. But it is difficult to see why hinds should be mentioned rather than other animals, or why they should be mentioned alone, when this Ps. is so striking in the use of parallelism.

It seems better therefore to read by a different interpretation of the same original form, terebinths, and so || with forests; the former being the great trees characteristic of this region. This makes the entire Str. simple and harmonious. The power of the storm is emphasised in whirling them about. — strippeth bare], the leaves, boughs, and probably also barks of trees. — the wilderness], as we would suppose from the antith. to Lebanon would be in the South, the wilderness of the wanderings, when Israel came up out of Egypt; more specifically Kadesh, that part of the wilderness which centres in the ancient sacred place, where Israel sojourned a long time prior to their entrance into the Holy Land, elsewhere known as Kadesh Barnea.

9c. A copyist introduced a line, taking up in part the ideas of the first Str.: and in His temple, probably referring to the heavenly temple, although this is not certain; especially as all of them H, all G, I, seems to refer to the angels, and saith glory is a repetition of v.<sup>1b-2a</sup>. But the difficulty which then arises is, that this line comes in here without any apparent propriety. It has no manner of connection with the twelve previous lines, making three tetrastichs, and none with the tetrastich that follows. The original author, if he wished to introduce that thought, would have used a tetrastich for that purpose. It is evidently a liturgical gloss, and in that case may refer to the earthly temple. Doubtless the thought is an appropriate one, if it were expressed in the style and method of the author of the Ps. As Umbreit says, "Whilst we still hear the voice of the Lord in the rushing of the storm through the forests stripped of their leaves, the poet snatches us away at once from the tumult of earth, and places us amid the choirs of the heavenly temple, which above, in a holy silence, sing glory and praise to the Eternal." But the difficulty is that this idea is not clearly brought out, and the single line tacked on here is too indefinite to give such a grand conception.

Str. V. 10-11 describes Yahweh on His throne bestowing strength and blessing on His people in a stairlike tetrastich. — Yahweh] is repeated four times, once in each line, in accordance with the style of the Ps. — sat enthroned], historical aorist. — over the Flood], so by an easy emendation of a separable preposition for an inseparable one, regaining thereby the lost tone for the measure. The inseparable preposition might be rendered, "at the Flood" RV.; but ח, א, give it a local sense which is more probable. — will sit enthroned ], future, in accordance with ח, א, which is more probable than ה with ו consec., making the second use of the vb. of the same tense as the first, which can hardly be reconciled with forever. There is indeed an antith. between His reigning in the past, at the time of the greatest of all traditional storms, the Flood, directing and controlling it, as He did the storm described above, and His perpetual reign in the future. The reign of Yahweh is here conceived of as on earth, and so we have an antistrophe to v.<sup>1-2</sup>, the worship in the heavenly temple. Accordingly as the King of Israel, He giveth to His people || blesseth them with the gifts of strength and peace. The storm has passed away and the last word of the Ps. is peace. "The beginning of the Psalm shows us the heavens open and the throne of God in the midst of the angelic songs of praise, and the close of the Psalm shows us on earth, in the midst of the angry voice of Yahweh shaking all things, His people victorious and blessed with peace. Gloria in excelsis is the beginning, and pace in terris the end." De.

Ps. 96<sup>7-9a</sup> is the same as 29<sup>1-2</sup>, except that מִשְׁמַחַח עַמִּים takes the place of בְּנֵי אֱלֹהִים, and a line is inserted 96<sup>8b</sup>. It should be said that חזרות is more suited to 96<sup>9</sup>, and there is no more impropriety in thinking of the courts of the heavenly temple, where angels worship, than of the heavenly temple itself. At the same time there is no usage to justify it. 2 Ch. 20<sup>21</sup> justifies ה, and as the more difficult reading it is to be preferred. — 3-4. עָלֵהְךָ || עָלֵהְךָ rd. for עָלֵהְךָ to get the fourth beat, and prefix קוֹל to יְהוָה in v.<sup>3c</sup> as in 4a.<sup>b</sup>. Point ו conj. and future as ח, י, Che., וַיִּשָּׁב. It is prob. that the order was, as in the other lines, יְהוָה יָשָׁב.

PSALM XXX., 4 STR. 4<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 30 is a thanksgiving: (1) exalting Yahweh for raising up the nation from death (v.<sup>2-4</sup>); (2) contrasting the momentary anger of Yahweh with the lifetime of his favour (v.<sup>6-8</sup>); (3) giving the plea that had been made for deliverance (v.<sup>9-11</sup>); in order to the climax; (4) the contrast of the previous mourning with the present gladness expressed in festal dances and songs of thanksgiving (v.<sup>12-13</sup>). The glosses (v.<sup>3-5, 7</sup>) adapt the Ps. to more general use.

I EXALT Thee, Yahweh, for Thou hast drawn me up;

And hast not let mine enemies be glad, even mine.

Yahweh, out of Sheol, Thou hast brought me up,

From among them that go down to the Pit, Thou hast quickened me.

A MOMENT (passeth) in anger; a lifetime in favour;

At even weeping cometh in to lodge; but in the morning a shout of joy.

In favour Thou didst cause (mine honour) to stand firm in strength;

Didst Thou hide Thy face, I became dismayed.

UNTO Thee I was crying, and unto (my God) I was making supplication for favour:

"What profit is there in my blood, when I go down to the Pit?

Will the dust praise Thee, declare Thy faithfulness?

Hear and be gracious, become helper to me."

THOU hast turned my mourning into dancing for me,

Thou didst loose my sackcloth and gird me with gladness;

That my glory might make melody to Thee and not be still.

Yahweh, my God, forever will I give thanks to Thee.

Ps. 30 was in D and later in M (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). A liturgical assignment appears in שִׁיר חֲנֻכָּה הַבַּיִת. It is evident that this cannot refer to the house of David, 2 S. 5<sup>11</sup>, as G<sup>B</sup>. τοῦ Δαυὶδ (but τῷ Δαυὶδ G<sup>N.A.R.U</sup>); the texts of J also differ); or to the site of the temple, 1 Ch. 21<sup>28</sup> sq. 22<sup>1</sup>, whether the temple of Solomon, or the second temple, Ezr. 6<sup>16</sup>, even if the composition of the Ps. could be put so early; but it is a liturgical assignment to the Feast of Dedication, instituted by Judas Maccabaeus 165 B.C. to commemorate the purification of the temple after its desecration by Antiochus Epiphanes, 1 Mac. 4<sup>52</sup> sq. 2 Mac. 10<sup>1</sup> sq., mentioned as observed Jn. 10<sup>22</sup>. This is indeed the liturgical use of the Ps. according to Sopherim, c. 18, § 2 (v. Intr. § 39). G has also εἰς τὸ τέλος = לְמַנְצָה (but not in G<sup>N.A.T</sup>). Such an insertion would be more difficult than its omission by scribal error. It is indeed the kind of Ps. we should expect to be taken up into DB (v. Intr. § 33). The Ps. is exceedingly poetic in conception and also in form, after the glosses have been removed. It is artistic, arranged on the scheme of four tones, four lines, and four strophes. The glosses v.<sup>3.5.7</sup> make it more appropriate for liturgical use. The Ps. is national and not individual. The use of ירר בור v.<sup>4</sup>, and ירר שחת v.<sup>10</sup>, is not earlier than Ez., referring to the resurrection of the nation from the death of the Exile. V.<sup>8</sup> resembles 18<sup>34</sup>; v.<sup>10</sup>, Is. 38<sup>18</sup>, cf. Ps. 6<sup>6</sup>; כבורי, v.<sup>13</sup> = נפשי, characteristic of Pss. 7<sup>6</sup> 16<sup>9</sup> 57<sup>9</sup> 108<sup>2</sup>, all III. V.<sup>8b</sup> = 104<sup>20a</sup>. V.<sup>5b</sup> = 97<sup>12b</sup>; but the latter is probably original, this v. in our Ps. being a gl. It is probable that v.<sup>6a</sup> depends upon Is. 54<sup>7-8</sup>; and v.<sup>12</sup> upon Je. 31<sup>13</sup>; and therefore the Ps. must belong to the Restoration; then not to the earlier days of distress and trial from enemies, but to the more prosperous times subsequent to Nehemiah, when the nation had revived and its perils were past.

Str. I. is a tetrastich, syn. in the first, third, and fourth lines; but the second line is synth. to them all. — 2-4. I exalt Thee, Yahweh], cf. Ex. 15<sup>21</sup> Ps. 34<sup>3</sup>, in thanksgiving and praise; resumed in v.<sup>13</sup>, the last word of the Ps. "I will give thanks to Thee," thus enclosing the whole Ps. within this resolution, making it a song of thanksgiving. — for Thou hast drawn me up], from what, is not mentioned here, so that some think of a cistern, or pit, in accordance with Je. 38<sup>6-13</sup>, misled by the gloss v.<sup>3</sup>, which separates v.<sup>2</sup> from its syn. v.<sup>4</sup>, where this clause is taken up and defined in the clause: out of Sheol Thou hast brought me up; the conception being not of peril of death to the individual or nation, from which Yahweh had delivered him; but of real death, the nation having in fact suffered death in its exile and gone down into Sheol, the abode of the nations destroyed by their conquerors, in accordance with the conception of Ez. 37. This is also sustained by the constant usage of the phrase: them that go down to the Pit], referring to conquered nations descending to the Pit in Sheol, under the wrath of God against them as His enemies and the enemies of His people. And accordingly we must render the parallel Hebrew word, not "kept me alive" EV<sup>s</sup>, but *quicken*ed, restored to life, revived; referring to the nation in exile, already dead in Sheol. This Str. has an unusual kind of parall., in that the two lines of v.<sup>4</sup> are syn. with v.<sup>2a</sup> whereas v.<sup>2b</sup> is synth. not only to v.<sup>2a</sup> but also to v.<sup>4</sup> as well. — And hast not let mine enemies be glad], because of the final overthrow and death of the Jewish people. — even mine], emphasising the enemies as personal enemies to the nation. "Over me," EV<sup>s</sup>, is indeed implied in the sentence, but is not expressed, and certainly is not a proper translation of the original, which I have rendered as above.

3. Yahweh, my God, I cried unto Thee for help, and Thou didst heal me]. This is a pentameter line in the midst of tetrameters, and is difficult to adjust to the other lines in any scheme of parall. It mars the beauty of the parall. as stated above. It adds a line to a Str. already complete without it. It interrupts the harmony of the thanksgiving and is doubtless a gloss. It reminds us of 6<sup>3</sup> Is. 38<sup>9-20</sup>, both of which were probably in the mind of the editor, who conceived that a petition introduced here would be more suited for public prayer.

5. This verse is a trimeter couplet, a call to the pious to make melody in temple worship.

Make melody to Yahweh, ye pious,
And give thanks in a sacred commemoration of Him.

It is an anticipation of v.<sup>13</sup>, and the second line probably a citation from 97<sup>12b</sup>. — in a sacred commemoration]. This is more in accordance with Hebrew usage than "remembrance of His holiness," PBV., AV., although favoured by G, J. This couplet is a liturgical addition, disturbing the order of thought, the measure and the strophical organisation.

Str. II. is composed of two couplets, the first syn., the second antith., but so that the antith. really extends to that which is already given in the antith. halves of the two syn. lines of the previous couplet. — 6. A moment], a single moment of time, the briefest time that is known to usage. — (passeth in anger]. So brief is Yahweh's anger against His people; antith. with a lifetime, a long life in favour], so long does His favour towards them last. All this is relative and may be compared to Ps. 90<sup>4</sup>, where God's measurement of time is so different from that of men. It is a nation's experience the psalmist has in mind, doubtless that given in Is. 54<sup>7-8</sup>, where the prophet describes Yahweh's dealings with Zion (v. Br.<sup>MP 398 sq.</sup>)

For a small moment have I forsaken thee: but with great compassion will I gather thee.

In a gush of wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment;

But with everlasting kindness I have compassion on thee, saith Yahweh thy Redeemer.

— Weeping], personified as a traveller, a messenger from Yahweh, parallel with anger, cometh in to lodge as a guest to pass the night, when the day is over, at even; but another traveller is also on the way from Yahweh as a messenger of favour. He comes with the break of day, in the morning. He is a shout of joy, and this guest comes to stay. The last antithesis is taken up first in its application to the salvation of the nation. — 8. In favour], the favour of Yahweh extended to the nation through its long history prior to the Exile. — Thou didst cause to stand firm]. As Ps. 18<sup>34</sup> king David on the high places of the battle-field, so here the nation. — mine honour], as G, V, S. The honour of the nation was in peril through the attacks of the enemy. Yahweh had restored that honour by bringing them back from exile, and had made it to stand firm against repeated assaults. — in strength], adverbial accusative intensifying the idea of the vb.; so as to resist all enemies. AV., RV., attach strength to the “mountain” in the rendering “made my mountain to stand strong,” as essentially J, PBV.; similarly “established strength for my mountain” Dr. “Perhaps ‘Thou didst place a fortress upon my mountain’” Pe. “Zion, strong by position and art, may be thought of, partly in itself, partly as an emblem of the Davidic kingdom” Kirk. The variant readings of Vrss. and interpreters make the exact meaning of the passage doubtful. In antith. to “showing favour” is the alternative, Didst Thou hide Thy face], in disfavour, during the moment of anger. — I became dismayed], in the night of weeping, v.<sup>6b</sup>.

7. An editor inserts here as above v.<sup>3.5</sup> a pentameter line. — I, on my part, said in my ease: I shall never be moved]. This disturbs the strophical organisation, the beautiful parall. of the Str., as well as the measure. The author thinks of a careless, sinful ease, because of continued prosperity; and of the presumptuous assurance that this would continue forever; and that the people would never be shaken or disturbed from their strong situation. This doubtless was an experience not uncommon, stated in order to be rejected in public prayer; but it is difficult to see what connection it has with the fine antitheses of this Str.

Str. III. is synth. throughout. — 9. Unto Thee], emphatic, unnecessarily defined by Yahweh at the expense of the measure. —

my God], so Ĝ, for which Ĥ substitutes Adonay, which is not so probable.—I was crying || I was making supplication for favour], both imperfects referring to the past experience, and therefore frequentatives implying oft-repeated importunate prayer. This is referred to in this Str. in order to the strong statements of its antistr. It was only implied in the first Str. The remaining lines now give the contents of that pleading.—10. What profit is there], what advantage or benefit of any kind? implying a negative answer.—in my blood], my death by bloodshed; in the defeat and slaughter of the battle-field, or of the capture of the city and extermination of its inhabitants.—When I go down to the Pit], syn. v.<sup>4</sup> referring to the Pit in Sheol. The profitlessness of this is set forth in the expostulation: Will the dust], those whose bodies have returned to dust, praise Thee, in the ritual worship of the temple service as 6<sup>6</sup> Is. 38<sup>18</sup>. This is not an absolute denial of the possibility of the dead praising God. The nation is meant here and not the individual. It is the national ritual worship that would cease if the nation perished.—declare Thy faithfulness], in Pss. of thanksgiving; the faithfulness of Yahweh to His covenant and His people. The prayer now changes from negative expostulation to positive entreaty.—11. Hear and be gracious, become helper to me], by delivering me from the deadly peril.

Str. IV. is an antistr., composed of two syn. couplets.—12. The first couplet reminds us of that of the second Str., with which it is parall. The same antith. is drawn.—my mourning || my sackcloth], the garment of sorrow and especially of mourning for the dead. Mourning is appropriate here, because of the situation of the nation, mourning over the death of a great portion of the population. Those remaining in exile, while capable of mourning, still felt that their nation was dead. Over against this, dancing || gladness, imply a festival in celebration of a national deliverance. This transformation has been accomplished by Yahweh.—Thou hast turned for me || Thou didst loose || gird me]. The psalmist probably had in mind that great prophecy of the Restoration of Zion, Je. 30–31, and especially 31<sup>13</sup>: “Then the virgin will rejoice in the dance, and the young men and old men together: and I will change their mourning into joy and I will comfort them, and cause them to rejoice more than their sorrow" (v. Br.<sup>MP 247 sq.</sup>). This prediction of Jeremiah had been fulfilled in the experience of the people, and has its recognition in their thanksgiving.—13. This transformation had a purpose, and indeed the same one that the people had so much at heart in their expostulation with Yahweh v.<sup>108</sup>: might make melody to Thee] with songs in the temple and synagogue; || give thanks to Thee, in the Hallels of worship (v. Intr. § 35).—my glory], the name for the soul as the seat in man of honour and glory, peculiar to 13, v.<sup>6</sup> 16<sup>9</sup> 57<sup>9</sup> 108<sup>2</sup>.—not be still], or silent; but keeping these songs of praise ever resounding, and so, forever.—Yahweh is here claimed by the people most appropriately as their own personal God; my God. The Ps. closes as it began with thanksgiving.

PSALM XXXI., 5 STR. 5<sup>6</sup>.

Ps. 31 is a prayer: (1) importunate plea for deliverance of the people from national enemies (v.<sup>2-5</sup>); (2) confidence in the deliverance as already accomplished (v.<sup>6-9</sup>); (3) petition based on complaint of abandonment (v.<sup>10-13</sup>); (4) confidence, with prayer for salvation (v.<sup>14-17</sup>); (5) praise of Yahweh for the salvation (v.<sup>20-21, 23-24a</sup>). There are liturgical glosses (v.<sup>22, 24b-25</sup>) and a gloss of imprecation (v.<sup>18-19</sup>).

IN Thee, Yahweh, I seek refuge; let me never be shamed, O rescue me;
In Thy righteousness bow down Thine ear unto me, speedily deliver me;
Be Thou to me a rock of stronghold, a house of fortress to save me;
For Thou art my crag and my fortress, therefore lead me and guide me;
Bring me forth out of the net they privily laid for me; for Thou art my stronghold.

INTO Thy hand (Yahweh) I commit my spirit ; Thou hast ransomed me.
Yahweh, God of faithfulness, them that regard false idols I hate ;
I will rejoice and will be glad in Thy kindness ; and I, on my part, unto Thee do
I trust ;
Thou who dost see mine affliction, dost know the destitution of my soul ;
And hast not delivered me up into the hand of the enemy, in a broad place hast made firm my foot.

BE gracious to me, Yahweh, for I am in distress; wastes away my soul and my body,
For consumed in sorrow is my life, my years in (my) groaning;

My strength doth fail in mine affliction, and my bones waste away because of my distress;

I am become a terror to mine acquaintance, in the street they flee from me ;
As a dead man out of mind am I forgotten, like a lost vessel am I.

FOR the defaming of many, terror all around me I hear;

While they consult together against me, devise to take my life,

I, on my part, upon Thee do trust; Yahweh, Thou art my God.

In Thy hand are my times; from the hand of mine enemy and pursuer deliver me.

O let Thy face shine upon Thy servant; in Thy kindness give me victory.

O HOW great is Thy goodness (Yahweh), which Thou hast treasured up for them that fear Thee!

(Which) Thou hast done before the sons of men, for them that seek refuge in Thee!

Thou treasurest them in a shelter from the harshness of men; Thou hidest them in the covert of Thy presence.

I, on my part, said in mine alarm: I am (driven away) from before Thine eye.
Nevertheless, Thou didst hear the voice of my supplication, when I cried for help unto Thee.

Ps. 31 was in B and M and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). G adds ἐκστάσεως, doubtless due to ἐν τῇ ἐκστάσει μου, v.<sup>23</sup>. The comparison of this with 1 S. 23<sup>20</sup> led to the association of the Ps. with that incident in David's life. The Ps. has an unusual number of passages showing connection with other Pss. and prophecies. It has also lost its original metrical and strophical form. This is due to many glosses, partly explanatory, partly marginal references, partly liturgical. (1) V.<sup>2-4a</sup> are essentially the same as γ<sup>1-3</sup>, a Ps. which is a late mosaic without title. Doubtless our Ps. gives the original. (2) V.<sup>7a</sup> is essentially the same as Jon. 2<sup>9a</sup>, and v.<sup>23a</sup> is the same as Jon. 2<sup>5a</sup>, where, indeed, the correct text is preserved. Jon. 2 is a mosaic Ps. also, and doubtless our Ps. gives the original. (3) V.<sup>4a</sup> may be compared with 18<sup>3</sup>, v.<sup>9</sup> with 18<sup>20.34</sup>; undoubtedly 18 is original and 31 dependent. (4) V.<sup>5</sup> is similar to g<sup>16</sup>, v.<sup>8</sup> to g<sup>10.14</sup> io<sup>1</sup>; probably 31 is dependent on that Ps. also. (5) V.<sup>16</sup> may be compared with Is. 33<sup>6</sup> in its use of עָרוֹר; v.<sup>21</sup> with Is. 40<sup>4</sup> in its use of the word רַנְסִים; and v.<sup>20</sup> with Is. 63<sup>7</sup> in its use of רַב טוֹב. Is. 2 is earlier. (6) V.<sup>11</sup> seems to be based on Je. 20<sup>18</sup>, and v.<sup>18</sup> in its use of יָרֵמוֹ on Je. also; cf. Je. 81<sup>4</sup> 48<sup>2</sup> 49<sup>26</sup> 50<sup>30</sup> 51<sup>6</sup>, and v.<sup>19</sup> in its use of אֵלֶם on Ez. 3<sup>26</sup> 24<sup>27</sup> 33<sup>22</sup>. (7) V.<sup>14</sup> was derived from Je. 20<sup>10</sup>. (8) V.<sup>23b</sup> is similar to 28<sup>2</sup>, and probably derived from it. (9) Moreover, there are a number of uses of other passages in what seem to be glosses, v.<sup>4b</sup> from 23<sup>3</sup>, v.<sup>10b</sup> from 6<sup>8</sup>; v.<sup>22</sup>, cf. 4<sup>4</sup> 17<sup>7</sup> in the phr. הַפְּלִיא הַסֵּר, and 60<sup>11</sup> in the phr. בְּעֵיר מִצֹּר. V.<sup>25</sup> is derived from 27<sup>14</sup>. (10) V.<sup>8</sup> in its use of יָרוּחַ for נֶפֶשׁ is not early. (11) The high priest's blessing, Nu. 6<sup>25</sup>, underlies v.<sup>17</sup>, as Pss. 4<sup>7</sup> 6<sup>7</sup> 80<sup>4</sup>. 8. 20 118<sup>27</sup> 119<sup>185</sup>. (12) V.<sup>11</sup> כַּח כֵּשֶׁל el. sw. Ne. 4<sup>4</sup> La. 1<sup>14</sup>. (13) V.<sup>12</sup> לִי חֲרָמָה, as 79<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>42</sup> 109<sup>25</sup>, is probably a gloss. The author certainly knew Je., Is., Ez., and many Pss. of the Persian period. We cannot put the composition earlier than the troubles of Israel preceding the reforms of Nehemiah. The Ps. is national and not individual. It is a lamentation reminding us of 22, 69. It is hex-ameter in three parts, v.<sup>2-9</sup>, v.<sup>10-17</sup>, v.<sup>20-21, 23-24a</sup>; the first and second of two pentastichs each, the last of a single pentastich. Undoubtedly v.<sup>10-19</sup> seem inconsistent with v.<sup>6-9, 20-24</sup>, as Kirk. says, and might be a later insertion. They can only be explained as a resumption of the thought of v.<sup>2-5</sup> on the principle of strophical parallelism. In favour of their originality is the rhyming in i which runs through v.<sup>10-19</sup> as well as v.<sup>2-9</sup>, changed to a rhyme in ka in v.<sup>20-21, 23</sup>.

Str. I. is composed of five syn. lines rhyming in i. — 2-3. In Thee, Yahweh], emphatic in position. — I seek refuge], from enemies, as usual. — let me never be shamed], put to shame in defeat by enemies, cf. v.<sup>18</sup>. — O rescue me], earnest entreaty, implying real peril from enemies; || deliver me || save me. — In Thy righteousness], not ethical, but redemptive, vindicatory of the cause of His people, as usual in Pss. and Is.<sup>2</sup>. — bow down Thine ear unto me], listening to my plea, in response to my prayer. — speedily], there is need of haste; delay is perilous. — Be Thou to me a rock of stronghold], a rock serving as a stronghold, affording strength for defence against the enemy, cf. Is. 17<sup>10</sup>, || house of fortress], a house fortified so as to serve as a fortress. These terms are repeated singly in the parall. of the subsequent lines, where what is begged, is stated as a fact. — 4-5. For Thou art my crag], syn. term to "rock," || my fortress and my stronghold. Thus far the Ps. is quoted in essentially the same language in Ps. 71<sup>1-3</sup>. Apparently a new thought begins with v.<sup>4b</sup>, therefore lead me and guide me]. This is favoured by the insertion of the gloss from 23<sup>3</sup>, for Thy name's sake, which gives it a more general reference to safe guidance through perilous places. But really the preceding as well as the subsequent context implies the continuation of the plea for deliverance; and inasmuch as the guidance is connected with Yahweh as the fortress, we must think of a leading and guiding to this fortress, and so we get a suitable transition to the clause: Bring me forth out of the net]. The peril is conceived as a net, or a snare which the enemies privily laid, as in 9<sup>16</sup>, by their intrigues and treachery, out of which Yahweh alone can give an escape by taking them out and conducting them to a sure refuge.

Str. II. is an antistr. to the first Str. It is a pentastich of introverted parall. The first line is a strong statement of confidence in Yahweh, followed by an antith. couplet, emphasising the relation of mutual faithfulness between Yahweh and His people, in order to mediate the advance in confidence, of the final couplet.—6. Into Thy hand], as a sacred trust.—Yahweh] is required by the measure in the first line, and emphasised by Yahweh, God of faithfulness, in the second; because it was just this faithfulness of God to His people, in covenant relation with Him, that was the basis of confidence.—I commit my spirit]. The extreme peril of the previous Str. is now summed up in the peril of death. The nation, ready to perish, entrusts to Yahweh its spirit, as that imperishable part which continues to exist in spite of every peril to the body, even if it should be laid in the grave. In the most desperate condition of national depression, even in death and the grave, Yahweh will faithfully keep Israel's trust. Cf. Is. 38<sup>16</sup>. These words, expressing the experience of the nation in extreme peril, were especially appropriate to Jesus when dying on the cross, Lk. 23<sup>46</sup>, and have also been found appropriate in all ages to pious individuals, such as Polycarp, Bernard, Luther; for the generic experiences of Israel were, in the unfolding of the divine purpose of redemption, preparatory to the personal experiences of individuals. This firm and unwavering trust has its immediate reward in the certitude of salvation, which comes at once, enabling the psalmist to say: Thou hast redeemed me]. The PBV. "For Thou hast redeemed me," as if it were a reason for the trust, is an interpretation which has no justification in H or ancient Vrss.—7-9. them that regard false idols], cited Jon. 2<sup>9</sup>, evidently refers to idolaters, worshipping idols who are not real beings, but unreal and false to their worshippers. This meaning is obscured by the too general and indefinite rendering "lying vanities," AV., RV. PBV., "superstitious vanities," is better.—I hate], H as the rhyme, and antith. with "do I trust" require; although G, I, S, followed by many scholars, have "Thou hatest," thinking of God as the subject.—I will rejoice, strengthened by and I will be glad, as often in the style of the Ps., cf. v.<sup>3. 4. 8b +</sup>; both, as the antith. implies, to be interpreted of the public worship of Yahweh with songs of praise.—In Thy kindness], antith. with the idols, is interpreted by Jon. 2<sup>9</sup> as a name of God; made possible by a change of the suffix, which prevents that interpretation here.

At the same time the reality and the faithfulness of Yahweh in His kindness is invoked over against the unreality and unreliableness of the idols. — And I on my part] emphasises the personal character and the fact. — unto Thee do I trust]. The justification for this trust is given in the closing couplet in a progressive relative clause: Thou who dost see || dost know], the practical, personal, interested, and redemptive seeing and knowing, which advances, therefore, on the negative side into; hast not delivered me up into the hand of the enemy, who had brought the nation into this extreme peril; explained in the previous line as mine affliction || destitution of my soul; summing up the more concrete representations of the first Str. — On the positive side, the climax is attained in the statement, in a broad place], over against the narrow place, the straits, the net, in which they had been trapped by their enemies. — hast made firm my foot], to stand firm, as 18<sup>20, 34</sup>, so as not to be shaken, or displaced from the position it had taken; implying, therefore, the defeat of the enemy and the victory of the people.

Str. III. is a syn. pentastich, heaping up terms to describe the miserable condition of the nation. It is certainly out of harmony with the previous Str., which is so firm and assured in its certitude of deliverance. This can only be explained on the principle of the parall. of Hebrew Poetry, which extends to the strophes as well as the lines (v. Intr. § 12 D). The psalmist goes back to the experiences described in the first Str. in order to strengthen the confidence in God expressed in its antistr. In the first Str. the emphasis was laid upon the place of refuge, with the peril in the background; here the peril itself is described in detail, the whole introduced by the single word of prayer: 10. Be gracious to me, Yahweh]. All the rest of the Str. is embraced under the clause giving the reason for the plea, for I am in distress. This general statement is broken up into a number of specifications. — wastes away], a term used elsewhere only v.<sup>11</sup> 6<sup>8</sup>, implying the image of the moth eating away garments. The proper subject of the vb. is the comprehensive, my soul and my body, comprehending the entire man, his entire nature; but the influence of 6<sup>8</sup> has brought into the text its own phr., mine eye in vexation, which makes the line just these words too long. — 11. For consumed is my life], in the sense of lifetime, as is shown by the complementary, my years. The cause of this consuming away, which is syn. with the previous "wastes away," is expressed in the complementary terms, in sorrow, in my groaning. It is necessary to add the second suffix here, because of the rhyme. Ancient copyists left it off, as unnecessary to the sense.—in mine affliction], so ℒ, V, Σ, in accordance with v.<sup>8</sup>, which is better suited to the context than "in mine iniquity" of ℋ, ℑ, followed by EV<sup>a</sup>., which has nothing to suggest it in the context, though doubtless it made the Ps. more appropriate for public worship. — my strength doth fail], strictly, stumble over an obstacle, implying such a loss of strength that the man instead of walking steadily along, stumbles and staggers in his gait. This is intensified by a reversion to the first line of the tristich, on the principle of inclusion. — and my bones waste away], the bones for the framework of the body. This favours the opinion that we should read here, because of my distress, the same word as v.<sup>10a</sup>, which in the original Hebrew so much resembles the word translated "mine adversaries," that this interpretation may be easily explained, especially in view of the gloss which follows. In any case the "all" is, as quite frequently in the Pss., an intensifying insertion, making the measure less easy. — 12. I am become a terror to mine acquaintance], so the original read, in all probability; the acquaintance being the friendly peoples, a thought which we may compare with Is. 53<sup>1-3</sup>. This received an interpretative gloss in terms of later Pss. 79<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>42</sup> 109<sup>25</sup>, "a reproach and unto my neighbours exceedingly." This can hardly be adapted to the measures or the strophical organisation of the Ps., and indeed, in itself, is difficult to explain satisfactorily, unless we suppose with many scholars that "exceedingly," although sustained by ℒ, ℑ, is a copyist's error for some such word as "fear," "wagging of head," or "contention," readings suggested by various scholars. But this difficulty reënforces the other reasons for regarding it as a gloss. — in the street they flee from me]. These are doubtless the same persons as those mentioned in the first part of the line; they flee from Israel in order not to become involved in the peril, in terror lest the overpowering enemies may attack them also. The words, those that see me, are a prosaic gloss, generalising the subject at the expense of the measure. — 13. I am forgotten], abandonment leads inevitably to forgetfulness of the person abandoned. — as a dead man], one whose acquaintance was once enjoyed, but whom one knows no longer, because he is in the realm of forgetfulness. — out of mind], so long dead that the thought of him no longer comes into the mind. This reaches its climax in, like a lost vessel, which is more suited to the first part of the line, to which it is an emphatic complement, than the weaker paraphrase “broken vessel” of EV<sup>a</sup>.

Str. IV. is the antistr. to the previous one, and is chiefly petition; not importunate, but calm and confident, distributing itself in several phases in the succeeding lines. The psalmist begins with a synth. couplet, 14, emphasising the peril. The first line was taken from Je. 20<sup>10</sup>, for the defaming of many, terror all around me I hear]. The enemies were active in slanderous words and threatening deeds. — While they consult together against me], as in 2<sup>2</sup> against the king, so here the wicked nations plot against the people. — devise to take my life]. As suggested in the first Str., the people are in deadly peril, in need of a safe refuge; here the purpose of the enemy is nothing less than to utterly destroy them. But while they are thus plotting, the people are not in despair; they have confidence in God, which is affirmed in the concluding tristich of the Str. — 15. I on my part], emphatic personal experience. — upon Thee do I trust], as v.<sup>7b</sup>, the object of trust emphasised, as in v.<sup>6b</sup>. — Yahweh, Thou art my God]. A later scribe, thinking to make it more emphatic, inserted “I said,” at the expense of the measure. — 16. In Thy hand], as in v.<sup>6a</sup>. — are my times], the “times” for experiences, fortunes, as Is. 33<sup>6</sup>, doubtless thinking of their issue whether in adversity or prosperity. The people are in Yahweh’s hands here, as their spirit has been committed to His trust, v.<sup>6</sup>. This resumption of the thought of Str. II. is in order to the following petition, which in rapid succession adds one thing to another. — deliver me], naturally comes first, resuming the thought of the first Str. — from the hand of mine enemy], with the complementary pursuer, in accordance with the style of the Ps. — 17. O let Thy face shine upon], thinking of the priestly benediction, Nu. 6<sup>24sq</sup>, as Ps. 4<sup>7</sup>, the light of favour and prosperity. — in Thy kindness], resuming v.<sup>8a</sup>. — give me victory], as complementary to the positive favour. The ordinary "save me," EV<sup>s</sup>, is not suited to this line. That victory in war is longed for, is evident from the interpretation of the glossator in v.<sup>18-19</sup>. — 18. Yahweh, let me not be shamed], that is, by defeat and disaster; but, on the other hand, let the wicked nations, the enemy and the pursuer above, be shamed in defeat and slaughter, and so be made silent, dumb; not merely speechless, but helpless, unable to say or do anything, going down to Sheol in national death, cf. 6<sup>6</sup> 9<sup>18</sup>. The imprecation is not upon personal enemies, but upon enemies in arms against the people of God. — 19. Let lying lips be dumb]. This suits the citation from Je. 20<sup>10</sup>, but not the situation of the Ps. in general. These lying lips are represented as those that speak arrogantly against the righteous]. The righteous here do not seem to be righteous Israel, but the righteous as distinguished from the arrogant in Israel. This is still further defined as, with pride and contempt, a situation appearing often enough in the Greek period and subsequently. The verse is prosaic, as is the previous one. They can only be made poetic by reductions and other changes.

Str. V. corresponds, in its confidence in God, with the antistrs. of the two previous parts. It rhymes in ka, referring to God, the previous Strs. in i, referring to the nation. It begins with an exclamation of praise. — 20. O how great is Thy goodness], reminding of Is. 63<sup>7</sup>. This goodness is conceived as a treasure, which Thou hast treasured up], reserved in heaven in the divine presence, to be given at the appropriate time; for them that fear Thee], them that have that reverence which constitutes true religion, || for them that seek refuge in Thee, resuming v.<sup>2</sup>. That which was treasured up with Yahweh was reserved for a special occasion. — Thou hast done], goodness, good, in the bestowal of good things, not in private, but in public; not before the people of God, but before the sons of men, as the context shows, the wicked nations. — 21. This verse, by glosses and transposition, has lost its measure, rhyme, symmetry, and simplicity, but it is not difficult to restore it to its original form. The strife of tongues is suited to v.<sup>19</sup>. If that be a gloss, this is a gloss also. This removes the chief difficulty at once. The only other difficulty is removed by transposition of the two clauses. — Thou treasurest them || Thou hidest them]. The thought of the first Str. is resumed; only what was importunately prayed for there is here taken for granted as a fact. The seeking refuge, of the previous line, passes over into being kept safe in that refuge as a hidden treasure. The place of refuge is a shelter || the covert of Thy presence. This is probably conceived, as in 27<sup>5</sup>, in the temple courts. The need of this refuge is briefly indicated in the clause, from the harshness of men], a term used elsewhere only Is. 40<sup>4</sup>, of rugged places, but sustained by G, J. There is no need of any of the changes suggested by modern scholars to avoid this unusual phrase. The previous tristich was supplemented by a later editor in the use of the liturgical phrase: 22. Blessed be Yahweh, the usual form of benediction, with the reason, taken from 4<sup>4</sup> 17<sup>7</sup>, For He doth show extraordinary kindness to me]. The additional phrase, in a fortified city, cf. 60<sup>11</sup>, seems to refer to Jerusalem during a siege, but may be only an explication of the covert of the previous context, extending it to the city of Jerusalem as well as the temple precincts. Such an addition might have been made quite naturally during the Maccabean wars.—23. I on my part], as v.<sup>7.15</sup>.—said in mine alarm], when so intensely agitated that I hardly knew what I was saying.—I am driven away from before Thine eye]. This is quoted in Jon. 2<sup>5</sup>, which undoubtedly gives the true vb. The vb. of H, mistaking a single letter, gives the weaker meaning, “I am cut off.” The people in their extreme peril were at first despairing, feeling that their God had not only forsaken them, but actually expelled them from His presence. The psalmist may be thinking here of the first thoughts of the nation when in exile long before his own time. It is national experience that is here described, and not that of an individual. But this despair as expressed in the alarmed utterance of the people did not stay their prayer nor Yahweh’s help.—Nevertheless], in spite of all things, strong assertion of the antith., Thou didst hear, in the pregnant sense, implying answer, the voice of my supplication, a phrase of 28<sup>2.6</sup>.—when I cried for help unto Thee]. With this statement of fact the Ps. comes to its appropriate conclusion.

A later editor, wishing to make a practical exhortation based upon the Ps., for public use, gives a general statement of doctrine and a liturgical conclusion,

Love Yahweh, all ye His pious ones;
 The faithful Yahweh preserveth,
 But rewardeth the proud doer.
 Be strong and let your mind take courage,
 All ye that wait on Yahweh.

24. Love Yahweh, all ye His pious ones]. This is a most appropriate exhortation here, and indeed everywhere. But it has no manner of connection with the context and is really a prose sentence. — The faithful Yahweh preserveth, But rewardeth the proud doer]. So probably originally an antith. trimeter couplet, but its measure was destroyed by the insertion of the emphatic "plentifully." — 25. Be strong and let your mind take courage, All ye that wait on Yahweh]. This liturgical addition is essentially the same as 27<sup>14</sup>, save that the 2 sg. has been changed into the 2 pl.

2-4 a is cited in the later mosaic Ps. 71 in v. 1-3 with minor variations. V.<sup>2</sup> is identical with 71<sup>1</sup> as far as and including עוֹלָם; but 31<sup>2</sup> has two words additional, making the l. overfull; these are in 71<sup>2</sup>. 71<sup>1</sup> is defective by one word and that the one bearing the rhyme. It is easy to find that missing word in מַלְטָנִי 31<sup>2</sup>, which makes that l. overfull and which also appears in 71<sup>2</sup> in juss. תְּצִילֵנִי || תַּמְלִטֵנִי. ⚙ of 31<sup>2</sup> also has ῥῶσαι με καὶ ἐξέλθου με = 71<sup>2</sup>. — 2. [בְּצִדְקָתְךָ] emph. (v. 5<sup>9</sup>). This goes into l. 2, as 71<sup>2</sup>. — הָטָה אֹנֶן] = 71<sup>2b</sup>, usually c. ל' 17<sup>6</sup> 49<sup>5</sup> 78<sup>1</sup> 88<sup>3</sup> 116<sup>2</sup>, only 31<sup>3</sup> (= 71<sup>2b</sup>) 102<sup>3</sup> with אָל. But one word is needed for measure. 31<sup>3</sup> has מִהֲרָה תְּצִילֵנִי. 71<sup>2</sup> has וְרוּשִׁיעֵנִי, ⚙ καὶ ὠσόν με. ⚙ of 31<sup>3</sup> has τάχυνον τοῦ ἐξελεσθαι με, taking vb. as inf. cstr. without ו and so || with next l. τοῦ ὠσάμεν = להושיעני. This fluctuation shows uncertainty of reading. — † [מְהֵרָה] n.f. haste, speed, usually adv. hastily, quickly before vb., elsw. 37<sup>2</sup> Is. 58<sup>3</sup> Jo. 4<sup>4</sup>; עַד מ' Ps. 147<sup>15</sup>, cf. מְהֵרָה Ps. 69<sup>18</sup>. — הָיָה לִי לְצֹר is the same in both Pss., but it is followed by מָעוֹן 31<sup>3</sup>, by מָעוֹן 71<sup>3</sup>. מָעוֹן place of refuge, with צֹר also Is. 17<sup>10</sup>; apart from צֹר Pss. 27<sup>1</sup> 28<sup>3</sup> 31<sup>5</sup> 37<sup>89</sup> 43<sup>2</sup> 52<sup>9</sup>. It is better suited to the context here than מָעוֹן, which is with צֹר only 71<sup>3</sup>; but alone 90<sup>1</sup> 91<sup>9</sup> of Yahweh as dwelling place, (⚙ καταφυγή) all dub.: undoubtedly 31<sup>3</sup> is the correct reading. — [לְבֵית מְצוּיֹת] cf. 71<sup>3</sup> לְבֹאוּ תְּמִיד צִוִּית. both variations of interpretation of a common original: לְבֵית מְצוּדָה; the only difference being the transposition of צ and ד due to txt. err. The pl. is dub. as a.l., prob. should be אֲצַדִּיקָתִי as 18<sup>3</sup> = 2 S. 22<sup>2</sup> = 31<sup>4</sup> = 71<sup>3</sup>, cf. 144<sup>2</sup>. לְבֹאוּ תְּמִיד a rel. clause with rel. omitted, referring to מָעוֹן. מְצוּיֹת must then be Pi. pf. 2 m. with להושיעני dependent upon it. But ⚙ has here ἐλθὲν τόπον ὀχυρόν τοῦ ὠσάμεν, essentially as in 31<sup>3</sup> ἐλθὲν οἶκον καταφυγῆς τοῦ ὠσάμεν, indicating the same reading as 31<sup>3</sup>. ⚙ of 71<sup>3</sup> is then txt. err. The form להושיעני in all texts gives the needed rhyme and parallel term, and is undoubtedly original. 4. This clause has been transposed with first clause of v. 8; making this change of order gives an easier explanation for אֲשֶׁר and also the rhyme characteristic of the lines thus far. — 8. [בְּהִסְרֶךָ]. The use of this word here in antith. אֲשֶׁר reminds of Jon. 2<sup>9</sup>. The conception of the Ps. is simpler, for the sf. in Jon. seems to make הָסֵר practically a name of God. — [אֲשֶׁר] refers to יְהוָה and is not causal, although that interpretation is sustained by <sup>5</sup>, <sup>3</sup>, and followed by most interpreters, owing to the transposition mentioned above. — [יִרְעָה בְּצָרוֹת נַפְשִׁי] seems to require that בְּצָרוֹת נ' || עָנִי, so <sup>5</sup>, <sup>3</sup> take it as obj. cognovisti tribulationes animae meae, and the paraphrase of <sup>5</sup> ἔσθωσας ἐκ τῶν ἀναγκῶν ἐν ᾗ ψυχή μου, favours it. For בְּצָרָה v. 9<sup>10</sup> 10<sup>1</sup>

This v. is dependent upon Ps. 18<sup>20, 34</sup>. — 10. עששה מכנס עיני = עששה בכנס עיני. 6<sup>8</sup>, doubtless the original passage from which it is derived here, simply changing the prep., cf. v.<sup>11</sup>. This l. has two words too many for measure. The last two are favoured by v.<sup>11</sup>, then כנס עיני would be gl. from 6<sup>8</sup>. — 11. כי כלו חיי is based on ויכלו בבשר ימי Je. 20<sup>18</sup>, which uses in previous context יגון, preferred by our psalmist to בשח. כלה (v. 18<sup>38</sup>), in sense of exhaustion 71<sup>9</sup> 73<sup>26</sup> 102<sup>4</sup> 143<sup>7</sup>. — באנחה but rd. for rhyme אנחתי (v. 67 38<sup>10</sup>). — תִּטֹּת, fail, fig. of נח, also Ne. 4<sup>4</sup> and Hiph. These words are really needed to make two hexameters in this v. מן is here παρὰ in 6, apud in J; prob. here at the hands of, as 74<sup>22</sup>, not causal, as Dr., because of (v. BDB מן 2 d). But this is difficult whether we connect with the previous or the subsequent context. A noun seems necessary. Horsley suggests מאר nuisance; Krochmal מנור; Hi., Ols., Lag. מנור abr. ראש מנור, so Che.; Gr. מאוס. מנור, terror, is favoured by v.<sup>14</sup>, and פחד by usage of 44<sup>15</sup>, cf. 22<sup>8</sup> Je. 18<sup>16</sup>. קרין, object of contention, is easier, cf. in the same phr. מרן Ps. 80<sup>7</sup>. But it is difficult to connect either noun with this vb. BDB regards both as dubious, and gives no decision as to mngs. ㊤ renders both the same way, ραπαγή, rough, so 3 duritia. We might then think of roughness of places, and roughness, harshness, hardness, rudeness of conduct. Ols., Oort, Du., change the text here to רָקַלְתָּ. This v. is difficult in structure. Its two parts have 5 + 4 tones, and seem to be in syn. parall. It cannot be original in this form. It must either be reduced to 6 tones or enlarged to 12, or else it is a gl. But one l. is needed for measure. פָּנֶיךָ is necessary for rhyme, and must come at close of v. This requires a transposition of clauses. The words מְרִיב לִשְׁנוֹת are unnecessary, and prob. a gl. — 22. PSALM XXXII., 2 STR. 5<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 32 was a penitential Ps.: (1) proclaiming the blessedness of the one whose sins are forgiven, covered over and not imputed (v.<sup>1-2</sup>), especially in view of the great suffering in body and soul during the long time that Yahweh's punitive hand rested upon him (v.<sup>3-4</sup>). (2) The confession of sin is followed by forgiveness (v.<sup>5</sup>) and the exhortation to the pious to pray to Yahweh in time of distress (v.<sup>6</sup>). Later additions represent Yahweh as the hiding-place (v.<sup>7</sup>); exhort earnestly to walk in the right way and not be stubborn as the mule (v.<sup>8-9</sup>); and contrast the sorrows of the wicked with the joys of the righteous (v.<sup>10-11</sup>).

HAPPY the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered!

Happy the one unto whom Yahweh imputeth not iniquity!

When I kept silent, my bones waxed old through my roaring;

For day and night Thy hand was heavy upon me;

I was changed (into misery, as when thorns smite me).

MY sin I make known to Thee, and mine iniquity I do not cover;

I said, "I will confess concerning my transgression to Yahweh";

And Thou forgavest mine iniquity, my sin didst (pardon).

For this let the pious pray unto Thee in time of distress;

At the outburst of many waters, they will not reach unto him.

אֲשֶׁר מָשַׁח (v. Intr. § 26) of 𐤀, not taken up into 𐤁 or 𐤂 (v. Intr. §§ 27, 32, 33). It was separated from the Maskelim by the editor of  $\psi$ , owing to the fact that the others were used in 𐤂. The Ps. was originally of two pentameter pentastichs v.<sup>1-6</sup>. In this form it belongs to the Persian period. It was enlarged by a series of additions: at first v.<sup>7</sup>, then a tetrameter tetrastich of advice v.<sup>8-9</sup>, and a liturgical trimeter tetrastich of a general character v.<sup>10-11</sup>. "The influence of the individualising educational movement recorded for us in Proverbs is unmistakable," Che. In v.<sup>8-9</sup> there are Aramaisms: כָּלֵם and עָצָה after 𐤂, required for measure and confused with יָעַן. This gloss was of late date, probably in the Maccabean period. The Ps. in its present form is the second penitential Ps. of the church.

Str. I is composed of a syn. couplet, a synth. line, and an emblematic triplet.—1-2. Happy the one], an exclamation of congratulation, repeated at the beginning of two lines for emphasis. In Ps. 1<sup>1</sup> the righteous man, who was entirely conformed to the Law, was thus congratulated; here, the one who has been a transgressor, but now, after a period of divine chastisement, enjoys forgiveness and reinstatement in the divine favour. The three chief syn. terms for sin are used to comprehend it in all its forms : transgression, the violation of divine command whether oral or written in Law ; sin, the failure from the normal aim or purpose in life ; iniquity, the perverse turning aside from the proper course of life. These forms of sin had incurred the divine displeasure, and had to be removed in order to a restoration to favour. Each term for sin has its appropriate predicate, which is not to be regarded as peculiar to that conception of sin rather than any other, but is in order to balance the threefold sin, with a threefold deliverance from it. — is forgiven]. This is, according to the Hebrew conception, the taking up of transgression as a burden, a heavy load, resting upon the sinner and bearing it away from him to a place where it will trouble him no more. The English “forgive,” “give away,” is syn. to it and sufficiently near to the Hebrew idea of take away, to translate it, agreeing as they do in the essential thing of removal. The same Hebrew term is used v.<sup>5c</sup> in connection with iniquity ; and probably also in the original, if the proposed change of text is correct, the syn. Hebrew word בָּלַח, having the same essential meaning, which may appropriately be rendered by the syn. English word “pardon.” — is covered], a syn. term, used also 85<sup>3</sup> for the technical Hebrew word כָּפַר, “cover over sin” (v. 65<sup>4</sup> 78<sup>38</sup> 79<sup>9</sup>). It is commonly used in connection with sacrifices, where the sin, as staining and defiling the divine altars, was covered over by the application to them of the blood of the victim of the sin-offering. But the word is also frequently used apart from sacrifices, when God is conceived as covering the sin over so as to hide it and obliterate it. This Yahweh does in accordance with His sovereign good pleasure. There can be no doubt that here, as in other Pss., the latter is the true conception ; for there is no hint of any sacrifice in any of these Pss. — imputeth not], that is, does not estimate, consider, think of, in connection with the sinner. Far otherwise, Yahweh thinks of him as without iniquity, deals with him as no longer having any connection with it. We should beware of attaching to these terms the technical meanings of modern dogmatic theology. This syn. couplet makes a simple and comprehensive statement. But a later legalist thought that something more was required, and this he supplied by adding :

And in whose spirit there is no deceit. This may be explained in accord with modern ideas: "Who conceals his sin neither from God nor from himself," Dr.; especially if we weaken the term with EV<sup>s</sup>. to "guile"; but this renunciation of deceit of spirit is a very high ethical ideal, not appearing elsewhere in the Old Testament. 1 John 1<sup>8</sup> rises to a higher ethical conception, and may be cited against self-deception in the matter of neglecting to confess sin, but hardly against one who has so completely confessed his sin and has been so entirely relieved of it, as stated in the previous couplet of our Ps. Such an one needs no exhortation to sincerity of spirit. This clause adds a defective line to a Str. complete without it; and also imports a disturbing thought, to the effect that such a man must not only be accepted by God as without any more sin attached to him, but must also have the more positive characteristic of a spirit without deceit. The clause is a gloss from the school of Hebrew Wisdom. It is probable that man is also a gloss, in order to give the experience, which was originally national, a more personal and individualistic turn, in accordance with the glosses, v<sup>8-11</sup>. — 3. When I kept silent], refrained from making the confession, stated in v.<sup>5</sup>, and assumed as the basis of v.<sup>1-2</sup>. — my bones waxed old], as in other Pss. of penitence and lamentation, aching in sympathy with the distress of the soul; cf. 6<sup>3</sup> 22<sup>15, 18</sup> 38<sup>4</sup> 51<sup>10</sup>. — through my roaring]. The agony was so great that, although he did not cry to God for help in penitential prayer, he did cry aloud with so much noise and so little self-restraint that he lost his manhood and became a mere animal. This has been intensified by the additional clause, all day long, an insertion probably not designed, but due to dittography of the following words. — 4. For day and night], continuously, all day and all night without interruption. — Thy hand], God's hand, put forth in chastisement. — was heavy upon me], not merely by its pressure of weight, but, as the context implies, heavy because of heavy strokes, smiting him again and again with His powerful hand, so as to make him roar with the agony of suffering. Although he did not in fact suffer scourging of his body, he did in fact suffer from the bruising of his soul by the experience of the divine anger, so that his bones felt as if they had been severely scourged. — I was changed]; so G, A, transformed from a former condition of comfort into misery, by the severe divine discipline. This is much better suited to the context than H, followed by EV<sup>a</sup>., "my moisture is turned into," AV., or "is like," PBV., or "changed as with," RV., which have no Hebrew usage to justify them and which are difficult to construct with the following words. These again are different in G from H. G is here also to be preferred in its rendering, as when thorns smite me]. The blows of God's hands are very appropriately compared with the smiting of the body with thorns, especially as in ancient times thorns were used for the purpose of scourging. Thus Gideon "took the elders of the city [of Succoth], and thorns of the wilderness and briers, and with them he threshed [or taught] the men of Succoth," Ju. 8<sup>16</sup>. Jer. and Aug. think of pricking of the conscience. The reading of H, "droughts of summer," is difficult to connect with the previous clause, because the Hebrew prep. is not appropriate to the verb; and the word rendered "droughts" is not used elsewhere in H, though the meaning is possible, as being in a similar word from the same stem.

Str. II. is composed of a triplet of two syn. lines, with a third line synth. thereto, and an emblematic couplet.—5. My sin], emph. in position, || iniquity || transgression, resuming the three terms of v.<sup>1-2</sup>, in order now to state the confession presupposed in these verses. The confession is also in three syn. terms, make known || not cover || confess. The first term is in appropriate antith. to forgive. The objectifying of the sin, by making it known, is in order to taking it away. The second term, the uncovering the iniquity, is that Yahweh might cover it again. The third, confessing, a term not used elsewhere in ψ, but in other writings, is properly acknowledging, possibly calling attention to by a gesture, in order that Yahweh on His part might refuse to look at it, ignore it, not consider it, or think of it. All this confession is in personal address, to Thee || to Yahweh, and meets with the response, Thou forgavest mine iniquity, using but one, and that the oldest, simplest, and most important of the three terms of v.<sup>1-2</sup>. H and the Vrss. all agree in attaching two words for sin together, "iniquity of my sin." But this is against the usage of the previous context, and is probably due to the omission of a verb, which is indeed necessary to complete the measure. This verb is probably the synonym, pardon, which has been omitted by copyist's error, because of its similarity in form to Selah, here used at the close of the line. Thus we may perfect the measure, and separate the terms for sin, and render the last clause, my sin didst pardon. — 6. For this], namely, forgiveness. — let the pious], probably collective in the original text, but made individual by a later editor to correspond with v.<sup>7-11</sup>, by prefixing "every." Only the pious, who were in a covenant relation to Yahweh, and so entitled to His kindness, could ask for forgiveness of sin. But all such should be encouraged by past experience to pray for it in time of distress, such as that described in v.<sup>3-4</sup>. So the original text should probably read. But it has been changed by copyist's error into "time, when Thou mayest be found." This limits the petition to a particular time, and so is against the context, which exhorts to pray in time of sin and trouble, which would not be usually considered as a time when God would be most favourable. It is probable that the copyist, who made the mistake, was thinking of a fast day, or possibly of the day of atonement, and it suits quite well the Christian use of Ash Wednesday. This mistake of the copyist, seeing two words, where only one was designed, gives the second as an introductory particle to the next clause, sometimes translated "But," PBV., "Surely," AV., RV., for which there is no sufficient reason in the parallelism. — At the outburst of many waters]. The distress is compared to a sudden flood, as in Pss. 18<sup>6</sup> 69<sup>16</sup>. — they will not reach unto him], because he has been put into a safe refuge by Yahweh, in answer to his prayer. The original Ps. came to an end here, in a most appropriate climax. And this was probably all of the Ps. when it was used in D.

Later editors made additions to the Ps. for various reasons; and first, 7, which returns to the first person and is hexameter. — O Thou, my hiding-place]. This thought was not suggested by the idea of the Ps. in general, but by the specific thought of the previous line with reference to the flood of waters. The vocative is better suited to the following context than the usual, "Thou art my hiding-place." This phrase has probably come into the Ps. from 31<sup>21</sup>; cf. 27<sup>5</sup> 91<sup>1</sup>. But the reference is here more general and later, for we can hardly think of the courts of the temple in this context. — From straits mayest Thou preserve me], not an expression of confidence in Yahweh, but a jussive of petition. — O deliverer, mayest Thou encompass me about]. This clause is thus parallel with and complementary to the previous one. H, G, I, all differ very much. The text has been disturbed by a ditto-graphy which caused the insertion of “songs”; H, EV<sup>s</sup>, more properly, “jubilation,” “shouts of joy”; but G, I, have “my jubilation || my hiding-place.” The rendering of EV<sup>s</sup>, “Thou wilt compass me about with songs of deliverance,” is to be rejected. A second gloss was added, v.<sup>8-9</sup>.

I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way thou shouldst go;
 I will counsel thee, (I will fix) mine eye upon thee.
 Be not as the horse, the mule, without understanding,
 With bridle and halter, its harness, to be muzzled.

This is a tetrameter tetrastich. It is a warning which most of the older interpreters and many moderns regard as the words of God; but most moderns think that they are the words of the psalmist. In either case they are not suited to the Ps., because the second person throughout the Ps. has been God, and the exhortation of the previous context has been addressed to the pious in the 3d person. It is a supplementary advice of a later editor to all who listen to the Ps. It is furthermore of different measure and strophical organisation. — 8. I will instruct thee and teach thee]. This is in accordance with the legal attitude of mind subsequent to Nehemiah. — in the way thou shouldst go], the way of the Law, the legal way or course of life and conduct; more, therefore, in the spirit of Ps. 1 than of Ps. 32. — I will counsel thee], intensifying the previous verbs. — A word is missing in H and also in most Vrss. S gives it, instead of the verb preserved in H, the one using one verb, the other the other verb. These are, indeed, so much alike that one of them was omitted in the old codices. This verb is probably original and should be rendered I will fix, which then gives an appropriate construction to the otherwise difficult phrase, mine eye upon thee], the eyes of the teacher being fixed upon the pupil so as to watch his every step in the way of life. The positive teaching is followed by an antith. couplet of warning. — 9. Be not as the horse], intensified by the more obstinate animal, the mule. — without understanding], lacking the capability of receiving instruction and counsel; therefore they have to be guided by physical means, with bridle and halter, its harness, to be muzzled]. This was the original completion of the tetrastich; but a brief marginal note, indicating a reason for the muzzling, has come into the text and given difficulty. H, followed by most, has “it will not come near unto thee,” but various other renderings are given by ancient and modern versions, which will not repay consideration.

10–11 are a still later liturgical gloss.

Many sorrows has the wicked man;
But kindness has he that trusteth in Yahweh.
Be glad and exult, ye righteous,
And be jubilant, all ye right-minded.

This is a trimeter tetrastich. — Many sorrows], as the antith. of kindness, suggests that they were due to divine punishment or chastisement. The former belong to the wicked man; they are his by right of earning them; the latter belongs to the man that trusteth in Yahweh. This was probably the exact antith. of the original text, but it has been changed by a later editor through the addition of the verb “compasseth him about,” to correspond with v.<sup>7</sup>; and so the measure has been destroyed, without any important addition to the meaning. — 11. Be glad and exult || be jubilant], liturgical terms implying worship in the temple. In the first line “in Yahweh” is an unnecessary gloss, destroying the measure. — ye righteous], the class of people in Israel living in conformity to the Law || ye right-minded.

It must therefore be emphatic and express previous resolution. — עָלַי is taken by ח as κατ' ἐμὸν,  $\Psi$  adversum me, עָלַי; but this is certainly incorrect. It is a poetic, archaic prep., lengthened for measure. — וְאִתָּהּ emph. — עֵין חַמָּא guilt of my sin (v. v.<sup>1, 2</sup>). Du. is prob. correct in reading חַמָּא סִלַּח; the סִלַּח was confused with סִלָּה and so omitted. Then it was necessary to connect the words for sin. This restoration makes the pentameter complete and the construction easy. — 6. עַל־זֹאת for this thing, e.g. pardon, or on this account, therefore, as עַל כֵּן ח. ח ἐπὶ τῷ αὐτοῦ,  $\Phi$  pro hac. — לֵעַת מָצָא cf. Therefore with Du. rd. for מָצָא רק, מָצוּק, מָצוּק, מָצוּק, which has been confused with מָצוּר and so brought about מָצוּק. מָצוּק לֵעַת מָצוּק time

It points לִי רָנִי || סָתַר לִי || רָנִי; this is most likely, unless with Houb., Horsley, Hi., Du., רָנִי is dittog. for last letters of הַצָּרִי. Ⓢ is somewhat different, tu es protectio mea, ab hoste custodies me, laus mea salvans, circumdabis me. צַר = adversary, פָּלַט is ptc. Ⓢ, Ⓢ, both take vbs. as expressing confidence. Ⓢ regards the verse as essentially petition. The vb. הַצָּרִי is || הַסּוֹכְנִי, and must be interpreted in the same way. It is improb. that פָּלַט is a noun. The difficulty with Ⓢ is in taking צַר as fem. and in the lack of prep. מִן after פָּלַט. It is better to follow Ⓢ and take פָּלַט as ptc., as 18<sup>3</sup> 40<sup>18</sup> 70<sup>6</sup> 144<sup>2</sup>, referring to God, and to regard the impfs. as jussives. —

PSALM XXXIII., 4 STR. 10<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 33 is a song of praise. (1) A call to worship in the temple with song, music, and shouting (v. 1-3), because of the righteousness and kindness of Yahweh (v. 4-5). (2) All mankind are called to fear Yahweh, the creator of all things, and disposer of all nations (v.<sup>6-10</sup>). (3) Yahweh from His heavenly throne inspects all mankind (v.<sup>13-15</sup>); and victory is not due to armies or warriors (v.<sup>16-17</sup>). (4) He delivereth those who fear Him (v.<sup>18-19</sup>); therefore His people long for Him, are glad in Him, and trust in His name for victory (v.<sup>20-22</sup>). A gloss praises the plans of Yahweh as everlastingly secure, and also the happiness of His people (v.<sup>11-12</sup>).

SHOUT, ye righteous in Yahweh,
 Praise is becoming to the upright;
 Give thanks to Yahweh with the lyre,
 With the ten-stringed harp play to Him;
 Sing to Him a new song,
 Play skilfully with shouting;
 For the word of Yahweh is upright;
 And all His work is with faithfulness;
 He loves righteousness and justice,
 The earth is full of His kindness.

BY His word the heavens were made,
 And by the breath of His mouth all their host;
 He gathereth in a flask the waters of the sea,
 Putteth in treasures the primeval deep.
 Let all the earth be in fear of Yahweh,
 Let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe;
 For He spake and it came to pass,
 He commanded and it stood forth.
 He doth bring to naught the counsel of nations,
 He doth make of none effect the plans of the peoples.

FROM heaven Yahweh doth look,
 See all the sons of mankind;
 From the place where He sits enthroned He doth glance,
 At all the inhabitants of the earth;
 He that formed their mind altogether,
 He that discerneth all their works.
 The king doth not gain a victory by his great army,
 The mighty man cannot be delivered by his great strength,
 The horse is a delusion for victory,
 And by his great army he cannot deliver.

BEHOLD, the eye of Yahweh is toward them that fear Him,
 Toward them that hope in His kindness;
 To deliver their life from death,
 And to preserve their lives in famine.
 Our soul doth wait for Yahweh,
 Our help and shield is He;
 For in Him our heart is glad,
 For in His holy name we trust.
 Let Thy kindness, Yahweh, be upon us
 According as we hope in Thee.

Ps. 33 is an orphan Ps. without title, and therefore was not in any of the minor or major Psalters. It was inserted in its present position by the final editor. The τψ̄ Δαυελδ of G is a late conjecture. The Ps. indeed shows the influence of many writings: v.<sup>3a</sup> of Is. 42<sup>10</sup>; v.<sup>3b</sup> of Is. 23<sup>16</sup>; v.<sup>7</sup> of Jb. 38<sup>22</sup>; v.<sup>3a</sup> of Gn. 1<sup>8</sup>; v.<sup>11</sup> of Is. 40<sup>8</sup> 46<sup>10</sup> 51<sup>6, 8</sup> 55<sup>8sq.</sup>; v.<sup>18</sup> of Pss. 11<sup>4</sup> 14<sup>2</sup>; v.<sup>15</sup> of Zc. 12<sup>1</sup>; v.<sup>16, 20b</sup> of Dt. 33<sup>29</sup>; v.<sup>17</sup> of Pr. 21<sup>31</sup>; v.<sup>22</sup> of Ps. 90<sup>17</sup>. 1 Mac. 3<sup>19</sup> is probably based on v.<sup>16</sup>. The use of the participles, v.<sup>5, 7</sup>, for the finite verb is in late Aramaic style. The Ps. cannot be earlier than the late Greek period, and probably is Maccabean on account of its reference to divine aid in victories v.<sup>16, 17, 19, 20, 21</sup>; the joyous temple worship with song, music, and shouting v.<sup>1-3</sup>; and universalism of outlook v.<sup>8, 10, 13, 14</sup>. The Ps. is composed of 22 couplets, corresponding with the number of the letters of the Hebrew alphabet, but without the use of the alphabetic letters at the beginning of the couplets, therein differing from Ps. 34. There is always difficulty in arranging such Pss. in Strs., and scholars differ in this regard. It is probable that the correspondence of the number of couplets with the letters of the alphabet was due to the insertion of two couplets, v.<sup>11-12</sup>, into the original Ps. for that purpose. These couplets may be taken out without being missed — indeed, to the improvement of the course of thought in the Ps., which they interrupt. It is then easy to divide the Ps. into four trimeter decastichs.

Str. I. is composed of five syn. couplets, three of which are a call to worship in the temple, two giving the reason for it. — 1. Shout ye], the sacred shout expressing the enthusiasm of praise in the temple worship, which was appropriate to the place and becoming to those entitled to worship there. These are the righteous || upright, in the later sense of those zealous for the Law and institutions of Israel, and living in strict conformity thereto. — 2. Give thanks], implying a song of thanksgiving accompanied with instrumental music of the lyre and larger ten-stringed harp. The three forms of praise are summed up in 3: Sing, play skilfully, with shouting. That which is to be sung is a new song, a fresh outburst of praise; not in the sense that a new composition was rendered, but that a fresh experience of divine favour had been enjoyed, and was acknowledged in a new festal assembly in the temple for this particular purpose. — 4. The reason for this summons is the word of Yahweh and His work. This comprehends all the divine activity, as it has been experienced. The word, in its instruction and promises, is upright, as His people who conform to it are upright; His work in judgment upon enemies and redemption of His people is with faithfulness to His covenant, cf. Dt. 32<sup>4</sup>. But back of all His word and work is His love in its more ancient form of kindness and its later form of affection. — 5. He loves righteousness, probably the doing of it on His part as the context suggests, and justice, incorrectly rendered “judgment” in EV<sup>s</sup>. here and elsewhere in this combination. — The earth is full of His kindness] in action, in His work as above, cf. 119<sup>64</sup>. These divine attributes are conceived as working through all the earth. That is the background of their particular working in the experience which calls for the fresh song of praise.

Str. II. is composed of two parts of syn. couplets, giving the reason for the intervening syn. couplet, summoning the world to stand in awe of Yahweh. — 6. The psalmist goes back in thought to the creation, especially of the heavens and all their host; that is, the heavenly luminaries, sun, moon, and stars, in accordance with the conception of Gn. 2<sup>1</sup> Is. 40<sup>26</sup> 45<sup>12</sup>, and not the angels as Pss. 103<sup>21</sup> 148<sup>2</sup>. These were made, the most general term for creative activity, not implying any particular mode or theory of creation. — By His word], the instrumental means here employed; that is, by command, as v.<sup>9</sup> in accordance with Gn. 1. With this is parallel: By the breath of His mouth], the words breathed forth in speech. Some have thought of the divine Spirit here in accordance with Gn. 1<sup>2</sup>, the same Hebrew word being used for “breath” and “spirit”; but if the reference were to the divine Spirit it would be Spirit of Yahweh, and not Spirit of His mouth. — 7. The creation of the waters of the sea is now described. — the primeval deep], probably only the depths of the sea, in accordance with Jb. 38<sup>8-11</sup>. 22, and not the more comprehensive mass of waters, including the subterranean and terranean waters before their separation, of Gn. 1<sup>6-9</sup>. — He gathereth in a flask], after  $\mathfrak{G}$  and most ancient Vrss., as more suited to the putteth in treasuries, than  $\mathfrak{H}$  followed by EV<sup>s</sup>., “as a heap.” The conceptions of treasuries, where God stores up the snow and hail, and of a flask, literally water-skin, in which the Orientals carry their water and wine, where God stores up the waters of heaven, are in Jb. 38<sup>22</sup>. 37. Inasmuch as in Jb. 38<sup>8-10</sup> the baby sea is conceived as shut in safely in its place at the creation with bars and doors, it is most probable that all these terms of Job are at the basis of this description, rather than the heaping up of the waters of the Red Sea for the passage through them of Israel, according to Ex. 15<sup>8</sup>, which is another and heterogeneous figure of speech to that of treasures and the permanence of the sea in its place. The verbal forms are participles, but not on that account to be referred to "the continual action of maintenance as well as the original creation," Kirk., because the participles are of the late Aramaic style, used for the finite verb, and refer to the creation itself as in the passage of Job mentioned above. — 8. The fact of the creation of heavens and sea by Yahweh is a ground on which the psalmist summons mankind to fear such a Creator. — Let all the earth || all the inhabitants of the world], all mankind wherever they may be. This is an universal summons. — be in fear of Yahweh || stand in awe]. It is not probable that the psalmist is thinking of fear here in the religious sense appropriate to the people of God, as in v. 18, where the accusative is used; but in the more external sense of awe and submission to the divine sovereignty. — 9. The reason is reënforced by a return to the conception of the creation, which is stated in terms of the primitive creation of the light, according to Gn. 1<sup>3</sup>. — For He spake and it came to pass], the very words of Gn. 1<sup>3</sup>, expressing by the Waw consec. the immediateness of the obedience of the creature to the creative word; paraphrased in the syn. clause: He commanded, with the same immediateness of result, and it stood forth]; that is, it sprang into existence and presented itself, or stood forth as a host, using the imagery of v. 6 and Gn. 2<sup>1</sup>, as an army stands forth in array when the sovereign issues the command. — 10. The creative power has been mentioned as a warning to the nations; it is therefore appropriate in the climax that the providential power should be referred to. This, as we would expect from the purpose of the statement, is on its negative side, with reference to the nations || the peoples. They may take counsel and make plans against the people of Yahweh, but in vain; for He doth bring them to naught || make of none effect. He frustrates all their schemes of hostility against His people; and this is the climax which justifies the inclusion of the entire Str. in this Ps. of praise.

A later editor, wishing to emphasise the thought of the last couplet, adds a tetrastich to the Str., and interrupts thereby the progress of thought in the Ps.

The counsel of Yahweh standeth forever,
 The plans of His mind to all generations.
 Happy the nation whose God is Yahweh,
 The people He has chosen for His inheritance!

11-12. The counsel of Yahweh || the plans of His mind], the plans formed in His mind, God being conceived as having a mind, just as man, His image. These words are in striking antith. to the counsel and plans of the nations of the previous couplet. As Yahweh frustrates their counsel and plans, He maintains His own counsel; it standeth firm, not capable of frustration, unchangeable, permanent, and indeed forever || to all generations. This is a ground for congratulation to the people of Yahweh, for it renders them secure in the hands of their God; therefore they may sing: Happy the nation || the people, antith. to all the other nations and peoples, because they have the inestimable privilege of one whose God is Yahweh; and this not simply because they have chosen Him to be their God, but because He has chosen them for His inheritance, His own special property in accordance with the original covenant, Ex. 19<sup>5</sup>; cf. Dt. 4<sup>20</sup> 9<sup>26, 29</sup> 32<sup>9</sup> Mic. 7<sup>14, 18</sup> Is. 19<sup>25</sup> Je. 10<sup>16</sup> Pss. 28<sup>9</sup> 68<sup>10</sup> 74<sup>2</sup> 78<sup>62, 71</sup> 94<sup>5, 14</sup> 106<sup>5, 40</sup>. A still later editor inserts in the Mss. underlying  $\mathfrak{C}$  an addition to v.<sup>10</sup>, followed by  $\mathfrak{U}$  and PBV., "and casteth out the counsel of princes," which makes the couplet into a triplet by a third syn. clause. It certainly was not in the original Ps., which was composed entirely of couplets, although it is an idea entirely appropriate in itself.

Str. III. is composed of three synth. couplets, describing the divine inspection of mankind, followed by two syn. couplets drawing the consequences, that victory and safety are not due entirely to human powers. — 13-14. From heaven], emphatic, || the place where He sits enthroned], the divine throne in the heavenly palace, v. 9<sup>8</sup> 29<sup>10</sup> 55<sup>20</sup> 102<sup>13</sup> Is. 63<sup>15</sup> 66<sup>1</sup>. — Yahweh doth look || see || glance], the divine inspection of mankind, as 11<sup>4</sup> 14<sup>2</sup>. — all the sons of mankind || all the inhabitants of the earth]. His inspection is universal, a resumption of the thought of the universal warning of v.<sup>8</sup>. The inspection is a thorough one, nothing escapes it. — 15. He that formed their mind], created the mind of man, constructed or formed it as truly as He formed the body; cf. Gn. 2<sup>7, 8</sup> Zc. 12<sup>1</sup> Ps. 94<sup>9</sup>. It is possible that the second story of the creation was in the mind of the psalmist as well as the first, and that he extends the construction of the body of man to that of the mind also. But inasmuch as he thinks of the minds of his contemporaries, the formation of the mind is not that of the primitive man, but that of all men the world over. The psalmist does not, any more than Is.<sup>2</sup>, distinguish the creative activity from the providential. He certainly does not conceive the later distinction between creationism and traducianism. He thought that each and every individual man originates, mind and body, as a result of divine activity; cf. Ps. 139<sup>13-16</sup>. The divine construction of the mind was not partial but total, altogether. Therefore Yahweh knows it already in all its powers and activities, its capacities and its limitations. Nothing whatever in the mind of man can escape His inspection. He knows the inner man. He is one that discerneth all their works. The result of all this is that the mind and works of men are very much limited; they are under the entire control of Yahweh. — 16-17. The king], thinking probably of the king of Syria, the great enemy of the Maccabean times, || the mighty man, the trained warrior, || the horse, the cavalry of the army. These are conceived as with a great, a numerous, army, coming up against Israel and relying upon their overwhelming power for victory. The renderings of EV<sup>s</sup>., "save," "salvation," or "safety," are too general, and not suited to the context. The beauty of the synonymous thought is spoiled by rendering the same word "host" or "army" in v.<sup>16</sup> and "strength" in v.<sup>17</sup>, as if the latter referred to the horse. This would be an exaggeration of the horse, giving it a couplet to itself, and indeed in the climax of the Str., as compared with the king who would have but one line, although he is emphasised by the position of the word in v.<sup>16a</sup>. The king is really the subject of v.<sup>17b</sup>, as well as of v.<sup>16a</sup>. The king thinks he can gain a victory by his great army. His cavalry, in which he chiefly trusted, proves a delusion. Instead of winning victory, he is defeated, and in his defeat the strength of his warriors cannot deliver them, and the king himself cannot find deliverance by his army. The context indicates that all this is due to the divine inspection and interposition so fully stated in the previous couplets. For this situation in history, cf. 1 Mac. 3<sup>19</sup>.

Str. IV. is composed of two syn. couplets, setting forth the experience of deliverance, followed by three synth. couplets of joyous prayer. — 18. Behold], calling particular attention to what is to be said. — the eye of Yahweh], taking up the inspection of the previous Str. Yahweh's eye is resting upon His people as well as upon the nations, only with a different motive. He had inspected the nations to frustrate their plans and to give them defeat instead of victory. He inspects His people with favour. — toward them that fear Him], with the reverential fear of worship, || toward them that hope in His kindness], look up to Him for it, expect it, wait to receive it; recurring to the kindness of v.<sup>5</sup>, praised, as exhibited throughout the earth. That which the people of Yahweh hoped for, looking unto Yahweh in godly fear, they received. — 19. His eye had a redemptive purpose when directed upon them: To deliver their life from death. The nation had been in extreme peril because of the great army of the king of Syria, threatening to destroy them. Yahweh delivered them by giving them the victory. — And to preserve their lives in famine]. If this is historical, it may refer to the famine of a besieged city in which the great army of Syria had shut up Israel, and then probably to a siege of Jerusalem, or else to a peril of famine in the land, owing to the devastation wrought by the Syrian army. — 20. The psalmist now turns to the final prayer. — Our soul]. The people are conceived as having but one soul; only they speak, not as an individual, "my soul," but as an aggregate of individuals in one nation. — doth wait for Yahweh], not here in the sense of anxiously looking for an exhibition of kindness in deliverance; but in the temple, in reliance upon His kindness as already bestowed. — 21-22. For in Him our heart is glad || we trust || we hope in Thee, all alike syn. expressions of joyous confidence in their God who had done such great things for them. — Our help and shield], shield for defence, help to deliver; cf. Gn. 15<sup>1</sup> Pss. 3<sup>4</sup> 20<sup>3</sup>. — His holy name], the majestic name that secures victory in accordance with 20<sup>6,8</sup>. The Ps. concludes with a petition that the kindness just experienced in deliverance, v.<sup>18</sup>, and which now fills the earth with its renown, v.<sup>5</sup>, may ever abide upon His people.

imparted by the breath of God. This, however, would lead to the thought that the צבא of heaven are here regarded as living beings, like the morning stars of Job, and the reference here would be to orders of angels. This would widen the doctrine of creation to the extent that all living beings in heaven and on earth owe their life to the breath of the divine mouth. — בִּרְבוֹר יוֹהָה [נִרְבוֹר] is prob. for an original בִּרְבוֹר; otherwise the l. is too long. — 7. כָּנֶס Qal ptc. † [כָּנֶס] vb. ### PSALM XXXIV., 3 STR. 7<sup>6</sup>.

Ps. 34 is a thanksgiving. (1) A vow of praise in which all are invited to unite (v. 2-4); because Yahweh has answered the prayer of His afflicted people and delivered them by their guardian angel (v. 5-8); (2) an exhortation to seek Yahweh, the source of all good (v. 9-11), with instruction that prosperity depends upon good conduct (v. 12-15); (3) a contrast of the watchful care of Yahweh over the righteous (v. 16, 18-21) with His destruction of the wicked (v. 17, 22). A liturgical gloss was added (v. 23).

- I WILL bless Yahweh at all times, continually shall His praise be in my mouth.
 Of Yahweh will my soul boast; let the afflicted (make it heard) and be glad.
 O magnify Yahweh with me; and let us exalt His name together.
 I sought Yahweh, and He answered me, and from all my terrors He delivered me.
 They looked unto Him and beamed, and their face was not abashed.
 This same afflicted people cried, and Yahweh from all his distresses saved him.
 The angel of Yahweh encamped about them that fear Him, and rescue them.
- O TASTE and see that He is good; happy the man that taketh refuge in Him.
 O fear Yahweh, His holy ones; for there is no lack to them that fear Him.
 Young lions are in want and they suffer hunger; but they that seek Him lack not any good.
- O come, sons, hearken to me; the fear of Yahweh I will teach you.
 Who is the man that taketh pleasure in life? loveth days that he may see good?
 Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking deceit;
 Depart from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it.

THE face of Yahweh is against them that do evil, to cut off their memory from the land.

The eyes of Yahweh are unto the righteous, and His ears unto their cry for help; They cry and Yahweh heareth, and delivereth them out of all their distresses.

Yahweh is nigh unto the broken-hearted, and the crushed in spirit He saveth. Many are the misfortunes of the righteous: but out of them all Yahweh delivereth him;

He keepeth all his bones, not one of them is broken.

Misfortune shall slay the wicked, and they that hate the righteous shall suffer punishment.

Ps. 34 was in D, but not in any of the major Psalters. The title has a reference to the life of David, "when he changed" or disguised "his judgment," feigned madness "before Abimelek, and he sent him away and he departed," in accordance with the story 1 S. 21<sup>11</sup><sup>sq.</sup>, except that the Philistine king is there called Achish (v. Intr. § 27). This change might have arisen from defective memory of the editor, or from substituting the common name of the Philistine kings for the specific one. Ps. 56 is also referred in the title to the same period of David's life at Gath. The editor did not mean to imply that David composed these Pss. on that occasion, but that they might be supposed to represent his spiritual emotions at that time. Ps. 34 is an acrostic of 22 hexameters, and like all such poems more or less artificial. There seems to have been a transposition of lines γ and δ. This was due to an editor who changed the earlier order of these letters (v. La. 2, 3, 4, and Ε of Pr. 31) to the later order of his time. The Ps. is original, and shews little dependence on other writings. The conception of the guardian angel, v.<sup>3</sup>, resembles that of 35<sup>5</sup>.<sup>6</sup> 91<sup>11</sup>, and is probably an earlier conception of a special angel, having Israel in charge, which subsequently develops into the one named Michael, and implies the Persian period. The term סֹרֵר כֹּרֵךְ, v.<sup>15</sup>, is common to WL., but elsw. only here Ps. 37<sup>27</sup> Is. 59<sup>15</sup>. The contrition of v.<sup>19</sup> is dependent on Is. 57<sup>15</sup> 61<sup>1</sup> and resembles Ps. 51<sup>19</sup>. The Ps. implies the beginning of WL. and the Persian period, but shews no dependence on P. The Ps. omits the line ι, as Ps. 25, in order to get a division into three Strs. of seven lines each. It has also a supplementary liturgical addition which is essentially the same as that in Ps. 25. On account of v.<sup>9</sup> the Ps. was used in the Holy Communion in the ancient Church; cf. Apostolic Constitutions, 8<sup>18</sup>; Cyril, Cat. myst. 5<sup>17</sup>; Bingham, Antiq. V. 460.

Str. I. is a heptastich, composed of a syn. tristich and a syn. tetrastich. — 2-3. I will bless Yahweh], in the benedictions characteristic of Hebrew worship, || His praise, the praise of Him, by the use of the hallels, characteristic of festivals (v. Intr. § 35). — boast], in these hallels, by describing Yahweh's wondrous deeds of salvation and judgment. This is to be at all times || continually, perpetual worship in the temple. — in my mouth], the sacred songs, not only written and read, but sung aloud. — Let the afflicted make it heard], namely, the praise of v.<sup>2</sup>, taking their share in it; so by an easy change of vowel points giving an excellent parall. instead of the usual “will hear and will be glad” of  $\mathfrak{H}$  and Vrss. — 4. O magnify Yahweh], tell of His greatness and His great deeds, || exalt His name, His supreme majesty as King of Israel and the nations, cf. 30<sup>2</sup> 99<sup>5,9</sup> 107<sup>32</sup> 145<sup>1</sup>. — with me || let us together]. The afflicted are exhorted to unite with the psalmist in this thanksgiving. It is common praise, worship of the whole people, and not merely of individuals. — 5-6. The reason for the praise is now given as an encouragement to the afflicted. — I sought Yahweh]. The veteran sage gives his own personal experience. — and He answered me]. His answer was not in word, but in deed, He delivered me from all my terrors], due probably to the aggression of a powerful enemy. On the basis of this personal experience, the afflicted taking part in the temple worship are reminded of their own experience: They looked unto Him], that they might catch the light of His countenance, cf. 27<sup>1,4</sup>, and so beamed], their face lighted up by the light from Yahweh’s face; antith. with their condition as the afflicted. — and their face was not abashed], no longer clouded with gloom, humiliation, and shame. The chief ancient Vrss.,  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ ,  $\mathfrak{J}$ , and many moderns, take these verbs as imperatives, in accordance with the jussive at the close of the line. But  $\mathfrak{H}$ , EV<sup>a</sup>., and other scholars, rightly regard these verbs as perfects, and the line as syn. with the previous and following lines. — 7-8. This same afflicted people cried]. The psalmist points to the nation in its organic unity, combining himself with all the afflicted. — Yahweh from all his distresses saved him], in response to the nation’s prayer, cf. v.<sup>5</sup>. — The activity of Yahweh now passes over into that of the angel of Yahweh, which might be interpreted as referring to the theophanic angel of the ancient history in accordance with Is. 63<sup>9</sup>, and as implying the conception of the angelic camp which met Jacob Gn. 32<sup>2</sup>. But it is most probable that the author here, as in Pss. 35<sup>5,6</sup> 91<sup>11</sup>, is thinking of the guardian angel of Israel, who in later times received the name of Michael, Dn. 10<sup>13,21</sup> 12<sup>1</sup>. This angel is represented as chief of an army encamped about Israel to protect them from enemies, and who, in such perils as described above, rescued them; cf. 2 K. 6<sup>17</sup>. — them that fear Him], with the reverence of His people for Yahweh.

Str. II. is composed of a tristich of stairlike parall. and a synth. tetrastich. — 9. O taste and see], make a trial, test by experience. — He is good], kind, benignant, as bestowing good things upon His people. This is used in 1 Pet. 2<sup>3</sup> and applied to Christ as Lord; cf. also Heb. 6<sup>4-5</sup>, where it is applied to the good things of the Holy Spirit. — happy the man], an exclamation of congratulation, as 1<sup>1</sup>. — that taketh refuge in Him], as 2<sup>12</sup>. — 10. O fear Yahweh], taking up v.<sup>8</sup> and reiterating it in v.<sup>10b</sup>. — them that fear Him, || His holy ones], His people as consecrated to His service, cf. 16<sup>3</sup> Dt. 33<sup>3</sup>, an idea especially prominent in the Holiness code (v. Br.<sup>Hex. 152</sup>). — for there is no lack] of good things, because Yahweh is good to them. This is, then, the basis for the antithesis, 11, between young lions and they that seek Him; the former, notwithstanding their strength and greed as active beasts of prey, are in want, because they do not always find prey, or cannot, if they find it, take possession of it, and accordingly they suffer hunger; but they that seek Yahweh, however feeble and afflicted they may be, and unable to supply their own wants, lack not any good, because their wants are supplied by Yahweh, whose characteristic is that He is good. — 12 begins a second exhortation, in the style of a teacher or sage to his disciples; only here in  $\psi$ , but characteristic of WL.; cf. Pr. 1<sup>8</sup> 1 Jn. 2<sup>1</sup>. — O come, sons], a call to attention, followed by a coördinate imperative, hearken to me. He has an important lesson to give: I will teach you]. That which is taught is first stated in its summary form, the fear of Yahweh]. This is not in the more ancient sense of religion, but in the ethical sense of Pr. 1<sup>7</sup>, characteristic of WL., as the subsequent context indicates. — 13. The lesson is to be imparted through the answer to a question: Who is the man?] as 25<sup>12</sup>, that taketh pleasure in life], would not only live, but enjoy life; antith. with the afflictions of the afflicted of the previous Str., as suggested by the beaming face of v.<sup>6</sup>. — loveth days], days of life, many days, a long life. — that he may see good], the vb. “see,” based upon the exhortation “taste and see,” v.<sup>9</sup>, and the obj. “good” upon v.<sup>11</sup>, in the sense of good received, prosperity in life. He who would have so good a blessing from Yahweh must have the ethical qualifications, 14–15. These are both of speech and conduct. — Keep], in the sense of “watch,” “guard.” It concerns both tongue and lips as the organs of speech, but is only on the negative side of restraint, from evil || from speaking deceit. This is not in the older ethical sense, against neighbours to do them injury, but in the later sense of avoiding evil and deceitful speech as such, as in Pr. 4<sup>24</sup> 13<sup>3</sup> 21<sup>23</sup> BS. 28<sup>25</sup> Ja. 3<sup>2sq.</sup>, based on Persian ethical conceptions. The conduct must be good, both positively and negatively; negatively, depart from evil], a phrase characteristic of WL., Pr. 3<sup>7</sup> 13<sup>19</sup> 16<sup>6, 17</sup>. The evil is doing evil in an ethical sense, as implied by the antith., do good, as in Ps. 37<sup>27</sup>, where the entire phrase is used. The positive side of doing good is more specifically defined as seek, emphasised by pursue, — peace], with neighbours, probably implying friendship; cf. Rom. 14<sup>19</sup> Heb. 12<sup>14</sup>.

Str. III. encloses five synonymous lines, setting forth Yahweh's salvation of the righteous, between an initial and a concluding line, affirming the destruction of the wicked. The former has been transposed with the following line by a late editor, who wished to follow the alphabetical order of his day, at the expense of the congruity of the lines with their context. The enemies are described, 17, 22, as them that do evil, v.<sup>17</sup>, in antithesis with the exhortation, “do good,” v.<sup>15</sup>, and also by the ordinary term, the wicked and they that hate the righteous, v.<sup>22</sup>, the latter doubtless antith. to v.<sup>15</sup>. Their punishment is that the face of Yahweh is against them in anger, as 80<sup>17</sup>, with the purpose to cut off their memory from the land, v.<sup>17</sup>, so utterly to destroy them that they will no longer be remembered; they will pass into oblivion, as 9<sup>7</sup>. V.<sup>22</sup> gives the synonymous misfortune shall slay. This is in striking antithesis to v.<sup>20</sup>, where it is stated that Yahweh will deliver the righteous out of misfortunes, however many they may be. The climax is given in the comprehensive term, shall suffer punishment, v.<sup>22</sup>, which is to be preferred to “shall be desolate,” PBV., AV., which is paraphrase and not translation; or “condemned,” RV., which is a possible translation, but is too mild for the climax. — 16, 18–21 set forth the deliverance of the righteous. The eyes of Yahweh are unto them, antith. with the face of Yahweh against the wicked, v.<sup>17</sup>, and so in the syn. clause, His ears unto them; both eyes and ears are attentive to their necessities, and accordingly He is nigh unto them, v.<sup>19</sup>. They are described as in great trouble: all their distresses, v.<sup>18</sup>, many are the misfortunes, v.<sup>20</sup>; they are broken-hearted and crushed in spirit, v.<sup>19</sup>, conceptions based on Is. 57<sup>13</sup> 61<sup>1</sup>, cf. also Pss. 51<sup>19</sup> 147<sup>3</sup>; and it is suggested that their bones are also in pain, as 22<sup>15, 18</sup> 31<sup>11</sup> 42<sup>11</sup>. All this describes the sufferings of the afflicted of v.<sup>3</sup>, whom this psalmist is cheering by his instruction and good counsel. In this situation Yahweh does not disregard their cry for help, v.<sup>16</sup>; they cry and Yahweh heareth, v.<sup>18</sup>; and this hearing is effective, as in the psalmist's experience, v.<sup>5</sup>. The usual terms describe their salvation: He delivereth them, v.<sup>18, 20</sup>; saveth them, v.<sup>10</sup>; keepeth all their bones, v.<sup>21</sup>, and so completely and safely that not one of them is broken.

23. The Ps., like 25, has a liturgical addition, which makes it end in salvation instead of punishment. This, in its present form, is composed of two tetrameters, but it may be reduced to a hexameter by omission of unnecessary words inserted in brackets.

(Yahweh) ransometh the life of His servants,

And (none) of them that take refuge in Him shall suffer punishment.

This is a general statement, appropriate as a summing up the thought of the entire Ps., and certainly makes a better conclusion for religious use in the synagogue.

2. בְּכָל־עֵת in or at all times (v. 10<sup>5</sup>), n. def. by usage. — 3. תִּתְהַלֵּל Hithp. impf. 3 f. make boast (v. 5<sup>6</sup>), as 105<sup>3</sup>; cf. 63<sup>12</sup>. — נַפְשִׁי paraphrase of person, I (v. 3<sup>3</sup>). — יִשְׁמְעֵנִי Qal impf. connected by ו coörd. with יִשְׁמְחוּ. But it makes an awkward change in construction and parall. Rd. Hiph. יִשְׁמְעֵנִי with הֵחֵלָה understood = make it to be heard, cf. 66<sup>8</sup> 106<sup>2</sup>. — עֲנוּיִם [the afflicted] (v. 10<sup>17</sup>). — 4. נִרְיָצָה Pol. impf. cohort. 1 pl. רִים exalt: only here name, elsw. Qal pf. — † [מִן] הַיָּדָה n.f. terror; elsw. Is. 66<sup>4</sup> Pr. 10<sup>24</sup>; cf. מִנּוּר Ps. 31<sup>14</sup> and vb. נִיר 22<sup>24</sup>. — 6. הִבְיָשׁוּ Hiph. pf. 3 m. נֹבֵט — וְנִתְהַלֵּל conj., Qal pf. 3 m. i.p. † נִהַר vb. beam, be radiant; elsw. only Is. 60<sup>5</sup>. But ע, ז, ט, י, imv.; so Che., Bā., Dr., Du., Kirk. This is in accord with אֵל יִהְיֶה, which with this neg. can only be juss. Qal of † הִפַּר, vb. only here with subj. פָּנִים; elsw. with כֹּחַ 35<sup>4</sup>, כֹּחַ 35<sup>26</sup> 40<sup>15</sup> (= 70<sup>3</sup>) 71<sup>24</sup> 83<sup>18</sup>. It is then necessary to follow Vrss. and rd. פָּנִים for פָּנִים, unless we suppose that both sfs. are, as often, interpretative of the noun in an original text without them. But a change to imv. is abrupt and impairs the parall. It is more prob. that אֵל is an error of transposition for לָא, and that the vbs. are aorists as in context. The subj. of vbs. is עָנִים, v.<sup>3</sup>. The ו Str. was omitted as in Ps. 25 in order that the alphabetical Ps. might be divided into three heptastichs. — 7. יְהִי emph., pointing to him, this same, referring to the people in whose name the psalmist speaks (v. 24<sup>8</sup>). עָנִי sg. coll. for the people; cf. עָנִים, v.<sup>3</sup> (v. 9<sup>13</sup>). — יְהוָה either the divine name or שְׁמֶךְ must be a gl. The latter may be explained as adapted to v.<sup>18</sup>, and יְהוָה seems to be needed in the sentence. — צָרוֹת straits, distresses; as v.<sup>18</sup> 25<sup>22</sup> (v. 20<sup>2</sup>). — 8. חָנָה Qal ptc. as finite vb. of late style, encamp (v. 27<sup>3</sup>); but this is not in accord with ו consec. in יִהְיֶה Pi. impf. 3 m. sf. 3 pl. חָלַץ deliver, rescue (v. 6<sup>5</sup>). Either therefore חָנָה as pf. aorist (as v.<sup>7</sup>), referring to a past deliverance; or else the ו as coörd., referring to a continuous experience. The context and parall. urge the former; so Che. — † מַלְאָךְ n.m. (1) messenger: the winds 104<sup>4</sup>, מַלְאָכִים 78<sup>49</sup>; (2) angels 103<sup>20</sup> 148<sup>2</sup>, having care of the pious 91<sup>11</sup> (all pl.); (3) מַלְאָךְ יְהוָה, the angel champion of Israel 35<sup>5,6</sup>; so here (34<sup>8</sup>) either as the guardian angel of Israel, the Michael of later times, or else as the theophanic angel of J. and Ju. 5<sup>23</sup>, constantly called מַלְאָךְ יְהוָה. In the latter case it might be a reference to the history of the Exodus, as Is. 63<sup>9</sup>, where this angel is called the angel of His presence. But the context favours a more general reference, and then we have to think of the guardian angel of Israel before the time when he received the name Michael, Dn. 10<sup>13,21</sup> 12<sup>1</sup>. — 9. טָעַמוּ Qal inv. 2 pl. † טָעַם vb. The divine name is as usual gl. טִיב as good in the sense of benignant (v. 25<sup>8</sup>). — יְהִי־קִדְשֵׁי relative clause Qal impf. frequentative, also v.<sup>23</sup> (v. 2<sup>12</sup>). — 10. Sons, not children but young men, addressed by an experienced wise man, as in WL., v. Pr. 8<sup>32</sup>; only here ψ in this sense. — יִירָאָה the fear of Yahweh, the act of fearing, piety whether religious or ethical, as 5<sup>8</sup> 90<sup>11</sup> 111<sup>10</sup> 119<sup>38</sup> (v. 2<sup>11</sup>). — 15. Jb. 28<sup>28</sup> Pr. 3<sup>7</sup> 13<sup>19</sup> 16<sup>6,17</sup>; in ψ elsw. 37<sup>27</sup>. — [עֵשָׂה טוֹב] in ethical sense 14<sup>1,8</sup> (= 53<sup>2,4</sup>) 37<sup>3,27</sup> (v. 4<sup>7</sup>). — 16. אֵל a.l. — 16. אֵל should be אֱלִי with separate tone and אל-שׁוּעָה for אל-שׁוּעָה, which makes better measure. Sfs. were often added by scribes. — 17. פָּנֵי י. c. b, of hostility, anger, as 80<sup>17</sup> (v. 4<sup>7</sup>). — [עֵשָׂה טוֹב] anth. with עֵשָׂה טוֹב v.<sup>15</sup>, variation of writing, not of form. — [יִרְבְּרוּ] Hiph. inf. cstr. with ל purpose as v.<sup>13</sup>, כִּרָּה (v.

This v. cannot refer to the person of v. 17. In fact, v. 16, 17 have been transposed in order to conform an earlier alphabetical order to a later, at the expense of the thought. For the older order v. La. 2, 3, 4 Pr. 31 (G). G overcomes the difficulty of change of subj. by inserting οὐ δὲ καίτοι, but at the expense of the measure. — [וִירוּחַ] subj. emph. — 19. The dependence upon Is. 2 can hardly be questioned. As to forms נִשְׁבְּרֵי Niph. ptc. pl. cstr. שִׁבֵּר, v. also v. 21: רַפְּאֵי pl. cstr. of רָפָא adj. elsw. Is. 57<sup>15</sup>. — 21. PSALM XXXV., 3 STR. 10<sup>5</sup>.

The Ps. is a national prayer: (1) petition that Yahweh may interpose as the champion of His people, and especially by His angel, against enemies who without cause have sought to entrap them (v. 1-6, 9-10<sup>a</sup>); (2) complaint against the neighbours as false friends who reward evil for good, and antipathy for sympathy, with petition for deliverance (v. 11-18); (3) petition that these enemies may not be permitted to go on in their treacherous conduct and that Yahweh may interpose in judgment (v. 19, 25, 27b-28). Each part concludes with a vow of praise. Glosses emphasise the imprecations (v. 7-8, 26-27<sup>a</sup>).

- O YAHWEH, plead my cause, fight with them that fight me;
 Take hold of shield and buckler, and rise up as my help;
 Draw out spear (and javelin) to encounter him that pursues me;
 Say unto me, (Yahweh): Thy salvation am I,
 Let them be ashamed and brought to dishonour together that seek my life;
 Let them be turned back and confounded that devise my hurt;
 Let them be as chaff before the wind, (thine) angel pursuing them;
 Let their way be in darkness and slippery places, (thine) angel thrusting them down.
 Then my soul will be joyful in Yahweh, will rejoice in His salvation;
 All my bones will say: "Yahweh, who is like Thee?"
- WITNESSES of violence rise up, that of which I am not aware they require of me;
 They reward me evil for good, bereavement to me.
 But as for me, when they were deadly wounded, I made sackcloth my clothing;

I afflicted my soul with fasting, my prayer was upon my bosom;
 As for a friend, as for mine own brother, I went in procession, in black I bowed down.
 But when I halted, they rejoiced, and they gathered together (in throngs) against me.
 Smiters tore me, for that of which I am not aware, without cessation;
 In my pollution they mocked, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.
 O recover my life from roarers, from lions mine only one;
 And I will give thee thanks in the great congregation, among a numerous people I will praise Thee.

LET not them that hate me without cause, rejoice over me, winking with the eye;
 For it is not peace that they speak, but against my tranquillity;
 Deceitful things they devise, and they open wide their mouths against me;
 They said: "Aha, aha! our eye hath seen it."
 Thou hast seen, Yahweh; keep not silence, keep not afar off;
 Stir up Thyself for my judgment, my God, and awake unto my cause;
 Judge me according to my righteousness, my God, and let them not rejoice over me;
 Let them not say in their mind: "Aha, our desire! we have swallowed him up."
 May Yahweh be magnified, who hath delight in the peace of His servant;
 My tongue will murmur Thy righteousness, all day long Thy praise.

Ps. 35 was in D, but not in any of the other Psalters. They were right. It is not well suited to public worship. It is a pentameter, with many glosses from other Pss. and Prophets. These being removed, it appears to be composed of three symmetrical decastichs, each concluding with a Refrain vowing public praise. V.<sup>26-27</sup> is a gloss from 70<sup>389</sup>; v.<sup>8</sup> from Is. 47<sup>11</sup>; v.<sup>106</sup> from Je. 31<sup>11</sup>. In the original Ps., v.<sup>3</sup> is possibly dependent on 3<sup>8</sup>; v.<sup>4</sup> cited from 70<sup>3</sup> = 40<sup>16</sup>; v.<sup>12</sup> reminds of Is. 47<sup>8.9</sup>; v.<sup>6</sup> of Je. 23<sup>12</sup>; v.<sup>26</sup> of La. 2<sup>16</sup>; v.<sup>13</sup> of Ps. 69<sup>11-12</sup>; v.<sup>18</sup> קהל רב of 22<sup>26</sup> 40<sup>10</sup>. These do not show dependence, but a similarity of situation and language, which suggests nearness of time of composition. V.<sup>10</sup> מִי כִמּוֹךְ implies Ex. 15<sup>11</sup>, and the singing in the temple some such song of praise. The angel, v.<sup>5</sup>, probably the guardian angel of Israel, resembles 34<sup>8</sup>, 91<sup>11</sup>, and suggests the earlier stages of that idea. The use of חֲמָץ, v.<sup>16</sup>, for pollution of land is similar to Je. 3<sup>1</sup> Mi. 4<sup>11</sup> Ps. 106<sup>88</sup>. All this favours the situation of the feeble community of the Restoration, owing to the hostility of the neighbouring nations.

Str. I. is composed of a syn. triplet with a line synth. thereto, a syn. tetrastich and a syn. couplet.—1. O Yahweh, plead my cause], so probably in the original, using the common phrase, which sometimes implies judicial process; at other times, as here, vindication in battle, and so || fight with them that fight me. Ancient texts were misled by the last clause to find a parall. with it in the previous clause, and so by a slight change of form made a doubtful word with the meaning "with them that contend," or strive, "with me." The people are in peril from warlike enemies; they are unable to defend themselves, and so appeal to Yahweh to interpose. Yahweh is conceived as a champion, a heroic warrior, as Ex. 15<sup>3</sup> Dt. 32<sup>41</sup> Ps. 24<sup>9</sup>. Accordingly, He is implored to arm Himself as a warrior: 2-3. Take hold of shield, as 3<sup>4</sup>; and buckler, as 5<sup>13</sup>; || draw out spear (and javelin)]. The latter word is a conjectural emendation, in accordance with the association of these words in usage, and therefore to be preferred to the emendation of many scholars, "battle axe," which is a foreign word, unknown to Hebrew usage elsewhere, and all the more dubious, that upon it is based an argument for a later date for the Ps. than other evidence will allow. The imperative of 3, "stop," in the pregnant sense, supplying "the way," though sustained by ancient and modern Vrss., is not suited to the subsequent words, which imply, not resistance to attack, but aggression, an advance to meet, to encounter him that pursues me || rise up as my help. In the climax, the poet turns from the enemies to Yahweh: Say unto me: Thy salvation am I]. The personal God and vindicator of Israel is their salvation from the enemies who make the present peril. — 4. The poet begins his imprecation with a couplet from 70<sup>3</sup> = 40<sup>15</sup>.

Let them be ashamed and brought to dishonour together that seek my life;
Let them be turned back and confounded that devise my hurt.

He imprecates upon the enemies a shameful defeat, involving all the hurt and even death they had planned against Israel. — 5-6. The psalmist now introduces the angel as in 34<sup>8</sup>. This, in the text, is "angel of Yahweh," but probably in the original was Thine angel, because of measure; not the theophanic angel of the ancient tradition, who led up Israel out of Egypt into the Holy Land, overthrowing all their enemies; but the angel of Israel, whom Yahweh had given charge over Israel, cf. 91<sup>11</sup>, a conception which subsequently developed into the Michael of Daniel. This angel takes up the pursuit of the enemy after Yahweh Himself had defeated them, pursuing them || thrusting them down. These words have, in all the texts, been transposed, as most modern interpreters think; for pursuit is best suited to the simile as chaff before the wind; and thrusting down to the darkness and slippery places into which in their flight their way leads them.

The reason for the petition is now given, in which the groundlessness of their hostility is emphasised, and it is followed by renewed imprecation. This disturbs the course of thought and the structure of the Str., and indeed v.<sup>7</sup> is premature. It is therefore a gloss.

For without cause they hid for me their net;
A pit without cause they dug for me.
Let desolation come upon them unawares,
And let his net, that he hid, catch him,
And in the pit let him fall.

7. For without cause], with no sufficient reason, gratuitously, implying already, what is more fully brought out in Str. II., that the conduct of the enemies was unreasonable and contrary to what ought to have been anticipated. It was indeed treacherous: they hid for me their net || a pit they dug for me], implying the same situation as that in 9<sup>16</sup>, the image of hunters seeking to trap animals. — 8. The imprecation is condensed partly from Is. 47<sup>11</sup> and partly from Ps. 9<sup>16</sup>. The former is, let desolation come upon them unawares; the latter probably in the original, and let his net, that he hid, catch him; and in the pit let him fall, the last clause of which has been preserved by S, but in H, G, and other Vrss. has been obscured by a copyist mistaking the word rendered “pit” for that rendered “desolation,” and so the texts read either “in the desolation,” or “with the desolation let him fall therein.”

The Str. concludes with a vow of praise which may be regarded as a couplet of refrain, as it reappears in varied terms at the close of each Str. — 9–10 a. Then my soul]. The conjunction implies temporal consequence with the subject of verb emphatic. The inner nature is syn. with the outer nature, the bodily frame, all my bones, which sympathise with the emotions of the soul, and thrill with joy here, as they ache with sorrow elsewhere. — will be joyful || will rejoice]. This was doubtless to be expressed in public praise, and is indeed a vow of such praise. The theme is His salvation, that is, as wrought by Him, in the defeat of the enemies, and therefore to be celebrated in an ode, as Ex. 15. — Who is like Thee], possibly referring to that ode itself, used at the period of the psalmist for this very purpose, in the liturgy of the temple.—10 bc. A later editor, failing to see this reference, and thinking the conclusion of the Str. too abrupt, appends what he thinks an adequate explanation, based on Je. 31<sup>11</sup>:

Deliverer of the afflicted from him that is too strong for him;
Yea, the afflicted and needy from him that spoileth him.

Str. II. is composed of a synth. couplet and a syn. triplet enclosing a syn. triplet, concluding with a synth. couplet.—11. Witnesses of violence], not violent witnesses, but such as testify of violence; they rise up to testify; require of me, demand satisfaction, retribution for violence of which I have no knowledge, of which I am not aware; with the implication that it was altogether a false accusation.—12. They reward me evil for good]. Israel had done his neighbours good, and only good; and yet they charged him with evil, and, taking for granted that he was guilty, requited him with evil. This evil is emphasised as bereavement, not to be generalised into “discomfort” of soul, PBV., or specifically “spoiling of my soul” AV.; for which there is no authority in Hebrew usage; but bereavement of children, implying the slaughter of the children of the people by these enemies, as in Is. 47<sup>8,9</sup>; and this as requited to me, as Pss. 41<sup>11</sup> 137<sup>8</sup>, the soul here, as elsewhere, being a paraphrase for the person.—13. The psalmist now in two triplets brings out the kindness of his people in emphatic contrast with the unkindness of the enemy.—But as for me], emphatic assertion of personal conduct.—when they were deadly wounded], by their enemies in battle, resulting in the death of the children of their people, antith. with v.<sup>12</sup>, and so in mourning and funeral processions. This is weakened into “when they were sick,” in MT., which does not suit the context or the thought of the Ps. The context sets forth graphically the ancient method of mourning for the dead.—I made sackcloth my clothing], inserting the verb to complete the measure from the cognate Ps. 69<sup>12</sup>.—I afflicted my soul with fasting], cf. Is. 58<sup>3,5</sup>.—my prayer was upon my bosom], prayer, as the context suggests, of supplication for the bereaved. This was conceived as heartfelt, resting upon the bosom, or upon the heart, while it pulsed with sympathy, as AE., Luther, al. This is certainly an unusual expression; but it was made more difficult by an ancient editor, who inserted a verb, without regard to the measure, usually rendered "returned," which was probably meant to imply that the prayer, notwithstanding its sincerity, returned to the one who made it without effect, Bar Heb., Ri., al., with the suggestion of a reward from God, instead of a reward from those for whom it was offered. This seems to be the interpretation of  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{J}$ , Ra., Hu., Ki. The reference to the head bowed down upon the bosom, De., Bâ., for which 1 Kings 18<sup>42</sup> is cited, does not suit the situation or the language. It would be more natural to think of beating the breast, or bosom, as the usual accompaniment of mourning, Na. 2<sup>7</sup>, if the phrase could be so interpreted. — 14. I went in procession], the usual funeral procession, clad in black, the colour of mourning. — I bowed down], the posture of the mourner, cf. 38<sup>7</sup>, that is, with head bowed and face turned downward. This mourning was as sincere and intense, as for a friend; and still more as for mine own brother. It has become, however, a little too much by the insertion of "as one that mourneth for his mother," by a later editor, at the expense of the measure, making the line as well as the thought by so much overfull. — 15–16. In antith. with this sympathetic sorrow of Israel for its neighbours when they were bereaved of their children in war, is the unsympathetic conduct of these neighbours. — But when I halted], or limped, as Je. 20<sup>10</sup>; as injured in the feet and so in a perilous situation; intensified by in my pollution], pollution of the land with the blood of the slain, cf. Nu. 35<sup>33</sup> Je. 3<sup>1</sup> Mi. 4<sup>11</sup>. This has been interpreted in MT. as a late adj. with the meaning "profane," referring to persons, making the construction and meaning difficult.  $\mathfrak{G}$ , having either a different text, or else paraphrasing, at all events regarded it rightly as a verb. The conduct of the enemies is graphically described. — they rejoiced] antith. the wearing of sackcloth. — and they gathered together in throngs]. All were interested in the humiliation of Israel, and none would be absent on this occasion. — Smiters], so essentially  $\mathfrak{J}$ ,  $\mathfrak{Z}$ , Pe., Moll., Kirk., better than "smitings," blows,  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{Z}$ . The "objects" of EV<sup>a</sup>, based on Ki., Calvin, Grot., explained by De. as "dregs of the people," has nothing to justify it in usage. — They tore me without cessation]. This v. is antith. with the fasting and prayer of Israel. — they mocked], as  $\mathfrak{G}$ , whether the kindred noun "a mocking" be original or due to dittog. ח, by an early error of text, made a phrase unknown elsewhere, which has ever been regarded as difficult to explain. Ra. first suggested "mockers for a cake," that is, parasites, fawning flatterers, who make jests and witticisms against others, in order to please the rich and powerful, and so secure entertainment from their table. This has been followed by EV<sup>a</sup>. and most moderns, who have adhered to ח. But it is not suited to the context, and indeed is far-fetched; so that most recent critics prefer to follow ס or seek a better text. — They gnashed upon me with their teeth], as 37<sup>12</sup>; the mocking passing over into this manifestation of bitterest enmity. This is in fine antith. to the intense grief and mourning expressed by black garments and the funeral procession for a brother of v.<sup>14</sup>. — 17 a. A later editor inserts at this point an appeal to Yahweh, — Yahweh, how long wilt Thou look on], that is, with indifference, while such things are happening, such wrong is done. This line not only is apart from the measures of the Ps. and its strophical organisation, but really expresses an impatience which is foreign to its robust confidence. — 17 b. O recover my life || mine only one], as 22<sup>21</sup> — from roarers], an emendation admirably suited to the previous context || lions, so We., Du.; a common figure for powerful and greedy enemies. The "from their desolations" of ח, followed by ancient and modern Vrss., does not suit the context, even if the form of the Hebrew word could be sustained. It requires no greater change in the text to get the appropriate meaning, "roarers," than to get the same word as v.<sup>8</sup>, and the latter is improbable in the original text, if v.<sup>8</sup> be a gloss. — 18. The petition for recovery is followed by the refrain, cf. v.<sup>9-10</sup>: And I will give Thee thanks in the great congregation, among a numerous people I will praise Thee], the public thanksgiving in the temple for national deliverance, as in 22<sup>28</sup> 40<sup>10</sup>.

Str. III. is composed of an introverted tetrastich, a syn. tetrastich in antith. thereto, and a concluding syn. couplet. The common term of both is the prayer: let not the enemies rejoice over me, v.<sup>19. 24</sup>, that is, continue to do as they are represented as doing in v.<sup>15</sup>; and then saying, Aha, v.<sup>21. 25</sup>. — 19. Hate me without cause], resuming the thought of v.<sup>11-12</sup>, explained unnecessarily by a late editor through the insertion of the syn.: "mine enemies wrongfully," at the expense of the measure. — winking with the eye], a circumstantial clause expressing their malicious insincerity. This is explained as craftiness. — 20. For it is not peace that they speak], as they probably professed, but the reverse of peace; against my tranquillity], so probably rather than "the quiet in the land," H, followed by most interpreters, which is not sustained by G, and is a phrase unknown elsewhere and improbable in itself, making a distinction between the quiet and others in the land, when the antith. of the Ps. is between the people of the land and their enemies. Omitting "the land," which is not in G, and maintaining the remaining word of H over against that of G, we get the personal reference to the tranquillity of the people, who speak as usual in the first person, and in fine parallelism to the peace of the previous clause. — Deceitful things they devise]; their plans are crafty and deceitful. — 21. They open wide their mouths against me], in much hostile speaking, in accordance with their deceitful plans, in false accusations; resuming the thought of v.<sup>11</sup>, and accordingly changing the tense to the perfect, in citing their testimony: They have said: "Aha, aha! our eye hath seen it"], namely, the deeds of violence charged against the people of Yahweh in v.<sup>11</sup>. In striking antith. to this conduct of the enemy Yahweh is exhorted to interpose, resuming the thought of Str. I. — 22. Thou hast seen, Yahweh], an appeal to Him as an eye-witness over against the false eye-witnesses of the enemies. — keep not silence], in Thy testimony on my behalf. — keep not afar off], in my need, cf. 22<sup>2. 12. 20</sup> 38<sup>22</sup> 71<sup>12</sup>. "O Lord" and "from me" are both unnecessary glosses, making the line overfull. On the positive side the plea continues. — 23. Stir up Thyself || awake], strong terms for active, prompt interposition. — for my judgment || unto my cause], as v.<sup>1</sup>. A prosaic copyist has, by transposition, attached the verbs together and then the nouns, the latter being separated by the divine name: My God, to which "Lord" is added as a gloss. Poetic usage gives each verb its appropriate noun in parall. — 24. Judge me], in the sense of vindication, as above, — according to my righteousness], as I; best suited to the context and the course of thought in the Ps., which asserts righteous conduct over against the false charges of the enemy. But H, G, and most Vrss. have "Thy righteousness," an appeal to this divine attribute. Probably here, as often, the original text had no suffix, so that either interpretation was possible. — 25. Let them not say], repeated in the next clause for emphasis, but by editor at the expense of the measure. — in their mind], to themselves, in their congratulatory thoughts, antith. with their previous testimony, which they now suppose has had its effect in the accomplishment of their crafty plans. — Aha, our desire]. We have attained it. — we have swallowed him up], implying both the greed of the enemies and the overwhelming completeness of destruction, cf. 124<sup>3</sup> La. 2<sup>16</sup>.

Let them be ashamed and confounded together that rejoice in my hurt.

Let them be clothed with shame and dishonour that magnify themselves against me,

Let them shout for joy and be glad (in Thee) that delight in Thy righteousness.

Yea, let them say continually, "May Yahweh be magnified!"

Besides the desire for an imprecation, the editor was probably moved to insert this particular one because of the wish — 27 b. May Yahweh be magnified, which was probably original to our Ps. and therefore common to both. This is the beginning of the final refrain, cf. v. 9-10a. 18. It is the magnifying Him in the celebration of His deeds of salvation and judgment in public worship. — who hath delight in the peace of His servant], resuming the thought of peace of v. 20, and emphasising the fact of the personal relation of the people to Yahweh, as His servant, in accordance with the conceptions of Jeremiah and Is.<sup>2</sup> Yahweh takes pleasure and delight in His people, as now appears with propriety after the storm has passed, and the interposition has been triumphantly accomplished. — 28. My tongue will murmur], give vocal expression in the melody of sacred song. — all day long], continuously. — Thy righteousness], the theme as exhibited in the vindication of the righteousness of His people || Thy praise.

PSALM XXXVI.

Ps. 36 is composite. (1) A didactic Ps. describing the wicked under the inspiration and flattery of personified transgression, and without terror of God, plotting, speaking, and doing all manner of evil (v.<sup>2-5</sup>). (2) A Ps. of praise: (a) comparing the four chief attributes of Yahweh to the four great objects of nature, as a basis for praising Him for saving man and beast (v.<sup>6-7</sup>); (b) praising His precious kindness as manifested in the delights of worship in the temple, and in the life and light that issue from Him (v.<sup>8-10</sup>). Glosses (a) pray for His kindness, righteousness, and help against the wicked (v.<sup>11-12</sup>), (b) and point to the place where the enemies are fallen to rise no more (v.<sup>13</sup>).

A. v.<sup>2-5</sup>, 6<sup>5</sup>.

AN utterance of Transgression (comes) to the wicked man in the midst of his mind:

There is no dread of God before his eyes:

For it doth flatter him as regards the finding out of his (hateful) iniquity.

The words of his mouth are trouble and deceit, he hath ceased to act circum-spectly.

To make trouble thoroughly he plans upon his bed;

He takes his stand in a way that is not good, evil he refuseth not.

B. v.<sup>6-10</sup>, 2 STR. 5<sup>3</sup>.

YAHWEH, in heaven is Thy kindness,
Thy faithfulness (reacheth) unto the skies,
Thy righteousness is like the mountains of 'El,
Thy justice is a great deep;
Man and beast Thou savest.

YAHWEH, how precious is Thy kindness.
They are refreshed with the rich things of Thy house,
And of the brook of Thy dainties Thou makest them drink;
For with Thee is the fountain of life;
When (Thou shinest, light doth appear).

Ps. 36 was in D and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 33). The term לעבד יהוה with David corresponds with 18<sup>1</sup>. It seems therefore to suggest some original connection, or association with Ps. 18. This could hardly come from DK. It must have come from D, if not already attached to the Ps. when he used it. There is no historical situation suggested in the present title, but it seems probable that the man who proposed these words was thinking of Saul's madness as a suggestion of evil, according to 1 S. 16<sup>14-23</sup> 18<sup>10-11</sup>. But he must have lived at a much later date than the author of these passages, or indeed the author of the similar 1 K. 22<sup>27-28</sup>, where the suggestion of evil is attributed to the divine Spirit; for this editor interprets the story of Saul and David in accordance with v.<sup>1</sup>, where Transgression itself as a personified evil makes the suggestion. This conception is certainly earlier than that of Satan, who appears first in Zc. 3<sup>1-2</sup>. The Ps. is therefore probably from the time of Jeremiah, when prophets of falsehood abounded. This does not apply to the whole Ps., but only to the pentameter hexastich, v.<sup>2-5</sup>. The remainder of the Ps. is much later. The original Ps. also is similar in v.<sup>5</sup> to Mi. 2<sup>1</sup>. No other writings have been used, although in some respects the situation and tone of the Ps. resemble 9-10, 14, and on that account it might be referred to the early days of the Restoration. But the wicked here seem not to be enemies of the nation, but wicked men among the people; and the use of mouth and tongue is injurious, and not simply false; and so it implies ethics of speech, earlier than the period of Persian influence. The Ps. in its present form is composite. A Ps. of two trimeter pentastichs has been added, v.<sup>6-10</sup>. This uses the Mikdam 57<sup>2</sup> in v.<sup>8</sup> and 57<sup>11</sup> in v.<sup>8</sup>. It also is based on the conception of Eden, Gn. 2<sup>10</sup>, in v.<sup>9</sup>, especially as applied to the temple in Ez. 47<sup>1-8</sup> (upon which also Zc. 14<sup>8</sup> Jo. 4<sup>18</sup> depend). It is also probable that Je. 2<sup>13</sup> 17<sup>13</sup> underlie v.<sup>10</sup>. The humanitarianism of v.<sup>7</sup> is post-Deuteronomic. The author of v.<sup>7</sup> was familiar with Lebanon and Hermon and the Mediterranean Sea, and possibly had his home in northwestern Galilee, where these were ever in view. The similes are so graphic that they could best be explained by an author standing on one of the summits of Lebanon, where all these things would come naturally into his mind. These two Pss. were brought into a sort of unison by a trimeter tetrastich of petition, v.<sup>11-12</sup>. The Ps., as thus constructed, was probably made for D. A later editor, probably Maccabean, gave the Ps. a reference to national enemies by the addition of v.<sup>13</sup>, which was probably based on Ps. 14<sup>5</sup>.

PSALM XXXVI. A.

The Ps. is composed of two synth. tristichs. — 2. An utterance of Transgression]. Transgression is personified as sin in Gn. 4<sup>7</sup> (cf. Ps. 19<sup>14</sup>). There, like a beast of prey, it tries to get possession of the man and rule him; here it has already taken possession of him, and as the spirit of prophesy, suggests to him as to a prophet. In all other passages this utterance comes from Yahweh to a real prophet; here only, transgression takes the place of Yahweh, and so becomes a god to the wicked man, inspiring him with wickedness, so that he becomes a prophet of transgression. This is all the more impressive to him that it does not come upon him as an external energy from without, as in the case of Saul, 1 S. 16<sup>14-23</sup> 18<sup>10-11</sup>, but as already within him: in the midst of his mind, dominating his mind from its very centre. Thus G, S, U, J. But H, followed by EV<sup>s</sup>, has changed the reading to "my heart," either by copyist's error, or to avoid the unparalleled conception of an inspiration of a wicked man in any sense of the term. It is probable that in H transgression was originally interpreted as in an objective construct relation, as Σ, followed by Ges., De W., al.: "an utterance concerning the transgression of the wicked is within my heart," making the psalmist inspired, rather than the wicked man. But such a construction of the word "utterance" is against all usage. — There is no dread of God], an explanation of the situation by the psalmist, implying that God is not present and will not call to account, as 10<sup>4</sup> 14<sup>1</sup> 53<sup>2</sup>. Transgression has taken the place of God and is become the god of this wicked man. — before his eyes]. He ignores God, can no longer see Him as present; for he is so absorbed in the presence of transgression and the experience of its suggestions. — 3. For it doth flatter him]. Transgression does this in its utterance to him; so most naturally, Ra., De., Bā., Kirk. "He flattereth himself," EV<sup>s</sup>, has little to justify it. — in his eyes is a gloss, not in G. — as regards the finding out of his (hateful) iniquity], by God, in accordance with the previous context. He had no dread of God, of His presence, or of His investigation of his conduct; implying therefore that God would not find out his iniquity. This iniquity the psalmist emphasises as something which one is bound to hate, taking it as gerundive, dependent on iniquity, so essentially, "abominable sin," PBV. But "to be hateful" AV., "to be hated" RV., emphasise the discovery of the iniquity by God. It is also difficult to see why the finding out, which has been pushed into the background of his mind by the flattering voice of transgression, should now be emphasised in the climax. The various efforts to improve the text have all alike proved unsatisfactory. — 4. The words of his mouth]. The description passes over from the mental state of the wicked man into his external behaviour: and first his speech, his words; these are trouble and deceit. His speech, as under the inspiration of a flatterer, is flattering, and so deceives and makes trouble to those who depend upon it. The wicked speech is accompanied by wicked deeds; he hath ceased to act circum-spectly]. He has laid aside all prudence in action, because he has no dread of consequences. — 5. To make thoroughly]. The measure requires the attachment of this infinitive to the noun, trouble; in accordance with Mi. 7<sup>8</sup>. This is favoured by the use of Mi. 2<sup>1</sup>. The usual rendering, "to do good," as explanation of act circum-spectly, Dr., or as dependent upon it, Kirk., not only makes that line too long, but also gives an awkward tautological close to the sentence. — he plans upon his bed]. The description goes back to the mental state, the plans suggested by Transgression. These are carefully matured during the quiet of the night, to be thoroughly carried out in the morning. — He takes his stand]. The time for action has come, and he is determined to carry out his plans. He takes his position with decision and firmness. — in a way that is not good], a way of life, a course of conduct, which is the negative of the good way required by God's Law. This in the climax is: evil he refuseth not], which is as much as to say, from no evil does he shrink, he undertakes it all, without reluctance and without remorse.

PSALM XXXVI. B.

Str. I. is a syn. trimeter tetrastich, with a synth. monostich. The four chief attributes of Yahweh are compared with the four great objects in nature. Doubtless the psalmist, either in imagination or in reality, stood upon one of the summits of Lebanon, where all these were in full view. — 6. Kindness], the usual meaning of the Hebrew word, especially when in syn. relation with "faithfulness." Yahweh's kindness is in heaven, so most naturally, thinking of heaven as at once its source and as illustrating its immeasurable and all-comprehending relations. This is an Old Testament prelude to the knowledge surpassing love of Eph. 3<sup>17-19</sup>. The phrase is doubtless based on Ps. 57<sup>11</sup> (cf. 103<sup>11</sup>) "unto the heavens"; but this does not justify us in interpreting the Heb. preposition here in an unusual sense, "to the heavens," as do Bā., Kirk., al., or in paraphrasing, "as the heavens," Pe.; for the author doubtless made the change for the purpose of giving a new turn to the thought. He changes the prepositions for variety of imagery. — Thy faithfulness (reacheth) unto the skies]. Faithfulness is an attribute that may be compared to a long reach, rather than to comprehensive extent. It is therefore conceived as reaching far up into the expanse of the skies, which extend one above another in mysterious and sublime heights. There is probably here an antith. in the poet's mind as in 85<sup>12</sup>, kindness coming down out of heaven, faithfulness ascending the heights of heaven. — 7. Thy righteousness is like]. This is a real simile — the mountains of 'El], the great, the giant mountains, such as Hermon and Lebanon, whose lofty summits, covered with snow the greater part of the year, suggest to the pious mind the special presence and power of God. So the gigantic cedars of Lebanon are called the cedars of God, 80<sup>10</sup> 104<sup>16</sup>. The psalmist is doubtless thinking of the mountains as firm, stable, enduring, everlasting, majestic, and all-commanding. — Thy justice]. As the three other syn. terms are all singular and all attributes, an attribute in the singular is required here. But it has been changed by an early copyist to the plural: "acts of judgment," and so it appears in H and J. — the great deep]. A metaphor taking the place of the similes, so J. This is more poetical than the sameness of a particle of comparison here, as urged by We., al., after G. Although this exact term, great deep, is found elsewhere, Gn. 7<sup>11</sup> Am. 7<sup>4</sup> Is. 51<sup>10</sup>, in the story of the deluge, yet this does not justify the rendering "great flood," as Moll., Bā., thinking of that great historic act of judgment. This might be thought of if the plural judgments were to be retained, and their irresistible power of destruction, from which none can escape, might then have been in the mind of the poet. But that would be inconsistent with the emphasis upon kindness which characterises this little Ps., and with the climax of salvation in the last line of the Str. The great deep is indeed metaphorical of the divine justice, not on its retributive side, but on its vindicatory side; because of its unfathomable depths, its mysterious movements, and its vastness of extent. — Man and beast], comprehending the animal with man, in the scope of Yahweh's attributes, cf. 104<sup>27-28</sup>. — Thou savest]. The four attributes are all summed up in the work of salvation.

Str. II. has a syn. tristich and a syn. couplet. — 8. Yahweh is attached to the previous line in H, making it too long. It also appears at the close of this line in 3, where H, G have Elohim. Elohim is improbable in this Ps. The measure allows of but one divine name, and that in v.<sup>8a</sup>. — How precious], exclamation of admiration and wonder, explained in subsequent context, — is Thy kindness], resuming the thought of v.<sup>6a</sup>, kindness at the beginning of the previous Str. being the most prominent attribute, as shown also by the climax of salvation. H and Vrss. have a tetrameter line: And the children of men take refuge in the shadow of Thy wings. This is a familiar idea from 57<sup>2</sup>, cf. 61<sup>5</sup> 91<sup>4</sup> Rev. 2<sup>12</sup>, with a subj. which is striking and difficult to explain in this context. It is doubtless a gloss. — 9. They are refreshed]. The subj. is general, indefinite, referring to worshippers of Yahweh. It is unnecessary to supply a subject. — with the rich things of Thy house]. Probably the sacrificial meals of the worship in the temple at the festivals are in the mind of the psalmist; but these have certainly been generalised so as to include all spiritual benefits. — And of the brook of Thy dainties]. The dainties are regarded as so copious that they are like an overflowing stream. It may be that the river of Eden underlies the thought, especially in the form in which it appears in Ez. 47<sup>1</sup><sup>8a</sup>, as a river of life flowing forth from the temple, and similar to the river of the city of God, Ps. 46<sup>5</sup>. — Thou makest them drink]. Yahweh Himself is the host and they are His guests. He gives them their meat and drink. — 10. For with Thee], that is, in Thy house, Thy presence, is the fountain of life], probably an abbreviation of fountain of living waters of Je. 2<sup>13</sup> 17<sup>13</sup>, a perennial, never-failing stream flowing forth from Yahweh's presence as a well-spring or original source. — When Thou shinest], lettest the light shine from Thy face, as Pss. 4<sup>7</sup> 44<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>16</sup>, taking the Heb. word as inf. cstr. in a temporal clause, instead of the usual interpretation as a noun, "in Thy light," which seems rather tame, and involves the repetition of the same noun without any new idea. — light doth appear], that is, shine forth upon the worshippers, giving them light and joy, taking the form as Niphal pf. The usual translation, as Qal, "We see light," introduces for the first time 1st pers. pl. into the Ps., which everywhere else uses the 3d pers. This interpretation is doubtless due to the 1st pers. in the gloss that follows.

O draw out Thy kindness to them that know Thee,
 And Thy righteousness to the right-minded;
 Let not the foot of pride come against me,
 Let not the hand of the wicked make me a fugitive.

11-12. This trimeter tetrastich is a petition which combines the thought of the two Pss. The first couplet is a petition for the kindness and righteousness of the second part of this Ps., both combined with the same verb, draw out, prolong, in the bestowal. — To them that know Thee], with the practical, experimental knowledge of worship in the temple and the enjoyment of its good things, cf. v.<sup>9-10</sup>. — to the right-minded] as  $\gamma^{11} \text{ } 11^2 \text{ } 32^{11} +$ , those whose minds are upright in His worship and in obedience to His commands. The second couplet is a petition for deliverance from the wicked man of the first Ps. — The foot of pride], lifted up in haughtiness, strutting along with scornful indifference of others || hand of the wicked], the plural taking the place of the singular of v.<sup>2</sup>. — come against me]. The petition is that Yahweh will prevent the feet from moving forward to the attack. — make me a fugitive], overcome me and put me to flight, so that I will have to wander away in exile from the sacred place.

13. A later editor, probably a Maccabean, wishing to interpret the wicked of the Ps. as national enemies, and justified in some measure by the figurative language of the previous petitions, adds a trimeter couplet setting forth the fulfilment of the expectations of the people in the downfall of the enemy.

There are the workers of trouble fallen;
 They are thrust down and cannot rise.

There], pointing to the place, as in Ps. 14<sup>5</sup>, — are the workers of trouble fallen], on the battle-field. — They are thrust down], by blows from weapons — and cannot rise], they have fallen in death to rise no more.

XXXVI. A.

2.  $\text{פִּשְׁפֹּשׁ־בְּנִי}$  phr. a.l.  $\text{† בְּנִי}$  n.m. utterance elsw.: (1) of a prophet Nu. 24<sup>3, 4, 6, 15</sup> 2 S. 23<sup>1</sup> Pr. 30<sup>1</sup>; (2) before divine names (except Je. 23<sup>31</sup>) Ps. 110<sup>1</sup> Is. 56<sup>8</sup>, where alone it begins sentence, elsw. often in middle, but most frequently at the end; found in all the prophets except Hb., Jon., but not in H., D. (except when parall. Kings), Chr., Dn., Job, or Megilloth.  $\text{פִּשְׁפֹּשׁ}$  is personified, as חַטָּאת Gen. 4<sup>7</sup>, cf. Ps. 19<sup>14</sup>. But ט has ὁ παράνομος, י injustus = פָּשָׁע, implying a person, probably an evil spirit, or possibly שָׂטָן of the later theology, as Horsley. ח has the more primitive idea and is more probable in itself. — [רָשָׁע] as usual, the person to whom the utterance came, י impit. ט has τοῦ ἀμαρτάνειν, י ut delinquat = לְרָשָׁע, which is against usage and improbable in itself. — [בָּהֲרֹב לִי] referring to psalmist, improbable, error of copyist. ט, י, ז, י, have לִי, which is favoured by the parall. עֵינֵי and is doubtless correct, as most moderns. לִי for the man himself, as 58<sup>3</sup>. — [אֱלֹהִים] because deity was before the mind, as 14<sup>1</sup>. — 3. — [הַחֲלִית אֵלַי] Hiph. pf. חָלַק (5<sup>10</sup>) flatter; subj. פָּשָׁע, explaining the נֹאס, c. prep. אֶל, cf. על Pr. 29<sup>5</sup>. ט has ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ, which might be a condensation of אֵלַי with בְּעֵינַי; but ח prob. gives us a conflation of two earlier readings, due to the influence of עֵינֵי above, one of which, prob. the latter, is incorrect. — [לְמַצָּא] Qal inf. cstr., may be interpreted either of finding, in the sense of attaining, accomplishing, or in the sense of discovery. Most interpreters take the latter, after ט, י; cf. Gn. 44<sup>16</sup>. — [לְשֹׂנְאָה] Qal inf. cstr., may be taken with ט as syn. with מַצָּא, and intensifying the discovery of the iniquity by the hating of it, that is, by God, the terror of whom is absent from the wicked man; so RV., and most interpreters; or as gerund ad odiendum י, qualifying the iniquity, abominable PBV., to be hateful AV., which is preferable if the text be correct. The construction is, however, in either case so awkward that emendation is tempting. Dy., Gr., propose עַן לִשְׁנו iniquity of his tongue; Du. thinks לִשְׁנָא an Aramaic gl. — 4. — [רָבַרְבַּ שְׂפָתַי] as 17<sup>4</sup> 59<sup>13</sup>, and 19<sup>15</sup> 54<sup>4</sup> 78<sup>1</sup> 138<sup>4</sup>. — [וְהִרְקָה] אֵין וְהִרְקָה] phr. א.ל. ψ; cf. עָמַל וְאֵין 10<sup>7</sup> 90<sup>10</sup>, cf. 55<sup>11</sup>. — [חָרַל] Qal pf. (1) cease, come to an end, cease to be, Dt. 15<sup>11</sup> Ju. 5<sup>6.7.7</sup>; (2) cease, leave off, desist; here as Ps. 49<sup>9</sup> Dt. 23<sup>23</sup> Gn. 41<sup>49</sup> (E) Je. 44<sup>18</sup>. — [לְהִשָּׁבֵר] Hiph. inf. cstr. objective, act with circumspection (v. 2<sup>10</sup>). Cf. 14<sup>2</sup> for a similar thought. — [לְהִישָׁב] Hiph. inf. cstr., usually interpreted as syn. with previous vb., so EV<sup>s</sup>, or as a subordinate inf. to it, giving הִשָּׁבֵר the meaning of consider or regard; so ט, י, י, Kirk. But this word makes l. too long and is needed to complete the next l. Give it therefore the sense of do well, thoroughly (v. 33<sup>3</sup>), and attach it to אֵין, as it is attached to רַע Mi. 7<sup>3</sup>. — 5. — [יִחַשֵּׁב] Qal impf. (v. 10<sup>2</sup>), plan, devise; cf. Mi. 2<sup>1</sup>, where also מִשְׁכֵּב (4<sup>5</sup>) is used, making it prob. that the psalmist used the prophet's thought.

XXXVI. B.

The Ps. now changes from pentameter to trimeter, and has an entirely different tone. Another independent Ps. is added. — 6-7. The quartette of attributes חָסֵד (4<sup>4</sup>), אֱמוּנָה (33<sup>4</sup>), צְדָקָה (5<sup>9</sup>) favours מִשְׁפָּט (1<sup>6</sup>) also. The pl. מִשְׁפָּטֶיךָ is a later interpretation, not consistent with context. V.<sup>6</sup> is similar to 57<sup>11</sup> (= 108<sup>6</sup>), עַר שָׂמִים for נְהַשְׁמִים there, is an intentional change, not txt. err. as Du. It is a more difficult reading than עַר, which is in syn. clause and which would have favoured assimilation rather than the reverse. — [הַרְרֵי-אֵל] cf. 50<sup>10</sup> mountains of 'El, for gigantic mts, which He alone could make and where

He dwelt; cf. אל ארזי אל Is. 14<sup>18</sup>. For אל v. Intr. § 32. ὡσεὶ repeats כ before היהוה, so We. It is possible that it has fallen off after sf. יך. — יך [היהוה] v. 33<sup>7</sup>. — יך makes l. too long, and is needed in next l. — 8. יך = pretiosa יך, τιμω Aq., Σ, Quinta, so יך, is a more difficult reading and therefore more probable than יך, ἐπλήθυνας of יך, multiplicasti יך, so essentially יך, which is common with יך. יך adj. (1) precious, highly valued; usually of stones, in יך elsw. 45<sup>10</sup> 116<sup>15</sup>; (2) glorious, splendid (cf. Aram.), in יך only as subst. 37<sup>20</sup>, cf. Jb. 31<sup>26</sup>. — יך. The next clause with יך (8<sup>6</sup>) is one word too long and is striking in view of יך above; and יך in this Yahwistic Ps. is improbable. יך had יך, showing variant text. Either both glosses or a l. must be found underlying them. Du. rds. יך בני-יך after 65<sup>3</sup>. But we should rather expect something suggested by context, such as יך. Then we might regard יך as for an original יך prep. interpreted as יך, God. But the clause יך יך is similar to 57<sup>2</sup>, cf. 61<sup>5</sup> 91<sup>4</sup> Ru. 2<sup>12</sup>, and not altogether appropriate to context here; it is probably, with the foregoing, a gl. — 9. יך Qal impf. 3 pl. full form, be refreshed, satisfied. יך vb. Qal only here in יך, cf. Pr. 7<sup>18</sup>. יך. saturate, drench, Ps. 65<sup>11</sup>, cf. 23<sup>5</sup>. — יך [יך] fatness, rich things, the festival meals in the temple, cf. Is. 43<sup>24</sup> Je. 31<sup>14</sup>. יך n.m. fatness, fertility, 63<sup>6</sup> 65<sup>12</sup>; spiritual blessings here, as Is. 55<sup>2</sup>, יך of Ps. 68<sup>16</sup>. 16. — יך phr. a.l. יך [m.] luxury, daintily: pl. 2 S. 1<sup>24</sup> (dub. סרניס Gr., HPS.) It is possible that there may be a reference to the Eden of Gn. 2<sup>10</sup> and its river of life, if the Ps. is postexilic. For the stream of life from the temple, cf. Ps. 46<sup>6</sup> Ez. 47<sup>1</sup> 89<sup>9</sup>. Jo. 4<sup>18</sup> Zc. 14<sup>8</sup>. — יך Hiph. impf. 2 m. sf. 3 pl. יך [יך] vb. Qal not used. Niph. Am. 8<sup>8</sup>. Pu. Rd. rather Niph. pf. יך. Then it is better to take יך as Qal inf. cstr. of vb. יך shine. — 11. יך those knowing thee with the knowledge of righteous adherents. יך (v. 16<sup>6</sup>) || יך 11<sup>2</sup> 32<sup>11</sup> 64<sup>11</sup> 94<sup>15</sup> 97<sup>11</sup>, only in יך, not in prophets. — 12. יך proud foot. יך Hiph. juss., יך 102<sup>3</sup> 31<sup>19</sup>. 24 73<sup>6</sup> Is. 9<sup>8</sup> 13<sup>11</sup> 25<sup>11</sup> Pr. 14<sup>8</sup> 29<sup>23</sup>. יך Hiph. juss., יך 59<sup>12</sup> (v. 11<sup>1</sup>). — 13. יך as 14<sup>5</sup>, place of defeat. — יך Pu. pf. a.l. יך thrust down.

PSALM XXXVII., 7 STR. 6<sup>6</sup>.

Ps. 37 is a didactic Ps. — Exhortation (1) not to envy evil-doers, but to trust in Yahweh, who will ultimately make a just discrimination (v. 1<sup>6</sup>); (2) to be resigned and not excited, for in a little while the wicked will be no more and the afflicted will inherit the land (v.<sup>7-11</sup>). (3) Yahweh laugheth at the devices of the wicked. Exact retribution will come upon them; their weapons will be turned against them, but the righteous will be upheld (v.<sup>12-17</sup>). (4) Yahweh knoweth the days of the perfect, but the wicked shall perish, however exalted they may be. They will be cursed and cut off, while the righteous are blessed and enjoy their inheritance (v.<sup>18-22</sup>). (5) A man's steps are established by Yahweh; the righteous are never forsaken, for Yahweh loveth justice (v.<sup>23-28a</sup>). (6) The wicked and their seed are cut off; but the righteous have wisdom and the divine Law, and Yahweh will not let them be condemned (v.<sup>28b-33</sup>). (7) Though the wicked be strong and flourishing, they will be destroyed; while the upright and their posterity will enjoy peace. Yahweh will save all who seek refuge in Him (v.<sup>35-40</sup>). A liturgical gloss was inserted (v.<sup>34</sup>).

FRET not thyself because of evildoers, and be not envious against them that do wrong;

As grass they will speedily wither, and like the fresh grass fade.

Trust in Yahweh and do good, inhabit the land and pasture in confidence;

And take delight in Yahweh, and He will give thee the requests of thine heart.

Roll upon Yahweh and trust in Him, and He will do it;

And He will bring forth as the light thy right, and thy just cause as the noonday.

BE resigned to Yahweh and wait patiently for Him, and fret not thyself (because of evildoers);

(Be not envious) against him that maketh his way prosperous, against the man that doeth evil devices;

Desist from anger and forsake heat, fret not thyself at the doing of evil;

For evildoers will be cut off, but those that wait on Yahweh will inherit the land;

Yet a little, and the wicked will be no more, and thou wilt attentively consider his place and he will be no more;

But the afflicted will inherit the land, and take delight in abundance of peace.

THE wicked deviseth against the righteous, and gnasheth his teeth at him.

The Lord laugheth at him, for He seeth that his day cometh.

The wicked draw the sword, and they tread the bow for slaughter;

Their sword shall enter their own heart, and their bows shall be broken in their arms.

Better is a little that the righteous hath than the roar of many wicked men;

For the arms of the wicked shall be broken, seeing that Yahweh upholdeth the righteous.

YAHWEH knoweth the days of the perfect, and their inheritance shall be forever;

They will not be ashamed in time of evil, and in days of hunger they will be satisfied.

Yea, the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of Yahweh (shall be cut off);

Yea, (while in high esteem, while exalted) they do vanish, in smoke they do vanish away.

While the wicked borroweth and restoreth not, the righteous dealeth graciously and giveth;

Yea, those blessed of Him will inherit the land; but those cursed of Him shall be cut off.

OF Yahweh are a man's steps established, and in his way He takes pleasure; Though he fall, he shall not be cast headlong, for Yahweh upholdeth his hand. A boy I have been, now I am old, and I have not seen the righteous forsaken; All the day he dealeth graciously and lendeth, and his seed will become a blessing.

Depart from evil and do good, and abide forever;

For Yahweh loveth justice, and forsaketh not His pious ones.

(THE unjust) are destroyed forever, and the seed of the wicked is cut off; The righteous will inherit the land, and they will dwell forever upon it. The mouth of the righteous uttereth wisdom, and his tongue speaketh justice; The Law of his God is in his mind, and his goings will not totter. The wicked spieth upon the righteous, and seeketh to put him (to a violent) death;

Yahweh will not forsake him in his hand, and will not condemn him as guilty when he is judged.

I HAVE seen the wicked (terrifying and making himself bare); he was like a luxuriant (cedar);

And then I passed by, and lo, he was no more; and I sought him, but he could not be found.

Watch the perfect man, and see the upright; for (a posterity) hath the man of peace:

But transgressors are destroyed together, the posterity of the wicked is cut off. The salvation of the righteous is from Yahweh, and their refuge in the time of distress;

And Yahweh will help them, and He will deliver them from the wicked, and He will save them, because they have sought refuge in Him.

Ps. 37 was in D, but in no other Psalter until the final Psalter. This was because of its didactic character and its length, making it of less value for public worship than many others. It is a series of alphabetical hexameter couplets. As Pss. 25 and 34 omitted the Str. י in order to get three Strs. of seven letters each, so this Ps. omitted Str. פ in order to get seven Strs. of three letters each. The Ps. is compared by Amyrall to "many precious stones or pearls which are strung on one string in one necklace." Delitzsch says with approval, "Tertullian names this Psalm providentiae speculum; Isodorus, potio contra murmur; Luther, vestis piorum, cui adscriptum: Hic sanctorum patientia est." The Ps. deals with the same problem as the book of Job; only it takes the earlier position of the friends of Job in their discourses, and does not rise to the higher solution of the discourses of Job himself. The hexameter couplets have for the most part remained unchanged. Strs. ג and ז have been condensed at the expense of the measure, ב and ח have been enlarged. But it is easy to restore them to their correct form. י has lost

Str. ג, but it is given in ס. ח prefixes ו to Str. ה. There are several passages similar to those of other writings: אל תחרר v.<sup>1.7.8</sup> Pr. 24<sup>19</sup>; v.<sup>2</sup>, cf. 90<sup>6</sup> Jb. 14<sup>2</sup>; v.<sup>4</sup>, cf. Jb. 27<sup>10</sup>; v.<sup>18</sup>, cf. Ps. 1<sup>6</sup>. In all these cases our Ps. was probably earlier, but in the following cases our Ps. was later: ג גול על v.<sup>5</sup> 22<sup>9</sup>, cf. Pr. 16<sup>3</sup>; v.<sup>13a</sup>, cf. Ps. 2<sup>4</sup>. The language of the Ps. is in some respects peculiar and original: (1) א.ל.א. ירק דשא v.<sup>2</sup>, רעה אמונה v.<sup>3</sup>, ל התחולל v.<sup>7</sup> in this sense, חונן ונותן v.<sup>21</sup>, חפץ דרך v.<sup>23</sup>; (2) terms elsw. seldom: פה הגה v.<sup>30</sup> Pr. 8<sup>7</sup>, על החבונן v.<sup>10</sup> Jb. 31<sup>1</sup>, עשי עולה v.<sup>1</sup> Zc. 3<sup>6.13</sup>, אור = sun v.<sup>6</sup> Hb. 3<sup>4</sup> Jb. 31<sup>26</sup>, חרב פתח v.<sup>14</sup> Ez. 21<sup>38</sup>, לטכוח v.<sup>14</sup> La. 2<sup>21</sup> Ez. 21<sup>15</sup>, מצערי v.<sup>23</sup> Pr. 20<sup>24</sup> Dn. 11<sup>43</sup>, לא יוטל v.<sup>24</sup> Je. 22<sup>28</sup> Jb. 41<sup>1</sup>. Linguistic evidence favours the same period as the thought; namely, the situation of the Jerusalem community before Nehemiah, exposed to bitter enemies, who are in prosperity while the people of Yahweh are in adversity. The people are under the influence of D., and do not yet know P. They are beginning to be influenced by the principles of Hebrew Wisdom, but the WL. had not yet been written.

Str. I. is composed of three synth. couplets. — Couplet א. 1–2. Fret not thyself], as v.<sup>7.8</sup> Pr. 24<sup>19</sup>, with the heat of passion, the excitement of anger, indignation, or discontent || be not envious], with the ardour of jealousy, making such comparisons of one's lot with that of evildoers || them that do wrong, as to unduly excite oneself with the sense of injustice and wrong. The reason why this excitement should be avoided is a practical one: it is needless; the situation will be of brief duration. The reason is stated in the form of a simile. The prosaic insertion of “for” was unnecessary, especially as it injured the measure. — As grass || like the fresh grass], as in 90<sup>6</sup> Jb. 14<sup>2</sup> Is. 40<sup>6-8</sup>, a natural image of frailty and perishableness. — they will speedily wither || fade]. — Couplet ב. 3–4. The negative warning gives place to the positive exhortation, turning the attention from the evildoers to Yahweh. Trust in Yahweh and do good], in antith with “do wrong,” v.<sup>1</sup>. — Take delight in Yahweh], the comfort, satisfaction, and joy of continued trust. — inhabit the land], the land of promise, the land of inheritance, as v.<sup>9</sup>, in possession of the returned exiles, implying that they would not be driven from it by their enemies. — and pasture], as the flock of Yahweh, partake of the good things of the land, in confidence], in security under the divine protection. This meaning is given essentially in paraphrase by AV., “so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed.” RV. “follow after faithfulness,” although sustained by De., Dr., Kirk., al., gives the Heb. word an unusual meaning, and emphasises the ethical character of the v. at the expense of the parall. with the following context. — Couplet 1. 5-6. Roll upon Yahweh], as 22<sup>9</sup>, cares, anxieties, and troubles. — Way, for the whole course of life, is a prosaic addition, at the expense of the measure, and gives the thought too ethical a turn. The climax is reached in: and trust in Him], as 31<sup>15</sup>, a stronger expression than the idea of personal leaning upon, resting upon Yahweh, without any further care or anxiety. The Str. reaches its climax in v.<sup>6</sup>, which, in a beautiful simile, sets forth the speedy triumph of the righteous. — And He will bring forth], from the obscurity in which their right || just cause had been pushed by the evildoers, the cruel and crafty enemies. — as the light], the sunshine || as the noonday, the full light of the noontide sun.

Str. II. has a syn. tristich and a tristich in which the second line is syn. with the first half of the first line, and the third line is syn. with its second half. Couplet 7 is supplemented by the first line of couplet 7. — 7. Be resigned, quiet, still, calm, and peaceful || wait patiently for Him], the steadfast, longing looking unto Yahweh for help, both in antith. with: fret not thyself, repeated from v.<sup>1</sup> and given again v.<sup>8</sup>, with its parall.: be not envious, also from v.<sup>1</sup>; not in H or Vrss., but needed for completeness of measure; still further intensified in 8, desist from anger and forsake heat]. The exciting influence here, as in v.<sup>1</sup>, was because of evildoers, which must be repeated from v.<sup>1</sup> to supply the missing word of the measure, although not in H or ancient Vrss. — him that maketh his way prosperous, as the context shows, succeeding and prospering in his wickedness || the man that doeth evil devices, not only planning them but also accomplishing them || at the doing of evil], as the parall. requires. But H inserts a particle in order to emphasise its interpretation, “only to do evil,” followed by EV<sup>a</sup>.; which thus becomes a warning not to carry their impatient fretting so far as to be evildoers themselves; an idea true and important enough in itself, but an intrusion into this context. — 9-11. The antith. between the evildoers and those that wait on Yahweh, in the two parts of v.<sup>9</sup> appears in the antith. v.<sup>10-11</sup>, where the former are simply the wicked, the latter the afflicted, as those suffering for righteousness’ sake. These antith.

classes have their antith. lots ; the former will be cut off, by sudden violent death. In a very little while, and yet a little, cf. "speedily," v.<sup>2</sup>, they will be no more], will pass out of existence, cease to exist ; and this so entirely in the emphasis of the complementary part of the line that they cannot be found by the most careful search for them : thou wilt attentively consider his place]. In his own place, where he was accustomed to be, and where he could be found if anywhere, he will no more exist. On the other hand, those afflicted for Yahweh's sake will inherit the land, will continue to inhabit the land, cf. v.<sup>3</sup>, as its rightful heirs who cannot be dispossessed ; repeated in v.<sup>11</sup> in order to the climax, take delight in abundance of peace]. The enemies having been destroyed, war has disappeared with them, and there is peace, so full and entire that it is conceived as in abundance, and after the experience of affliction, affording delight, cf. v.<sup>3-4</sup>.

Str. III. has two antith. couplets and a synth. one, all describing sure retribution upon the wicked. — Couplet 1. 12-13. The wicked deviseth against the righteous], cf. v.<sup>7b</sup>. His wicked plans are accompanied with such intense hostility that like a beast of prey he gnasheth his teeth at him]. This is not an individual enemy, but collective for warlike enemies, nations. — The Lord laugheth at him], doubtless a citation from 2<sup>4</sup>, where He laugheth at the nations plotting to overthrow the rule of the Messianic king. The reason for this scorn of the enemy is, for He seeth], foreseeth the impending evil. — that his day cometh], the day of the judgment upon him, the day of his death. — Couplet 7. 14-15. The wicked draw the sword || they tread the bow, with the purpose of slaughter. This is enlarged, at the expense of the measure, in ancient texts at the basis of H and the Vrss. to read, "cause to fall," that is, in death, from sword and bow ; and the righteous are still further described as "afflicted and needy," || "upright in the way," the latter a phrase only here for the usual "upright of mind," which indeed is given in G. I has a conflation of both "mind" and "way." All these are glosses, for which there is no place in the measure of the lines or the Str. The retribution is an exact one. Their own sword and bows will be used against them. — shall enter their own heart], pierce them to the heart, and so slay them ; and their bows shall be broken]. — Couplet 10. 16-17.

The last clause of 16 should be rendered, in accordance with the previous context, as the roar of many wicked men], the noise and confusion of their multitudes during the attack, rather than with Vrss. "abundance," or "great riches," wealth, which introduces a gnome of Wisdom, suitable enough in itself, but intrusive, and disturbing to the progress of the thought. Then the little that the righteous hath is not property, but strength and ability to resist the enemy. This is better, not in itself, but because such men may rely upon the superabundant strength of Yahweh. The climax of the Str. is: seeing that Yahweh upholdeth the righteous], a circumstantial clause with ptc., which is more probable in this context than the usual interpretation, making it an adversative clause.

Str. IV. has two synth. couplets, and one introverted couplet. — Couplet 1. 18-19. Yahweh knoweth], with a practical interest and redemptive attention, as 1<sup>6</sup>. — the days], the duration of life in H, but G, "ways," as 1<sup>6</sup>. — of the perfect], those who are complete and entire in their conduct || righteous, v.<sup>21</sup>. — their inheritance], in the land, repeated v.<sup>9. 11. 22. 29</sup>. — shall be forever], they will never be removed from it by their enemies. On the negative side: they will not be ashamed], be put to shame by their enemies, even, — in time of evil, when everything is threatening; but on the positive side, — they will be satisfied], have enough and to spare even when the times are so evil that they are days of hunger]. When they are besieged, or their enemies have left them only a devastated land, they will still have plenty. — Couplet 2. 20. This is in antith. with the previous couplet. — Yea, the wicked, who are at the same time enemies of Yahweh, shall perish || they shall be cut off. The latter is inserted in v.<sup>20a</sup> for measure, where it has been omitted by copyist's error; cf. v.<sup>22b</sup>, where it is still preserved. — while in high esteem || while exalted], so after G, which is to be preferred to H, whether interpreted as the "fat of lambs," T, PBV., AV., or "excellence of fields," RV., "splendour of the meadows," Kirk., or "glorying as yore-oxen," J. The reference to animals is not suited to the verb vanish, repeated in the simile, in smoke vanish away]. The reference to the flowers and the glory of the meadows is favoured by v.<sup>2</sup>, but by none of the ancient Vrss. — Couplet 3. 21-22. These verses are in introverted parall., but at the same time there is antith. between the halves of both. The reference to the wicked, as one that borroweth and restoreth not, in the context, must refer to the humiliation of poverty, which reduces him to the necessity of borrowing and makes it impossible for him ever to repay his debt. This is antith. with the prosperity of the righteous, who are able to give generously to the poor and needy. The righteous are blessed of Yahweh, the wicked are curled of Him.

Str. V. has three synth. couplets. — Couplet 23-24. Of Yahweh], emphatic in position. He is the original source from whom a man's steps || his way, the whole course of his life in which he walks, are established, made firm and secure. This is Yahweh's own work, gives Him gratification, and He takes pleasure in it. In this walk, though he fall, as he may sometimes, owing to stumbling-blocks and impediments of various kinds, yet he shall not be cast headlong]. It shall not be a hurtful, dangerous, fatal fall, for Yahweh upholdeth his hand]. He has such a hold on his hand that He does not permit him to fall down or suffer injury. — Couplet 25-26. The psalmist's experience is now given to fortify his testimony: A boy I have been]. He recalls his youth and his long life of varied experiences. — now I am old]. In all my life I have not seen the righteous forsaken], by Yahweh. Such a thing has never come under his observation, or formed any part of his experience, whether as to himself or others. A later editor, not realising the power of this terse statement, seeks to improve it by the addition, "or his seed seeking bread," which is well suited to the context, it is true, but which is intrusive here, making the line much too long for the measure, and also is premature in its reference to seed, which comes first with propriety in the next line. — All the day he dealeth graciously and lendeth]. He is so prosperous, as in v.<sup>21</sup>, that he has enough and to spare; and so can be generous in his dealings with others, and yet leave an abundance to his own children, and so his seed will become a blessing. It is probable that the psalmist has in mind the blessings of those who keep the Law of D., and especially Dt. 28<sup>11-12</sup>. — Couplet 27-28 a. On the basis of this testimony and experience an exhortation is appropriate. This is in terms which become characteristic of the piety of Hebrew Wisdom, — Depart from evil and do good], both on the negative and positive sides of ethical conduct ; with the imperative of apodosis, — and inhabit forever, as v.<sup>3</sup>, the land]. The last word was omitted in the text by copyist's mistake, at the expense of the measure. This exhortation is fortified by the reason, which sums up much of the previous context of the Str. and the Ps. : For Yahweh loveth justice], that is, the doing of justice, in the vindication of His people, as v.<sup>6</sup>. — and forsaketh not], as v.<sup>25</sup> — His pious ones], another term for the righteous and the afflicted people, as 30<sup>5</sup> 31<sup>24</sup>.

Str. VI. has two antith. couplets, with an intervening synth. couplet. — Couplet γ. 28 b-29. The unjust are destroyed], so Θ and many recent scholars, giving the γ of the couplet, missing in Η, and also making a fine antith. The text of Η, "they are preserved forever," though followed by Θ and modern Vrss., is due to the mistake of a copyist, and occasioned many unnecessary difficulties. The retribution of the wicked, as usual in the OT., comes upon their seed also ; they will be cut off, cf. v.<sup>9</sup>. In antith. with the punishment of the wicked is the reward of the righteous in terms of v.<sup>3. 9. 11. 13. 22. 27</sup>. — Couplet δ. 30-31. The character of the righteous is more fully described : as to speech ; the mouth and tongue, the organs of speech, on the positive side, — uttereth wisdom], the ethical wisdom based on the fear of Yahweh, which is here in its early beginnings, and so associated with speaketh justice] as the previous context indicates, that of the Law of D. — the Law of his God is in his mind], in accordance with Dt. 30<sup>14</sup> Je. 31<sup>33</sup>. Such a man, whose mind and speech are alike ruled by wisdom and the Law of Yahweh, is secure in his course of life ; his goings will not totter], cf. v.<sup>23. 24</sup>. — Couplet ε. 32-33. The wicked are so treacherous toward the righteous that, like a crafty foe, they spy upon him, seeking in every way to entrap him in some kind of violation of Law that will involve a judicial investigation ; and so seek to put him to a violent death], to involve him in crime and its penalty, capital punishment. The original phrase has been abbreviated by an editor at the expense of the measure, and to the disguising of the technical meaning, which is, however, attested by the following line : Yahweh will not forsake] the righteous, as v.<sup>25. 28</sup> ; strengthened here by reference to the specific danger, — in his hand], leaving him alone in the hand of his spying enemy, to do what he will with him. On the contrary, Yahweh is with him ; He Himself takes control of the proceedings, and when he is judged, instead of giving the sentence of death desired by the adversary, — will not condemn him as guilty], an emphatic suggestion of the opposite, will declare him righteous.

Str. VII. has a synth., an antith., and a syn. couplet. An early editor, not discerning that the author had intentionally omitted the couplet  $\overline{\rho}$  for strophical reasons, and finding the alphabetical structure defective, sought to improve it by inserting 34, a couplet with  $\overline{\rho}$ . But this is prosaic in style and an interruption of the thought, turning it into an exhortation, suitable enough for liturgical purposes, but not suited to the purpose of the original author. — Wait on Yahweh, as 25<sup>3</sup> 27<sup>14</sup>, and keep His way and He will exalt thee to inherit the land, as v. 11. 22. — When the wicked are cut off, as v. 38, thou shalt see it, as v. 25. 35. — Couplet  $\overline{\eta}$ . 35–36. I have seen the wicked]. This experience is the antith. of that given in v. 25. — terrifying, so  $\mathfrak{S}$ , taking it as ptc., cf. 10<sup>18</sup>, which is to be preferred to the noun of  $\mathfrak{H}$ , “as a terrible one,” or the paraphrase of EV<sup>s</sup>., “in great power.” — and making himself bare], throwing away his garments, stripping himself to display his strength and threaten combat, cf. Is. 52<sup>10</sup>; or as Dr. paraphrases, “putting forth his strength.” “Flourishing,” PBV.; “spreading himself,” AV., RV., are conjectures without support in the usage of word.  $\mathfrak{S}$ , “lifting himself” up, had a different reading, which is followed by Du. These and other interpreters are misled by connecting this last ptc. with the simile, when in fact it belongs to the first part of the line ; all the terms of which set forth the terrifying strength of the wicked enemy. The simile gives an additional idea, namely, wealth and luxuriance, and in this the enemy is compared to a luxuriant cedar, following  $\mathfrak{S}$  in the preference for cedar to the “native tree,” “tree in its native soil . . . one that has never been transplanted or disturbed, that has therefore struck its roots deep, and shot out with luxuriant strength,” Pe. This is certainly a suitable idea of  $\mathfrak{J}$ , followed by RV., Dr., Kirk., al., although there is no support for this rendering in the usage of the Heb. word. The rendering “green bay tree,” PBV., AV., has no authority behind it, but was mere conjecture. — And then I passed by, so  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{L}$ ,  $\mathfrak{J}$ , PBV., which is best suited to the personal experience of the psalmist, and therefore to be preferred to יָהּ, "and he passed away," in death, AV., or as RV., "one passed by," which is an awkward effort to preserve the text of יָהּ and at the same time get the meaning demanded by the context. — and lo, he was no more], as v.<sup>10</sup>; the experience emphasised by, — and I sought him, as in v.<sup>10</sup>, but he could not be found, so utterly had he perished that no trace of him was left behind. — Couplet ש.

37–38. Watch || and see], in order to have the same experience as the psalmist. — the perfect, the upright], intensified into the man of peace], the man in the possession of peace and in the enjoyment of it, rather than the peacemaker. Such a man has a posterity in accordance with v.<sup>26</sup> and the antith. in v.<sup>28</sup>; for the same Hebrew word must have the same meaning in these antithetical lines, v.<sup>37. 38</sup>. But א misled EV<sup>s</sup>. to the rendering, best given in RV., "the latter end of (that) man is peace," introducing an eschatological ideal alien to the thought of the entire Ps., which emphasises, after D., peace and prosperity in this life. It also destroys the fine antith. of the couplet, and cannot easily be reconciled with the syntax of the passage. — But transgressors], another term for the wicked of the Ps. — are destroyed], as v.<sup>28</sup>, — together], in one common disaster. And this will extend to their offspring: their posterity will be cut off, as v.<sup>28</sup>. — Couplet ת.

PSALM XXXVIII., 5 STR. 6<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 38 is a Lamentation: (1) Israel complains of great sufferings of body (v.<sup>7-9</sup>); discouragement and abandonment by friends (v.<sup>10-12</sup>); enemies craftily seeking his ruin, while he is compelled to remain silent (v.<sup>13-15</sup>). His only hope is in Yahweh (v.<sup>16-18</sup>), therefore the final petition for salvation from his unprincipled enemies, who repay him evil for good (v.<sup>20-23</sup>). Later additions connect the suffering with sin, and make it into a Penitential Ps. (v.<sup>1-6</sup>, 19).

I AM bent, I am bowed down exceedingly;
 I go about in black all the day.
 Yea, my loins are full of that which is contemned;
 And there is no soundness in my flesh.
 I am benumbed and crushed exceedingly;
 I growl with the growling of a lion.

ALL my desire is before Thee,
 And my groaning is not hid from Thee.

My heart in a ferment forsaketh me,
And the light of mine eyes is not with me.
Lovers and friends are at a distance from me,
And my neighbours stand afar off.

THEY also that seek my life lay snares.
Of my distress they speak, of ruin;
And utter deceits all the day.
But I am like a deaf man that heareth not,
And as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth,
And in whose mouth are no arguments.

FOR in Thee, Yahweh, I hope;
Thou wilt answer, O my God;
Lest (mine enemies) rejoice over me,
When my foot is moved, do great things against me:
For I am ready for limping,
And my sorrow is continually before me.

SINCE mine enemies (without cause) are numerous,
And they are many that hate me lyingly,
And are repaying me evil for good;
Forsake me not, Yahweh;
O my God, be not far from me;
O haste to my help, my Salvation.

Ps. 38 was in D and then in ff (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31). It was finally assigned for the מנחה of the מנחה (v. Intr. § 39). Θ has eis anághēsin peri sabbátou, still more specifically defining the liturgical use as for the sabbath. It is the third of the seven Penitential Pss. But this is entirely due to glosses: v.<sup>2</sup> from Ps. 6<sup>2</sup>; v.<sup>4,6</sup> from Is. 1<sup>6</sup>; v.<sup>8</sup>, cf. Jb. 6<sup>4</sup>; v.<sup>5</sup>, cf. 40<sup>13</sup>; v.<sup>19</sup>, cf. 32<sup>5</sup>. Removing these glosses, the Ps. is a complaint to Yahweh because of perils from cruel and unscrupulous foes, and is a prayer for salvation. V.<sup>8</sup> is dependent on Is. 1<sup>6</sup>; v.<sup>12</sup> on Ps. 88<sup>19</sup>; v.<sup>14</sup>, cf. Is. 53<sup>7</sup>; v.<sup>21</sup>, cf. Ps. 35<sup>12</sup>; v.<sup>22</sup>, cf. 35<sup>22</sup>; v.<sup>28</sup>, cf. 70<sup>6</sup>. There are an unusual number of α.λ.: נפגתי v.<sup>9</sup>; סחרחר v.<sup>11</sup>, but probably error for חסחרח La. 1<sup>20</sup> 2<sup>11</sup>; אור עיני v.<sup>11</sup>, but cf. 4<sup>7</sup>. There are several unusual words and phrs.: נקשו v.<sup>13</sup>, 109<sup>11</sup>, but error for יקשו; מוט רגל v.<sup>17</sup>, Dt. 32<sup>35</sup> Ps. 94<sup>18</sup>; צלע v.<sup>18</sup>, 35<sup>16</sup> Je. 20<sup>10</sup>; מכאב v.<sup>18</sup>, as 32<sup>10</sup> 69<sup>27</sup>. There is no evidence of late date, apart from glosses. The Ps. is the complaint of the afflicted community of the Restoration, before Nehemiah.

The original Ps. has prefixed to it a gloss of five pentameters, attributing the sufferings to divine discipline because of sin.

Yahweh, correct me not in Thy wrath, nor in Thy heat chasten me;
For Thine arrows are gone down into me, and Thy hand resteth upon me;
There is no soundness in my flesh, because of Thine indignation;
There is no wholeness in my bones, because of my sin.
My wounds stink, they fester, because of my folly.

2 is a loose citation from 6<sup>2</sup>. — 3. For Thine arrows], Yahweh's visitation, as Jb. 6<sup>4</sup>, — are gone down into me], have penetrated my flesh and so gone deep into my body, causing me intense pain and suffering. — Thy hand resteth upon me], by elision of the last letter of the Hebrew word, which probably originated from dittography, getting thus a syn. and common conception; whereas the repetition of the same word in the original text is not only tautological, but is inappropriate to the use of the hand of Yahweh, and compels the Vrss. to resort to variations in paraphrase, without any sort of justification in Heb. usage. — 4, 6 are based upon Is. 1<sup>6</sup> in their description of the wounds resulting from the divine scourging. — There is no soundness in my flesh], given again v.<sup>8b</sup>, where, however, it is without the reason given here, although it probably induced the fuller description here. This, then, has as its syn.: there is no wholeness in my bones, which is still further explained by, — my wounds stink || they fester; they are become running sores, so foul by mortification that they are offensive to the person himself and to all who come near him. The reason for this state of things is given in three parallel clauses: because of Thine indignation], God's hands and arrows, moved by His anger and indignation and wrath, have brought about this serious situation — because of my sin || of my folly], the reason on the human side. Their sin and folly have provoked the divine wrath and indignation against His people. — 5. A later scribe inserts before the last two lines a tetrameter couplet describing the sin from an entirely different point of view. This must have come from a marginal statement, because it is difficult to see how it could have been inserted in this place, except by one who was inattentive to the meaning of what he was copying. This couplet conceives of iniquities as a flood of waters which have suddenly overwhelmed the man and are gone over his head, so that he is drowning in them, cf. 18<sup>5-6</sup> 69<sup>3. 16</sup>; and also as a heavy burden, too heavy for him, from the point of view that sin rests upon the sinner as an external load which has to be lifted and carried away from him, in order that he may be rid of it; a conception upon which the OT. doctrine of forgiveness rests. This gloss makes the Ps. appropriate for penitence, especially to the nation in its appointed seasons of repentance.

Str. I., in three synth. couplets, describes a terrible condition of suffering, which may have been individual, but more probably was national, as in so many other Pss. of this period. — 7. I am bent || bowed down], by a weight of care, anxiety, and suffering, and this, exceedingly, to the utmost degree of intensity. — I go about in black], as a mourner, lamenting the loss of dear friends, and especially of children, cf. 35<sup>14</sup>; probably implying just such bereavements at this time of many of the people, because of the enemies described in the third Str. This continues, — all the day, because of the prolongation of these bereavements. — 8. Yea], intensive, continuation of the description; and not for, as EV<sup>a</sup>., which interpret the description without sufficient reason. — my loins], as the seat of strength || my flesh, to emphasise the physical side of the suffering, — are full of that which is contemned], regarded as ignominious, disgraceful, thinking, probably, of physical weakness in the seat of strength, which is in general accord with the ancient Vrss., and is more suited to the parall. — there is no soundness], referring to physical exhaustion and soreness of the flesh from suffering. Many moderns, because of the dependence on Is. 1<sup>6</sup>, especially in v.<sup>4-6</sup>, think of another and similar verb, and so of the loins as full of “burning,” the fever of the festering wounds. But the reference to such wounds is in the gloss, and not in the original Ps.; and there is nothing in the immediate context to suggest divine discipline. Indeed, the description moves in somewhat different lines. — 9. I am benumbed and crushed]. Strength has so departed from him that he has become, as it were, paralysed and incapable of effort; his energy and vital power have been crushed, and this has, as in v.<sup>7</sup>, become intense — exceedingly. He is altogether helpless, and the only thing he can do is to growl, as an animal, in a state of helpless pain, — with the growling of a lion], so, by an easy addition of a single letter, which has apparently fallen off the Heb. word, because of assimilation to v.<sup>11a</sup>. The word “heart” is incongruous with “growling,” and the various Vrss. based upon it are necessarily paraphrases. “Disquietness of heart,” EV<sup>a</sup>., is weak and unjustifiable. This Str. has only to do with the physical frame; the more internal suffering of heart appears as characteristic of the second Str.

Str. II. also has three couplets only describing the sufferings with reference to the soul. — 10. All my desire], for relief, as is evident from the context || my groaning. — is before Thee], in Thy sight, altogether seen and known || is not hid from Thee. This is a strong appeal to Yahweh's knowledge of the terrible situation of His people, in order to a continuation of the description. There is, indeed, a sort of introverted parall. between the Strs. in that the growling, which closes the previous Str., begins this Str. with its syn., groaning. — 11. My heart in a ferment], so by an easy change of Heb. text, after La. 1<sup>20</sup> 2<sup>11</sup>, to avoid an unjustifiable interpretation of the Heb. word used in the text, which is incongruous with its noun in any meaning to be found elsewhere. The various renderings proposed: "panteth," PBV., AV., JPSV., "throbbeth," RV., Kirk., Dr., "palpitates," BDB., are purely conjectural. — forsaketh me], in extreme discouragement, so that I have no heart any more. — And the light of mine eyes], the light that illumines the eyes, enabling them to see what is to be done, giving confidence and courage. — is not with me], is no longer in my possession, I am destitute of it. — 12. Lovers and friends || my neighbours], those upon whom I could ordinarily rely for sympathy and aid. — are, or remain at a distance from me || stand afar off]. They have, in fact, abandoned him to his lot.

Str. III. now brings the enemies into view, who were in the background of the previous Strs., yet the real cause of the sufferings and terrible situation. They are described, 13, as they that seek my life]. They were mortal enemies. A gloss duplicates it in "they that seek my hurt," which, however, makes the measure overfull. The activity of these enemies is described in a synth. triplet, and the inability of the people to defend themselves in an anti-triplet. The enemies lay snares], cf. 9<sup>17</sup>. — Of my distress (they speak) of ruin || utter deceits]. All their activity of speech is treacherous, seeking in every way to destroy the life of the people of God. — 14–15. The people have become so weak and paralysed, as set forth in the previous Strs., that they are not only incapable of resistance, but they are incapable of speaking in their own defence. — I am like a deaf man || as a dumb man], not that they are altogether unconscious of the machinations of the enemy, but that their senses are so benumbed and paralysed, with the other parts of their bodies, that they must behave as one that heareth not]. This is repeated in a variant gloss, "I am like a deaf man that heareth not," making the Str. overfull. — that openeth not his mouth], which is explained in the climax: in whose mouth are no arguments], that is, in reply, in defence against calumnies and false accusations. The author probably had in mind the suffering servant of Yahweh of Is. 53<sup>7</sup>.

Str. IV., in three synth. couplets, resumes the description of sufferings, in order to show that the only hope is in God, to whom the plea is made for salvation. — 16. For in Thee], emphatic, Thee only, Yahweh || my God, emphasised by the gloss, "O Lord." — I hope], in a waiting attitude, looking for and expecting help; and therefore with its appropriate result: Thou wilt answer], not with words, which were hardly expected, but with deeds of salvation. — 17. The motive for this on the negative side was: lest they rejoice over me. The ancient texts prefix, "For I said," at the expense of the measure, in order to put the subsequent context as a plea in the mouth of the psalmist. ¶ retains the subject enemies, omitted by H, required by context. — do great things against me], as 35<sup>26</sup> 55<sup>13</sup>; taking advantage of their opportunity, when the people were in grave trouble. — when my foot is moved], as 94<sup>18</sup> Dt. 32<sup>35</sup>, and so unstable, insecure. — 18. For I am ready for limping], about to limp because of injury to the knee; and so unable to stand firm in resistance, not to speak of advance to attack. This is all summed up in the last line of the Str.: and my sorrow is continually before me]. I cannot escape it, and cannot see or think of anything else. — 19. A later editor, probably the same as the one who prefixed v.<sup>2-6</sup>, inserted here a confession of sin, unsuited to the context, which does not suggest any such thing by any sort of implication. This was in order to adapt the Ps. to public worship by connecting the sufferings with sin, and to suggest that their removal could come only through confession and penitence. — For mine iniquity I declare], to Yahweh, cf. 33<sup>5</sup> Is. 3<sup>9</sup>. — I am anxious], in a state of anxiety which involves a dread of the consequences. — By reason of my sin]. There is no suggestion of what the sin might be. It is entirely a general statement. The Ps. is an assertion of the innocence and guiltlessness of the people over against their enemies. But this would not be thought of by the glossator, who is moved by general and accepted principles in the worship of his own time.

Str. V. is essentially a petition for salvation, beginning with a reason in a tristich, put in a circumstantial clause. — 20-21. Since mine enemies are numerous || are many. These are public and not private enemies, cf. 3<sup>2-3</sup>. They are described in ח, ש, and all ancient texts as being “alive” or “lively”; but most recent scholars think this was an error for the Heb. word of similar letters: without cause, cf. 35<sup>7</sup> || hate me lyingly], that is, in their hatred telling lies, bearing false witness || repaying me evil for good, cf. 35<sup>12</sup>. This latter is emphasised in a gloss, “They are my adversaries because of my pursuing good,” so EV<sup>8</sup>, which is explained by ש as “righteousness,” all giving the reason of the persecution; which is introducing a later situation into this Ps. — 22-23. The final petition is now given in a tristich antith. to the previous one. Forsake me not || be not afar from me || O haste to my help. Each one of these vbs. is emphasised by a divine name: Yahweh || O my God, and the climax, my Salvation. A later glossator, not realising this significant climax, inserts, “O Lord,” and thus makes a difficulty in measure and construction.

2. This v. is cited loosely from 6<sup>2</sup>. The second א was either omitted by prosaic scribe as unnecessary, or the measure is pentameter and the l. a gl. The only other change is the use of קצף for the earlier קף. — † קצף n.m. wrath; elsw. ש, 102<sup>11</sup>; only in P of Hex. and Dt. 29<sup>27</sup>; not in Is.<sup>1</sup>, but Je. 10<sup>10</sup> + 3 t. PSALM XXXIX., 2 STR. 7<sup>5</sup> + RF. 1<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 39 is an elegy: (1) A resolution to repress complaint for suffering in the presence of the wicked, which can only partly be carried out because of internal excitement, and which therefore takes the form of prayer that Yahweh may make him know the brevity of life (v.<sup>2-6a</sup>). (2) A statement of the unsubstantial character of man in his life and activity, with a petition to Yahweh, the only hope, for deliverance from transgression. He has suffered in silence, recognising that he was afflicted by Yahweh; but now prays for relief lest he melt away under his severe chastisement (v.<sup>7-12a</sup>). The refrains assert that man in the presence of God is altogether unsubstantial (v.<sup>6b, 12b</sup>). Glosses are petitions of a more general character (v.<sup>13-14</sup>).

I SAID, "I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue.

I will take heed to my mouth (that I do no wrong), while the wicked are in my presence."

In stillness I kept silent, apart from comfort, and my sorrow was stirred.

My heart became hot within me, during my musing the fire kindled.

I spake with my tongue: "Yahweh, make me know mine end,

And the measure of my days, what it is, what my duration is."

Behold, my days are handbreadths, and my duration is as nothing.

In Thy sight surely altogether vapour every man doth stand.

SURELY as a semblance man walketh about, surely as vapour he bustles about.

And he heapeth up, and he knoweth not who he shall be that will gather.

And now what wait I for? My hope is in Thee.

From my transgression deliver me; make me not a reproach for the impudent.

I am dumb, I open not my mouth, because Thou hast done it.

Remove Thy stroke from off me: I come to an end.

Wouldst Thou chasten a man with rebukes, as a moth Thou dost make him melt away.

Ps. 39 was in D and M. It was also taken up into DK (z. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33), and given the superscription לירמיהו (z. Intr. § 34). In its original form it was two pentameter octastichs, the last line of each being the same refrain. There are two liturgical additions, — a tetrameter couplet, probably from the editor of DK, and a trimeter quartette of later date. This last is dependent on Jb. 10<sup>20-21</sup>. Whether 1 Ch. 29<sup>15</sup> is earlier or later is not so evident, but probably earlier also. The original Ps. shows no dependence on other literature. (a) There are several א.ל.א.: מרח ימי v. 3, נעכר v. 2, מהסום v. 2, חרפת נבל v. 9. (b) There are also forms not elsw. in  $\psi$ : החשיתי v. 3, but Is. 42<sup>14</sup> 57<sup>11</sup>; נאמי v. 3, but Is. 17<sup>11</sup> Je. 15<sup>18</sup>; טפחות v. 6, but 1 K. 7<sup>26</sup>; יצבר v. 7, but Gn. 41<sup>35, 49</sup> (E) Ex. 8<sup>10</sup> (J); הוזהר v. 8, but La. 3<sup>18</sup>, Jb. 41<sup>1</sup>. (c) There are forms rarely used in  $\psi$ : נאלצתי v. 8, 10 31<sup>19</sup> Is. 53<sup>7</sup>; הגיגי v. 4, elsw. only Ps. 5<sup>2</sup>; חללי v. 6, 89<sup>48</sup> Jb. 11<sup>17</sup>. The vocabulary favours an early date; so does the syntax: (a) cohort. v. 2. 2. 5(?) ; the conditional clause with change of tense, v. 12. The sin with the tongue, v. 2, is not lying, but, as context indicates, murmuring against God because of afflictions, an early idea of La., Je. The conception of the brevity of life, v. 5<sup>89</sup>, is also characteristic of the age of Je. The idea of v. 7 implies conscious existence after death, but ignorance of what transpires in the world, such as Jb. 14. The recognition of the divine chastisement, v. 10-11, is like Jb.; but it is the idea of Is. 2 also. The Ps. is not earlier than Je., and probably later than La. and Is. 2 It has the experience of the exile behind it, and is a national Ps., composed just before the reforms of Nehemiah.

Str. I. is composed of a syn. couplet, a synth. couplet, a syn. triplet, and a monostich of refrain. — 2. I said], introducing a resolution, or purpose, the contents of which are given in this couplet. — I will take heed], repeated for emphasis, — to my ways], moral action and character, as 5<sup>9</sup> 49<sup>14</sup> 50<sup>23</sup>, although, as the context shows, the reference was to watchful restraint of speech, and not to conduct, and so || to my mouth. The purpose of this self-control is: that I sin not with my tongue], as the context indicates, by murmuring against God on account of sufferings. — that I do no wrong]. This, as S, is required by parallel. But H, by error, has a noun unknown elsewhere, which has occasioned the ungrammatical rendering, "I will keep my mouth with a bridle," EV<sup>a</sup>. Most moderns who retain the word follow G in its use of another verb, and render "put a muzzle to my mouth." — while the wicked are in my presence]. This does not imply a contrast of his lot of suffering with the prosperity of the wicked, as many suppose; but that he would not give the wicked any ground for reproaching the God of Israel as unable to save His people. —

3. In stillness, intensified by, I kept silent, still further intensified in all texts by prefixing, "I was dumb," from v.<sup>10</sup>, at the expense of the measure; all this in fulfilment of the resolution of v.<sup>2</sup>. However, he was still apart from comfort], so essentially RV.<sup>m</sup>, JPSV., Dr. His self-repression only made him still more uncomfortable. But there is room in the ambiguous text for other explanations: "even from good words," PBV., or "even from good," AV., RV., after ℣, explained by Kirk., "speaking neither good nor bad." — and my sorrow was stirred]. He could not repress his internal excitement. — 4. My heart became hot within me]. Repression makes the reaction so great that — during my musing the fire kindled]. The effort at self-restraint kept the attention fixed upon the wrong, and so all the musing tended to increase the passion. It could no longer be restrained, it must find vent in the flame of words — spake with my tongue]. This speech is not, however, the murmuring which he had repressed, but a prayer to God for instruction and guidance, and therefore not sinful or provocative of the scorn of the wicked, but rather a mark of righteous resignation. — 5. Yahweh, make me know], cf. 90<sup>12</sup>. This is virtually repeated in the text of ℣ "that I may know," or "let me know," as the verb may be variously rendered; but it is an unnecessary addition, making the line overfull. — mine end], that is, the end of my life, how short a time will elapse before the end || the measure of my days, the measure of time comprehended in the days of life. — what it is], emphatic reiteration, — what my duration is], so by a correction of the text to correspond with the same word of the next clause, cf. ℣, ℑ, on which is based, "How long I have to live," PBV. The transposition of a single letter has given in ℣ a word which is rendered "how frail I am," AV., RV., for which there is no linguistic authority. — 6. Behold], emphatic, calling attention to the fact in the climax: my days are handbreadths], measured by the shortest measure, the span of the hand. This is relatively so short that, in the climax, the psalmist feels justified in saying: my duration is as nothing]. It amounts to nothing at all; it is hardly worth considering. This simple and strong line has been modified at the cost of the measure by a copyist who inserts the verb, "Thou hast made," to emphasise divine activity and responsibility as to the length of human life; and then he softens the assertion that the duration of life was as nothing, by attaching to it, "in Thy sight," making it relative in the point of view of God. But this last word really belongs to the last line of Refrain as necessary to complete its measure. — Surely], strong asseveration characteristic of this Ps., v.<sup>7. 12</sup>, also cf. 23<sup>6</sup>. — altogether vapour every man doth stand]. Man, standing before God, in the divine presence, has no substantial existence. He is, as it were, composed of vapour, which is so slight and unsubstantial that the least wind will drive it away. There is, indeed, a serious irony involved in the very thought of such an unsubstantial vapour standing in the divine presence, and it is just this that makes it so suitable as the Refrain of the elegy, reappearing in v.<sup>12b</sup>, though a careless scribe has there abbreviated it.

Str. II. has two synth. couplets, a synth. triplet, and a monostich of Refrain. — 7. Surely as a semblance], that is, an image rather than the thing itself, and, as the context shows, a shadowed likeness, — as vapour], an unsubstantial, vaporous body. This is so even in his activity, as he walketh about || bustles about. The change of persons in H, followed by some Vrss., is exceedingly improbable. It was due to a copyist's mistake in attaching the conjunction † to the previous verb, so making it 3 pl. — And he heapeth up], in his bustling activity. The object is not given; to supply it makes the line overfull. In the antith., — he knoweth not who he shall be that will gather]. The last verb should also be without its object. It has, however, been supplied by a copyist in the suffix "them," which compels its use, in thought, at least, as the object to the previous verb. But the line is more forceful without objects in either case. — 8. And now], the logical consequence of the foregoing, — What wait I for?]. There is no relief through myself or any other to be expected. There is but one thing to be thought of under the circumstances: My hope is in Thee]. It is fixed on Yahweh and on Him alone. From Him the relief will come. Accordingly prayer springs forth. — 9. From my transgression deliver me]. The psalmist recognises that the sufferings of the people are due to their transgression against God, so that first of all freedom from transgression must be secured. This is conceived as rescue. This vb. is used ordinarily with reference to enemies and troubles, seldom with reference to sin, elsewhere only 51<sup>16</sup> 79<sup>3</sup>, probably also 119<sup>170</sup>. Doubtless in these cases transgression is conceived in the guilt and the misery that it has involved. — make me not a reproach]. If left in his miserable condition of suffering for transgression, he would be exposed to the reproach of the enemies. These enemies are described as impudent], cf. 14<sup>1</sup>. They would also reproach his God. — 10. I am dumb || I open not my mouth]. The reason is a different one from that given v.<sup>2-3</sup>, and, indeed, an additional one not inconsistent therewith: because Thou hast done it]. The suffering was due to the divine discipline for transgression; and therefore there was no room for complaint, but only for confession and penitence. — 11. This is then explained as, — Remove Thy stroke], intensified by the gloss, “contention” H, “strength” G, “of Thy hand,” both at the expense of the measure. — I come to an end], I have about reached the limit of endurance; I am ready to perish. — Wouldst Thou chasten a man with rebukes]. The divine discipline, though wholesome in leading to repentance, may yet be carried so far as to be destructive. This is what the psalmist apprehends in the present case. — as a moth], who eats away garments and so destroys them. — Thou dost make him melt away]. Gradually, but surely, his vital sap is exhausted, and he dies away. The Ps. concludes with the same Refrain as 6<sup>b</sup>.

13 a. This fine elegy, when taken up into DK, was probably given a more general application to congregational worship by the petition, O hear my prayer, and O give ear to my cry for help. At my tears be not silent. Here three syn. verbs, calling upon Yahweh to give help, have three corresponding terms for prayer. It is sufficient to cite Kirk.: “It is a Rabbinic saying that there are three kinds of supplication, each superior to the other, prayer, crying, and tears. Prayer is made in silence, crying with a loud voice, but tears surpass all”; and De.: “Alongside of the words of prayer appear the tears as a prayer understood by God, for when the doors of prayer appear to be closed, the doors of tears remain open.”

A still later editor appended a trimeter tetrastich: 13 b–14.

For I am a guest with Thee,
A sojourner as all my fathers;
O look away from me that I may be cheerful,
Before I depart and be no more.

This addition is elegiac, in the spirit of the original Ps., but from a later point of view. The conception that Israel was Yahweh's guest || sojourner, and always had been such, the present generation, as all my fathers, is emphasised in the prayer of David, 1 Ch. 29<sup>15</sup>, which is probably at the basis of this couplet. The last couplet is based on Jb. 10<sup>20-21</sup>. It is a petition for a little respite from suffering before death, which is not altogether in keeping with the original Ps.

PSALM XL.

Ps. 40 is composite: I. A thanksgiving. (1) After patient waiting the people have been delivered by Yahweh, and have praised Him with a fresh outburst of song, to the great encouragement of many (v.<sup>2-4</sup>); (2) those happy ones are congratulated who trust in Yahweh rather than idols; and the impossibility of adequately setting forth the wondrous deeds and thoughts of Yahweh is asserted (v.<sup>5-6</sup>); (3) sacrifices of various kinds would have been offered if acceptable to Yahweh, but the preference has been given to hearing His Law as prescribed in the book roll, and preaching it to the great congregation (v.<sup>7-10a</sup>); (4) the praise of Yahweh will not be withheld in the congregation, and therefore He will not withhold His compassion and kindness (v.<sup>10b-12</sup>). II. A prayer for speedy help against enemies; that they may be shamed by defeat, while the people rejoice in Yahweh and magnify His name (v.<sup>14-18</sup>). These Pss. are combined by a seam connecting the great number of evils with the numerous iniquities, which have brought great discouragement (v.<sup>13</sup>).

A. v.<sup>2-12</sup>, 4 STR. 5<sup>5</sup>.

I WAITED steadfastly on Yahweh, and He inclined unto me;
And brought me up from the pit of desolation, from the clay of the mire;
And set my feet upon a rock; He established my steps;

And gave a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to my God.
Many see and they fear, and they trust in Yahweh.

HAPPY the man who has made Yahweh his trust,
And who hath not turned to (vain idols), or turned aside falsely!
Many things hast Thou done, O Thou, Yahweh, my God.
Thy wonders and Thy thoughts, — there is no setting in order;
Should I tell or should I speak, they are too numerous to be counted.

PEACE offering and grain offering hast Thou no delight in; then had I the covenant;

Whole burnt offering with sin hast Thou not asked; then didst Thou command me.

Lo, I am come, in the book roll it is prescribed to me.

Thy will I delight in, and Thy Law is within me.

I have preached righteousness in the great congregation; behold my lips.

I WILL not withhold, Yahweh, Thou knowest, Thy righteousness;

I have not covered in my mind Thy faithfulness and Thy salvation.

I say, I have not concealed Thy kindness and Thy faithfulness from the great congregation.

Thou, Yahweh, on Thy part, wilt not withhold Thy compassion from me:

Thy kindness and Thy faithfulness (they) will continually preserve me.

YAHWEH, to deliver me, my God, to my help, O haste.

Let them be shamed and confounded together, who seek my life;

Let them be turned back and let them be dishonoured who delight in my distress.

Let them be desolate by reason of their shame, who say "aha, aha!"

LET them exult and let them be glad in Thee, all who seek Thee.

Let them say: "May Yahweh be magnified," those who love Thy salvation.

Since I am afflicted and poor, Yahweh, O haste to me;

O Thou my helper and my deliverer, my God, tarry not.

Ps. 40 is a composite Ps.: v.<sup>2-12</sup>, connected by a seam, v.<sup>13</sup>, with v.<sup>14-18</sup>, which is the same as Ps. 70; so Street, Che., al. Only v.<sup>2-12</sup> belong to the original Ps., with the title stating that it was in B, and that it was also in M and BR (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). Ps. 70 has its own title, which was original to it before it was attached to Ps. 40 as v.<sup>14-18</sup>, stating that it also was in B and BR, but it subsequently received the liturgical assignment להזכיר for the offering of the מנחה (v. Intr. § 39). The two Pss. were connected by a seam which explains the evils suffered as due to the great number of iniquities. V.<sup>2-12</sup> show dependence on Je. Is.<sup>2</sup> and Ps. 22: v.<sup>3</sup>, cf. Je. 38<sup>6</sup>; v.<sup>7</sup>, cf. Je. 7<sup>21</sup> <sup>89</sup>; v.<sup>9</sup>, cf. Je. 31<sup>38</sup>; v.<sup>4</sup>, cf. Is. 41<sup>6</sup> 42<sup>10</sup>; v.<sup>6</sup>, cf. Is. 55<sup>8-9</sup>; v.<sup>10, 11</sup>, cf. Ps. 22<sup>26</sup>. It therefore must be postexilic. V.<sup>14-18</sup> = 70 = 35<sup>4</sup> <sup>26-28</sup> indicates a more troublous time. Both Pss. belong to the community of the Restoration, the latter to the times of trouble due to the persecution of the minor nations before Nehemiah, the former to the more prosperous times, when perils might be looked upon as past, and probably, therefore, subsequent to Nehemiah. The combination of the two Pss. by the seam must have been subsequent to B, otherwise the two Pss. would not have had separate titles and have existed apart in that Psalter. Besides, Ps. 70 belongs to E, which did not use Ps. 40.

PSALM XL. A.

Str. I. is a progressive pentastich. — 2. I waited steadfastly], with intensity of waiting; not the continuance of it, or the patient quality of it, but its persistence, the steady adherence to the attitude of waiting until the relief came. — on Yahweh], from whom it would come, — and He inclined], usually with ears, which are doubtless understood here, and implying, therefore, answer. — unto me]. The answer is a practical one. — 3. He brought me up from the pit], into which the psalmist conceives the nation as having fallen, cf. La. 3<sup>53.55</sup>. This is described as desolation, a more probable reading than the similar word of H, which has usually the meaning, “roaring,” as Ki., Calv., Dr., but is paraphrased in EV<sup>8</sup>. as “horrible,” without any justification in the usage of the word. — the clay of the mire], as 69<sup>3</sup> and Je. 38<sup>6</sup>; the pit into which Jeremiah had been cast, where the foot slips and slides, and there is no sure footing. — and set my feet upon a rock], that is, a lofty rock, a crag high above danger, in antith. with the pit into which he had fallen. — He established my steps], made them firm and secure upon the rock. — 4. The deliverance having been completed, praise follows: and gave a new song in my mouth], a fresh outburst of song, with a new theme, the deliverance just experienced, as 33<sup>3</sup> 96<sup>1</sup> 98<sup>1</sup> 144<sup>9</sup> 149<sup>1</sup> Is. 42<sup>10</sup>. — a song of praise to my God]. This praise is public praise, in the temple or synagogue, cf. v. <sup>10.11</sup>; and therefore many], not as distinguished from few, but the many, those constituting the great congregation. — see and they fear], as the context shows, with reverential fear, and they trust in Yahweh]. The three vbs., joined by 1 coördinates, do not give a sequence of dependence, but a parall. of contemporary actions.

Str. II. is the anti-str. of the previous one. It begins with an antith. couplet, congratulating those who have had the experience described in the previous Str. — 5. Happy the man], cf. 1<sup>1</sup>. This man, collective for the nation, on the positive side, has made Yah- weh his trust], as v.<sup>4b</sup>, noun for verb; on the negative side, hath not turned || turned aside], the latter by an easy emendation, to vain idols], as ℥ || falsely. This in ℋ, by an error, has become a difficult word, only used here, which is variously explained; “unto the proud,” EV<sup>a</sup>., referring to wicked men, and the next clause is then interpreted as also referring to these men, in various modes of rendering: “such as go about with lies,” PBV.; “such as turn aside to lies,” AV., RV.; “fall away treacherously,” RV<sup>m</sup>.; none of which can be regarded as any better than conjectural paraphrases; whereas ℥ and the emendation suggested above give us an easy and natural thought appropriate to the context and in accordance with good usage. — 6. The tristich resumes the new song of v.<sup>4</sup>, and the theme of the song is placed first for emphasis. — Many things hast Thou done || Thy wonders]. To these deeds are added, Thy thoughts, cf. Is. 55<sup>8-9</sup>. This, in a gloss of ℋ (not in ℥), is defined as “to usward.” That they are Yahweh’s and belong to no one else, is emphasised by the use of pronoun Thou, the personal name of God, Yahweh, and the statement of personal relation to God, my God. The “many things,” now extended to “wonders” and “thoughts,” are too numerous for human estimation. — There is no setting them in order]. ℋ, by the insertion of “unto Thee” (not in ℥), has given the verb an unnecessary interpretation, followed by EV<sup>a</sup>.; but has also suggested another meaning of the vb. as 89<sup>7</sup>, “there is none to be compared unto Thee,” RV<sup>m</sup>., which, however, does not suit the context. — should I tell or should I speak], modal imperfects coördinated, implying that it was venturesome so to do, under the circumstances, demanding a strong determination, which, nevertheless, would fail because they were too numerous to be counted.

Str. III. has two synth. couplets and a synth. monostich. 7-8. Peace offering], the sacrifice whose chief characteristic was communion by eating of the flesh of the victim, Yahweh having His part at the altar. This was accompanied by grain offering. This offering in some cases consisted of the raw grain, or roasted ears, at others of the meal, but in connection with peace offerings of various forms of cakes or bread, in which also there was communion by eating of the most of it, only a small portion going to the altar for God. — whole burnt offering], whose chief characteristic was that the entire victim went up in the flames to God expressing worship.—with sin], associated with sin and the guilt of sin, as Is. 61<sup>8</sup>, where robbery associated with the whole burnt offering is hated by Yahweh. Sin vitiated all sacrifices; sacrifices were of value only as expressive of righteousness. EV<sup>8</sup>. and most scholars, ancient and modern, think of sin offering here rather than sin. This is tempting in order to complete the enumeration of the great classes of offerings; but the sin offering is not known in the Psalter elsewhere; it is not known to the literature upon which this Ps. depends, especially in this verse; the Hebrew word used here nowhere else has that meaning; and even with the sin offering the list of offerings would be incomplete without the Asham already used Is. 53<sup>10</sup>.—Hast Thou no delight in]. Protasis of interrogative clause in order to the apodosis of the last clause of v. This is based on Ho. 6<sup>6</sup>: “For I delight in kindness and not in peace offering; and in the knowledge of God rather than whole burnt offerings;” cf. Is. 1<sup>11</sup> Ps. 51<sup>18</sup>, and especially 1 S. 15<sup>22</sup>: “Hath Yahweh as great delight in burnt offerings and peace offerings as in obeying the voice of Yahweh?”—Hast Thou not asked]. This is based on Je. 7<sup>22-23</sup>, “For I spake not unto your fathers nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt offerings or peace offerings; but this thing I command them, saying: Harken unto my voice,” cf. Ps. 50<sup>8-10</sup> Mi. 6<sup>8-8</sup>. This is essentially true so far as its antith. is concerned, but it needs qualification, for not only the code of D, Dt. 12, 16, upon which this Ps. relies, but also the code of E, Ex. 23<sup>14-19</sup>, which antedates Hosea and Micah, prescribes just these sacrifices as an essential part of the ritual of worship from the earliest times. At the same time, all these sacrifices are primitive, and antedate all Hebrew Law, and are common to the worship of Israel and all his neighbours; so that they are not as sacrifices in any way distinctive of the religion of Yahweh, or to be regarded as for the first time commanded in His Law. They are incorporated in His Law and given a meaning, and that meaning is His command, rather than the sacrifices themselves. This is the unanimous consensus of the prophets from Samuel onwards. These questions as to sacrifices as such, as external ritual ceremonies, not being required, are in order to the statement in the apodosis of what Yahweh did require. — Then didst Thou command me]. This, by a slight emendation of form, gives us the appropriate apodosis parall. and in assonance with, — then had I the covenant], which is probably the original of a difficult passage, in which Ḥ, followed by Heb. 10<sup>5</sup>, translates, “a body didst Thou prepare for me,” which rests on a text variant from that of H. Ḥ, Ṣ have the same verb as Ḥ, which could not have been the same as the verb of Ḥ. Ḥ and Vrss., however, rd. in the last clause, Then I said, which is tame and unsuited to the context, and the parallel Ḥ, “ears didst Thou bore me.” This strange statement is variously explained. Some of the older interpreters fancied that there was a reference to the ancient usage of boring the ear of a slave as the sign of bondage, Ex. 21<sup>6</sup> Dt. 15<sup>17</sup>, and therefore with the implication that Israel was made a slave of Yahweh. But this is improbable. The reference is rather to the creative power of God, who dug out the ears and made them organs of hearing, in order that His people might hear and obey Him, cf. Ex. 4<sup>11</sup> Mt. 13<sup>9</sup>. The emendation that I have proposed gives fine parall., and is especially appropriate to the book of the covenant in the subsequent context. — Lo, I am come], calling attention to prompt obedience. — in the book roll], the Deuteronomic Code as written on the roll, cf. Je. 36<sup>2, 4</sup>. — it is prescribed to me], as RV<sup>m</sup>., Bā., Dr., Kirk., al., rather than “written of me,” concerning me, of Ḥ, Ṣ, EV<sup>a</sup>. — 9. Thy will I delight in], is in emphatic antith. to the offerings of v.<sup>7</sup>. The psalmist delights in what Yahweh delights in, and not in what He does not delight in. The will of Yahweh is expressed in the Law, which is, as the previous context indicates, recorded in the book roll. A scribe has made it more emphatic by prefixing, “To do,” which, however, makes the line overfull. It is an unnecessary gloss. The Law of Yahweh was written in the book roll; but more than that, the psalmist says, “it is within me”], literally in the midst of my inwards, v. 22<sup>15</sup>; the intestines being the seat of the emotions, affections, and passions, according to the Heb. conception; and so, “within my heart,” EV<sup>a</sup>., in accord with the teaching of Dt. 30<sup>11-14</sup>. — 10. I have preached], heralded as glad tidings, in accordance with the usage of Is.<sup>2</sup> 40<sup>9, 9</sup> 41<sup>27</sup> 52<sup>7, 7</sup>, — righteousness], which is interpreted by Ḥ, Ṣ, as Yahweh’s, but by 5 as the psalmist's; the former alone correct as referring to Yahweh's vindictory righteousness in the salvation of His people, and so repeated in the opening line of the antistr., and || Thy faithfulness and Thy salvation], which appear again in the concluding tristich in Thy kindness, Thy faithfulness], repeated, Thy compassion in the great congregation, the congregation of Israel assembled in great numbers for worship as in 22<sup>26</sup> 35<sup>18</sup>. — behold my lips], which have moved in preaching, and which give visible evidence of what they have uttered, so that Yahweh is invoked to see the evidence that His people have in fact fulfilled His will.

Str. IV. has a syn. tristich and a syn. couplet antith. thereto. — 10b. I will not withhold]. The change of tense is in order to a vow as to future action. In antith. with it is: Thou, Yahweh, on Thy part, wilt not withhold], the one the exact counterpart of the other. What the people in their worship will not withhold is the praise of Yahweh's vindictory, saving righteousness. — 11-12. I have not covered in my mind], kept to myself || I have not concealed. The psalmist appeals to Yahweh Himself as witness: Thou knowest], and parallel therewith makes a solemn asseveration, I say. What Yahweh on His part will not withhold, is the use of His attributes in salvation, and that continually. They are indeed personified, as often, as guardian angels, and they will preserve His people. The Ps. here reaches an appropriate conclusion. But a later editor for liturgical reasons attaches another Ps. to it by a seam.

For evils encompassed me until there was no number.

Mine iniquities overtook me, and I was unable to see.

They were more numerous than the hairs of my head, and my courage forsook me.

13. This v. goes back to the situation described in v.<sup>3</sup> and enlarges upon it, in the use, however, of other images. — Evils], are here personified, and are represented as innumerable. They encompassed me], probably based on 18<sup>5</sup>, and therefore implying the image of a flood. The evils have as their parallel, — mine iniquities], because it is in the mind of the psalmist that the evils are due to the iniquities that the people have committed. These are also personified, and represented as more numerous than the hairs of my head. They pursued the people, and so overtook them, and in such a way that they were dazed, paralysed, and unable to see, and courage forsook them. They had no heart left, as they had no eyes to see.

PSALM XL. B.

This was originally a separate Ps., preserved apart in Ps. 70 : an importunate plea for speedy deliverance from mortal enemies, in lines 1, 7, 8, enclosing a tristich of imprecation upon enemies, and an antith. couplet of petition for the righteous. The divine names vary. The original was a Yahwistic Ps., using Yahweh for the divine name, with a variation, — my God. The uses of "God" in Ps. 70, and Adonay 40<sup>18</sup> are due to editorial changes.

Str. I. is a monostich of petition and a syn. tristich of imprecation. — 14. To deliver me], emphatic in position, because of intense feeling of immediate need || to my help, repeated in the climax, v.<sup>18</sup>, in nominal forms, — my helper and my deliverer. This is softened in v.<sup>14</sup> : "Be pleased," which makes the line overfull, and is improbable in itself, especially as it is not in 70<sup>1</sup>. — O haste], repeated in v.<sup>18</sup> with || tarry not. — 15-16. Let them be shamed], by defeat. They are public, not private enemies, — who seek my life], to destroy it || who delight in my distress], disasters of various kinds. — who say, "aha, aha"], congratulating themselves, and gloating over the shame of the people of God. Accordingly, the syn. imprecations, — let them be confounded together, let them be turned back, forced to retreat, and let them be dishonoured, let them be desolate by reason of their shame, defeated, disgraced, made desolate.

Str. II. has two syn. couplets. — 17. In antith. to the imprecation is the exhortation to the people of Yahweh, described as, — all who seek Thee], the worshippers of Yahweh || those who love Thy salvation], enjoy it and so love it, and Yahweh, who gives salvation, and is Himself salvation. The exhortation is that these may exult and be glad in Thee], in public praise, and so, — Let them say], in the songs of praise : May Yahweh be magnified. — 18. The ground of this importunate plea is, — Since I am afflicted and poor], the feeble, afflicted community of Yahweh, at the Restoration, encompassed by bitter enemies.

XL. 4.

2. הָיָה Pi. inf. abs. with הָיָה Pi. pf. intensifies the idea of waiting, wait patiently or persistently (v. 25<sup>3,5</sup>). — וַיִּשְׁמַע ו consec. Qal impf. נשמע. This is explained by וַיִּשְׁמַע שְׁמוֹתָי, which has crept into text as gl. (v. 187). — 3. שָׁאִין [א.ל. in the sense of desolation, improb.; cf. 65<sup>8</sup> שאון ימים, rd. שואה as Gr. (v. 35<sup>8</sup>). — שָׁט — mud, mire; cf. 69<sup>15</sup> Je. 38<sup>6</sup>. — וַיִּנּוּ n.[m.] mire; elsw. 69<sup>8</sup>. — Polel pf. instead of ו consec. c. impf. makes an independent parall. clause. — וַיִּשְׁפָּר fig. mode of life 4<sup>5</sup> 17<sup>6</sup> 37<sup>31</sup>. The situation is common to Je., La., and the Pss. of lamentation. — 4. שִׁיר חָדָשׁ new, fresh outburst of song Is. 42<sup>10</sup> Pss. 33<sup>3</sup> 96<sup>1</sup> 98<sup>1</sup> 144<sup>9</sup> 149<sup>1</sup>. — אֱלֹהֵינוּ for original אלהי, although אֱלֹהִים, also have ו pl.; a liturgical adaptation. — וַיִּרְאוּ Qal impf. 3 pl. ראה followed by ו coörd. for emph. coördination. Cf. Is. 41<sup>5</sup> וַיִּירָאוּ אֲנִים וַיִּירָאוּ; here רבים takes the place of אֲנִים. — 5. וַיִּשְׁפָּר (v. 1<sup>1</sup>) with גבר 34<sup>9</sup> 94<sup>12</sup> 127<sup>6</sup>. — שָׁם Qal pf. rel. clause; so אֱלֹהִים, but אֱלֹהִים, שָׁם name. — מִבְּטָח obj. of confidence, as 22<sup>10</sup> 65<sup>6</sup> 71<sup>5</sup>. — וַיִּרְהָבֵם א.ל. suspicious; אֱלֹהִים superbias, cf. א.ל. 90<sup>10</sup> pride; but prob. err. for רהב. רהב is a monster of a mythical character 89<sup>11</sup> Jb. 26<sup>12</sup> Is. 51<sup>9</sup>, especially of sea Jb. 9<sup>13</sup>; and so as name of Egypt Ps. 87<sup>4</sup> Is. 30<sup>7</sup>. It is difficult to see any connection with Egypt here. ματαιότης, vanities, so אֱלֹהִים = הבולים, so Ols., Gr., Che.; cf. Dt. 32<sup>21</sup> and Ps. 31<sup>7</sup>, Jon. 2<sup>9</sup> turn aside Pr. 4<sup>15</sup> Nu. 5<sup>12</sup>. 19. 20. 29 (P). The construction is then to be explained as בְּגִדֵי אֶזְרָא Ps. 59<sup>6</sup>, construct of quality, v. Ges.<sup>128(3)</sup>. It is then dependent on אֶל, after μακρὰς, pompas, neither of which is easy to understand. It is better to regard the original as וַיִּשְׁמַע ו coörd. Qal pf. || כֹּחַ, and כֹּחַ (v. 4<sup>3</sup>) as acc. of manner. — 6. רִבְּבוּ emph. position, || נִפְלְאוּתָהּ (v. 9<sup>2</sup>). — אֵת emph. — יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ divine name emphasised. — אֱלֹהֵינוּ is an explan. gl., not in אֱלֹהִים. — אֱלֹהֵינוּ is gl. of interpretation, not in אֱלֹהִים, but in אֱלֹהִים. — עֲצָמוֹ Qal pf. 3 pl. (v. v.<sup>13</sup> 38<sup>20</sup>), c. מִן comparative, which should be separated for measure. Is. 55<sup>8-9</sup> is at the basis of this v. — 7-8. זֶבַח [peace offering (v. 4<sup>6</sup>), || grain offering (v. 20<sup>4</sup>), || whole burnt offering (v. 20<sup>4</sup>). It is tempting, therefore, to render original sin offering, as most Vrss., Ges., SS., al., but there is no usage to justify it. Sin offering is always חַטָּאת, the intensive noun, which, however, is nowhere used in ψ in this mng., not even in the penitential Ps. 51. חַטָּאת is always sin (v. 32<sup>1</sup>), so here זֶבַח. The ו is the ו of accompaniment, with, in both connections. — הַמִּצֵּה Qal pf., technical term for acceptance of sacrifice, as 51<sup>18, 21</sup>. — אֲנִים כְּרִיתָ לִּי. אֱלֹהִים and Heb. 10<sup>6</sup> rd. σῶμα δὲ κατὰ κτηνισμὸν; Aq., Σ, Θ, rd. σῶμα, which has passed over into some Mss. אֱלֹהִים. Possibly אֱלֹהִים rd. עַצֵּם for אֲנִים, as Agellus, Che., the latter, however, thinking עַצֵּם a corruption of שְׁמֵנוֹ and so making the same emendation as Gr.; but אֲנִים is more suited to vb. כרה, so אֱלֹהִים, אֱלֹהִים, אֱלֹהִים. Pierce, Lowth, Street, would rd. אֲנִים, but this does not explain אֲנִים. Gr. would rd. כְּרִיתָ לִּי. It is easy to rd. אֲנִים כְּרִיתָ לִּי, "Then had I the covenant." אֱלֹהִים translates as if it rd. כְּרִיתָ לִּי and had supplied the obj. אֱלֹהִים mistook כ for ב, and אֲנִים for אֲנִים. This passage is based on Je. 7<sup>21</sup> אֲנִים.

where the prophet tells them that God, when He brought their fathers out of Egypt, gave them no command respecting sacrifices; cf. also 1 S. 15<sup>22</sup>, הנה שמע מונח טוב. ח of this v., and also Vrss., make this last l. defective; but the next v. is too long just by אמרהי. Many changes have been suggested. Rd. ל, אָמַרְתָּ לִי, then we have two lines in assonance, say to, in the sense of command, as 106<sup>34</sup>; cf. 33<sup>9</sup> 105<sup>31, 34</sup> 106<sup>23</sup> (?) 107<sup>25</sup> and 2 Ch. 29<sup>24</sup> העולה אמר המלך. אז—then, logical sequence, as 119<sup>6, 92</sup>. The previous vbs. are then prob. in protasis of interrog. clause.—הִנֵּה begins the l., calling emph. attention.—לְהַגִּידָה סֵפֶר as Je. 36<sup>2, 4</sup> Ez. 2<sup>9</sup> book roll, סֵפֶר n.m. book; elsw. 69<sup>29</sup> 139<sup>16</sup>. ב not with, but as ס, י, in.—כְּרוּב עָלַי Qal ptc. pass., not qualifying book, but as vb. it is written, prescribed, as ס, י. עָלַי =  $\pi\epsilon\pi\lambda\ \epsilon\mu\sigma\upsilon$  ס, de me י, so ס, י, י; better for me or to me, as Dr., Bā. This l. is overfull. אֱלֹהֵי is an unnecessary gl. There is still one word too many. The inf. לְעֵשׂוֹת is unnecessary, and is therefore prob. the gl. The idea is based on Dt. 6<sup>6</sup> Je. 31<sup>38</sup>.—10. בְּשִׁרְתִּי Pi. pf. בִּשְׂרָה vb. Pi. herald glad tidings; so also 68<sup>12</sup> 96<sup>2</sup>, after Is. 40<sup>9, 9</sup> 41<sup>27</sup> 52<sup>7, 7</sup>.—צִדִּיק righteousness, as vindicated (4<sup>2</sup>), || צִדִּיקָה v. 11 (which in ח, י, has suffix ה, in ס י, both probably interpretations), also || אֲמוֹנֶתְךָ (33<sup>4</sup>) and הַשְׁעֶרְךָ (33<sup>17</sup>). Under these circumstances it is improb. that צִדִּיק was original; rd. צִדִּיקָה.—קָהַל רַב—לֵב as v. 11, elsw. 22<sup>26</sup> 35<sup>18</sup>.—לֹא אֲכַלָּה cannot be dependent on previous context, for it makes the l. overfull. The impf. is, however, difficult in the midst of perfects. But it is evidently antith. הִכְלֵא v. 12, and is therefore probably an expression of resolution, at the beginning of a new Str. כָּלָא vb. Qal (1) shut up, or in, antith. with יָצָא 88<sup>9</sup>; (2) restrain: c. מִן 119<sup>101</sup>; (3) withhold: c. acc. צִדִּיקָה here, רִחֵם 40<sup>12</sup>.—11. אֲמַרְתִּי is in ח, ס, י, attached to תִּשְׁעֶתְךָ, but it makes l. too long. Besides there is no usage which justifies such a construction as is given here. It is really an emph. asseveration at the beginning of the next l., where the measure requires it.—חִתֵּיתִי Pi. pf. חָתַח vb. Niph. be hidden: c. מִן 69<sup>6</sup> 139<sup>16</sup>. Pi. חָתַח c. מִן 78<sup>4</sup>, c. ל pers. 40<sup>11</sup>. PSALM XLI., 4 STR. 5<sup>4</sup>.

Psalm 41 is a prayer: (1) Petition to Yahweh to deliver from enemies and make happy in the land (v. 2<sup>4a</sup>). (2) The enemies look for Israel's utter ruin, and they visit him as false friends to slander him (v. 6<sup>7</sup>); (3) they devise evil, they talk of his speedy death, and violate treaties to do the greatest injury (v. 8<sup>10</sup>). (4) A final petition that Yahweh will raise him up to stand in His presence, and will not permit his enemies to triumph (v.<sup>11-12</sup>). Glosses assert that Yahweh hath restored health (v.<sup>4b</sup>), and attribute sufferings to sin (v.<sup>5</sup>).

HAPPY be he that acteth circumspectly, though weak (and needy) !

In the day of evil may Yahweh deliver him ;

May Yahweh preserve him, (make him happy) in the land ;

And may He not give him over unto the greed of his enemies ;

May Yahweh support him upon the couch of his illness.

MINE enemies say that it is bad with me :

" How long ere he die and his name perish."

Even if one come to see me, falsehood he speaketh ;

His mind gathereth trouble to itself ;

He goeth abroad, he speaketh it altogether.

A GAINST me all that hate me whisper ;

Against me they devise that it is bad with me :

" A deadly thing is poured out within him ;

He has lain down and he will no more rise."

Yea, the one in covenant with me (has spoken great things) against me.

BUT, O Thou Yahweh, be gracious to me and raise me up.

By this I know that Thou delightest in me ;

That mine enemy will not shout over me,

But as for me, in mine integrity Thou dost hold me fast ;

Thou (on Thy part) wilt station me before Thy face forever.

Ps. 41 was in D, then in M and DK (v. Intr. §§ 27, 31, 33). It shows no dependence upon other Literature, and is therefore doubtless early. It is remarkable for its reference to the treachery of a familiar friend in the expressive איש שלימי v.<sup>10</sup>, further explained by glosses as one in whom he trusted, and as eating at his table. This is traditionally referred to Ahithophel, the false counsellor of David, 2 S. 15-17; and is cited by Christ, Jn. 13<sup>18</sup>, as applicable to Judas the traitor, cf. Acts 1<sup>16</sup><sup>89</sup>. Both of these references are quite appropriate. But the Ps. is national, and the false friend is a treacherous neighbour who violated treaties of alliance and friendship, and there is no reference to an individual. The people are dwelling in their land, v.<sup>3</sup>, after the Restoration, and lament to God the serious troubles which they suffer from the crafty minor nations of Palestine, in the time of Sanballat and Nehemiah, before the building of the walls of Jerusalem.

Str. II. in a synth. pentastich sets forth the peril from the enemy. — 6. Mine enemies say]. They talk about him, gloating over his troubles, — it is bad with me], I am in a bad way. This condition of the nation is hopeless. — How long ere he die]. They hope that he will soon die, and yet long that it may be sooner.

— and his name perish]. They wish that Israel may be so entirely destroyed, that no memory of his existence will remain to posterity. — 7. Even if one come to see me], make a visit, ostensibly friendly, but really to spy upon him and report his serious condition. The hostility is chiefly in what they say: falsehood he speaketh || he speaketh it altogether. — His mind gathereth trouble to itself]. He gathers up every kind of trouble in order to remember it and talk about it; and accordingly, — he goeth abroad, in streets and public places, in order to tell all about it.

Str. III. continues the description of the activity of the enemies in a pentastich of introverted parall. — 8–10. Against me all that hate me whisper || has spoken great things against me]. This latter rendering is better suited to the context than, “hath lifted up his heel against me,” AV., RV., which may be explained as endeavouring to kick me or trip me up; a speculative interpretation without usage to justify it, and which has nothing to suggest it in the context. The word “heel” is a gloss to give the verb an object. The object was omitted in the original on account of measure, as 1 S. 20<sup>41</sup>, cf. Ez. 35<sup>13</sup>, and the context suggests words rather than deeds. The other activities were all in order to speech. — Against me they devise], meditate, plan, not in order to do anything, but, as the context indicates, in order to say falsely that the people were in a bad condition. — it is bad with me]. A repetition of v.<sup>6</sup> || A deadly thing], a ruinous trouble, a mortal injury, — is poured out within him], infused in him. — He has lain down, on his bed in mortal wounds, and he will rise no more, in health and life. — The one in covenant with me], not to be interpreted as an individual, Ahithophel or any other, but as nations in covenant, who have treacherously broken covenant and become bitter enemies. This is enlarged upon by glosses, — in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread.

Str. IV. is a synth pentastich, and is essentially petition, in introverted parall. with Str. I. — 11. But O Thou Yahweh], emphatic, — be gracious to me and raise me up], in antith. to the hope of the enemies, v.<sup>9</sup>. A marginal gloss of vengeance: “And I will repay them,” came into the text at the expense of the measure and the harmony of the thought. — 12–13. By this], defined in the parall.: that mine enemy will not shout over me], in triumph, as they hoped to do in the previous Str. — I know], having such good evidence. — Thou delightest in me], dost look upon me with favour and acceptance. — in mine integrity], going back upon v.<sup>2</sup>. — Thou dost hold me fast], keep a firm hold on me || Thou wilt station me], place me and make me stand firm, — before Thy face forever], in Thy presence in the land and in the temple. The doxology at the close of this Ps., v.<sup>14</sup>, does not belong to the Ps., but indicates the end of the first part of the Psalter. It was, indeed, the doxology to be used at the close of every Ps. in the book, and also at the close of any section of the Pss. that might be selected, at places indicated by Selah (v. Intr. § 41).

Pss. 42-43 are the lament of an exile: (1) Intense longing to return to the sacred places of divine presence, saddened by the recollection of pilgrim processions and ritual worship (42<sup>2-5</sup>). (2) Description of the condition of the exiles looking back to Jerusalem from the region of the upper Jordan, with the sensation that they were drowning in its depths; and expostulation with God because of the taunts of the enemy (42<sup>7-11</sup>). (3) Petition for vindication, with renewed expostulation, and supplication that Yahweh may restore to the sacred places (43<sup>1-4</sup>). The Refrains are exhortations to confidence in Yahweh (42<sup>6.12</sup> 43<sup>5</sup>).

AS a hind that longeth after channels of water,

So longeth my soul for Thee (Yahweh).

My soul doth thirst for Yahweh, for the God of (my) life.

When may I come to appear in the presence of (Yahweh)?

My tears are my food day and night,

While they say unto me all the day: "Where is thy God?"

These things I would remember, and I would pour out my soul upon me:

How I used to pass on (to the majestic tabernacle), unto the house of Yahweh,
With the sound of jubilation and thanksgiving, (the roar) of the pilgrim band.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and moanest upon me?

Hope thou in (Yahweh), for yet shall I sing His praise;

(I shall sing the praise of) the saving acts of the presence of (Yahweh) my God.

UPON me my soul is cast down; therefore I would remember Thee,
From the land of Jordan and the Hermons and from Mount Mizar.

Deep calleth unto deep at the sound of Thy cataracts:

All Thy breakers and Thy billows are gone over me.

Day by day is with me prayer unto the God of my life.

I would say to the God of my crag: "Why dost Thou forget me?"

Why must I go in mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?"

While (the slayer) crushes in my bones, mine adversaries do reproach me,

While they say to me all the day: "Where is thy God?"

Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and moanest upon me?

Hope thou in (Yahweh), for yet shall I sing His praise;

(I shall sing the praise of) the saving acts of the presence of (Yahweh) my God.

O JUDGE me and plead my cause against unkind nations.

From deceitful and unjust ones deliver me (Yahweh).

For, O Thou, the God of my refuge, why dost Thou reject me?

Why must I go in mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

(While they say to me all the day: "Where is thy God?")

(O) send forth Thy light and Thy faithfulness: let them lead me;

Let them bring me unto Thy holy Mount, unto Thy dwelling places;

I would come unto the altar of Yahweh, to the God of my gladness.

My Rejoicing, I would sing Thy praise with the lyre, (Yahweh) my God.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and moanest upon me?

Hope thou in (Yahweh), for yet shall I sing His praise;

(I shall sing the praise of) the saving acts of the presence of (Yahweh) my God.

These Pss. begin Bk. II. They were originally one, as is evident from the dependence of 43 upon 42, the repetition of 42<sup>10</sup> with slight variations in 43<sup>2</sup>, and especially from the Rf. 42<sup>6, 12</sup> 43<sup>5</sup>, which divides the Pss. into three equal Strs. The separation was made for liturgical purposes. Ps. 43 is accordingly without title, the only orphan in the group of 37: 42-49. This is possibly the reason why 37 Codd. Kenn. and 9 De R. combine them, for the ancient Vrss. give them apart. The title of 42 shows that it was a מִשְׁכִּיל, originally in 37, and subsequently in 42 and 43 (v. Intr. §§ 26, 28, 32, 33). It begins the usage of the group 42-83 of employing אֱלֹהִים instead of יְהוָה. This, in the case of the Pss. of 37, was due to 42 and not to the author. The structure of the poem is artistic and elegant. The author uses poetic language, chiefly classic or early. There are an unusual number of cohortatives 42<sup>5, 10</sup> 43<sup>1, 4</sup>. What is peculiar is חָסִיד נָוִי לֹא חָסִיד 43<sup>1</sup>, and the stress laid on the combinations of אֶל with nouns: אֶל חִינִי 42<sup>8, 9</sup> אֶל סֹלֵי 42<sup>10</sup> אֶל מַעוֹי 43<sup>2</sup> אֶל שְׁמַחְתִּי 43<sup>4</sup>. The א.ל.ס. אֶרְבֶּה and אֶרְבֶּה 42<sup>5</sup> are txt. errs. for well-known words. There is a close connection with 44: לַחֲץ 42<sup>10</sup> 43<sup>2</sup> 44<sup>25</sup>; תִּשְׁתַּחֲוִי נֶפֶשׁ 42<sup>6, 7, 12</sup> 43<sup>7</sup>, cf. 44<sup>26</sup> La. 3<sup>20</sup>; נֶהַם Pss. 43<sup>2</sup> 44<sup>10, 24</sup>; but so far as can be traced with no other Literature. 42<sup>2</sup>, cf. Jo. 1<sup>20</sup>; אֶמִּיקוּ מִים 42<sup>2</sup> 18<sup>16</sup>, cf. 126<sup>4</sup>; רֹמֶן, roar of crowd, 42<sup>5</sup> 65<sup>8</sup>;

Str. I. is composed of an emblematic tetrastich, a synth. distich, and a synth. tristich. — 2-3. As a hind], emphatic. The exiles are compared to the thirsty hind. This is not the subject of verb, as AV., RV., but the verb is in a 'relative clause: that longeth after channels of water], to sate the thirst. AV., RV., "panteth after the water brooks" is sufficiently near, and certainly more poetical, but it is not an exact translation of the original. — So longeth my soul], present experience || doth thirst], emphatic present. The נֶפֶשׁ, in Heb., is the seat of appetites, emotions, and passions, cf. 63<sup>2</sup> 84<sup>3</sup>. — For thee, Yahweh], so doubtless in II; but E changed Yahweh into Elohim, here and elsw.; and so it appears in all Vrss. The proper name Yahweh is more suited to the context, and so is used here and throughout the Pss. of this group. Yahweh is in the same relation to the thirsty soul, as the channels of water to the thirsty hind. — the God of my life], as v. 9; by slip of copyist changed to "God of life," so EV., the latter as the possessor and source of life, the former as the source and sustainer of the life of the people, as the living waters of the rivers sus-tain the life of the hind. — When may I come], longing for the time, in the form of a plea for a speedy return from exile. — to appear in the presence of Yahweh], in the courts of the temple, taking part in the ceremonies of public worship, cf. Ex. 34<sup>23</sup> Ps. 84<sup>8</sup>. It is probable that in the original it was, "see the face of Yahweh," in accordance with the conception of His theophanic presence in the temple; but later writers, shrinking from this primitive idea, modified it as above, owing to undue awe of God and the exaggeration of His transcendence. — 4. My tears are my food], taking the place of living water and the living God, who refuses His presence, cf. 80<sup>6</sup> Jb. 3<sup>24</sup> La. 3<sup>15</sup>. — day and night], long-continued, uninterrupted weeping. — While they say unto me], the enemies, v.<sup>10.11</sup>, who have taken the people captive, — all the day], constantly taunting with the absence of the God for whom they thirsted. — Where is thy God?], as 79<sup>10</sup> 115<sup>2</sup> Mi. 7<sup>10</sup> Jo. 2<sup>17</sup>, urging the impotence of the national God of Israel to save His people from their enemies. This taunt is really the occasion of the Ps., repeated in v.<sup>11</sup>, and probably also in the original text of 43<sup>2</sup>. — 5. These things], not those which precede, but those which follow. — I would remember]. The cohortative form expresses subjective resolution. The only relief is in tearful recollection of the past. — and I would pour out my soul], give vent to sorrow of soul, which is here, in connection with tears, conceived as melting in liquid form, cf. 142<sup>3</sup> 1 S. 1<sup>15</sup> La. 2<sup>19</sup> Jb. 30<sup>16</sup>, — upon me], connected not with verb, and so incorrectly "within me," AV., but with "soul," which in Heb. psychology is conceived as resting upon the conscious self, cf. 142<sup>4</sup> La. 3<sup>20</sup> Jon. 2<sup>8</sup>. — How I used to pass on], frequentative, of habitual worship, cf. 55<sup>15</sup>. — to the majestic tabernacle], after 6, the temple in Jerusalem. MT., "with the throng," the crowd of worshippers; and "go solemnly with them," cf. Is. 38<sup>15</sup>; or, as otherwise pointed, "lead them solemnly," are difficult to justify in etymology, syntax, or usage; and are probably due to errors of early copyists. — With the sound of jubilation and thanksgiving], loud festal worship with song and music, cf. 47<sup>2</sup> 118<sup>15</sup>. — the roar], as 65<sup>8</sup>, of the crowd of people in the procession, — the pilgrim band], coming up to the pilgrim feasts and taking part in the processions in the temple which characterised them. — 6. Rf., as v.<sup>12</sup> 43<sup>5</sup>. Why art thou cast down?], under the weight of grief and longing, heavy and grievous though it be.—O my soul], vocative; the soul as the seat of sad recollection, present sorrow, and longing for the future.—and moanest upon me?]. The soul is in great pain; cf. v.<sup>11</sup>, where the bones of the body ache as if by crushing, and v.<sup>10</sup> 43<sup>2</sup>, where one goes about clad in black as in funeral procession; and so the soul moans, groans, and cries out. There is reason enough for all this. And yet there is much greater reason against it, for the expostulation is really based on the antithetical exhortation: Hope thou in Yahweh]. Though absent apparently, He will not abandon His people.—for yet], the time will surely come again when I will sing His praise in the Hallels of temple worship, as above, v.<sup>5</sup>. The verb was probably repeated in the original, as the measure requires it, but was left off by a prosaic copyist. The second object is pl.: saving acts, as usual with such plurals, and not abstract, “salvation,” Dr., “health,” AV., RV.—of the presence], the divine interposition for the vindication of His people. The variations in the Rf. of H at this point may thus be best explained by taking the form as cstr. rather than as with sf. 3 pers., 42<sup>6</sup>, or 1 pers., 42<sup>12</sup> 43<sup>5</sup>.—of Yahweh my God]. “Yahweh” is needed for measure, and is more probable in itself, as in accord with usage before “my God.” It was left off by H.

Str. II. is composed of an embl. tetrastich, a synth. tristich, and a synth. distich. It begins with a recognition of the actual state of soul, against which the poet expostulated in v.<sup>6a</sup>, and bases on it a resolution.—7. Therefore I would remember], which reiterates v.<sup>5a</sup>, only what would now be remembered is not so much the ritual of worship as Yahweh Himself, who used to accept it and grant favour to His worshippers. In this case also there is a looking back to former experiences in Jerusalem, from the place in which the exiles are now tarrying.—from the land of Jordan], the region of the upper Jordan, its sources in the Hermons, the several peaks of this giant mountain, more particularly defined as, from Mount Mizar, a peak not yet identified, probably a summit in antith. with the giant peaks, known for its littleness, possibly on the West Jordan range (v. Guthe, Palästina, I. S. 217 seq.). This situation, at the sources of the Jordan, suggests the rapids as a metaphor of the trouble, cf. 18<sup>5</sup> 69<sup>1.2</sup>.—8. Deep calleth unto deep]. The deep waters are personified and represented as calling aloud to one another in their noisy descent. — at the sound of Thy cataracts], the waterfalls of the upper Jordan. There is no usage to justify “waterspouts,” AV., RV., which introduces a novel idea, alien to the context. — All Thy breakers and Thy billows]. The waves of the river, in their agitated condition, break over and roll over the man who is struggling against their power. They are all conceived as Yahweh’s, because the river of trouble in which the people are struggling is His; and He has agitated it against His people with disciplinary purpose. — are gone over me]. The exiles are submerged in their troubles and are drowning. The nation is in deadly peril. — 9. Day by day], day after day, continually, since the trouble came. H, “By day,” followed by EV<sup>a</sup>., was due to the gloss, “by night,” to assimilate it to v.<sup>4</sup>. — is with me prayer unto the God of my life], as v.<sup>3</sup>. This is in accord with the painful situation described above. But a scribe probably inserted a marginal petition: “May Yahweh command His kindness,” which, when it became a part of the text, had to be regarded as an expression of confidence in God: “will command.” A later glossator inserted “His song,” a song to Him to correspond with the emphasis on ritual worship, v.<sup>5</sup>. — 10. I would say], in the remembrance of Yahweh, cf. v.<sup>7</sup>. — to the God of my crag], the God who is my crag, to whom I resort as a refuge; doubtless suggested also by the situation in the highlands of the upper Jordan. — Why dost Thou forget me?] So apparently from the troubles to which He has given them over. — Why must I go in mourning], as one bereaved, and clad in dark and dirty garments, 35<sup>14</sup> 38<sup>7</sup> 43<sup>2</sup>. — because of the oppression of the enemy?] The enemy have defeated the people of Yahweh, have slain them, and carried into captivity a remnant of mourners. — 11. While the slayer crushes in my bones], so, by a conflation of Q and J, each of which uses one of two similar forms, both needed for measure, one omitted by mistake by each Vrs. The enemy slays the people of God, crushing their bones by iron maces and other weapons. This is real and not figurative. At the same time mine adversaries do reproach me], taking advantage of their victory and of the weakness of their captives in taunting them, as v.<sup>4b</sup>.

Str. III. is composed of a syn. couplet, a synth. tristich, and a synth. tetrastich. — 43<sup>1</sup>. O judge me and plead my cause], both should be cohortatives of urgent petition for vindication. — deliver me], jussive, at close of the syn. couplet. The divine name has by a prosaic copyist's mistake been removed from the latter verb, where the measure requires it, and inserted between the two imvs., making the line too long. — against unkind nations], in the earlier sense: cruel, vindictive, the enemies of the previous Str. || deceitful and unjust ones], not only cruel, but crafty and wicked. AV., RV. give the later sense, "ungodly nation." — 2. For O Thou, the God of my refuge]. Who art my refuge, the same idiom as 42<sup>3.10</sup>, suggested by the saving acts of the presence; cf. Rf. — Why dost Thou reject me?], stronger than forget, 42<sup>10</sup>, the statement of the previous Str., followed by the same line as 42<sup>10b</sup>, to which should be added 42<sup>11b</sup> to complete the number of lines of the Str., and also to repeat the significant taunt. — 3. O send forth], probably cohort., as other imvs. of Str. — Thy light], shining from the divine presence in the temple, cf. 4<sup>7</sup> 27<sup>1</sup> 36<sup>10</sup> 44<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>16</sup>, joined with Thy faithfulness, both personified, as angel messengers, cf. 85<sup>11.12</sup>. — Let them lead me || bring me], out of exile, away from the divine presence, back to the divine presence in the temple, — unto Thy holy Mount], Zion, the sacred place of Yahweh || unto Thy dwelling places], the precincts and various buildings of the temple on the sacred mountain, cf. 84<sup>2</sup> 132<sup>5.7</sup>. — 4. I would come], following the lead of Yahweh's messengers, promptly responding to their call, — unto the altar of Yahweh], in the temple court, — to the God of my gladness], who is my gladness, the source and object of it. This is the same idiom as that in v.<sup>2</sup>. By a copyist's mistake, omitting the suffix, "gladness" has become construct before my Rejoicing], making the one line too long, the other too short. The latter is really an epithet of God beginning the last line emphatically. The Str. closes before the Rf. with the same vow as in the Rf. itself, making a proper climax to the Ps., — I would sing Thy praise], in the ritual worship of song, — with the lyre], to the accompaniment of this musical instrument which is most commonly used in such worship, cf. 33<sup>2</sup>.

V.<sup>12</sup> and 43<sup>5</sup> have וְאֱלֹהִי פָנִי; but ו was not in text of G in v.<sup>6</sup> 43<sup>5</sup>. It is a later insertion. Rd. therefore אֱלֹהִי פָנִי, then better פָּנִי than פָּנִי, the latter interpretation of form has forced the insertion of ו. It is difficult to see a good reason for such a short l. We may restore the two missing beats by prefixing אֲוֹרָה, omitted as a repetition, and reading אֲוֹרָה אֱלֹהִי, having been omitted by F. — 7. [הֶרְמוֹן] α.λ., pl. הֶרְמוֹן, two or three peaks of Hermon, one of which may be שֶׁנִּיר (Rob. III. 357, Bäder, Palestine, 301); יֵם may have arisen from dittog., as Gr. — [מִצְעָר] proper name of unknown mountain. G μικροῦ, I minimo, as adj. from √ צַעַר, little, insignificant, Gn. 19<sup>20</sup> Jb. 8<sup>7</sup>. It prob. indicates more definitely the locality of the poet, a smaller mt. in the upper Jordan region, of the East Jordan range. Bā. interprets מִן as far from, and thinks of Zion as the little mountain; but this seems to be far fetched. Bā. also interprets מִן of previous clause as far from, and thinks of the psalmist as stating his absence from the holy land: Hermon in the north and Zion in the south. But it is most probable that he indicates his temporary sojourn. The following context refers to the rapids of the Jordan. — 8. [צְנִיף] elsw. 2 S. 5<sup>8</sup> gutter, water course; here waterfall, cataract, Hu., De., Pe., Du., as G, F; not water run as Gr., Bā., or water spouts as Dr. — 9. [יָמָם] (1<sup>2</sup>) by day, cf. v.<sup>4</sup>; rd. with Du. יוֹם יוֹם. — [יְהוָה] only here in a Ps. of F is a gl. — [וְצִנָּה חֲסִיד] change of subj. from 2 sg. to 3 sg. is suspicious; it is prob. a gl. of confidence of later editor, or possibly of petition, צוּה חֲסִיד phr. α.λ. This coming into text, it was natural to insert לִילָה as v.<sup>4</sup>, only in the later style לִילָה. This called for another insertion, which acc. to F is שִׁירִי = שִׁירָה his song. The Levitical singer sings the songs of Zion in his banishment. G ἐηλώσει = הוֹרָה he instructs, teaches me, as 25<sup>14</sup> 51<sup>8</sup> 147<sup>19</sup>, is variation of gl. Ols., We., Be., Du., regard the whole as gl. The Str. is just this one l. too long. — 10. [אֶינִי] fully written cohort. Qal אמר I would say, as v.<sup>5</sup> אֲוֹכְרָה. — [אֶל־סֶלֶף] either God of my crag (18<sup>3</sup>) as “God of my life,” or as G paraphrase ἀντιλήπτωρ μου εἰ thou art my helper, F vocative petra mea; or in apposition, as Pe., Dr. — [בְּלֶחֶץ] amidst (Dr.) or because of (Pe.) oppression by an enemy; cf. 43<sup>2</sup> 44<sup>25</sup>. † לֶחֶץ n.m. not elsw. in ψ, but Ex. 3<sup>9</sup> (E) 2 K. 13<sup>4</sup>. — 11. [רָצַח] elsw. Ez. 21<sup>27</sup> as noun, both dub. G ἐν τῷ καταθλάσθαι τὰ ὀστέα μου, so S, Θ; F cum me interficerent in ossibus meis. רָצַח as vb. always kill, murder. G must have had a different text, prob. רָצַח inf. cstr. רָצַח crush. The reference to bones in agony of suffering is common in  $\psi$  (v. 6<sup>3</sup>). רצח is not harmonious with bones, and can only be interpreted with suffix as pregnant with another word. The l. lacks a word. It is improb. that this word, so needed for sense and measure, was omitted in original text. If  $\mathfrak{I}$  depends on ברצח and  $\mathfrak{S}$  upon ברץ, it is easy to find an original רצח ברץ, the רץ being omitted because of its repetition = while the slayer crushes in my bones.

We would expect שִׁמְחָה as 42<sup>3, 9, 10</sup> 43<sup>2</sup> unto God (of) my gladness. But  $\mathfrak{S}$  εὐφραίνοντα ἡμεῖς τὸν θεόν μου = שִׁמְחָה נַעֲרִי;  $\mathfrak{I}$  exsultationis meae. It is hard to see how  $\mathfrak{S}$  and  $\mathfrak{I}$  can be traced to same original; prob.  $\mathfrak{S}$  paraphrases. The et of  $\mathfrak{I}$  may be interpretation or be based upon גִּילִי, prob. former; but  $\mathfrak{S}$  has no conj. before אֶזְכְּרָה, prob. it was not original any more than et of  $\mathfrak{I}$  in previous l. Therefore there is no obstacle to reading גִּילִי אֶזְכְּרָה; then † גִּילִי n. as 45<sup>16</sup> 65<sup>13</sup> is an ascription to God || שִׁמְחָה eg. my rejoicing. — אלהים אלהי]  $\mathfrak{S}$  ὁ θεὸς μου;  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ , deus, deus meus; rd. יהוה אלהי as required by measure.

PSALM XLIV., 4 STR. 8<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 44 was a national prayer during the Exile: (1) relating the divine favour to the fathers at the conquest of the Holy Land (v. 2<sup>a, 3-4</sup>); (2) the present distress from powerful and cruel enemies (v. 11, 13-15); (3) expostulating with Yahweh for breach of the covenant (v. 18-20, 23); (4) pleading that He will interpose to help (v. 24-27). To this glosses were added at various times: (a) confidence in God, with the sense of great shame (v. 5, 7, 16-17); (b) exultation and laudation of God for victory (v. 6, 8-9); (c) sense of shame from recent defeat (v. 10, 12), and plea of innocence of idolatry (v. 21, 22).

YAHWEH, with our ears we have heard,
 Our fathers have told it to us;
 Nations Thou didst dispossess, and plant them;
 Peoples Thou didst afflict, and cause them to spread out.
 For not by their own sword did they possess the land,
 Neither did their own arm give them victory;
 But it was Thy right hand and Thine arm:
 And with the light of Thy face Thou didst favour them.

THOU makest us turn back from the adversaries,
 And they that hate us plunder at their will.
 Thou sellest Thy people for no wealth,
 And dost not make great gain by their price.
 We are a reproach to our neighbours,
 A scorn and a derision to them that are round about us.
 Thou makest us a taunt song among the nations,
 A shaking of the head among the peoples.

THIS has come upon us, and we have not forgotten Thee.
 We have not dealt falsely against Thy covenant.
 Our mind is not turned backward,
 And our steps have not declined from Thy path.
 Thou hast crushed us down in the place of jackals,
 And overwhelmed us in dense darkness.
 Yea, for Thy sake we were killed all the day,
 We were counted as sheep for the slaughter.

O arouse Thyself, why sleepest Thou?
 O awake, cast not off forever.
 Why hidest Thou Thy face,
 Forgettest our affliction and our oppression?
 For our soul doth sink down to the dust,
 And our body doth cleave to the earth.
 O arise for help for us,
 And ransom us for Thy kindness' sake.

Ps. 44 was first a זמיר, then in ℣, ℣, and ℣ (v. Intr. §§ 28, 32, 33). It was regarded as prophetic of Maccabean times by the ancient Antiochean school, Theodore of Mopsuestia, Theodoret, and Chrysostom; so by an early Commentary wrongly ascribed to Bede, from which the prefaces of the Paris Psalter were derived (v. Bruce, Anglo-Saxon Version of the Book of Psalms, commonly known as the Paris Psalter, 1894). So also Nicolaus de Lyra, Calv., al. Gr., Now., Bā., We., Kau., Venema, Dathe, Ros., Ols., regard the Ps. as Maccabean. Hi. thinks of the defeat of Joseph and Azarias at Jamnia, 1 Mac. 5<sup>56-62</sup>; Bu. of the defeat of Judas at Beth Zacharias, 1 Mac. 6<sup>28 sq.</sup>. But neither of these defeats suits the situation implied in this Ps. The reasons adduced for so late a date are: (1) the reference to the ancient history of the nation, v.<sup>2-4</sup>. But the reference to the dispossession of the Canaanites and taking possession of the land was suitable at any date subsequent to it. It is indeed characteristic of D; cf. 2 S. 7<sup>18-24</sup> Is. 63<sup>7 sq.</sup>. (2) The emphasis upon fidelity to God and denial of idolatry. But there is no evidence of a consciousness of P. The covenant, v.<sup>18</sup>, is a term of D. The denial of idolatry, v.<sup>21</sup>, is a gloss. (3) Religious persecution, v.<sup>23</sup>, which was not before Antiochus, 168 B.C. But the persecution is עליך as in 69<sup>8</sup>, and of Israel by the nations, which was true enough in preëxilic as well as in exilic and early postexilic times. It is not a persecution of the righteous by the wicked. There are several phrases which are connected with other literature: (1) פעל פלח בימיהם v.<sup>25</sup>, cf. Hb. 1<sup>5</sup>. This, with its complement בימי קדם, makes a pentameter in the midst of trimeters. Besides, it is too strong a statement at the beginning, making an anticlimax. It is a gloss. (2) V.<sup>106</sup> ולא תצא בצבאותינו = 60<sup>12</sup> = 108<sup>12</sup>. Doubtless 60<sup>12</sup> is the original, and the couplet is a gloss here; it is not suited to the context. (3) V.<sup>14</sup>

The only difference is that חשימו stands for היינו. But the former has been assimilated by copyist's error to v.<sup>15</sup>, and היינו was doubtless original. Ps. 79 is a mosaic of earlier pieces, and it is improbable, therefore, that in this v. it should have the original of 44. The first clause is given in the 3 sg. in 89<sup>42</sup> and in 1 sg. in 31<sup>12</sup>, of which 89 is the earlier. 89<sup>A</sup> and 44 have a similar historical situation, and the phr. is common to them from this common situation. V.<sup>15a</sup> משל, as in 69<sup>12</sup>, is based on Je. 24<sup>9</sup>. V.<sup>15b</sup> מנור ראש, cf. 22<sup>8</sup>, is based on Je. 18<sup>16</sup>. V.<sup>16</sup> בשח פני phr. of 2 Ch. 32<sup>21</sup> Ezr. 9<sup>7</sup> Dn. 9<sup>7.8</sup> (but also Je. 7<sup>19</sup>). This is a couplet using 1 sg. instead of 1 pl., and is doubtless a gloss. V.<sup>17b</sup> מפני אייב ומתנחם = 8<sup>3</sup>; phr. nowhere else, doubtless derived from Ps. 8 and a gl. V.<sup>19b</sup> וחס אשרנו מני ארחך, cf. Jb. 31<sup>7</sup> הררך מני הררך. These are similar phrases, but of different construction, and there is no evidence of dependence. V.<sup>20</sup> מעון חנים = מקום חנים Je. 9<sup>10</sup> 10<sup>22</sup> 49<sup>88</sup> 51<sup>37</sup>. V.<sup>22</sup> תעלמות n.f. hidden things, elsw. Jb. 11<sup>6</sup> 28<sup>11</sup> (sg.). This v. is a gloss. V.<sup>23</sup> כצאן טבחה = Je. 12<sup>3</sup> לשבחה. V.<sup>27</sup> למען חסוך = 6<sup>5</sup>; the latter doubtless is earlier. So far as this line of evidence goes, it shows nearness to Je., Ps. 89<sup>A</sup>, and favours the early exile. The reference to the ancient history of the nation, v. 2-4, is in the style of 22<sup>5</sup> 80<sup>9-16</sup> 2 S. 7<sup>22-24</sup> Is. 63 and Je.; the reference to the זרוע in style of Is.<sup>2</sup> and Ps. 89<sup>11.22</sup>; and אור מניח reminds of Is. 63<sup>9</sup>. The selling of Israel, v.<sup>13</sup>, as Dt. 32<sup>30</sup> Is. 50<sup>1</sup>. לא שקר ברית v.<sup>18</sup>, cf. Is. 63<sup>8</sup>. In Ps. 89<sup>4</sup> it is the covenant with David, here the covenant with Israel at Horeb; but the two are parallel and the situation is similar. The evidence from these references favours a similar situation to Pss. 22, 80, 89, dependence on Je. and connection with Is.<sup>2</sup>. The Ps. is not homogeneous. In its present form it has four parts: (1) v. 2-9, 20 l.; (2) v. 10-17, 16 l.; (3) v. 18-23, 12 l.; (4) v. 25-27, 8 l. There are many glosses. We have already seen that v.<sup>16</sup> is a gloss; it changes the 1 pl. of Ps. to 1 sg. Two other couplets having 1 sg. are likewise glosses, v. 6<sup>5.7</sup>, the latter a tame repetition of v. 4. These three glosses doubtless came from the same hand. But these glosses carry with them several others: v.<sup>16</sup> has v.<sup>17</sup> dependent upon it, which for another reason may be regarded as a gloss. These two couplets, v.<sup>5, 7</sup> and v.<sup>16-17</sup>, with 1 pers. express deep shame for the situation in which the people is placed and a confidence in the divine King. These may have come from ℔. V.<sup>5, 7</sup> as gl. carry with them the intervening v.<sup>6</sup>, which must have been inserted between the two halves of this tetrastich. Indeed, this v. is of a different tone from that of the Str., introducing the triumphant and defiant strain which appears in v.<sup>8-9</sup> also. These three verses doubtless were inserted by the same hand. We have seen that the pentameter v.<sup>26</sup> is also a gloss of intensification which may have come from the same hand. Thus Part I. is reduced to a simple, homogeneous octastich, just the same as Part IV. It is altogether probable, therefore, that the intervening parts have been enlarged from this normal length to their present form. A critical examination makes this evident. As we have seen already, v.<sup>10, 16, 17</sup> are glosses. V.<sup>12</sup> is a pentameter; either it is a gloss or a word is missing, probably the former. Thus Part II. is reduced to an octastich. V.<sup>10, 12</sup> have a different tone from the glosses just considered, and imply a recent defeat, possibly the defeat of Judas the Maccabee. In Part III. v.<sup>21, 22</sup> are complementary and interrupt the simple order of thought by a conditional clause, which reminds us of the protestations of innocence characteristic of the book of Job and without analogy in early Literature. It is probably Maccabean. Thus the Ps. has four equal parts: (1) Historical retrospect of divine favour to Israel. (2) Experience of present disaster. (3) Protest and appeal based on the covenant. (4) Petition for speedy help. The original Ps. is best explained from the troublous times of the late Persian period, as Ew., RS.

Str. I. has four syn. couplets.—2. Yahweh], for which ℔ substituted Elohim,—with our ears we have heard], oral instruction over against written; not, however, depreciating the latter, or implying ignorance of such narratives.—Our fathers have told it to us], the story of the conquest of the Holy Land, v.<sup>3-4</sup>; cf. Ex. 10<sup>2</sup> 12<sup>26</sup> sq. Dt. 6<sup>20</sup> sq. Pss. 22<sup>31</sup> 78<sup>3</sup>. This was emphasised by the insertion by an editor of the clause: “The work Thou didst work in their day,” after Hb. 1<sup>5</sup>, victories, as Ps. 74<sup>12</sup>, wrought by divine power in the lifetime of the fathers of the nation, the story having been transmitted orally through their posterity. This editor also added,—in days of old], as Mi. 7<sup>20</sup> Is. 37<sup>26</sup> Je. 46<sup>26</sup>, the forefront of the history of Israel. The same editor prefixed,—Thou, with Thy hand, to v.<sup>3a</sup> to emphasise that it was God’s hand that did it. But this is premature. A term of J and Is. is used instead of those of v.<sup>4</sup> and the measure is destroyed.—3. Nations || Peoples], the inhabitants of Canaan at the Conquest.—Thou didst dispossess || afflict], by defeat and slaughter, as the context suggests. — and plant them], the fathers of the nation, as a vine, 80<sup>9 16</sup>, or as a tree in the ground, cf. Am. 9<sup>15</sup>. — cause them to spread out], continuing the figure as 80<sup>12</sup>. It is possible, however, to regard the nations as the obj. of the verb with Ⓔ, Ⓙ, and translate, “send forth,” “cast them out,” as PBV., AV. — 4. For not by their own sword || their own arm], the strength, number, and discipline of their armies, cf. 20<sup>8</sup> 33<sup>16-17</sup>, strongly stated. — Thy right hand], phr. of Ex. 15<sup>6.12</sup> Is.<sup>2</sup> || Thine arm], phr. of D, Je., Is.<sup>2</sup>. — did they possess the land], win the victory, by which the land became theirs. — And with the light of Thy face], 2 subj. of following verb, as 3<sup>5</sup>; wrongly attached to the previous line by Vrss., destroying the measures. — Thou didst favour them], the divine face shining with the light of favour upon His people, cf. 4<sup>7</sup> 43<sup>8</sup> 80<sup>4</sup> 85<sup>2</sup>.

5–9 are insertions between v.<sup>1-4</sup>, telling of the conquest of Canaan, and v.<sup>10-17</sup>, telling of present distress. Their strain is victory in the present and future, and not in the past; and so is inconsistent with the following context. The one using 1 sg. belongs to a period of renewed confidence, possibly Ⓔ, the other, using 1 pl., to times of victory, probably Maccabean.

Thou art my King, O God,
Commander of victories for Jacob.
For not in mine own bow do I trust,
And mine own sword cannot give victory.

5. Thou art my King, O God]. Elohim here is probably original. God is King of Israel, frequently in ψ; cf. 10<sup>16</sup> 29<sup>10</sup>, and especially the royal Pss., 96–100; || Commander], as Ⓔ, more probable than the inv. “command” of Ⓙ and other Vrss. — of victories], as the context implies, of God in the long history of Israel until the Exile, cf. 18<sup>51</sup> 28<sup>8</sup> 74<sup>12</sup>. — Jacob], poetic name for Israel frequent in Ⓔ and Ⓙ. 7 is a needless repetition of v.<sup>4</sup>, without its fine antith.

In Thee will we butt our adversaries;
In Thy name will we tread under foot those who rise up against us.
For Thou hast saved us from our adversaries,
And them that hate us Thou hast put to shame.
Yahweh we praise all the day,
And Thy name we laud forever.

6. In Thee || in Thy name], instrumental, for presence, as 20<sup>6, 8</sup> 33<sup>21</sup> 89<sup>13 17, 25</sup>, — will we butt], as a bull or ram, cf. Dt. 33<sup>17</sup> Ez. 34<sup>21</sup>; || tread under foot], trample; probably continuing the figure, as in the rush of a herd of cattle, cf. Ps. 60<sup>14</sup> Is. 14<sup>25</sup> 63<sup>6</sup>. This boastful confidence in victory seems to imply the Maccabean successes. — 8. Thou hast saved], implying victory; put to shame, by defeat, cf. 14<sup>6</sup>. The enemies are national and not personal. — 9 uses liturgical phrases of national thanksgiving for victories, implying continuous musical service of God in the temple.

Str. II. 10–17 shows evidence of three hands. The original was four syn. couplets, v. 11. 13–15; — 11. Thou makest us turn back from the adversaries]; the armies of Israel have been defeated disastrously. — And they that hate us plunder at their will], none can resist them. — 13. Thou sellest Thy people], a phr. of Ju. 2<sup>14</sup> 3<sup>8</sup> Dt. 32<sup>30</sup> Is. 50<sup>1</sup>, giving them into the hands of their enemies as captives, who, in accordance with ancient usage, sell them for slaves. — their price], paid for them in the sale. — for no wealth], for a price which was not wealth, so poor was it. — And dost not make great gain], so trifling that it amounted to nothing. This implies the captivity of the people, after they had been thoroughly defeated and plundered, which suits their situation in the great Exile. — 14. We are a reproach], for so we must correct the text after 31<sup>12</sup> 79<sup>4</sup> 89<sup>42</sup>; || a scorn and derision], original here, cited by 79<sup>4</sup>, cf. Je. 20<sup>8</sup>. — 15. Taunt song], as 69<sup>12</sup>, sung by their adversaries to torment them for their weakness and dishonour. — A shaking of the head], as 22<sup>8</sup> Je. 18<sup>16</sup>, a gesture of contempt and mocking. Those who indulge in these manifestations of bitter hostility are the neighbours, the lesser nations of Palestine, who rejoiced in the misfortunes of Israel; such as Moab, Ammon, the Philistines. — The nations || peoples], probably refer to the greater nations, such as Babylon and Egypt.

An early Maccabean editor, in times of defeat and disaster, inserted the following three lines at what he supposed to be appropriate places in this Str.

But now Thou dost cast us off and put us to shame,
And Thou goest not forth with our armies,
Thou makest us meat like sheep, and among the nations dost scatter us.

10. But now], an additional statement of a new and antithetical situation. — Thou dost cast us off], reject, as 43<sup>2</sup> 60<sup>3</sup>. — and put us to shame], the shame of defeat; some Maccabean disaster, which was the occasion of this gloss. — Thou goest not forth with our armies], citation from 60<sup>12</sup>. The armies of Israel, going forth without their God as the supreme commander, went to certain defeat and dishonour. — 12. Thou makest us meat]. War devours the people, as 14<sup>4</sup> 27<sup>2</sup> 79<sup>7</sup>. — like sheep], weak, helpless, and incapable of defence, cf. Is. 53<sup>7</sup>. — and among the nations dost scatter us], captured and sold as slaves wherever their purchasers would take them.

The earlier editor, possibly Æ, who inserted v.<sup>5,7</sup>, also inserted v.<sup>16-17</sup>.

All day long mine ignominy is before me,
And the shame of my face doth cover me;
Because of the voice of him that reproacheth and revileth,
Because of the enemy and the avenger.

16. All day long], continually, — mine ignominy], or sense of insult, as 69<sup>8</sup> Je. 51<sup>51</sup> || shame of my face], late phr. implying probably Greek period. — 17 gives the reason of v.<sup>16</sup>. The enemy is one that reproacheth and revileth, or blasphemeth, suggesting to many Antiochus, the great oppressor of Israel, who provoked the Maccabean revolt; but more probably collective of the enemies of Israel || the enemy and the avenger, cited from 8<sup>3</sup>.

Str. III. has two syn. tetrastichs, v.<sup>18-20, 23</sup>, with gloss inserted v.<sup>21, 22</sup>. — 18. This], referring to the distress of previous Str., intensified by a later copyist by the prefixing of "all," which injures the rhythm; defined more fully again, v.<sup>20, 23</sup>. — has come upon us], from without, coming up against, attacking as a calamity that could not be resisted. — and we have not forgotten Thee], fidelity, not previous to the affliction, but subsequent to it, in spite of it, and therefore one which continues in the present || have not dealt falsely against Thy covenant], the covenant with the nation at Horeb, Ex. 24 Dt. 4<sup>13</sup>, renewed Dt. 28<sup>69</sup> 29 30, cf. Pss. 25<sup>10</sup> 50<sup>5</sup> 78<sup>10, 37</sup>. The people in captivity and affliction have not forsaken Yahweh their God; but have remained faithful notwithstanding all their disadvantages. — 19. Our mind], the internal thought and purpose || our steps], the external walk and conduct. — is not turned backward ], away from Yahweh and His covenant || have not declined ], bent aside from the path of the Law of D, cf. Is. 2<sup>3</sup> Ps. 119<sup>15</sup> Jb. 31<sup>7</sup>. — 20. Thou hast crushed us down ], the nation, by the heavy weight of disasters which, though coming from their national enemies, have yet been inflicted by their God ; || and overwhelmed us ], as a drowning man with a flood, or one going down to death, covered over by the earth, cf. 106<sup>17</sup>. All this is not of a disaster long ago experienced, but of one which has come upon them and still abides with them. The introductory “though” is due to dittog. — in the place of jackals ], a variation of a phr. of Je., implying a desert place, the resort of these wild animals. — in dense darkness ], a place where dense darkness dwells. The people are in a desolate wilderness and in a dark, gloomy waddy, cf. Pss. 23<sup>4</sup> 107<sup>10, 14</sup> Is. 42<sup>7, 22</sup> 49<sup>9</sup>. — 23. Yea, for Thy sake ], because of fidelity to Yahweh and His covenant, as 69<sup>8</sup>, emphatic to indicate that this was the chief, if not the only reason, they were killed. — We were counted as sheep for the slaughter ], a phr. of Je. 12<sup>3</sup> ; defenceless as sheep, whose only use is to be slaughtered for meat, cf. Is. 53<sup>7</sup>. — all the day ], continuously, and not merely on some historic battle-field.

21–22. A late Maccabean editor emphasises the fidelity in accordance with the conception of his own times, by putting it in the protasis of a conditional clause, and appealing to the divine vindication in the apodosis after the manner of Jb. 31.

Have we forgotten the name of our God,
Or spread forth our palms to a foreign god?
Will not Yahweh search this out?
For He knoweth secrets.

21. Have we forgotten the name of our God ], that is, to honour His name in worship, and so somewhat different from the forgetting of v.<sup>18</sup>. — spread forth our palms ], the gesture of invocatory prayer, cf. Jb. 11<sup>13</sup> Ezr. 9<sup>5</sup>, — to a foreign god ], as 81<sup>10</sup>, implying idolatry. The question is asked only to be answered in the negative by an appeal to the knowledge of God Himself. — 22. Will not Yahweh search this out? ], implying a positive answer, cf. Jb. 5<sup>27</sup>, 28<sup>27</sup> Ps. 139<sup>1</sup> ; — For He knoweth ], that is, practically, by such searching of men. — secrets ], hidden from men, but which cannot be hidden from God.

Str. IV. is a final appeal to Yahweh Himself to interpose, in four syn. couplets. — 24. O arouse Thyself], from silence, inattention, and apparent slumber; || Why sleepest Thou || O awake]. It is quite true that Yahweh does not, and cannot sleep, 121<sup>4</sup>; yet He seems to sleep, when inattentive to His people's necessities; and awakes as one out of sleep, 78<sup>65</sup>, when He interposes as a warrior in their behalf. — cast not off forever]. Thou hast cast us off, now a long time; let it not continue, lest it be forever. — 25. Why], continuation of the plea, with variant verbs, — hidest Thou Thy face], awake, indeed, but not seeing and not being seen, cf. 10<sup>11</sup> 22<sup>25</sup>. — forgettest], having seen, but so long ago that Thou hast forgotten, — our affliction], as 9<sup>14</sup>, and our oppression], as 42<sup>10</sup> 43<sup>2</sup>; that described in the previous Str. and now emphasised. — 26. For our soul], the seat of internal distress || our body, the seat of external suffering, — doth sink down to the dust], in prostration; || doth cleave to the earth], unable to rise up again, cf. 119<sup>25</sup> — 27. The final plea, — O arise], stand up from sitting, an inactive posture, to interpose, — for help for us], specific application of the help; || And ransom us], that is, from enemies and distresses, v.<sup>18</sup>. — For Thy kindness' sake], as 6<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 45 is a song celebrating the marriage of Jehu. (1) The king is the fairest of men (v.<sup>3a. b</sup>). (2) He is a warrior who rides forth in his chariot and pierces the heart of his enemies with his arrows (v.<sup>4-6</sup>). (3) He embodies all precious ointments in himself. He and his queen at his right hand are royally arrayed (v.<sup>8c-10</sup>). She is urged to forget her people, and in her beauty be satisfied with her godlike lord and the homage of the people (v.<sup>11-13</sup>). Her virgin companions, arrayed in all their glory, are conducted to her in the king's palace (v.<sup>14-16</sup>). Rfs. congratulate the king on the divine blessing (v.<sup>3c</sup>) and his anointing (v.<sup>8b</sup>), and everlasting praise (v.<sup>18b</sup>). Glosses set forth the perpetuity of the throne of God and His sceptre of righteousness (v.<sup>7-8a</sup>), and wish the king a goodly posterity of kings (v.<sup>17-18a</sup>). An Introduction states the emotions stirred by such a theme (v.<sup>2</sup>.)

THOU art very fair, above the children of men;
Grace has been poured on thy lips;
Therefore Yahweh hath blessed thee forever.

GIRD thy sword on thy thigh,
O hero, thy splendour and thy majesty;
Tread the bow, have success, ride on;
And thy right hand will shew thee terrible deeds.
O hero, thine arrows are sharp,
In the heart of the king's enemies.

Therefore Yahweh thy God hath anointed thee.

O OIL of joy above thy fellows,
Myrrh and aloes, cassia (thou).
All thy garments are from ivory palaces,
Whence kings' daughters gladden thee.
In thy costly things the queen doth stand at thy right hand,
In golden attire, her clothing of embroidery.
Hear, see, and incline thine ear,
And forget thy people and thy father's house:
For the king desires thy beauty.
Worship him for he is thy sovereign lord.

The daughter of Tyre will do homage with a gift for thee;
 The richest peoples will court thy face.
 In all glorious things the king's daughter is within;
 Inwrought with gold is her clothing.
 In embroidery are conducted to the king her attendants;
 Virgins, her companions, (are brought to her);
 With gladness and exulting they are conducted (to her);
 Into the king's palace they are brought (to her).
Therefore the peoples will praise thee forever.

Ps. 45 was originally in כ, and was then subsequently taken up into מכ (v. Intr. §§ 28, 33). It belonged to the class מְשִׁכִּיל (v. Intr. § 26). But prior to this was an older title שִׁיר יִרְדָּה, a song of marriage love, an epithalamium (v. Intr. § 24), which is an exact designation of its contents. It was adapted for public use when it was included in כ. It may have received then the liturgical addition, v.<sup>18a</sup>, and the gloss referring to the reign of Yahweh, v.<sup>7-8a</sup>. When it was used in מכ it was assigned for rendering after the melody Lilies (v. Intr. § 34). Messianic significance was given to the Ps. because of v.<sup>7-8a</sup>, which, when applied to the king, ascribes to him godlike qualities, such as the Messiah alone was supposed to possess. But this gloss was later than the Ps., and its Messianic interpretation later still. There are two Aramaisms in the Ps.: (1) one of etymology, v.<sup>2</sup>, רוּחַ only here as verb in OT.; (2) one of syntax, v.<sup>2</sup>, אֶפְרַיִם, also late Heb. However, both of these might be explained from the dialect of North Israel, which was tending to the Aramaic earlier than the dialect of Judah, owing to proximity to Syria and constant association with Syrians in war and commerce. There are several words which are urged as late: מַעֲשֵׂי, v.<sup>2</sup>, my work, of lines of poem, a.l. in this mng. It is not certain whether this is a usage late or early, or peculiar to North Israel. סוּפֵר מְהִיר, v.<sup>2</sup>, elsw. only Ezr. v.<sup>6</sup>. These evidences of late date heaped up in v.<sup>2</sup> suggest that the Introduction may be a later prefix to the Ps. עֲנוּה, v.<sup>5</sup>; this is dubious, and is probably interpretive by error of late scribe. שָׁגַל, v.<sup>10</sup>, in late Heb. and Aram.; but probably Ju. v.<sup>30</sup> by emendation. It belongs to the dialect of the North. בָּחַם אוֹפִיר, v.<sup>10</sup>, elsw. Is. v.<sup>13</sup> Jb. v.<sup>28</sup>, but misinterpretation of late scribe. ס preserves the earlier text. Thus the language does not favour a late date, but the dialect of North Israel. The Ps. shows no dependence on other Scriptures. This favours an early date, and also North Israel as a place of composition. The Ps. is referred by Ols. to the Syrian king Alexander and his marriage with Cleopatra, 1 Mac. v.<sup>57-58</sup>, by Du. to Aristobulus I., by Ros. to a Persian monarch; but of none of these could the poet say, Yahweh, thy God, hath anointed thee, v.<sup>8</sup>. The older view, still maintained by Kirk., held it to represent the marriage of Solomon with Pharaoh's daughter, 1 K. v.<sup>3</sup>; but there is no support in the Ps. for this opinion. De. thought of the marriage of Joram and Athalia; Hi., of Ahab and Jezebel; Ew., of Jeroboam II. V.<sup>4-6</sup> favour a reference to Jehu, 2 K. 9-10. He was a well-known hero, v.<sup>4b. 6a</sup>, anointed by a prophet of Yahweh, v.<sup>8b</sup>, to overthrow the house of Ahab and the worship of Baal, and right the wrongs of the people; cf. v.<sup>5b</sup>. He was at once proclaimed by the army, showing his popularity and probable grace of form and speech, v.<sup>3</sup>. He rode forth in his chariot to meet the king and overthrow him, v.<sup>5</sup>. He was a famous charioteer, and killed the king by piercing his heart with an arrow, v.<sup>5a, 6a</sup>. He wrought fearful deeds upon Jezebel, the royal household, and the worshippers of Baal, v.<sup>5c</sup>. No more graphic presentation of the victorious ride of Jehu could be composed than v.<sup>4-6</sup>. We know nothing of the wife or marriage of Jehu, but the marriage of such a hero might well be the theme of a poet of the time of Elisha. There is, moreover, in the descriptions of the marriage, reference to ivory palaces, which were first erected by Ahab, 1 K. 22<sup>39</sup>, and mentioned elsewhere only in Am. 3<sup>15</sup> in reign of Jeroboam II., both in North Israel. A poet of Jehu's court would be most likely to mention them, v.<sup>9b</sup>. Am. 6<sup>4-6</sup>, speaking of the luxury of the nobles of the North in the reign of Jeroboam II., alludes to ivory beds, to their anointing themselves "with the chief ointments," cf. v.<sup>8-9</sup>, and to their singing songs to the accompaniment of musical instruments, evidently as court poets and musicians. There is nothing in the Ps., apart from the two glosses, that is opposed to this time of composition, and there are many striking coincidences with Jehu's career. In the Roman, Sarum, and Anglican uses, the Ps. is assigned to Christmas; in the Gregorian, to the Annunciation.

A late editor, who regarded the Ps. as Messianic, and probably the final editor of the Psalter, gave this ancient Ps. an introduction in a syn. tristich, expressing the emotions of the poet in composing such a poem.

My mind moves with a goodly word;
I am saying my poem of a King;
My tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

2. My mind moves], "is astir," Dr., so after Aram. usage, of movement of lips, to be preferred to "overfloweth with," RV., a speculative interpretation after cognate Heb. stems. — With a goodly word], a choice, excellent, beautiful song, and not "matter," AV., RV., as if it were the theme or subject matter of the poem. — My poem], literally, "my work," RV.<sup>m</sup>. — of a king], without article in Heb., and so emphatically indefinite. — My tongue is the pen], metaphor for rapid movement, as we say the "tongue runs." — ready writer], elsw. only of Ezra the scribe Ezr. 7<sup>6</sup>.

Str. I. is a synth. couplet, with the Rf. — 3. Thou art very fair], in form and stature. — above the children of men], surpassing all men, all kings, superhuman, cf. v.<sup>7</sup>. — Grace has been poured on thy lips], grace of speech as a gift of Yahweh, added to beauty of face and form. — Therefore Yahweh hath blessed thee forever]. E has changed an original Yahweh into Elohim, which change has been perpetuated by the texts and Vrss. Grace of speech and beauty of person are evidences of a perpetual blessing of Yahweh.

Str. II. has three synth. couplets and a line of Rf. Glosses make two of the couplets triplets. — 4. Gird thy sword on thy thigh], arm for battle. — O hero], attached to second line on account of assonance, which extends to the three words of the couplet. The king is a renowned warrior. — thy splendour and thy majesty], the royal state; usually of God, 96<sup>6</sup> 104<sup>1</sup> 111<sup>3</sup>; but of the king 21<sup>6</sup>. — 5. Tread the bow], so G, which suits the context v.<sup>6a</sup>; the MT., “in thy majesty,” followed by EV<sup>e</sup>., is dittog. of previous word. — have success], prosper. — ride on], in the chariot. The three imvs. without conj. are an emphatic expression of rapidity of action, as also the trimeter measure of the Str., which here, as elsw. in Ps., takes the place of the usual tetrameter for that purpose. We are reminded of the chariot ride of Jehu after he had been anointed king by a prophet and acclaimed by the officers of the army, 2 K. 9<sup>20-24</sup>. — Because of faithfulness and the afflicting of righteousness]. So, by an easy change of a letter of text, cf. Ps. 18<sup>36</sup>. H gives an interpretation of a late scribe, thinking of the עֲנִיִּים of his own time; but the absence of a conjunction after “humility” in H (supplied in G) and the unexampled form render it suspicious. — And thy right hand will shew thee terrible deeds]. This probably refers to the terrible deeds described in the killing of Jezebel, all the royal seed of Ahab, and the priests of Baal, 2 K. 9<sup>30</sup> 10<sup>30</sup>. — 6. O hero], so G, as required by measure, omitted by copyist of H; a term aptly fitting Jehu. — thine arrows are sharp]. Jehu was a famous charioteer and bowman. — in the heart of the king's enemies]. So Jehu's arrows pierced the heart of Joram, 2 K. 9<sup>24</sup>. — peoples fall under thee]. This implies victory over various nations. It does not suit the history of Jehu, and it is probably a gloss of a later writer who desired to give the Ps. a universal reference. — 8b. Therefore Yahweh thy God hath anointed thee]. This is the second Rf. The blessing of Yahweh passes over into his anointing by Yahweh. The anointing is not thought of as subsequent to the victorious ride; but, as in v.<sup>3c</sup>, as the ground or reason for the whole Str.

Yahweh was especially the God of Jehu over against Baal; and Jehu was anointed by the prophet of Yahweh, and commissioned by Yahweh to do the work he did.

The description of the victorious chariot ride of the king is followed by a syn. tristich before the Rf., 7-8 a. There is nothing in the context that has any relation whatever to the thought of these lines. When they are removed they are not missed. The reference of this throne to the king of the Ps. has given endless difficulties of interpretation.

Thy throne, Yahweh, is forever and ever;
A sceptre of equity is the sceptre of Thy royalty;
Thou dost love righteousness and hate wickedness.

7. Thy throne, Yahweh, is forever and ever]. The divine name Elohim stands for Yahweh, as throughout the Ps. All the Vrss. regard Elohim, God, as vocative; all refer it to the king except ℣, which thinks of God. The reference to God has against it the 2 pers. v.<sup>5-6</sup>, and again v.<sup>8</sup>, "Yahweh thy God." None of the many explanations of scholars satisfy, and so new opinions are constantly emerging, equally unsatisfactory. Yahweh's throne is a common theme in Pss. 9<sup>5,8</sup> 11<sup>4</sup> 47<sup>9</sup> 89<sup>15</sup> (= 97<sup>2</sup>) 93<sup>2</sup> 103<sup>19</sup>; that of the king of Israel, 89<sup>5, 30, 37, 45</sup> 122<sup>5</sup> 132<sup>11</sup>. — a sceptre of equity] phr. a.l.; but uprightness of divine reign, 67<sup>5</sup> is similar, cf. 75<sup>3</sup> 96<sup>10</sup> 98<sup>9</sup> 99<sup>4</sup>. — is the sceptre of Thy royalty], cf. 103<sup>19</sup> 145<sup>11, 12, 13, 13</sup> for royalty of Yahweh. — 8 a. Thou dost love righteousness], always of God, 11<sup>7</sup> 33<sup>5</sup> 37<sup>28</sup> 99<sup>4</sup>, — and hate wickedness] ; for hatred of evil by God cf. 5<sup>6</sup> 11<sup>5</sup>; by men, cf. 26<sup>5</sup> 31<sup>7</sup> 36<sup>3</sup> (?) 97<sup>10</sup> 101<sup>8</sup> 119<sup>104, 113, 128, 163</sup> 139<sup>21, 22</sup>.

Str. III. is composed of three times the number of lines of the previous Str., and may be subdivided into three parts, v.<sup>8c-10</sup> v.<sup>11-13</sup> v.<sup>14-16</sup>, each of six lines. Part I. has two syn. couplets enclosing a synth. couplet. — 8 c. O oil of joy], vocative, cf. Ct. 1<sup>3</sup> 4<sup>10</sup>; the king addressed by metaphor as "oil of joy"; and not obj. of verb in previous clause of Rf., "with the oil of joy," and so attached to the previous Str., which referred to the anointing of a king to reign, and not to the anointing of him for feast or festival. — above thy fellows], fellow kings, cf. v.<sup>3a</sup>, "above the sons of men." — 9. Myrrh and aloes, cassia], the three chief spices, mixed with the oil and making it more precious. The king is addressed as himself the embodiment of such precious oil, because he had been anointed with it for the bridal feast. For a similar profusion in the anointing of Aaron, cf. 133<sup>2</sup>. Amos reproves the nobles of Samaria for their luxury, and mentions their anointing themselves with the chief ointments, Am. 6<sup>6</sup>.—Thou]. This pronoun has been condensed with the previous noun into a fem. pl. of that noun by error of copyist. This occasioned the usual interpretation, “myrrh and aloes, cassia are all thy garments,” or “all thy garments smell of myrrh,” making it the beginning of a new Str. But this makes the line too long, and is an awkward way in which to begin a Str.—All thy garments are from ivory palaces]. Ivory palaces are mentioned in OT. only 1 K. 22<sup>39</sup>, as built by Ahab; and Am. 3<sup>15</sup>, as in Northern Israel in the time of Jeroboam II., suiting, therefore the intermediate time of Jehu. The king’s garments have been brought to him from these ivory palaces.—10. Whence kings’ daughters gladden thee]. These were the princesses, the secondary wives and concubines, who dwelt there, and they gladden their lord and king. “Whence” is the interpretation of a difficult form as given by ℣ and ℱ. But most moderns think of a defective form of a word used elsewhere only in Ps. 150<sup>4</sup>, meaning “stringed instruments,” and they attach “kings’ daughters” to the next line. Such a term for stringed instruments is, however, doubtful. Am. 6<sup>5</sup> speaks of the nobles of Israel singing songs to the accompaniment of the harp. We would expect the same word here, if music of stringed instruments was referred to. Such a word is all the more excluded if the Ps. be an early one.—In thy costly things], a term referring usually to precious stones and jewels, but which may be referred to persons, and attached to kings’ daughters. “Kings’ daughters are among thy honourable women,” RV., “thy precious ones, dear ones,” BDB. ℣ and ℱ understand it of the reverence given their husbands by women. But such an arrangement spoils the measure of lines and Strs., and introduces the kings’ daughters prematurely before the queen in a principal clause; whereas in the interpretation given above they are mentioned with the ivory palaces and the king’s garments, and so make up the closing line of a tetrastich referring to the king.—the queen doth stand at thy right hand], adorned with the precious stones and jewels the king has given her. — in golden attire], so Ḡ, S (golden crown, Ḥ), adding, to complete the line, her clothing of embroidery, as v.<sup>14b. 15a</sup>. The last clause is omitted by Ḥ, and the word rendered attire is read “Ophir,” and so “gold of Ophir,” followed by AV., RV.; elsewhere Is. 13<sup>12</sup> Jb. 28<sup>16</sup> only. These two words attached to previous line make it too long. The arrangement and interpretation adopted above give four lines of the Str. to the king and two to the queen, all describing their adornment for the marriage.

In Part II. three syn. couplets are addressed to the queen. — 11. Hear, see, and incline thine ear]. The assonance of the three imperatives is destroyed by the insertion of “daughter,” after “hear,” to make the reference to the queen more evident. It gives ground for the opinion that the poet was a venerable court official. Such alone would address the young queen in this way. But it is error of a copyist who was not capable of such nice distinctions. — And forget thy people and thy father's house]. She was a foreign princess who had left her people and her father to become queen of Israel. It was doubtless jealousy of foreign religious influence which was the basis of this exhortation. — 12. For the king desires thy beauty]. Her beauty had won the love and desire of the king, and as his queen she has in him a great admirer and proud possessor. — For he is thy sovereign lord]. As in the previous line the beauty of the queen is praised, so here the majesty of the king. — 13. The daughter of Tyre will do homage]. So Ḡ, but Ḥ, Ḥ attach the verb to previous line referring to the queen, and worship thou him; but that leaves the next line without verb. The verb really belongs to both lines, only in the second it has no direct object. — With a gift for thee], supplying the suffix, because assonance in 2 fem. sg. is characteristic of the closing words of this Str. in every other line. It is improbable that this would be the only exception in six lines. This gives the queen an interest in the gift; it is for her, and as the bride, and so a special act of homage to the king also. Ḡ has “daughters of Tyre,” suggesting that the queen is a Tyrian princess. Ḥ also takes it as pl., “daughters of the mighty” || “richest peoples,” but Ḥ makes it sg., referring therefore to the city or nation. — The richest peoples will court thy face]. Some who interpret the sg. as "people," think of the rich merchants of Tyre ; but ℥ adds "of the land," referring to the land of Israel. The parall. with "the daughter of Tyre," of ℥, favours a reference of the phr. to neighbouring commercial nations, the richest peoples, taking the sg. as collective.

Part III. has two syn. and a synth. couplet. — 14. In all glorious things], by an easy emendation of the text to bring the form into assonance with the other lines : not "in all her glory," ℥ ; "in his glory," ℥, or "all glorious," EV<sup>s</sup>, none of which can be well sustained by usage of Heb. words. — The king's daughter], the queen as the daughter of a foreign king, cf. v.<sup>11b</sup>. — within], within the palace, where she stands at the right hand of the king. — inwrought with gold], cf. Ex. 28<sup>11sq.</sup> 39<sup>6sq.</sup>, for the setting of stones on the shoulder piece of the high-priest. — is her clothing], cf. v.<sup>10c</sup>. — 15. In embroidery], cf. v.<sup>10c</sup>. — are conducted to the king], pl., so ℥ ; MT., "is conducted," referring to the queen, is against the context, which represents her as already within, and v.<sup>10</sup>, where she stands at the right hand of the king, and therefore could not be conducted to him now. The subj. is therefore her attendants, those following after her, which also on the ground of the assonance in -ah, 14<sup>a.b</sup>, belongs to this line and closes it. ℥ has transposed this word with "virgins," which begins the next line, thus continuing assonance in -oth. — Virgins, her companions, are brought (to her)], so assonance requires, and parall. to the king, and into the king's palace : "to thee," of ℥, ℥ ; EV<sup>s</sup>, involving a change of person without reason, is copyist's error. — 16. With gladness and exulting they are conducted (to her)], continuing the double assonance. — Into the king's palace are they brought to her]. — 18 b. The Rf. represents that the people of coming generations will praise the king forever.

An editor, probably the one who arranged DB, thinking that the Ps. should conclude with a reference to the perpetuity of the dynasty, inserts 17, a wish that the king may have a numerous posterity, and that he may be a universal king, with his sons reigning as princes in all the earth.

Instead of thy fathers may thy sons appear,
Whom thou wilt set princes in all the earth.

A still later liturgical addition was made, 18 a, probably by the final editor of the Psalter, to make the Ps. suitable for the congregation, which continues to exist in all generations. — I will celebrate Thy name in all generations]. This was not suited to a poet speaking for himself or addressing the king at the time of his marriage.

PSALM XLVI., 3 STR. 6<sup>4</sup>, RF. 2<sup>4</sup>.

Ps. 46 is a national song in the early days of Josiah: (1) expressing confidence in Yahweh, the sure refuge, in troubles that can only be compared to the effects of an earthquake (v. 2-4); (2) asserting the sure refuge in the city of Yahweh, gladdened by His gracious presence, and unshaken by the tumultuous nations (v. 5-7); (3) a call to behold the wonders of Yahweh, especially in causing wars to cease (v. 9-11). The Rfs. assert that Yahweh is with His people as their high tower (v. 8, 12).

(YAHWEH) is ours, a refuge and strength,
A help in troubles to be found abundantly;
Therefore we will not fear though the earth (roar),
And though mountains totter into the heart of the sea;
The (seas) roar, their waters foam,
Mountains shake with the swelling (of its stream).
Yahweh (God of) Hosts, is with us,
The God of Jacob is our high tower.

HIS brooks make glad the city of (Yahweh),
The holy place of the tabernacle of (Yahweh) 'Elyon.
(Yahweh) is in her midst; she cannot be made to totter;
(Yahweh) will help her, at the turn of the morn.
Nations roared; kingdoms tottered;
Has He uttered His voice, the earth melteth.
Yahweh (God of) Hosts, is with us,
The God of Jacob is our high tower.

COME, behold the works of Yahweh,
What desolations He hath set in the earth;
He is causing wars to cease unto the ends of the earth,
The bow He breaketh, and cutteth the spear in sunder.
Desist and know that it is I, (Yahweh);
I shall be exalted among the nations, I shall be exalted in the earth.
Yahweh (God of) Hosts, is with us,
The God of Jacob is our high tower.

Ps. 46 was composed as a שיר, exceedingly artistic in structure. It was then taken up into ח, and subsequently into both מנצח and ע (v. Intr. §§ 28, 32, 33). In the former it received the assignment על עולמות (v. Intr. § 34). In the latter יהוה was changed to אלהים or omitted, except in refrains (v. 9. txt. err.). V. 9 is cited 66<sup>5</sup>. The language is early. v. 11, אנכי consec. pf. v. 10 צבאות (א) v. 8. 12. מַעֲלֹת, v. 9, txt. err. for earlier מַעֲלֹת. The author was familiar with the effects of an earthquake on mountains and sea, probably at the base of Mt. Carmel, v. 3-4. The city of God was still the secure refuge against the nations, v. 5-7, cf. Zp. 3<sup>15-17</sup>. The song may well express the confidence with which the young Josiah began his reign amidst the commotions among the nations due to the Scythian invasions of Western Asia as described in Zp. The destruction of the instruments of war is in the style of Ho. 2<sup>20</sup> Is. 9<sup>4</sup> Mi. 4<sup>1-4</sup> = Is. 2<sup>2-4</sup>, and עֲמִנִי, v. 8. 12, reminds of Is. 7<sup>14</sup>. The poet has been influenced by the early prophets. The נהר v. 5<sup>a</sup>, according to ח and Vrss., is the river of Zion, with its canals, פְּלִגִּים, and reminds of Is. 8<sup>5</sup> and 33<sup>21</sup>; but it was prob., as attached to v. 4, the stream of the sea, and the פְּלִגִּים were used figuratively, as Ps. 1<sup>3</sup>, although the watercourses of Hezekiah, 2 K. 20<sup>20</sup> were prob. in the poet's mind. This Ps. is used in the Latin Church in the ritual of the consecration of a church or altar. Luther's choral, Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott, is based on it.

Str. I. has three couplets; the second line of each, starting from the syn idea, amplifies and intensifies it in stairlike advance. — 2. Yahweh], original divine name of Ps., for which God was substituted in ע, also v. 5. 6a. b. 11. — is ours], belonging to us, our own; weakened in EV<sup>a</sup>. into "our," which, moreover, obscures the force of the cæsura in the middle of the line. — a refuge], to whom His people may resort, || strength], the place of it, the source of it, || help]. Yahweh Himself is all this, in troubles, as subsequently explained, first as caused by a severe earthquake, and then by warlike commotions of the nations. — to be found abundantly], that is, not to be anxiously sought and difficult to reach, but accessible, to the full extent of the need. — 3. Therefore we will not fear], because there is a sure resort from all danger. — though the earth roar], with the loud rumbling sound of earthquake. By an early copyist's mistake, the verb was mistaken for another, meaning "change," ח, EV<sup>a</sup>., moved from one place to another || mountains totter], so severely shaken that they totter and fall into the heart of the sea. The poet had probably witnessed such an earthquake, and seen portions of Mt. Carmel falling into the Mediterranean Sea. — 4. The seas roar, their waters foam], by the effect of the earthquake itself, and the masses of rock and soil falling into them. By an ancient copyist's mistake the measure has been destroyed by the omission of "seas," because of its closing the previous line; and the remaining noun has thus become the subject of both verbs, as in EV<sup>a</sup>. — Mountains shake], those portions that have not tumbled into the sea. — with the swelling of its stream]. Great waves come in from the sea, produced frequently by such an earthquake, and, swelling up against the mountains, dash against them with so much power as to shake them to their foundations. An ancient copyist has made an error in dividing the verses, attaching "stream" to the following verse, destroying the measure of both verses and changing their thought.

The Rf. has been omitted after v.<sup>4</sup>, because unimportant in liturgical use; but it was originally at the close of this Str. as well as of the others, v.<sup>8.12</sup>. — Yahweh] has been preserved in the refrains by E, though changed for God in the Strs.; but God of Hosts, the older form, is also needed for the measure. God was probably omitted by the editor of K, otherwise E would have preserved it. — God of Jacob], the ancient poetic title of God, characteristic of K, A. — is with us], companionship, especially for help. Indeed, that was the original meaning of the divine name, "Yahweh," acc. to Ex. 3<sup>12-15</sup> (E), BDB., cf. Is. 8<sup>10</sup>, and "Immanuel," Is. 7<sup>14</sup>. — our high tower], as Pss. 9<sup>10</sup> 18<sup>3</sup>, RV.<sup>m</sup>. The "refuge" of EV<sup>a</sup>. weakens the metaphor.

Str. II. has also three couplets which are stairlike in character. — 5. His brooks], not those of the stream, which latter really belong to the previous Str., as the stream of the sea; but those of Yahweh Himself; and thus figurative of the rich blessings of His favour to His city. The poet had in mind the watercourses built by Hezekiah, bringing water from the Wady Urtas to Jerusalem, and distributing it into several brooks and ponds, cf. Is. 8<sup>5 sq.</sup> 2 K. 20<sup>20</sup>, also Ps. 1<sup>3</sup>. — make glad the city of Yahweh], Jerusalem, the capital of the Davidic dynasty and of Yahweh Himself, whose temple, or palace, made it sacred. — The holy place of the tabernacle], combining the two ideas of the dwelling-place and the consecrated place. — Elyon], most High, the poetic divine name, as 47<sup>3</sup>, cf. 57<sup>3</sup> 78<sup>56</sup>. — 6. Yahweh is in her midst], dwelling in her in His palace and capital. The poet has the same thought here as Zp. 3<sup>15</sup>, and the historical situation is probably the same.—she cannot be made to totter], resuming the thought of the earthquake of v.<sup>3b</sup>, preparatory to that of the commotion of the nations.—at the turn of the morn], as the morning turns in to take the place of the night. The night is the time of gloom, the morn of redemption, as 30<sup>6</sup> 90<sup>14</sup>.—7. Nations roared]. The Scythian hosts, by their rapid invasion of Western Asia, were like the waves of an earthquake in the effect upon the nations, Zp. 1–2.—kingdoms tottered], falling into ruins. It was all the work of Yahweh Himself, as Zp. declares.—Has He uttered His voice], in this the great day of His historic judgment upon the nations, cf. 68<sup>34</sup>.—the earth melteth], in terror, as Am. 9<sup>5</sup>, cf. Ez. 21<sup>20</sup>, Pss. 75<sup>4</sup> 107<sup>26</sup>.

Str. III. has three couplets of the same stairlike parall.—9. Come, behold], emphatic summons.—the works of Yahweh], the works He has wrought, the deeds He has done. These are defined as desolations in the earth, the destruction of kingdoms and nations by the invading hordes. All this is preparatory to a better future; in which universal peace will prevail.—10. He is causing wars to cease], by destroying the warlike nations and the kingdoms which have waged war against the city of God in the past.—unto the ends of the earth], to remote regions this destruction has extended. The instruments of war are destroyed, as in earlier prophets, Ho. 2<sup>20</sup> Is. 9<sup>4</sup> Mi. 4<sup>1-4</sup>, cf. Ez. 39<sup>9-10</sup>, which refers to an eschatological invasion of a similar kind. An additional line has been added by a later editor to emphasise this destruction, but at the expense of the measure and symmetry of Str., Wagons He burneth in the fire.—11. Desist], that is, from war. These are the words of Yahweh addressed to the nations,—and know], the fact that it is I, Yahweh, who am doing all this, and it is vain to resist me. This is not a recognition of God as God, which in Vrss. is due to the substitution of “Elohim” for Yahweh by E.—I shall be exalted], repeated for emphasis; that is, in majesty, and the exhibition of it in the deeds above described,—among the nations || in the earth], among all nations and throughout the entire world.

2. נִקְצָא Niph. ptc., Ew., De., Moll., Bā.; but Hu., Pe., Du., pf. ⚡ raïs εἰρηνόσταις ἡμᾶς is paraphrase.—3. נִתְקַיֵּר inf. cstr. מִיִּר not used in Qal; Hiph. change, alter, BDB. Bā. supplies in thought ihre Stätte; Du. מִקְנֵי. Aq., Σ, PSALM XLVII., 5 STR. 4<sup>3</sup>.

Ps. 47 is a temple hymn for the Feast of Trumpets: (1) a call to the festival in praise of Yahweh, the great King (v.<sup>2-3</sup>), who has subdued the nations and chosen Jerusalem as His inheritance (v.<sup>4-5</sup>). In triumphal procession He enters the temple, with singers and musicians (v.<sup>6-7</sup>). The call is renewed to make melody to the enthroned King of nations (v.<sup>8-9</sup>). The nobles of the nations unite with the people of Yahweh in exalting Him (v.<sup>10</sup>).

ALL ye peoples, clap the hand,
Shout to (Yahweh) with the sound of jubilation;
For 'Elyon is awe-inspiring,
A great King over all the earth.
HE subdued peoples under (Him),
And nations under (His) feet.
He chose (His) inheritance,
The excellency of Jacob which He loves.

(YAHWEH) came up with a shout,
 Yahweh with the sound of the horn :
 Make melody to (Yahweh), make melody ;
 Make melody to our King, make melody.

MAKE melody to Yahweh with a Maskil ;
 For He is King of all the earth.
 (Yahweh) reigns over the nations.
 He is enthroned on His holy throne.

THE nobles of the people assemble,
 (With) the people of the God of Abraham ;
 For to (Yahweh) belong the shields of the earth, Greatly exalted is (Elyon).

Ps. 47 was in ℣, ℟, ℣, and ℟ (v. Intr. §§ 28, 31, 32, 33). It was prob. composed for the procession in the temple at the Feast of Trumpets. V.<sup>4</sup> depends on 18<sup>48</sup> = 144<sup>2</sup>; the Aramaism ירבר, prob. a substitution for an earlier יורר, as in 18<sup>48</sup>, cf. 2 S. 22<sup>48</sup>, גאון יעקב. V.<sup>5</sup> depends on Am. 6<sup>8</sup> 8<sup>7</sup> Na. 2<sup>3</sup>. אהב, v.<sup>6</sup>, בחר, v.<sup>6</sup>, are terms of D. שומר, חרועה, v.<sup>6</sup>, the new moon of seventh month, cf. Lv. 25<sup>9</sup>. זמר משכיל, v.<sup>8</sup>, implies a kind of Ps. known only to the earlier Minor Psalters, before ℣, ℟. כסא קדשו, v.<sup>9</sup>, cf. Pss. 89<sup>15</sup> (= 97<sup>2</sup>) 93<sup>2</sup> 103<sup>19</sup>. אלהי אברהם, v.<sup>10</sup>, phr. of ℣ elsw. 1 K. 18<sup>36</sup> 1 Ch. 29<sup>18</sup> 2 Ch. 30<sup>6</sup>. זגני, v.<sup>10</sup>, for nobles cf. 89<sup>19</sup>. The עמים take part in temple processions, as Ps. 87. The conception of Yahweh as king of nations is as Pss. 96–100. The hymns of Is.<sup>2</sup> are at the basis of all these. The Ps. implies peaceful times of friendliness with the nations, subsequent to Nehemiah, but in the Persian period. It is the New Year's Ps. of the Synagogue, the proper Ps. for Ascension day of the Church.

Str. I. has two syn. couplets. — 2. All ye peoples], vocative, Israel calling upon the foreign peoples, cf. v.<sup>4a. 10a</sup>; || nations, v.<sup>4b. 9a</sup>, to unite with him in celebrating the triumph of Yahweh, for which ℣ substituted the divine name Elohim. The celebration is to be in the temple, with rhythmic accompaniment, expressed by, — clap the hand || shout with the sound of jubilation], 42<sup>5</sup> 66<sup>1</sup> 81<sup>2</sup> 95<sup>1.2</sup> 98<sup>4</sup> 100<sup>1</sup> 118<sup>15</sup>. — 3. The reason for this festival is that 'Elyon, the poetic name of Yahweh, as Most High, is exalted in majesty, and indeed over all the earth. He is awe-inspiring], to be revered and regarded as majestic. — A great King], not only of Israel, but of all nations, universally, cf. 95<sup>3</sup> 97<sup>9</sup> 98<sup>8</sup> 99<sup>4</sup>.

Str. II. also has two syn. couplets. — 4. The nations are to celebrate a recent victory of Yahweh, which He has won, doubtless, in overcoming some great oppressor of His people, and of other nations also, who are now rejoicing over their deliverance from the yoke.—He subdued peoples under Him || under His feet], so probably in B, as more suited to the context than “under us,” “under our feet,” H, making the triumph that of the people of Israel, which certainly would have been no ground for the rejoicing of foreign nations, and which in fact had no historic realisation until the Maccabean times. Then the victories were so exclusively national and hostile to other nations, that no one would have thought of asking them to share in Israel’s triumph.—5. He chose || He loves], terms of D, Is.<sup>2</sup>, to indicate Yahweh’s free, sovereign choice of Israel and Zion, out of love.—His inheritance], which He would occupy as His residence, changed by the editor to “our inheritance,” “for us.”—excellency of Jacob], as in Am. 6<sup>8</sup> 8<sup>7</sup>; the Holy Land as a land of which Jacob, the poetic name of Israel, might be proud, because of its association with the majestic exaltation of Yahweh Himself.

Str. III. has two syn. couplets.—6. Yahweh came up], the ascent of the hill of Zion into the temple in triumphal procession, cf. 24<sup>7-10</sup> 68<sup>25-28</sup>.—with the sound of the horn], blowing the summons to take part in the triumph.—7. Make melody], five times repeated to emphasise the instrumental accompaniment.

Str. IV. has a tetrastich of three syn. lines, synth. to the first.—8-9. With a Maskil], a contemplative song (v. Intr. § 26); describing graphically and contemplatively, with practical reverence and praise, the triumph above referred to. The lines in v.<sup>8</sup> have been transposed by copyist’s error. The first line resumes the thought of v.<sup>7</sup>, the last introduces that of v.<sup>9</sup>.—King of all the earth], as v.<sup>3b</sup>, || reigns over the nations || enthroned on His holy throne]. It is not clear whether the poet is thinking of the heavenly throne, or the throne room of the temple; probably the latter, because of the procession up into the temple of v.<sup>6</sup>, and the assemblage in the temple of v.<sup>10</sup>.

Str. V. has two synth. couplets.—10. The nobles], foreign nobles, || shields], for shield bearers, the princely warriors, cf. 89<sup>19</sup>.—with], together with, omitted by early copyist because of identity of letters with following word, and so the connection became difficult, and is variously, but unsatisfactorily, explained.—the people of the God of Abraham], the people of Israel, who by inheritance serve the God of their first father, Abraham.—Elyon], in the last line has been omitted by prosaic copyist at the expense of the measure. — He is greatly exalted ], as the great King, v.<sup>3</sup>, victorious, v.<sup>4</sup>, and making His triumphant entrance into His sanctuary, v.<sup>6</sup>, and to His throne, v.<sup>9</sup>.

3. יהוה עליון in יהוה is always suspicious. It is not needed for measure, and is doubtless a later insertion. So also in v.<sup>6b</sup> it was substituted for אלהים of  $\mathfrak{H}$  by the same hand. The יהוה of the original Ps. of  $\mathfrak{H}$  elsw. v.<sup>2b</sup>. 6a. 7a. 8b. 9a. 10c was changed to אלהים — 4. [יִרְבֵּר] Hiph. juss. Aram. רבר, lead, elsw. 18<sup>48</sup>, txt. err. for Hiph. ייר as 2 S. 22<sup>48</sup> Ps. 144<sup>2</sup>, so here יירר — [תַּחֲתֵינוּ] later Maccabean change for the original תַּחֲתֵינוּ which the context demands; so רגליו for רגליו. — 5. [נַחֲלֵנוּ]  $\mathfrak{H}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{V}$ , have preserved נחלו the original form. — 7. [אלהים]  $\mathfrak{S}$  אלהינו, was assimilated to מלכנו. The original of  $\mathfrak{H}$  was יהוה. — 9. [אלהים]. The first is for an original יהוה as usual, but the second is gl., making l. too long. — [קָצָא קָרְשֵׁי] phr. α.λ. — 10. [עַם אֱלֹהֵי אֲבֹרָהָם]  $\mathfrak{H}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , but  $\mathfrak{S}$  μετὰ = עם; both needed for sense and prob. original, the texts, because of identity of letters, retaining variously one of them. — [מְגִנֵּי אֶרֶץ]  $\mathfrak{S}$  οἱ κραταιοί,  $\mathfrak{V}$  fortes, the warrior shield-bearers, for the shields themselves, doubtless correct. — [מִאֲרָנֶלָה]. The measure requires another word, prob. a divine name, which must have fallen out very early, for  $\mathfrak{S}$ , Aq.,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , translate vb. as pl. agreeing with מגני ארץ. Gr., Bi., Bā., Du., add from 97<sup>9</sup> עַל כָּל אֱלֹהִים; but this could have been omitted with difficulty, and would make the l. too long.

PSALM XLVIII., 4 STR. 4<sup>5</sup>.

Ps. 48 is a temple song of the late Persian period: Praise of Yahweh, the high tower, in His royal city (v.<sup>2-4</sup>); who in olden times had put to flight hostile kings, giving assurance that He establisheth it forever (v.<sup>5-9</sup>); praise, extending throughout the earth, of His kindness and righteousness, giving joy to the city and its daughters (v.<sup>10-12</sup>); admiration of its fortifications, telling to posterity that such is Yahweh forever (v.<sup>13-15</sup>).

GREAT and highly to be praised in the city is our God.

His holy Mount is beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth;

Mount Zion on the northern ridge is a royal city;

Yahweh doth strive in her citadels, is known for a high tower.

FOR lo, the kings assembled; they passed on together;

They saw, so they were amazed; they were dismayed, they fled in alarm.

Trembling seized them there, writhing as a woman in travail.

We heard, so we saw; Yahweh establisheth it forever.

WE ponder Thy kindness, Yahweh, in the midst of Thy palace.

As is Thy name, so is Thy praise unto the ends of the earth.

Thy right hand is full of righteousness; Mount Zion rejoices,
The daughters of Judah exult because of Thine acts of judgment.

GO about Zion and encircle her, count her towers,
Set your mind upon her ramparts, distinguish her citadels;
That ye may tell (this) to the generation following,
That such is Yahweh our God forever and ever.

Ps. 48 was originally a שיר, then used by מל, מל, and subsequently by מל v Intr. §§ 24, 28, 31, 32. In מל it is assigned to the second day of the week for the Jewish Egyptian rite. V.<sup>2</sup> is cited in 96<sup>4</sup> 145<sup>3</sup>, v.<sup>12</sup> in 97<sup>8</sup>. V.<sup>3</sup> is dependent on La. 2<sup>15</sup>, v.<sup>7</sup> on Ex. 15<sup>15</sup> Je. 13<sup>21</sup>, but Is. 33<sup>14</sup> is probably later. V.<sup>9</sup> יכונה = Ps. 87<sup>6</sup>, of similar date if not same author. V.<sup>14</sup> = 78<sup>4</sup>, both dependent on Dt. 29<sup>21</sup>. It is therefore subsequent to D and Je. It is a royal Ps., as 46–47 and 96–100, but earlier than the latter group. The terms v.<sup>2-3</sup>. 10. 12. 13. 14 indicate that the temple was standing and the city well fortified and strong. The phrases v.<sup>3</sup> imply an author accustomed to admire the temple mount from the south. The city had been in peril from kings who had been thrown into a panic and disastrous flight, v.<sup>5-7</sup>. This is an historical reference to the army of Sennacherib, 2 K. 19. There is no ground for descending later than the late Persian times. The Ps. is a proper Ps. for Whitsunday.

Str. I. has a syn. and a synth. couplet. — 2–3. Great], in the magnitude of His power and authority, and, as v.<sup>3</sup> implies, in His royalty, cf. 47<sup>3</sup> 95<sup>3</sup>. — and highly to be praised], as 96<sup>4</sup> 145<sup>3</sup>, for reasons to be assigned. — in the city || Mount Zion || royal city], v.<sup>3</sup>, cf. v.<sup>9, 12, 13</sup>; Jerusalem, the capital and residence of Yahweh. By misinterpretation, at an early date, our God, the proper subject of the clause, was connected with the city in מל and all Vrss., probably owing to the influence of the gloss, v.<sup>9</sup>; and so it became necessary to insert a new subject, “Yahweh,” which in מל is always dubious. The capital city suggests the royal residence in the palace or temple, cf. v.<sup>10</sup>, and so His holy Mount, the sacred mountain on which the temple was situated, — Mount Zion on the northern ridge], the temple being on the northeastern corner or back of Mount Zion, — is beautiful in elevation], looked at from the south. The temple rises up in lofty majesty and lordly beauty, the royal city by eminence, because it was the exact place in the city where Yahweh Himself resided in the throne-room of the temple. There are no good reasons for thinking of spiritual elevation, as Is. 2<sup>2</sup> = Mi. 4<sup>1</sup>, or of a comparison with the Oriental Olympus, Is. 14<sup>13</sup>, as Hi., Ew., Kirk. — the joy of the whole earth], cf. La. 2<sup>15</sup> Is. 60<sup>15</sup>, giving joy to all nations, and invoking praise unto the ends of the earth, v.<sup>11</sup>; not to be confined to the land of Palestine. — 4. Ḥ and Vrss. all have "great king," but such a phr. is unknown elsewhere with כֶּבֶד, and there was no sufficient reason to abandon the usual phr. with גִּבּוֹרִים. The word is indeed needed for the measure of the next line, and so it is best explained as Qal pf. of verb. — doth strive], of the warlike king striving with the hostile kings, and so introductory to Str. II. — is known], not by reputation, but practically by valiant deeds in defeat of the enemy and in defending His people, — for a high tower], in which they have obtained sure refuge and defence, cf. 46<sup>8, 12</sup>, where the same metaphor is used in the same circumstances. — in her citadels], where the real defence is made by warlike bravery and skill, cf. v.<sup>14</sup>.

Str. II. has a synth. tetrastich. — 5. For lo], introducing graphic description of the campaign of hostile kings against Jerusalem, doubtless referring to the siege by the army of Sennacherib, 2 K. 19. The several stages of the campaign are represented by the several verbs, which follow one another in rapid succession. — assembled], by appointment, gathering from different parts at a designated place to undertake the campaign. — passed on], of the onward march, — together], as a united, organised host, moving under one direction and with one purpose. — 6. They], the very ones, emphatic, demonstrative, — saw] the city, its defences, its defenders, and something more which is not indicated, that made them pause. — so they were amazed], the amazement is balanced with the seeing, corresponding with it, implying that they saw with amazement something that seriously alarmed them, some manifestation of Yahweh. The author is thinking of a theophany that frightened them and threw them into a panic. — they fled in alarm], cf. Cæsar's veni, vidi, vici, Calv., of which this is the very reverse. The poet has in mind panics caused by theophanies, cf. Ex. 15 Ju. 5, as is evident also from his dwelling on their terror. — 7. Trembling seized them], as it did the nations of Canaan, Ex. 15<sup>14-16</sup>. — writhing as a woman in travail], as it did Damascus, Je. 49<sup>24</sup>, and Judah before the conquering armies of Babylon, Je. 13<sup>21</sup>. The description is complete and perfect; but a glossator thought to enrich it by another exhibition of the power of Yahweh, not connected with the previous history. — 8. With the east wind Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish], which, however, is the use of God's power on the sea, rather than in warlike deeds. — 9. We heard], that is, by tradition from our fathers; strengthened by prosaic copyist by prefixing "as," or "according as," to emphasise more strongly the resemblance in present experience as described in v.<sup>2-4</sup>. — so we saw]. The past and the present entirely correspond. — Yahweh, establisheth it forever], as in the past and in the present, so in the future, the city of Yahweh will stand firm and be a sure stronghold against its enemies. A late editor, at the expense of the measures, inserts, in the city of Yahweh Sabaoth || in the city of our God.

Str. III. has a synth. and a syn. couplet. — 10-12. We ponder], literally, compare things that are like, and so consider them. — Thy kindness], as exhibited to the people, for it is in the midst of Thy palace, the temple; and yet the renown of it extends unto the ends of the earth], throughout all the earth, cf. v.<sup>3</sup>. — As is Thy name]; the divine honour and glory as celebrated, balanced as coequal and coextensive with Thy praise. — Thy right hand], as stretched forth to bestow, its palms filled, full of righteousness, probably vindictory and redemptive of His city, antith. acts of judgment against the enemies, so comprehending as the grounds of praise both Strs. I. and II., and thus the reason why Mount Zion || the daughters of Judah, the dependent cities, rejoice || exult.

Str. IV. has a syn. and a synth. couplet. — 13-14. Go about] round about || encircle, make a complete round of the city. The reason for this circuit is the inspection, the thorough examination of the defences, her towers || her ramparts, or bulwarks || her citadels, as v.<sup>4</sup>. The inspection is graphically described as, — count], their number, — set your mind upon], give close attention to, — distinguish], give separate consideration to each one, noting its special characteristics, so probably the original, as Ⲙ or Ⲛ. But owing to textual error a form appears in Ⲙ which is variously explained as "traverse," RV.<sup>m</sup>; "pass between," BDB.; "go to and fro between," Dr. But some such word as consider, of AV., RV., Kirk., is required by context. — that ye may tell], relate, as 22<sup>31</sup>. This is required for measure and sense, referring to previous contents of Ps. — to the generation following], as Dt. 29<sup>21</sup> Ps. 78<sup>4,6</sup> 102<sup>19</sup>; transmit it from one generation to another. As the poet's generation has heard it from the fathers, cf. 44<sup>2</sup>, so they are to tell it to their children. — 15. That such is Yahweh our God], such as has been described above, — forever and ever], a sort of Rf., as v.<sup>9</sup>. The closing words of ה, “He will be our guide unto death,” are not in ע, and are a gloss.

2. יהוה] in E as usual, late insertion. — בָּעֵינַי should not be cstr. before אֱלֹהֵינוּ, but abs. and pointed בעֵינַי אֱלֹהֵינוּ was the original subj., displaced by יהוה. And so the pentameter is restored. — הָרַקְשִׁי] begins second l. — 3. וַיִּפֶּה נֹף] phr. a. l. Εὐρίπων, Aq. καλῶ βλαστήματι, E specioso germini as Aram. נֹף, branch of tree, bough. It might be rendered beautiful plant, cf. צמח for the fertile land Is. 4<sup>2</sup>, and for the king Je. 23<sup>5</sup> 33<sup>15</sup> cf. Zc. 6<sup>9-15</sup>; but more prob. in accord. with context נֹף is elevation, BDB. after Arab. analogies; cf. כלילת יפי La. 2<sup>15</sup>. — יִרְחָקֵי צִפּוֹן] cf. Is. 14<sup>13</sup>, where הָרַקְשִׁי is the Oriental Olympus; here most prob. northern back of Mt. Zion, the seat of the temple, contemplated from the south. — רָבַב] H, Vrss., adj. with חָלָק, but without support in usage and against the measure. It is needed as Qal pf. vb. רִיב, strive, in the next l. — 4. אֶרְמְיֹתֶיהָ] her citadels, rather than palaces, as v.<sup>14</sup>, cf. 122<sup>7</sup> Am. 6<sup>8</sup> La. 2<sup>5-7</sup> Ho. 8<sup>14</sup> Mi. 5<sup>4</sup>. — 5. הַמְּלָכִים] reges terrae is interpretation. — 8. אֲנִיּוֹת תַּרְשִׁישׁ] as Is. 2<sup>16</sup> 23<sup>1</sup> +, destroyed by divine judgment; not ships belonging to or bound for Tarshish, but great ships such as made this distant voyage. This v. is a gl. — 9. תִּאֲשֶׁר] prosaic addition, injuring the measure; no more needed here than in v.<sup>6</sup>. — בָּעֵינַי יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת] is a gl. enlarging the l. without reason and introducing the divine name יהוה against the usage of E. — בָּעֵינַי אֱלֹהֵינוּ] also a gl. — 10. רָמָה] Pi. pf. רָמָה, compare, liken, ponder, 50<sup>21</sup> (prob. 17<sup>4</sup>) Is. 10<sup>7</sup>. — בְּתִרְבֵּי הִכְלָה] H, E; but Ε εν μέσῳ τοῦ λαοῦ σου improb.; λαοῦ early error in Ε for σοῦ. — 11. תִּצְוֶי אֶרְצָךְ] [תִּצְוֶי] n. [m.] only this phr., elsw. 65<sup>6</sup> Is. 26<sup>15</sup>, both with כל. — 12. יִשְׁמַח הִרְצִיִן] belongs to previous clause || הִגִּידָה בְּנוֹת יְהוּדָה, phr. elsw. 97<sup>8</sup> which has cited this l., adding יהוה, given here also by Ε, but not by H, E. — 13. סָבִי] Qal inv. סָבַב in sense of go about, only here and 17<sup>11</sup> in ψ; elsw. turn about 114<sup>3, 5</sup>, surround 18<sup>6</sup> 22<sup>13, 17</sup> 49<sup>6</sup> +; in Po. however, march, go about, 55<sup>11</sup> 59<sup>7, 15</sup>, in processions 26<sup>6</sup>. — 14. חִילָה] a. l. err. for חִילָה; Ε els εἰς δὲν δύνανται αὐτῆς. — פָּסְגוּ] a. l. traverse, pass between, BDB., cf. Aram. פָּסַק, tread; but Ε καταδιέσθαι, E separate = הפלו, Hiph. פָּלָה, distinguish; Gr., Che., פָּקְרוּ improb. — 15. הָרָא יְהוָהנוּ עַל מוֹת] H, E, but not Ε; is a gl. he might be for על עֲלִמּוֹת as 46<sup>1</sup>, a musical direction, appended as Hb. 3; but this Ps. was not in B<sup>12</sup>, which alone makes these additions. It might belong to Ps. 49 B<sup>12</sup>, as Horsley, Bā, Che., al., if it could be thought suitable. The other words would then be expl. addition.

Ps. 49 was a lament of the pious over the riddle of death. (1) Complaint to God of experience of the iniquity of the rich (v.<sup>6-7</sup>), who yet cannot ransom themselves from death (v.<sup>8.10</sup>); the wise and the foolish alike die and their graves become their everlasting home (v.<sup>11-12</sup>). (2) Those who are self-satisfied are assigned to the dominion of death in Sheol, and continually waste away (v.<sup>14-15</sup>); therefore the rich should not be feared, for they must abandon their wealth in death, however much they may have congratulated themselves on their possessions; and never more shall they see the sunlight (v.<sup>17-20</sup>). The Rf. states the enigma: man like the beasts abideth not (v.<sup>13.21</sup>). An introductory gloss calls all the world to meditation upon the enigma (v.<sup>2-5</sup>). Intermediate glosses represent that the ransom from death is too costly for man to pay (v.<sup>9</sup>), but that Yahweh will ransom the righteous (v.<sup>16</sup>).

WHY should I fear in evil days,
 When my deceitful (foes) encompass me with iniquity;
 They that trust in their wealth,
 And boast of the abundance of their riches.
 Man cannot at all give ransom,
 Cannot give to Yahweh His price,
 That he should live forever,
 (And) not see the Pit.
 The wise die together,
 The stupid and brutish perish,
 And abandon to successors their wealth;
 Their graves are their homes forever,
 Their dwelling places to all generations,
 Theirs whose names are upon lands.
*Man in worth abideth not,
 He is to be compared to beasts that are no more.*

THIS is the way of them that have self-confidence,
 And the latter end of them that are pleased with their portion.
 They are as a flock that are put in Sheol,
 Death is their shepherd and their ruler;
 Every morning their form wasteth away,
 In Sheol, far from the lofty dwelling.
 Fear not, when one groweth rich,
 When the glory of the house is increased;
 For he cannot take it all in his death,
 His glory cannot descend after him.
 Though in his life-time he congratulated his soul,

And lauded it because it was doing well to itself;
It will go to the generation of his fathers,
Who forever see not daylight.

He is to be compared to beasts that are no more.

Ps. 49 was taken up into 𐤔𐤕, then into 𐤕 and 𐤕𐤕 from 𐤕 (v. Intr. §§ 28, 31, 32, 33). It resembles 73: (a) שָׁחַד  $\sqrt{\text{שָׁחַד}}$  v.<sup>15</sup>, elsw. only 73<sup>9</sup>; (b) לִבְרָה (ים) v.<sup>15</sup>, prob. same use as 73<sup>14</sup>; (c) אֶחָדָם v.<sup>14</sup>, prob. error for אֶחָדָם = 73<sup>17</sup>; (d) use of בָּעֵר v.<sup>11</sup> = 73<sup>22</sup>; (e) בְּהִמּוּת v.<sup>13, 21</sup>, cf. 73<sup>22</sup>; (f) use of לָקַח v.<sup>16</sup>, for taking of righteous by God, prob. a gl.; cf. 73<sup>24</sup>; (g) besides, there is the same essential tone and situation throughout the Ps. V.<sup>1-5</sup> also resemble 78<sup>1-8</sup> in the general appeal, and especially in the use of מִשְׁלַל and הִדְרָה, although in the former the appeal is to the world, in the latter to the people of God. This introductory Str. has also terms of WL. תְּבוֹנוֹת, הִקְצִיט, v.<sup>4</sup>; but בִּקֵּץ, בָּקִיל, הִקְצִיט, v.<sup>11, 14</sup> do not imply WL. V.<sup>2</sup> הָלַךְ as in 17<sup>14</sup>, the antith. of אִישׁ וְכָנִי אֶרֶם and כָּנִי אֶרֶם as 62<sup>10</sup>. But these are in introductory Str., which shows most of the evidence of dependence on other Literature. The only other case of dependence is v.<sup>7</sup>, which implies 52<sup>9</sup> 𐤕. Ps. 49 is so different from all others of 𐤕 and so much more like Pss. of 𐤕, that it would be classed with the latter rather than the former, were it not for כָּנִי לִבְנֵי in title. But it is quite possible that an early copyist unconsciously made this mistake, because this Ps. followed 42-48, all 𐤕, notwithstanding that it was followed by 50 of 𐤕. The antith. between the wicked rich and the pious poor implies a commercial situation, either the Greek period, if the writer lived in Palestine, or possibly a late Persian period, if he lived in the Diaspora. The latter is more probable, if it be a Ps. of 𐤕. The former is difficult to reconcile with the date of 𐤕 as determined from a study of all the other Pss. of 𐤕. 𐤕 inserts in title appropriately vox ecclesiae super lazaro et divite purpurato. The use of שָׁחַד v.<sup>10</sup> for the Pit of Sheol with רָאָה as 16<sup>10</sup> is not earlier than Ez.; but וְזָל v.<sup>15</sup> is an early word, 1 K. 8<sup>18</sup> Hb. 3<sup>11</sup> Is. 63<sup>15</sup>. On the whole the Ps. is best explained as originally of 𐤕.

The Ps. has an introductory Str. of a later date. It is composed of two syn. tetrastichs.

Hear this, all ye peoples!
Give ear, all ye inhabitants of the age!
Both sons of mankind and sons of men,
Rich and poor together!
My mouth will speak holy wisdom,
And the meditation of my mind will be sound understanding;
I shall incline mine ear to a parable,
I shall open upon the lyre mine enigma.

—2-5. Hear this, all ye peoples, || all ye inhabitants of the age], of the duration of the world, 17<sup>14</sup>; analysed in antith. classes; both sons of mankind, the common people, || poor; and sons of men, those of position and station, || rich, cf. 62<sup>10</sup>; and all these together, in a like situation, needing common instruction. They are summoned to hear this], that which is to follow, || give ear to — the holy wisdom], wisdom in its abstract, intensive sense, as summed up in sacred things and relations, || sound understanding], complete, entire, and perfect, to be set forth in a parable], which, in the OT. sense, is a comparative, emblematic, shrewd saying, || mine enigma], one that involves a difficult, puzzling question, such as the Rfs., v.<sup>13. 21</sup>. The poet is about to give utterance to such a poem. — My mouth, emphatic, will speak, || the meditation], not internal of the mind, but the murmur of the voice in giving expression to the reflection of the mind. On the one side, the poet himself says: I shall incline mine ear], to catch the inspiration from the parable, and on the other side, — I shall open], explain it, render it as a song to the accompaniment of the lyre, with instrumental as well as vocal music.

Str. I. is divided, as usual in fourteen-lined Strs. (cf. Ps. 18), into two parts, of eight and six lines, the former having two tetrastichs, the latter two tristichs. — 6. Why should I fear], remonstrance with oneself. While fear has apparent justification, it has no real basis, as is now to be explained, cf. v.<sup>17</sup>. — in evil days]. It is quite true that the times are bad; when my deceitful foes encompass me with iniquity], so essentially S, Origen, Hi., De., Bā.; “iniquity of them that would supplant me,” RV.<sup>m</sup>, JPSV., Dr., Kirk., in accordance with context; but G, J, S, PBV., AV., refer the iniquity to the singer as a confession of sin, “iniquity of my heels.” It is possible that this may have been the interpretation in later Heb. liturgical use; for such confessions of sin are not uncommon as glosses to Pss.; but certainly this idea is altogether foreign to the context and thought here. An intermediate position is taken by RV., Pe., “iniquity at my heels,” which is a possible translation of MT., but not probable in itself. — 7. They that trust in their wealth]. They had become wealthy by craft and deception, as well as by their iniquity, and having been successful, as such men always are, they had an unlimited confidence in their ability to purchase any and every thing. Accordingly they boast of the abundance of their riches], cf. 52<sup>9</sup>. If the rich were correct in their self-confident boasting (v. v.<sup>19</sup>), the poor would have sufficient ground for fear; but they are not correct, for wealth cannot purchase the most essential thing, the life of its possessor, or the ability to enjoy wealth, or to direct who else shall enjoy it, cf. Ec. 5<sup>13-17</sup>. — 8. Man cannot at all give ransom], emphatic denial by adding inf. abs. to the impf. tense of verb. This has been generalized by an early copyist through the interpretation of “man” as the object of the verb; which then seemed to require the insertion of the subj. “brother”; but this is awkward, and most moderns give various unsatisfactory explanations. Man might pay ransom according to the Law for his life, Ex. 21<sup>30</sup>, when his carelessness had been the occasion of the death of his neighbour. And it was not uncommon for the rich to purchase exemption from the crime of murder, though it is prohibited in the Law, Num. 35<sup>31</sup>; but when Yahweh demands his life from a man, no ransom is possible: He cannot give to Yahweh His price]. Yahweh cannot be purchased by any price whatever to relinquish His purpose. — 10. That he should live forever], continue to live and enjoy his riches in this life, — and not see the Pit], the Pit in Sheol, 16<sup>10</sup> 30<sup>10</sup> 55<sup>24</sup> 103<sup>4</sup>, the dark, gloomy abode of the wicked dead, who suffered punishment there. EV<sup>a</sup>. perpetuate ancient mistakes in regarding the term as abstract, “corruption,” AV., RV., or “grave,” PBV. — 9. A later gl., wishing to emphasise this still more, inserted: “Indeed, the ransom of life is too costly,” even for the rich man to pay; and therefore he warns him: “desist forever” from such a vain effort and from confidence in its success. If this v. came from the author it must be parenthetical, but no good explanation of it has been given. It is of a different measure from the previous and subsequent lines, and makes the Str. too long. — 11. The wise die] = not the wise rich men, but the pious wise. This is as much as to say, that even those possessed of holy wisdom die, and that — together], all together, all alike in a death common to all. A prosaic copyist, wishing to bring this statement of fact in closer connection with the rich men of the previous context, prefixed: “for He seeth that,” namely, the wise die; but this spoils the measure of both lines, forcing MT. and Vrss. to attach “together” to the next line, thus making it a tetrameter. — Stupid and brutish], in antith. to the wise, those who are stupid and dull, and so, gross and dumb like the brute, they perish], probably in the sense of descending to Abaddon, a syn. of the Pit in Sheol; and they abandon their wealth], cf. v.<sup>18</sup>. They cannot take it with them, can no longer use it; it has become of no value to them. — to successors], any one that may succeed to their property; not even defined by a suffix, as it might have been, to indicate their own successors, their descendants. — 12. Their graves], so after  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{H}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{T}$ , and most moderns; “their inward thought,” of  $\mathfrak{H}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , followed by EV<sup>s</sup>., is due to a copyist’s transposition of letters of Heb. word. The former is so suited to the context, and the latter is so unsuitable, that there should be no doubt as to the original. — are their homes forever], taking the place of their temporary earthly homes, cf. Ec. 12<sup>5</sup> Tobit 3<sup>6</sup>. — Their dwelling places to all generations]; and this not merely for the poor and pious wise men, and the dull, dumb, brutish men, who have no ability to acquire wealth; but also for those who have been so exceedingly rich, that they have become great landed proprietors; whose names are upon lands], having their names attached by public recognition to their lands. This has been strengthened, at the expense of the measure, by prefixing the verb “call.” — 13. The Rfs. here and v.<sup>21</sup> sum up the real enigma of the situation: Man], the general term for mankind, comprehending all of the race; and no longer men, as v.<sup>8</sup>, referring to men of position and wealth. — in worth], preciousness; carrying on the idea of price of v.<sup>8</sup>, and not honour, EV<sup>s</sup>., which is less exact and from a different point of view. — abideth not], does not continue to lodge or abide in his lodging place in the world, so  $\mathfrak{H}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ ,  $\mathfrak{T}$ ; but  $\mathfrak{G}$ ,  $\mathfrak{S}$ , “understandeth not,” as v.<sup>21</sup>,  $\mathfrak{H}$ , and all Vrss. It is improbable that the Rf. would differ in this verb. The difference in Heb. is of a single letter, which is an easy copyist’s mistake. Though the weight of external testimony is strongly for the latter rendering, the former is supported by still stronger evidence; for it is much better suited to the context and thought of the entire Ps., and it gives the less frequent Heb. word, and on that account the most difficult reading. — He is to be compared], or likened in a simile, — to beasts]. In the matter of death the difference between them is slight, if at all. — that are no more], both man and beast alike are cut off from life in the world, and have no further existence apart from the abode of the dead.

Str. II. has the same structure as Str. I., save that, on the principle of inclusion, the first six lines are in general correspondence with the last six lines of Str. I. — 14. This is the way of them], the course of life which they pursue, leading on to its goal, — And the latter end of them], as 73<sup>17</sup>, best suited to the context. But a copyist's error of a single letter, ך for ך, made a difficult text, which is explained in various ways by Vrss., all unsatisfactory; EV<sup>a</sup>., "their posterity," after ז, least of all. — that have self-confidence], as RV.<sup>m</sup>, JPSV., Dr., Kirk., the earlier and usual meaning of Heb. word, more suited to the context than the later meaning, "folly," of EV<sup>a</sup>. — that are pleased with their portion], literally their mouthful, the portion for their mouth to enjoy as a delicious morsel; a conception more frequent in the phrase, "double portion," assigned usually to the first-born son, Dt. 21<sup>17</sup>. The Vrss. and interpreters generally, overlooking this meaning of the Heb. word, and thinking of the more usual meaning, "mouth," paraphrased, as ש, or thought of speech of the mouth, as EV<sup>a</sup>. after ז; or interpreted the Heb. verb as another form, with the meaning "run," as Aq.; all thinking of others than the wicked rich men of the previous line, and so impairing the strength of the syn. couplet. — 15. They are as a flock], simile, as 42<sup>1</sup>, followed by relative clause. — that are put in Sheol], the abode of the dead being conceived as their fold, in which they are shut up for the night. — Death], personified, — is their shepherd], as ש, RV., JPSV.; possibly antith. to Yahweh Himself, as the shepherd of His people, 23<sup>1</sup> 80<sup>2</sup> 95<sup>7</sup>. AV., "feed on them," is a slight improvement on PBV., "gnaweth," which, though possible, as justified by a rare usage of the verb, 80<sup>14</sup>, with the conception that death is a wild beast, is not suited to the context, and is improbable in itself. — and their ruler], having dominion over them. A later glossator, misled by a copyist's mistake in writing sg. "morning," for pl. "mornings," and thinking of the morning of the Messianic day of the redemption of Israel, and then interpreting the verb as referring to the dominion of the righteous over the wicked, inserted his explanation in the text, at the expense of the measure and the syntax, making the passage a crux to all subsequent interpreters. The original was really, every morning, continually, as 73<sup>14</sup>, belonging to the next line to complete its measure. — their form], figure, the shape and appearance of their disembodied being; not to be paraphrased into "beauty," EV<sup>a</sup>, or to be regarded as a poetic reference to their bodies, mouldering in the grave, Kirk. — wasteth away], becoming old and worn out by age and decay, cf. Jb. 14<sup>10-22</sup>. — Sheol] belongs to the following line,  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{I}$ , PBV., AV., as the measure requires; and is not the subject of verb, as RV., Pe., Dr., Kirk. — far from its lofty dwelling], that of the form; paraphrased by  $\mathfrak{S}$ ,  $\mathfrak{U}$ , and referred to the glory of the rich men themselves. The dwelling in Sheol, where they are doomed to waste away, is contrasted with the lordly dwelling of the rich in this life, as in v.<sup>12</sup>, with which v.<sup>15</sup> is parallel. RV., "that there be no habitation for it," is not justified by the usage of the Heb. word or the context. — 16. A later editor, possibly  $\mathfrak{E}$ , wishing to make the Ps. more useful for public worship, inserted this gloss, asserting the antithetic beatitude of the righteous, in what is really a prose sentence: "But God will ransom my life from the hand of Sheol, for He will take me." The interpretation of this passage depends in great measure upon the view taken of its relation to the context. The first clause may be interpreted either of ransom from death, or of ransom from Sheol after death; but the last clause defines it as a taking by God, which is suited not to the former, but only to the latter. The verse probably is based on 73<sup>24</sup>, and both Pss. on the story of Enoch, Gen. 5<sup>24</sup> (P), which preceded both Pss. in its date of composition; cf. also 2 K. 2<sup>9.10</sup> Is. 53<sup>8</sup>. It implies the assumption of the righteous dead by God to Himself, to the paradise of the departed, which developed in later Judaism in antith. to Abaddon or the Pit. Du. and Charles agree with De., among recent commentators, in this opinion. Most moderns, even A. B. Davidson and Salmond, minimise the Eschatology of the ancient Hebrews, so as to reduce it much below the level of that of the ancient neighbouring nations. — 17. Resuming v.<sup>6</sup> with a self-exhortation, — Fear not, when one groweth rich || when the glory of the house is increased], as the context indicates, and as good usage occasionally allows, referring to wealth, which indeed is substituted in RV.<sup>m</sup>, but without sufficient reason. — 18. For he cannot take it all], with him in his death, when he dies and descends to Sheol. — His glory cannot descend after him], in his train, as baggage, as it would in his travels in this world. The text resumes

the word "glory" in this clause, and this favours the opinion that all, the whole, of the previous clause, refers to all his riches; not with the implication that he might take some of it with him, but that he must leave it all behind as no longer of any real worth to him, as v.<sup>7-8, 11</sup>.—19. Though in his life-time], in antith. to his death-time, v.<sup>18</sup>; resuming the thought of v.<sup>7</sup>.—he congratulated his soul], cf. 62<sup>5</sup>; blessing himself for what he had acquired in the wealth in which he trusted, v.<sup>7a</sup>; || lauded it], the soul, the self, as such men usually do, taking all the praise to themselves for their success in life.—because it], the soul, the self,—was doing well to itself]. This had been and continued to be its habit during its life-time, boasting of the abundance of riches, v.<sup>7b</sup>. All this really amounts to nothing, so far as prevention or consolation is concerned; it only makes the antith. all the more striking and distressing.—20. It], this very soul, or self,—will go to the generation of his fathers], not simply to the ancestral tomb, for this was not always the case; but to the gathering of the fathers in the realm of the dead, who were regarded as living as nations, tribes, and families, a shadowy existence, reflecting the associations of this world, cf. Gn. 15<sup>15</sup>.—Who forever], these fathers, all departed souls.—see not the daylight], which shines in this world, but does not shine in the dark and gloomy cavern of Sheol, or its Pit, whither the wicked rich must go.

Ps. 50 is a didactic poem. (1) God shines forth from Zion in theophany, summoning earth, and heaven, and His godly ones to be present at the judgment of His people for infidelity to the covenant at Horeb (v.<sup>1-7</sup>). (2) He declines to accept their ritual sacrifices, which they had offered in sufficient numbers, for He has no need of them; the animals belong to Him already. He will accept, however, thank-offering and votive-offering, and will rescue His people in their trouble (v.<sup>8-15</sup>). (3) He convicts them of professing fidelity to the covenant, while at the same time they were violating the seventh, eighth, and ninth Words. He warns them not to forget Him; but rather to glorify Him by thank-offerings; and then He will let them see His salvation (v.<sup>16-23</sup>).

YAHWEH doth speak, and call the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof.

Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, Yahweh cometh shining forth;
Fire devoureth before Him, and round about Him it storms exceedingly.
He calleth to the heavens above, that He may judge His people:

"Gather my godly ones to Me, they that made a covenant by peace-offering;
And let the heavens proclaim righteousness, that (Yahweh) Himself is about to judge."

"Hear, My people, and I will speak; Israel, and I will protest to thee;
I, (Yahweh) thy God, (who brought thee up from the land of Egypt)."

"NOT for thy peace-offerings will I reprove thee, nor for thy whole burnt-offerings which are before Me continually;

I will take no bullock out of thine house, nor he-goats out of thy flocks;

For Mine are all the beasts of the forest, the cattle upon mountains where thousands are;

I know all the birds of (the heavens), and that which moveth in the field is in My possession.

If I were hungry, I would not tell thee; for the world is Mine and the fulness thereof.

Shall I eat the flesh of the mighty bulls, or drink the blood of he-goats?"

*"Sacrifice to (Yahweh) thank-offering, and pay thy vows unto 'Elyon;
And call upon Me in the day of trouble; I will rescue thee and thou shalt glorify Me."*

“WHAT hast thou to do with telling My statutes, and taking My covenant by thy mouth?

Seeing thou hatest discipline, and hast cast My words behind thee.

When thou sawest a thief, thou wast pleased, and with adulterers was thy portion;

Thy mouth thou hast put forth for evil, and thy tongue frameth deceit;

Thou sittest down to speak against thy brother, against thy mother's son thou allegest fault.

These things thou hast done, and I have kept silence; thou didst deem that I was like thee."

"I will convict thee, and set it forth before thine eyes; consider this, ye forgetters of Me.

Whoso offereth a thank-offering glorifieth Me. I will let him see the salvation of (Yahweh)."

Ps. 50 was in A and M before it was taken up into H (v. Intr. §§ 29, 31, 32). The author uses in v.<sup>1</sup>, Dt. 32<sup>1 sq.</sup> Is. 1<sup>2</sup>; in v.<sup>2-3</sup>, Dt. 33<sup>2</sup>, cf. Ps. 80<sup>2-3</sup> (A); the Ten Words (7, 8, 9) in v.<sup>18-20</sup>; the preface of the Ten Words in v.<sup>7</sup>; וְנִרְיִם for the Ten Words in v.<sup>17</sup>; the חֲקִים of E, D, in v.<sup>16</sup>; כִּרְתַּ בְּרִיָּה in v.<sup>5</sup>, phr. of J, E, D, not used in P; עַל זֶכֶּה of Ex. 24 in v.<sup>5</sup>. The limitation of sacrifices to זֶבַח, עֹלָה, חֹדֶה, נִדָּר, v.<sup>5. 8. 14</sup>, is Deuteronomic. All this favours dependence on D and priority to P. V.<sup>1</sup> מִזֶּרַח שָׁמֶשׁ עַד מַבְּאוֹ = 113<sup>3</sup> Mal. 1<sup>11</sup>, but earlier, because it refers to the earth in antith. to the heavens, and not to its own inhabitants in a universalistic sense. V.<sup>2</sup> מִכְּרָר יָפִי is related to La. 2<sup>15</sup>, and is probably a proverbial expression used of Zion in preëxilic times, and so attached to it that it persisted in postexilic usage, even though the later temple could not compare in beauty or grandeur with the former, cf. Ps. 48<sup>3</sup>. V.<sup>7</sup> is related to 81<sup>9</sup> in its citation of the preface to the Ten Words, and v.<sup>2-3</sup> to 80<sup>2-3</sup>, v.<sup>11</sup> to 80<sup>14</sup> (both A) and v.<sup>9</sup> מְכַלָּא to 78<sup>70</sup>, cf. Hb. 3<sup>17</sup>. עֲלִיּוֹן in v.<sup>14</sup> is characteristic of A. The Ps. is thus similar to others of A. The heaping up of divine names v.<sup>1</sup> as Jos. 22<sup>22</sup> is redactional; אֲנִי v.<sup>7</sup> is in citation; אֱלֹהִים v.<sup>22</sup> is a late gl.; מִן אֲשֶׁר־י in v.<sup>22</sup> is a gl. citing from 7<sup>3</sup>. These give no evidence of date. v.<sup>17</sup> is used in the earlier sense of Je., and not in the later sense of WL. The syntax is early: 1 consec. impf. v.<sup>1. 17. 18</sup>, cohort. v.<sup>7. 8</sup>. The other examples, v.<sup>3. 6. 7</sup>, are glosses or misinterpretations of MT. The judgment is of the people of Yahweh as Dt. 32, and not of the nations. The people are apparently dispersed in the earth, though the temple is standing and Yahweh is present there. The Ps. was prob. composed in the Eastern Diaspora in the late Persian period subsequent to Nehemiah.

Str. I. has a tetrastich with introverted parallelism, and a synth. couplet. — 1. Yahweh], doubtless original to the Ps. throughout, for which  $\mathfrak{E}$  substituted Elohim, which by dittog. became El Elohim; finally a later editor restored Yahweh, thus heaping up divine names, as elsewhere only Jos. 22<sup>22</sup>. This destroyed the measure and induced various explanations. — doth speak and call], in the sense of summon to attend at the seat of judgment. — the earth], personified, and repeated in gloss after the heavens above], v.<sup>4</sup>; based on Dt. 32<sup>1-2</sup> Is. 1<sup>2</sup>. They are summoned as witnesses or assessors at the judgment, they taking their part in commotions such as usually accompany theophanies. — from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof], from the extreme East to the extreme West, for the entire earth between these two extremities; and not as 113<sup>3</sup> Mal. 1<sup>11</sup>, for the nations inhabiting the entire earth; for they have no place whatever in this judgment of Israel. — 2-3. The theophany for judgment is now described: Out of Zion], the royal residence of Yahweh, implying that the temple was standing and the ceremonies of worship were carried on there. — the perfection of beauty], the proverbial description of Zion as it appears in La. 2<sup>15</sup>, not, however, implying a preëxilic situation. That the second temple was not equal in beauty to the first might well have been the feeling of the old men who had seen the ancient temple and could compare them; but not of their posterity, still less of the Diaspora to whom Zion was a glorious ideal, cf. 48<sup>8</sup> ( $\mathfrak{K}$ ) 1 Mac. 2<sup>22</sup>. — Yahweh cometh shining forth]. The measure requires this combination. The coming is the theophanic coming forth from the throne-room of the temple; it is a shining forth of the light of the Glory, cf. 80<sup>2</sup> ( $\mathfrak{A}$ ) Dt. 33<sup>2</sup>. A copyist inserted in the margin, "let Him not keep silence," in a time when the advent of Yahweh was longed for by His people. This eventually became a part of the text, and occasioned the separation of "come" from the previous line and the insertion of its subject, "our God," giving four tones of an incomplete line additional to the Str., and making the negative jussive in its context a crux of Heb. syntax. — Fire devoureth before Him], as frequently in theophanies; the light of the glory accompanied by devouring fire, cf. 97<sup>3</sup>. — and round about Him it storms exceedingly], cf. the advent in a storm, 18<sup>8-16</sup> Jb. 38<sup>1</sup>. — 4. that He may judge His people]. The theophanic advent, the summoning of the witnesses, is, as the subsequent context shows, for testing them by the covenant to which they had pledged allegiance. The nations are not to be judged at this advent, as in the royal Pss. 96-100, cf. 9-10; but the people of Israel alone, as Dt. 32<sup>36</sup>. — 5. Gather to Me], assemble from various places. Yahweh Himself speaks, addressing the heavens, Hu., Bā.; not the angels understood, Moll., Kirk., which do not appear in this Ps. — My godly ones], usually referred to pious Israelites, scattered about over the earth, which is apparently favoured by the addition of the gloss, "earth," to "the heavens above," in the previous clause. If, however, the heavens are the agents, it is more probable that others than pious Israelites are in view, especially as it is the people as a whole that are to be judged, and not merely wicked Israelites. It is probable that the ancient worthies, Moses and the elders, are summoned from the gathering place of the departed to witness this judgment of Israel. This best suits the context, for they were the ones that made a covenant by peace-offering], at the institution of the covenant at Horeb, Ex. 24<sup>5</sup>. The later generations inherited the covenant with its obligations, but did not share in the peace-offerings in connection with which it was made. — 6. Let the heavens proclaim righteousness], make the solemn, public proclamation that righteousness is about to be administered, || that Yahweh Himself is about to judge], decide the case of His people as regards their fidelity to covenant obligations. Even He attaches the suffix "his" to righteousness, although it is not suited to the words of Yahweh, which continue here and throughout the Ps. The suffix is an interpretation, as probably also in the previous verse, in both He and Thou, the one using the 1st pers., the other the 3d pers. — 7. Hear, My people]. Now for the first time, in presence of the witnesses and assessors, Yahweh addresses His people. This is a couplet of Refrain, as v.<sup>14-15</sup> v.<sup>21c-23</sup>. — And I will speak]: what I have to say as judge of the case in hand || and I will protest to thee], solemnly bear witness. — I, Yahweh, thy God], asserting His right as the God who had taken them into covenant at Horeb, who brought thee up from the land of Egypt, reaffirming, therefore, the introductory sanction of the Ten Words. The measure requires this clause, which is indeed cited in 81<sup>11</sup>, and which was probably omitted here by an early copyist as an abbreviation, the introductory words sufficiently suggesting it to the pious Jew.

Str. II. has three syn. couplets. — 8. Not for thy peace-offerings] emphatic in position, the festal offerings with their communion meals, || whole burnt-offerings], those entirely consumed on the altar, expressive of worship. — which are before Me continually], because offered daily in the Levitical ritual, morning and evening, so that in later times these offerings gained the name Tamidh; cf. Nu. 28<sup>3</sup>, which Kirk. thinks is alluded to here; but this is improbable, because the Ps. depends on J, E, D, and shows no knowledge of the institutions of P. — will I reprove thee], that is, because these were insufficient or not in proper form, in accordance with the ritual Law. The reproof has, as the subsequent context shows, not ritual, but ethical reasons. — 9. I will take], in the sense of accept as satisfactory. — no bullock], the most valuable of the offerings of the herd. — nor he-goats], the most valuable of the offerings of the flock. — out of thine house], in the larger sense, including the out-houses where the cattle were stalled. These, the most valuable of all offerings, were not acceptable because they were not offered by a people in right relations with their God. — 10. For], giving as a reason of the previous couplet, that God has no need of such offerings, preparatory to the chief reason, which is reserved for Str. III. — Mine], emphatic in position and statement, — are all the beasts of the forest], the wild animals roaming there in free and vigorous life. — the cattle], grazing upon mountains where thousands are], so Aq., B, RV.<sup>m</sup>, and most moderns; in vast numbers, and not “thousand hills,” as PBV., AV., or, “and oxen,” G, V. — 11. I know], as a shepherd knows his herd and flock || in My possession. — all the birds of the heavens], as G, S, T, more probable than “of the mountains,” H, I, EV<sup>s</sup>. || and that which moveth in the field], as 80<sup>14</sup>; possibly reptiles, but uncertain in reference. All kinds of animals belong to God, and He can use them at His pleasure without receiving them from men. — 12. If I were hungry], a conditional clause implying a negative answer. — I would not tell thee], as if I had need of anything the people could give me; for the world is Mine], all belonging to me, as its proprietor. — and the fulness thereof], all its inhabitants, all living things and all vegetation, everything in it that could be eaten. — 13. Shall I eat || drink], implying an indignant negative, — the flesh of the mighty bulls], those of Bashan, the strongest and most valuable, — the blood of he-goats], as offered in sacrifice and given to God as His share, in the flame of the altar. If God accepted His share of the sacrifices in this way, it did not imply the gross idea that He, like men, ate and drank these things. — 14. The Rf. is a couplet of exhortation, after the previous remonstrance. — Sacrifice to Yahweh thank-offering], usually interpreted of thanksgiving expressed in prayers and songs, in antith. to a sacrifice of animals; but this is improbable, as the || pay thy vows unto 'Elyon], can only be understood of votive offerings; both characteristic of D, and regarded as voluntary offerings, expressive of a real, pious disposition of the offerer; as distinguished from prescribed ritual offerings, which too often become perfunctory, and merely empty ceremonial forms. This is as much as to say: make real, sincere, and voluntary offerings, and pay the votive offerings you have vowed; get into right relations with your God; and then, — 15. Call upon Me, in petition or intercession, — in the day of trouble, when divine help is especially needed; I will rescue thee, from the trouble, and then thou, on thy part, shalt glorify me, in public thanksgiving and praise.

Str. III. has all its lines in synth. relations with their predecessors, in pressing home one serious charge after another, until the climax is reached. — 16. A glossator, wishing to separate this Str. more distinctly from the previous one, prefixes the clause: “and to the wicked God said,” which gives but half a hexameter, and one line too many for the Str., or else, if attached to the first line, make that much too long. The context makes the address sufficiently obvious without this prosaic addition. — What hast thou to do], an idiomatic phrase: is it thine affair, or business? — with telling My statutes], the brief, terse sentences of Law, usually with the penalty attached (v. Br.<sup>Hex. 238</sup>); proclaiming them and teaching them, when they do not obey them themselves, addressing the people in their solidarity, as in the Ten Words, and not as individuals. — taking My covenant by thy mouth], taking up the ancestral covenant, renewing it by oral assumption of its obligations, as was done by the nation in the times of Hezekiah and Josiah. — 17. Seeing thou hatest discipline], instead of loving it as a true child of God, in the earlier sense of prophetic instruction, as in Je. 17<sup>23</sup> 32<sup>33</sup> 35<sup>13</sup> Zeph. 3<sup>2.7</sup>. — My words], as v. 18-20, the sentences of the Ten Words, Ex. 20 Dt. 5 (v. Br.<sup>Hex. 181</sup>). — hast cast behind thee], of positive, scornful, and determined rejection. The specifications of the charge follow rapidly : — 18. (a) When thou sawest a thief], instead of visiting him with punishment according to the Eighth Word, thou wast pleased], accepted him with gratification. — (b) and with adulterers], the violators of the Seventh Word, was thy portion, sympathising with them in their unlawful acts, instead of putting them to death as the Law required. — 19. (c) Thy mouth thou hast put forth], in utterance ; let it loose in speech, — and thy tongue frameth], deliberate construction ; — evil || deceit], to the injury of neighbours, by false witness in violation of the Ninth Word ; and this even against near kindred. — 20. Thou sittest down], of deliberate action, — to speak against || allegest fault], of complaint before the ministers of justice, in false witness, — against thy brother], the son of the same father, and, still worse in a polygamous society, — against thy mother's son]. These three Words were doubtless taken as specimens of violation of the primitive tables of the Covenant, just as in the discourse of Jesus, Mt. 5<sup>21-37</sup>. They are sufficient to lead to the summary statement, — 21. These things thou hast done, and I have kept silence], not visiting them with punishment, apparently not noticing them or caring for them ; and so, from this seeming neglect ; thou didst deem that I was like thee], in caring for none of these things, or in being pleased with them. A kind but firm rebuke is now given in the climax. — I will convict thee], make the matter so plain and distinct that it cannot be evaded, — and set it forth before thine eyes], so clearly that it must be seen. — 22-23. The Rf. summons to serious reflection : Consider this, ye forgetters of Me]. Only forgetfulness of Yahweh could let them think that He would act so contrary to His covenant as to overlook the persistent violation of its fundamental Words. A later editor, dissatisfied with the mildness of the rebuke, inserted at the expense of the measure, from 7<sup>3</sup> : “lest I tear you in pieces and there be none to deliver” ; and at the same time makes the previous word more objective by substituting “God” for the suffix “Me.” — The Ps. concludes with essentially the same thought as v.<sup>14</sup>; only the exhortation is changed into a statement of fact: whoso offereth a thank-offering glorifieth Me]. The last clause is made more difficult by the insertion of a sentence evidently designed to make it more definite: "There is the way wherein"; as Ⲫ, Ⲛ; otherwise explained by other Vrss., ancient and modern, but without agreement or satisfactory results. The clause is indeed essentially the same as v.<sup>15</sup>. If Israel, on his part, offers the acceptable thank-offering, Yahweh, on His part, will let him see], look upon with gratification, the salvation of Yahweh.

DEUTERONOMY.

By the Rev. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., D.Litt., Regius Professor of Hebrew, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford.

---

Crown 8vo. Net, $3.00.

"No one could be better qualified than Professor Driver to write a critical and exegetical commentary on Deuteronomy. His previous works are authorities in all the departments involved; the grammar and lexicon of the Hebrew language, the lower and higher criticism, as well as exegesis and Biblical theology; . . . the interpretation in this commentary is careful and sober in the main. A wealth of historical, geographical, and philological information illustrates and elucidates both the narrative and the discourses. Valuable, though concise, excursuses are often given." — The Congregationalist.

"It is a pleasure to see at last a really critical Old Testament commentary in English upon a portion of the Pentateuch, and especially one of such merit. This I find superior to any other Commentary in any language upon Deuteronomy." — Professor E. L. CURTIS, of Yale University.

"This volume of Professor Driver's is marked by his well-known care and accuracy, and it will be a great boon to every one who wishes to acquire a thorough knowledge, either of the Hebrew language, or of the contents of the Book of Deuteronomy, and their significance for the development of Old Testament thought. The author finds scope for displaying his well-known wide and accurate knowledge, and delicate appreciation of the genius of the Hebrew language, and his readers are supplied with many carefully constructed lists of words and expressions. He is at his best in the detailed examination of the text." — London Athenæum.

"It must be said that this work is bound to take rank among the best commentaries in any language on the important book with which it deals. On every page there is abundant evidence of a scholarly knowledge of the literature, and of the most painstaking care to make the book useful to thorough students." — The Lutheran Churchman.

"The deep and difficult questions raised by Deuteronomy are, in every instance, considered with care, insight, and critical acumen. The student who wishes for solid information, or a knowledge of method and temper of the new criticism, will find advantage in consulting the pages of Dr Driver." — Zion's Herald.

"The typographical execution of this handsome volume is worthy of the scholarly character of the contents, and higher praise could not be given it." — Professor C. H. TOY, of Harvard University.

"This work represents the latest results of 'Scientific Biblical Scholarship,' and as such has the greatest value for the purely critical student, especially on the side of textual and literary criticism." — The Church Standard.

"Professor Moore has more than sustained his scholarly reputation in this work, which gives us for the first time in English a commentary on Judges not excelled, if indeed equalled, in any language of the world." — Professor L. W. BATTEN, of P. E. Divinity School, Philadelphia.

"Although a critical commentary, this work has its practical uses, and by its divisions, headlines, etc., it is admirably adapted to the wants of all thoughtful students of the Scriptures. Indeed, with the other books of the series, it is sure to find its way into the hands of pastors and scholarly laymen." — Portland Zion's Herald.

"Like its predecessors, this volume will be warmly welcomed — whilst to those whose means of securing up-to-date information on the subject of which it treats are limited, it is simply invaluable." — Edinburgh Scotsman.

"The work is done in an atmosphere of scholarly interest and indifference to dogmatism and controversy, which is at least refreshing. . . . It is a noble introduction to the moral forces, ideas, and influences that controlled the period of the Judges, and a model of what a historical commentary, with a practical end in view should be." — The Independent.

"The work is marked by a clear and forcible style, by scholarly research, by critical acumen, by extensive reading, and by evident familiarity with the Hebrew. Many of the comments and suggestions are valuable, while the index at the close is serviceable and satisfactory." — Philadelphia Presbyterian.

"This volume sustains the reputation of the series for accurate and wide scholarship given in clear and strong English, . . . the scholarly reader will find delight in the perusal of this admirable commentary." — Zion's Herald.

The Books of Samuel

BY

REV. HENRY PRESERVED SMITH, D.D.,

Professor of Biblical History and Interpretation in Amherst College.

---

Crown 8vo, Net $3.00.

---

"Professor Smith's Commentary will for some time be the standard work on Samuel, and we heartily congratulate him on scholarly work so faithfully accomplished."—The Athenæum.

"It is both critical and exegetical, and deals with original Hebrew and Greek. It shows painstaking diligence and considerable research."—The Presbyterian.

"The style is clear and forcible and sustains the well-won reputation of the distinguished author for scholarship and candor. All thoughtful students of the Scriptures will find the work helpful, not only on account of its specific treatment of the Books of Samuel, on which it is based, but because of the light it throws on and the aid it gives in the general interpretation of the Scriptures as modified by present-day criticism."—The Philadelphia Press.

"The literary quality of the book deserves mention. We do not usually go to commentaries for models of English style. But this book has a distinct, though unobtrusive, literary flavor. It is delightful reading. The translation is always felicitous, and often renders further comment needless."—The Evangelist.

"The treatment is critical, and at the same time expository. Conservative students may find much in this volume with which they cannot agree, but no one wishing to know the most recent conclusions concerning this part of sacred history can afford to be without it."—Philadelphia Presbyterian Journal.

"The author exhibits precisely that scholarly attitude which will commend his work to the widest audience."—The Churchman.

"The commentary is the most complete and minute hitherto published by an English-speaking scholar."—Literature.

"The volumes of Driver and Moore set a high standard for the Old Testament writers; but I think Professor Smith's work has reached the same high level. It is scholarly and critical, and yet it is written in a spirit of reverent devotion, a worthy treatment of the sacred text."—PROF. L. W. BATTEN, of P. E. Divinity School, Philadelphia.

PROVERBS

By the Rev. CRAWFORD H. TOY, D.D., LL.D.

Professor of Hebrew in Harvard University.

---

Crown 8vo. Net, $3.00.

---

"In careful scholarship this volume leaves nothing to be desired. Its interpretation is free from theological prejudice. It will be indispensable to the careful student, whether lay or clerical."—The Outlook.

"Professor Toy's 'Commentary' will for many years to come remain a handbook for both teachers and learners, and its details will be studied with critical care and general appreciation."—The Athenæum.

"The commentary itself is a most thorough treatment of each verse in detail, in which the light of the fullest scholarship is thrown upon the meaning. The learning displayed throughout the work is enormous. Here is a commentary at last that does not skip the hard places, but grapples with every problem and point, and says the best that can be said."—Presbyterian Banner.

"Professor Toy's commentary on Proverbs maintains the highest standard of the International Critical Commentaries. We can give no higher praise. Proverbs presents comparatively few problems in criticism, but offers large opportunities to the expositor and exegete. Professor Toy's work is thorough and complete."—The Congregationalist.

"This addition to 'The International Critical Commentary' has the same characteristics of thoroughness and painstaking scholarship as the preceding issues of the series. In the critical treatment of the text, in noting the various readings and the force of the words in the original Hebrew, it leaves nothing to be desired."—The Christian Intelligencer.

"A first-class, up-to-date, critical and exegetical commentary on the Book of Proverbs in the English language was one of the crying needs of Biblical scholarship. Accordingly, we may not be yielding to the latest addition to the International Critical Series the tribute it deserves, when we say that it at once takes the first place in its class. That place it undoubtedly deserves, however, and would have secured even against much more formidable competitors than it happens to have. It is altogether a well-arranged, lucid exposition of this unique book in the Bible, based on a careful study of the text and the linguistic and historical background of every part of it."—The Interior.

"While this commentary is called 'critical' and is such, it is not one in which the apparatus is spread out in detail; it is one which any intelligent English reader can readily use and thoroughly understand"—The Evangelist. —

"His book combines thorough technical scholarship with large measure of ethical and spiritual insight, and we think his Commentary on Amos and Hosea will take its place among the best in this very excellent series." — The Outlook.

"It is unnecessary to say that in scholarly completeness, Dr. Harper's volume ranks with the best of the International Critical Commentary Series." — The Standard.

"The commentary is remarkable for its clear analysis, and exhaustive in its minute completeness. It furnishes materials to the student from which he may form his own judgment rather than seeks to impress dogmatic conclusions." — The Watchman.

"I think it safe to say that in no language can there be found such a scholarly piece of work on the two important prophets, Amos and Hosea." — Rev. L. W. BATTEN, Ph.D., D.D., Rector of St. Mark's Church, New York City, sometime Professor of Hebrew, P. E. Divinity School, Philadelphia.

"Professor Harper's critical position is that of sound progressive scholarship. He possesses also the gift of the true teacher of interesting others in his subject. The volume will easily take its place as a most important commentary on these prophets." — Congregationalist.

"I shall have pleasure in recommending it to all students in our Seminary. This book fills, in the most favorable manner, a long-felt want for a good critical commentary on two of the most interesting books in the Old Testament." — Rev. LEWIS B. PATON, Ph.D., Professor of Hebrew, Hartford Theological Seminary.

"He has gone, with characteristic minuteness, not only into the analysis and discussion of each point, endeavoring in every case to be thoroughly exhaustive, but also into the history of exegesis and discussion. Nothing at all worthy of consideration has been passed by. The consequence is that when one carefully studies what has been brought together in this volume, either upon some passage of the two prophets treated, or upon some question of critical or antiquarian importance in the introductory portion of the volume, one feels that he has obtained an adequately exhaustive view of the subject." — The Interior.

"In point of scholarship, of accuracy, of originality, this last addition to the series is worthy of its predecessors, while for terseness and keenness of exegesis, we should put it first of them all." — The Congregationalist.

"The whole make-up is that of a thoroughly helpful, instructive critical study of the Word, surpassing anything of the kind ever attempted in the English language, and to students and clergymen knowing the proper use of a commentary it will prove an invaluable aid." — The Lutheran Quarterly.

"Professor Gould has done his work well and thoroughly. . . . The commentary is an admirable example of the critical method at its best. . . . The Word study . . . shows not only familiarity with all the literature of the subject, but patient, faithful, and independent investigation. . . . It will rank among the best, as it is the latest commentary on this basal Gospel." — The Christian Intelligencer.

"It will give the student the vigorously expressed thought of a very thoughtful scholar." — The Church Standard.

"Dr. Gould's commentary on Mark is a large success, . . . and a credit to American scholarship. . . . He has undoubtedly given us a commentary on Mark which surpasses all others, a thing we have reason to expect will be true in the case of every volume of the series to which it belongs." — The Biblical World.

"The volume is characterized by extensive learning, patient attention to details and a fair degree of caution." — Bibliotheca Sacra.

"The exegetical portion of the book is simple in arrangement, admirable in form and condensed in statement. . . . Dr. Gould does not slavishly follow any authority, but expresses his own opinions in language both concise and clear." — The Chicago Standard.

"In clear, forcible and elegant language the author furnishes the results of the best investigations on the second Gospel, both early and late. He treats these various subjects with the hand of a master." — Boston Zion's Herald.

"The author gives abundant evidence of thorough acquaintance with the facts and history in the case. . . . His treatment of them is always fresh and scholarly, and oftentimes helpful." — The New York Observer.

ST. LUKE.

By the Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D.,

Master of University College, Durham. Formerly Fellow and Senior Tutor of Trinity College, Oxford,

Crown 8vo. Net, $3.00.

In the author's Critical Introduction to the Commentary is contained a full treatment of a large number of important topics connected with the study of the Gospel, among which are the following: The Author of the Book — The Sources of the Gospel — Object and Plan of the Gospel — Characteristics, Style and Language — The Integrity of the Gospel — The Text — Literary History.

FROM THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

If this Commentary has any special features, they will perhaps be found in the illustrations from Jewish writings, in the abundance of references to the Septuagint, and to the Acts and other books of the New Testament, in the frequent quotations of renderings in the Latin versions, and in the attention which has been paid, both in the Introduction and throughout the Notes, to the marks of St. Luke's style.

"It is distinguished throughout by learning, sobriety of judgment, and sound exegesis. It is a weighty contribution to the interpretation of the Third Gospel, and will take an honorable place in the series of which it forms a part." — Prof. D. D. SALMOND, in the Critical Review.

"We are pleased with the thoroughness and scientific accuracy of the interpretations. . . . It seems to us that the prevailing characteristic of the book is common sense, fortified by learning and piety." — The Herald and Presbyter.

"An important work, which no student of the Word of God can safely neglect." — The Church Standard.

"The author has both the scholar's knowledge and the scholar's spirit necessary for the preparation of such a commentary. . . . We know of nothing on the Third Gospel which more thoroughly meets the wants of the Biblical scholar." — The Outlook.

"The author is not only a profound scholar, but a chastened and reverent Christian, who undertakes to interpret a Gospel of Christ, so as to show Christ in his grandeur and loveliness of character." — The Southern Churchman.

"It is a valuable and welcome addition to our somewhat scanty stock of first-class commentaries on the Third Gospel. By its scholarly thoroughness it well sustains the reputation which the INTERNATIONAL SERIES has already won." — Prof. J. H. THAYER, of Harvard University.

This commentary cannot fail to render the most valuable assistance to all earnest students. The volume augurs well for the series of which it is a member." — Professor GEORGE P. FISHER, of Yale University.

"The scholarship and spirit of Dr. Sanday give assurance of an interpretation of the Epistle to the Romans which will be both scholarly and spiritual." — Dr. LYMAN ABBOTT.

"The work of the authors has been carefully done, and will prove an acceptable addition to the literature of the great Epistle. The exegesis is acute and learned . . . The authors show much familiarity with the work of their predecessors, and write with calmness and lucidity." — New York Observer.

"We are confident that this commentary will find a place in every thoughtful minister's library. One may not be able to agree with the authors at some points, — and this is true of all commentaries, — but they have given us a work which cannot but prove valuable to the critical study of Paul's masterly epistle." — Zion's Advocate.

"We do not hesitate to commend this as the best commentary on Romans yet written in English. It will do much to popularize this admirable and much needed series, by showing that it is possible to be critical and scholarly and at the same time devout and spiritual, and intelligible to plain Bible readers." — The Church Standard.

"A commentary with a very distinct character and purpose of its own, which brings to students and ministers an aid which they cannot obtain elsewhere. . . . There is probably no other commentary in which criticism has been employed so successfully and impartially to bring out the author's thought." — N. Y. Independent.

"We have nothing but heartiest praise for the weightier matters of the commentary. It is not only critical, but exegetical, expository, doctrinal, practical, and eminently spiritual. The positive conclusions of the books are very numerous and are stoutly, gloriously evangelical. . . . The commentary does not fail to speak with the utmost reverence of the whole word of God." — The Congregationalist

"The latest volume of this admirable series is informed with the very best spirit in which such work can be carried out—a spirit of absolute fidelity to the demonstrable truths of critical science. . . . This summary of the results of modern criticism applied to these two Pauline letters is, for the use of scholarly students, not likely to be superseded."—The London Academy.

"An able and independent piece of exegesis, and one that none of us can afford to be without. It is the work of a man who has made himself master of his theme. His linguistic ability is manifest. His style is usually clear. His exegetical perceptions are keen, and we are especially grateful for his strong defence of the integrity and apostolicity of these two great monuments of Pauline teaching."—The Expositor.

"It displays every mark of conscientious judgment, wide reading, and grammatical insight."—Literature.

"In discrimination, learning, and candor, it is the peer of the other volumes of the series. The elaborate introductions are of special value."—Professor GEORGE B. STEVENS, of Yale University.

"It is rich in philological material, clearly arranged, and judiciously handled. The studies of words are uncommonly good. . . . In the balancing of opinions, in the distinguishing between fine shades of meaning, it is both acute and sound."—The Church.

"The exegesis based so solidly on the rock foundation of philology is argumentatively and convincingly strong. A spiritual and evangelical tenor pervades the interpretation from first to last. . . . These elements, together with the author's full-orbed vision of the truth, with his discriminative judgment and his felicity of expression, make this the peer of any commentary on these important letters."—The Standard.

"An exceedingly careful and painstaking piece of work. The introductory discussions of questions bearing on the authenticity and integrity (of the epistles) are clear and candid, and the exposition of the text displays a fine scholarship and insight."—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The book is from first to last exegetical and critical. Every phrase in the two Epistles is searched as with lighted candles. The authorities for variant readings are canvassed but weighed, rather than counted. The multifarious ancient and modern interpretations are investigated with the exhaustiveness of a German lecture-room, and the judicial spirit of an English court-room. Special discussions are numerous and thorough."—The Congregationalist.

"It is, in short, in every way worthy of the series."—The Scotsman.

"Professor Vincent's Commentary on Philippians and Philemon appears to me not less admirable for its literary merit than for its scholarship and its clear and discriminating discussions of the contents of these Epistles."—DR. GEORGE P. FISHER.

"The book contains many examples of independent and judicial weighing of evidence. We have been delighted with the portion devoted to Philemon. Unlike most commentaries, this may wisely be read as a whole."—The Congregationalist

"Of the merits of the work it is enough to say that it is worthy of its place in the noble undertaking to which it belongs. It is full of just such information as the Bible student, lay or clerical, needs; and while giving an abundance of the truths of erudition to aid the critical student of the text, it abounds also in that more popular information which enables the attentive reader almost to put himself in St. Paul's place, to see with the eyes and feel with the heart of the Apostle to the Gentiles."—Boston Advertiser.

"If it is possible in these days to produce a commentary which will be free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias, the feat will be accomplished in the International Critical Commentary. . . . It is evident that the writer has given an immense amount of scholarly research and original thought to the subject. . . . The author's introduction to the Epistle to Philemon is an admirable piece of literature, calculated to arouse in the student's mind an intense interest in the circumstances which produced this short letter from the inspired Apostle."—Commercial Advertiser.

"His discussion of Philemon is marked by sympathy and appreciation, and his full discussion of the relations of Pauline Christianity to slavery are interesting, both historically and sociologically."—The Dial.

"Throughout the work scholarly research is evident. It commends itself by its clear elucidation, its keen exegesis which marks the word study on every page, its compactness of statement and its simplicity of arrangement."—Lutheran World.

"The scholarship of the author seems to be fully equal to his undertaking, and he has given to us a fine piece of work. One cannot but say that if the entire series shall be executed upon a par with this portion, there can be little left to be desired."—Philadelphia Presbyterian Journal.

His realistic interpretation of the relations of the apostles and the circumstances of the early church renders the volume invaluable to students of these themes. ## EDITORS' PREFACE.

THEOLOGY has made great and rapid advances in recent years. New lines of investigation have been opened up, fresh light has been cast upon many subjects of the deepest interest, and the historical method has been applied with important results. This has prepared the way for a Library of Theological Science, and has created the demand for it. It has also made it at once opportune and practicable now to secure the services of specialists in the different departments of Theology, and to associate them in an enterprise which will furnish a record of Theological inquiry up to date.

This Library is designed to cover the whole field of Christian Theology. Each volume is to be complete in itself, while, at the same time, it will form part of a carefully planned whole. One of the Editors is to prepare a volume of Theological Encyclopædia which will give the history and literature of each department, as well as of Theology as a whole.

The Library is intended to form a series of Text-Books for Students of Theology.

The Authors, therefore, aim at conciseness and compactness of statement. At the same time, they have in view that large and increasing class of students, in other departments of inquiry, who desire to have a systematic and thorough exposition of Theological Science. Technical matters will therefore be thrown into the form of notes, and the text will be made as readable and attractive as possible.

EDITORS' PREFACE.

The Library is international and interconfessional. It will be conducted in a catholic spirit, and in the interests of Theology as a science.

Its aim will be to give full and impartial statements both of the results of Theological Science and of the questions which are still at issue in the different departments.

The Authors will be scholars of recognized reputation in the several branches of study assigned to them. They will be associated with each other and with the Editors in the effort to provide a series of volumes which may adequately represent the present condition of investigation, and indicate the way for further progress.

AN INTRODUCTION TO

The Literature of the Old Testament

By Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., D.Litt.

Canon of Christ Church, Oxford

New Edition Revised

Crown 8vo, 558 pages, $2.50 net

---

"It is the most scholarly and critical work in the English language on the literature of the Old Testament, and fully up to the present state of research in Germany."—Prof. PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D.

"Canon Driver has arranged his material excellently, is succinct without being hurried or unclear, and treats the various critical problems involved with admirable fairness and good judgment."

—Prof. C. H. Toy.

"His judgment is singularly fair, calm, unbiassed, and independent. It is also thoroughly reverential. . . . The service, which his book will render in the present confusion of mind on this great subject, can scarcely be overestimated."—The London Times.

"As a whole, there is probably no book in the English language equal to this 'Introduction to the Literature of the Old Testament' for the student who desires to understand what the modern criticism thinks about the Bible."—Dr. LYMAN ABBOTT, in the Outlook.

"The book is one worthy of its subject, thorough in its treatment, reverent in its tone, sympathetic in its estimate, frank in its recognition of difficulties, conservative (in the best sense of the word) in its statement of results."

—Prof. HENRY P. SMITH, in the Magazine of Christian Literature.

"In working out his method our author takes up each book in order and goes through it with marvelous and microscopic care. Every verse, every clause, word by word, is sifted and weighed, and its place in the literary organism decided upon."

—The Presbyterian Quarterly.

"It contains just that presentation of the results of Old Testament criticism for which English readers in this department have been waiting. . . . The whole book is excellent; it will be found helpful, characterized as it is all through by that scholarly poise of mind, which, when it does not know, is not ashamed to present degrees of probability."—New World.

" . . . Canon Driver's book is characterized throughout by thorough Christian scholarship, faithful research, caution in the expression of mere opinions, candor in the statement of facts and of the necessary inferences from them, and the devout recognition of the divine inworking in the religious life of the Hebrews, and of the tokens of divine inspiration in the literature which records and embodies it."—Dr. A. P. PEABODY, in the Cambridge Tribune.

OLD TESTAMENT HISTORY

PROFESSOR OF BIBLICAL HISTORY AND INTERPRETATION, AMHERST COLLEGE

---

This book gives a history of Old Testament times. This it does by a narrative based upon those Biblical books which are historical in form. The nature of these books is carefully considered, their data are used according to historical methods, and the conclusions of recent criticism are set forth. The other books of the Old Testament with the more important of the Apocrypha are given their proper place so far as they throw light on the development of the Old Testament people.

"Professor Smith has, by his comprehensive and vitalized history, laid all who care for the Old Testament under great obligations."

—The Independent.

"The volume is characterized by extraordinary clearness of conception and representation, thorough scholarly ability, and charm of style."—The Interior.

"Dr. Smith's volume is critical without being polemical, interesting though not imaginative, scholarly without pedantry, and radical but not destructive. The author is himself an authority, and his volume is the best single presentation with which we are familiar of the modern view of Old Testament history."—The Outlook.

"This volume is the result of thorough study, is free from the controversial spirit and from any evidence of desire to challenge older theories of the Bible, is written in straightforward, clear style, does not linger unduly in discussion of doubtful matters, is reverent and at the same time fearless. If one has accepted the main positions of the Higher Criticism, while he may still differ with Professor Smith's conclusions here and there, he will find himself in accord with the spirit of the author, whose scholarship and achievement he will gladly honor."—The Congregationalist.

"We have a clear, interesting, instructive account of the growth of Israel, embodying a series of careful judgments on the countless problems that face the man who tries to understand the life of that remarkable people. The 'History' takes its place worthily by the side of Driver's Introduction. The student of to-day is to be congratulated on having so valuable an addition made to his stock of tools."

—The Expository Times.

The Theology of the Old Testament.

BY THE LATE

A. B. DAVIDSON, D.D., LL.D., Litt.D.

Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis, New College, Edinburgh.

EDITED FROM THE AUTHOR'S MANUSCRIPTS

BY

S. D. F. SALMOND, D.D., F.E.I.S.

Principal of the United Free Church College, Aberdeen.

Crown 8vo. 568 pages. $2.50 net.

"It is one of those monumental works whose publication the scholar hails with gratitude. Principal Salmond has edited Professor Davidson's manuscripts with care and fidelity. It would require much more space than we can give this volume in our crowded columns even to indicate the many points in which this, one of the greatest of Hebrew scholars, shows himself a lineal descendant and successor of the ancient prophets whom he loved so well; but it is enough to say that the work is fitted by its scholarship and its tone to become a standard in every theological seminary. Great pains have been taken with the Hebrew text, so frequently quoted, and its use is distinctly illuminative. His learning is never introduced to dazzle, but always to enlighten the reader." — The Interior.

"We hope every clergyman will not rest content till he has procured and studied this most admirable and useful book. Every really useful question relating to man — his nature, his fall, and his redemption, his present life of grace, his life after death, his future life — is treated of. We may add that the most conservatively inclined believer in the Old Testament will find nothing in this book to startle him, while, at the same time, the book is fully cognizant of the altered views regarding the ancient Scriptures. The tone is reverent throughout, and no one who reads attentively can fail to derive fresh light and benefit from the exposition here given." — The Canadian Churchman.

"Dr. Davidson was so keen a student, and yet so reverent as to his Bible, that anything from his pen must be of profit. The book gives evidence that his eyes were wide open to all modern research, but yet he was not led astray by any of the vagaries of the schools. Through all the treatment of the theme he remains conservative, while seeking to know the truth." — Examiner.

"No one can fail to gain immense profit from its careful study. We rejoice that such a work is added to the store of helpful literature on the Old Testament, and we express the hope that it may find wide reading among ministers and teachers of the Bible." — The Standard.

"In its treatment of Old Testament theology, there is nothing to equal it in the English language, and nothing to surpass it in any language. While it is prepared for scholars it will prove an education in the Old Testament to the intelligent laymen or Sunday-school teachers who will give it a faithful reading. The style is so clear that it cannot help but prove interesting. We commend this book with a special prayer, believing that it will make the Old Testament a richer book; and make the foundation upon which the teachings of the New Testament stand more secure to every one who reads it."

— The Heidelberg Teacher.

A HISTORY OF CHRISTIANITY IN THE APOSTOLIC AGE

BY

ARTHUR CUSHMAN MCGIFFERT, Ph.D., D.D.

Washburn Professor of Church History in the Union Theological Seminary, New York.

Crown 8vo, 681 Pages, $2.50 Net.

---

"The author's work is ably done. . . . This volume is worthy of its place in the series."—The Congregationalist.

"Invaluable as a résumé of the latest critical work upon the great formative period of the Christian Church."—The Christian World (London).

"There can be no doubt that this is a remarkable work, both on account of the thoroughness of its criticism and the boldness of its views."

—The Scotsman.

"The ability and learning of Professor McGiffert's work on the Apostolic Age, and, whatever dissent there may be from its critical opinion, its manifest sincerity, candid scholars will not fail to appreciate."

—DR. GEORGE P. FISHER, of Yale University.

"Pre-eminently a clergyman's book; but there are many reasons why it should be in the library of every thoughtful Christian person. The style is vivid and at times picturesque. The results rather than the processes of learning are exhibited. It is full of local color, of striking narrative, and of keen, often brilliant, character analysis. It is an admirable book for the Sunday-school teacher."—Boston Advertiser.

"For a work of such wide learning and critical accuracy, and which deals with so many difficult and abstruse problems of Christian history, this is remarkably readable."—The Independent.

"It is certain that Professor McGiffert's work has set the mark for future effort in the obscure fields of research into Christian origin."

—New York Tribune.

"Dr. McGiffert has produced an able, scholarly, suggestive, and constructive work. He is in thorough and easy possession of his sources and materials, so that his positive construction is seldom interrupted by citations, the demolition of opposing views, or the irrelevant discussion of subordinate questions."—The Methodist Review.

"The clearness, self-consistency, and force of the whole impression of Apostolic Christianity with which we leave this book, goes far to guarantee its permanent value and success."—The Expositor.

THEOLOGY OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

By GEORGE B. STEVENS, D.D.

Professor of Systematic Theology, Yale University.

---

Crown 8vo, 638 pages, $2.50 net.

---

"In style it is rarely clear, simple, and strong, adapted alike to the general reader and the theological student. The former class will find it readable and interesting to an unusual degree, while the student will value its thorough scholarship and completeness of treatment. His work has a simplicity, beauty, and freshness that add greatly to its scholarly excellence and worth."—Christian Advocate.

"Professor Stevens is a profound student and interpreter of the Bible, as far as possible divested of any prepossessions concerning its message. In his study of it his object has been not to find texts that might seem to bolster up some system of theological speculation, but to find out what the writers of the various books meant to say and teach."—N. Y. Tribune.

"It is a fine example of painstaking, discriminating, impartial research and statement."—The Congregationalist.

"Professor Stevens has given us a very good book. A liberal conservative, he takes cautious and moderate positions in the field of New Testament criticism, yet is admirably fair-minded. His method is patient and thorough. He states the opinions of those who differ from him with care and clearness. The proportion of quotation and reference is well adjusted and the reader is kept well informed concerning the course of opinion without being drawn away from the text of the author's own thought. His judgments on difficult questions are always put with self-restraint and sobriety."—The Churchman.

"It will certainly take its place, after careful reading, as a valuable synopsis, neither bare nor over-elaborate, to which recourse will be had by the student or teacher who requires within moderate compass the gist of modern research."—The Literary World.

THE ANCIENT CATHOLIC CHURCH

From the Accession of Trajan to the Fourth
General Council (A.D. 98-451)

By ROBERT RAINY, D.D.

Principal of the New College, Edinburgh.

Crown 8vo. 554 Pages. Net, $2.50.

---

"This is verily and indeed a book to thank God for; and if anybody has been despairing of a restoration of true catholic unity in God's good time, it is a book to fill him with hope and confidence."—The Church Standard.

"Principal Rainy has written a fascinating book. He has the gifts of an historian and an expositor. His fresh presentation of so intricate and time-worn a subject as Gnosticism grips and holds the attention from first to last. Familiarity with most of the subjects which fall to be treated within these limits of Christian history had bred a fancy that we might safely and profitably skip some of the chapters, but we found ourselves returning to close up the gaps; we should advise those who are led to read the book through this notice not to repeat our experiment. It is a dish of well-cooked and well-seasoned meat, savory and rich, with abundance of gravy; and, while no one wishes to be a glutton, he will miss something nutritious if he does not take time to consume it all."—Methodist Review.

"It covers the period from 98-451 A.D., with a well-marked order, and is written in a downright style, simple and unpretentious. Simplicity, indeed, and perspicuity are the keynotes, and too great burden of detail is avoided. A very fresh and able book."—The Nation.

"The International Theological Library is certainly a very valuable collection of books on the science of Theology. And among the set of good books, Dr. Rainy's volume on The Ancient Catholic Church is entitled to a high place. We know of no one volume which contains so much matter which is necessary to a student of theology."—The Living Church.

"Of course, a history so condensed is not to be read satisfactorily in a day or even a week. The reader often will find ample food for thought for a day or more in what he may have read in two hours. But the man who will master the whole book will be amply rewarded, and will be convinced that he has been consorting with a company of the world's greatest men, and has attained an accurate knowledge of one of the world's greatest and most important periods."—Christian Intelligencer.

"As a compend of church history for the first five centuries, this volume will be found most useful, for ready reference, both to those who possess the more elaborate church histories, and for the general information desired by a wider reading public; while the temperate presentations of the author's own theories upon disputed points are in themselves of great value."—Bibliotheca Sacra.

"Principal Rainy of the New College, Edinburgh, is one of the foremost scholars of Great Britain, and in Scotland, his home, he is regarded by his countrymen as the chief figure in their ecclesiastical life. There can be little doubt that this recent volume will enhance his reputation and serve to introduce him to a wider circle of friends."—Congregationalist, Boston.

History of Christian Doctrine.

GEORGE P. FISHER, D.D., LL.D.,

Titus Street Professor of Ecclesiastical History in Yale University.

Crown 8vo, 583 pages, $2.50 net.

"He gives ample proof of rare scholarship. Many of the old doctrines are restated with a freshness, lucidity and elegance of style which make it a very readable book."—The New York Observer.

"Intrinsically this volume is worthy of a foremost place in our modern literature . . . We have no work on the subject in English equal to it, for variety and range, clearness of statement, judicious guidance, and catholicity of tone."—London Nonconformist and Independent.

"It is only just to say that Dr. Fisher has produced the best History of Doctrine that we have in English."—The New York Evangelist.

"It is to me quite a marvel how a book of this kind (Fisher's 'History of Christian Doctrine') can be written so accurately to scale. It could only be done by one who had a very complete command of all the periods."—PROF. WILLIAM SANDAY, Oxford.

"It presents so many new and fresh points and is so thoroughly treated, and brings into view contemporaneous thought, especially the American, that it is a pleasure to read it, and will be an equal pleasure to go back to it again and again."—BISHOP JOHN F. HURST.

"Throughout there is manifest wide reading, careful preparation, spirit and good judgment."—Philadelphia Presbyterian.

"The language and style are alike delightfully fresh and easy . . . A book which will be found both stimulating and instructive to the student of theology."—The Churchman.

"Professor Fisher has trained the public to expect the excellencies of scholarship, candor, judicial equipoise and admirable lucidity and elegance of style in whatever comes from his pen. But in the present work he has surpassed himself."—PROF. J. H. THAYER, of Harvard Divinity School.

"It meets the severest standard; there is fullness of knowledge, thorough research, keenly analytic thought, and rarest enrichment for a positive, profound and learned critic. There is interpretative and revealing sympathy. It is of the class of works that mark epochs in their several departments."—The Outlook.

"As a first study of the History of Doctrine, Professor Fisher's volume has the merit of being full, accurate and interesting."

—Prof. MARCUS DODS.

" . . . He gathers up, reorganizes and presents the results of investigation in a style rarely full of literary charm."

—The Interior.

CHRISTIAN INSTITUTIONS.

By ALEXANDER V. G. ALLEN, D.D.

Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge.

Crown 8vo, 577 pages, $2.50 net.

---

"Professor Allen's Christian Institutions may be regarded as the most important permanent contribution which the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States has yet made to general theological thought. In a few particulars it will not command the universal, or even the general assent of discriminating readers; but it will receive, as it deserves, the respect and appreciation of those who rightly estimate the varied, learned, and independent spirit of the author."—The American Journal of Theology.

"As to his method there can be no two opinions, nor as to the broad, critical, and appreciative character of his study. It is an immensely suggestive, stimulating, and encouraging piece of work. It shows that modern scholarship is not all at sea as to results, and it presents a worthy view of a great and noble subject, the greatest and noblest of all subjects."—The Independent.

"This will at once take its place among the most valuable volumes in the 'International Theological Library,' constituting in itself a very complete epitome both of general church history and of the history of doctrines. . . . A single quotation well illustrates the brilliant style and the profound thought of the book."—The Bibliotheca Sacra.

"The wealth of learning, the historical spirit, the philosophic grasp, the loyalty to the continuity of life, which everywhere characterize this thorough study of the organization, creeds, and cultus constituting Christian Institution. . . . However the reader may differ with the conclusions of the author, few will question his painstaking scholarship, judicial temperament, and catholicity of Christian spirit."—The Advance.

"It is an honor to American scholarship, and will be read by all who wish to be abreast of the age."—The Lutheran Church Review.

"With all its defects and limitations, this is a most illuminating and suggestive book on a subject of abiding interest."—The Christian Intelligencer."

"It is a treasury of expert knowledge, arranged in an orderly and lucid manner, and more than ordinarily readable. . . . It is controlled by the candid and critical spirit of the careful historian who, of course, has his convictions and preferences, but who makes no claims in their behalf which the facts do not seem to warrant."—The Congregationalist.

"He writes in a charming style, and has collected a vast amount of important material pertaining to his subject which can be found in no other work in so compact a form."—The New York Observer.

Apologetics;

Or, Christianity Defensively Stated.

By the late ALEXANDER BALMAIN BRUCE, D.D.,

Professor of Apologetics and New Testament Exegesis, Free Church College, Glasgow; Author of "The Training of the Twelve," "The Humiliation of Christ," "The Kingdom of God," etc.

Crown 8vo, 528 pages, $2.50 net.

Professor Bruce's work is not an abstract treatise on apologetics, but an apologetic presentation of the Christian faith, with reference to whatever in our intellectual environment makes faith difficult at the present time.

It addresses itself to men whose sympathies are with Christianity, and discusses the topics of pressing concern—the burning questions of the hour. It is offered as an aid to faith rather than a buttress of received belief and an armory of weapons for the orthodox believer.

"The book throughout exhibits the methods and the results of conscientious, independent, expert and devout Biblical scholarship, and it is of permanent value."—The Congregationalist.

"The practical value of this book entitles it to a place in the first rank."—The Independent.

"A patient and scholarly presentation of Christianity under aspects best fitted to commend it to 'ingenuous and truth-loving minds.'"—The Nation.

"The book is well-nigh indispensable to those who propose to keep abreast of the times."—Western Christian Advocate.

"Professor Bruce does not consciously evade any difficulty, and he constantly aims to be completely fair-minded. For this reason he wins from the start the strong confidence of the reader"—Advance.

"Its admirable spirit, no less than the strength of its arguments, will go far to remove many of the prejudices or doubts of those who are outside of Christianity, but who are, nevertheless, not infidels."—New York Tribune.

"In a word, he tells precisely what all intelligent persons wish to know, and tells it in a clear, fresh and convincing manner. Scarcely anyone has so successfully rendered the service of showing what the result of the higher criticism is for the proper understanding of the history and religion of Israel."—Andover Review.

"We have not for a long time taken a book in hand that is more stimulating to faith. . . . Without commenting further, we repeat that this volume is the ablest, most scholarly, most advanced, and sharpest defence of Christianity that has ever been written. No theological library should be without it."—Zion's Herald.

Christian Ethics,

By NEWMAN SMYTH, D.D., New Haven.

Crown 8vo, 508 pages, $2.50 net.

---

"As this book is the latest, so it is the fullest and most attractive treatment of the subject that we are familiar with. Patient and exhaustive in its method of inquiry, and stimulating and suggestive in the topic it handles, we are confident that it will be a help to the task of the moral understanding and interpretation of human life."

—The Living Church.

"This book of Dr. Newman Smyth is of extraordinary interest and value. It is an honor to American scholarship and American Christian thinking. It is a work which has been wrought out with remarkable grasp of conception, and power of just analysis, fullness of information, richness of thought, and affluence of apt and luminous illustration. Its style is singularly clear, simple, facile, and strong. Too much gratification can hardly be expressed at the way the author lifts the whole subject of ethics up out of the slough of mere naturalism into its own place, where it is seen to be illumined by the Christian revelation and vision."—The Advance.

"The subjects treated cover the whole field of moral and spiritual relations, theoretical and practical, natural and revealed, individual and social, civil and ecclesiastical. To enthrone the personal Christ as the true content of the ethical ideal, to show how this ideal is realized in Christian consciousness and how applied in the varied departments of practical life—these are the main objects of the book and no objects could be loftier."

—The Congregationalist.

"The author has written with competent knowledge, with great spiritual insight, and in a tone of devoutness and reverence worthy of his theme."

—The London Independent.

"It is methodical, comprehensive, and readable; few subdivisions, direct or indirect, are omitted in the treatment of the broad theme, and though it aims to be an exhaustive treatise, and not a popular handbook, it may be perused at random with a good deal of suggestiveness and profit."

—The Sunday School Times.

"It reflects great credit on the author, presenting an exemplary temper and manner throughout, being a model of clearness in thought and term, and containing passages of exquisite finish."—Hartford Seminary Record.

"We commend this book to all reading, intelligent men, and especially to ministers, who will find in it many fresh suggestions."

—PROFESSOR A. E. BRUCE.

THE CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE OF SALVATION.

By GEORGE B. STEVENS, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

Dwight Professor of Systematic Theology in Yale University.

---

Crown 8vo, 558 pages, $2.50 net (postage 22 cents).

"The book is a great work, whatever one's own dogmatic opinions may be, or however one might wish to criticize some of the positions taken by Dr. Stevens. It shows mastery of the subject, breadth of view combined with the minutiae of scholarship, that is admirable. It should have a wide reading, and it can do much for this transitional time of ours, when nothing is more needed than the reinterpretation of the old formulas in the life of to-day."—The Examiner.

"Professor Stevens has performed a task of great importance, certain to exert wide and helpful influence in settling the minds of men. He has treated the subject historically and has given to Christ the first place in interpreting his own mission."—Congregationalist and Christian World.

"The eminence of the author no less than the thoroughly scholarly character of his discussion insures to his book a place in every complete theological library."—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

"This is a book of marked value. There is evidence of good thinking from beginning to end. The author has a clear and wholesome way of looking for the truth. He understands the uses of the historical method, but this does not blind him to the discernment of some truths by straight and immediate perception or intuition. Familiar enough with what the modern critics and theorizers have to say, he does not lose his fine poise of spiritual judgment either in face of the old or the new. He is in no sense a controversialist. He is simply after the truth, and the whole truth."—The Standard (Chicago).

"The subject is treated historically and exegetically, the problems that present themselves being approached inductively, the theories of others presented with reasonable fulness, and the discussion kept throughout on an objective plane. . . . The book deserves careful study, as a whole, and is suggestive of the interest taken in questions of soteriology to-day."—The Churchman.

THE CHRISTIAN PASTOR AND THE WORKING CHURCH

By WASHINGTON GLADDEN, D.D., LL.D.

Author of "Applied Christianity," "Who Wrote the Bible?" "Ruling Ideas of the Present Age," etc.

Crown 8vo, 485 pages, $2.50 net.

---

"Dr. Gladden may be regarded as an expert and an authority on practical theology. . . . Upon the whole we judge that it will be of great service to the ministry of all the Protestant churches."—The Interior.

"Packed with wisdom and instruction and a profound piety. . . . It is pithy, pertinent, and judicious from cover to cover. . . . An exceedingly comprehensive, sagacious, and suggestive study and application of its theme."—The Congregationalist.

"We have here, for the pastor, the most modern practical treatise yet published—sagacious, balanced, devout, inspiring."—The Dial.

"His long experience, his eminent success, his rare literary ability, and his diligence as a student combine to make of this a model book for its purpose. . . . We know not where the subjects are more wisely discussed than here."—The Bibliotheca Sacra.

"This book should be the vade mecum of every working pastor. It abounds in wise counsels and suggestions, the result of large experience and observation. No sphere of church life or church work is left untreated."—The (Canadian) Methodist Magazine and Review.

"A happier combination of author and subject, it will be acknowledged, can hardly be found. . . . It is comprehensive, practical, deeply spiritual, and fertile in wise and suggestive thought upon ways and means of bringing the Gospel to bear on the lives of men."—The Christian Advocate.

"Dr. Gladden writes with pith and point, but with wise moderation, a genial tone and great good sense. . . . The book is written in an excellent, business-like and vital English style, which carries the author's point and purpose and has an attractive vitality of its own."—The Independent.

"A comprehensive, inspiring, and helpful guide to a busy pastor. One finds in it a multitude of practical suggestions for the development of the spiritual and working life of the Church, and the answer to many problems that are a constant perplexity to the faithful minister."

The Christian Intelligencer

A HISTORY OF THE REFORMATION.

I. THE REFORMATION IN GERMANY.

By THOMAS M. LINDSAY, M.A., D.D.

Principal, The United Free Church College, Glasgow

Crown 8vo, 544 pages, $2.50 net (postage 21 cents).

This volume on the Reformation in Germany is a very important work. The author is a specialist on this subject, having devoted many years to research in the original documents of the period.

The work is especially valuable for its fresh and rich exhibit of the social and political environment of the Reformation. The story of Luther is vividly and graphically told, often in the very language and style of eye-witnesses. The volume concludes with a careful statement of the religious principles inspiring the Reformation.

The author is a genuine historian. He writes as a scholar who has mastered his material and his theme. He is free from the prejudices and exaggerations so common with most Protestant writers on the subject, and may be relied on for his facts and statements. Where one differs from him, it must be said that the author gives good reasons for his conclusions and there is room for honest difference of opinion. The author has in preparation a volume on the Reformation beyond Germany, which will complete the History of the Reformation.
